MISS COSTELLO, BARRYMORE WED

CEREMONY OVER BEFORE MOST OF GUESTS ARRIVE

In Utmost Privacy and Two Hours Before Scheduled Time, Stage and Screen Idol Marries His Former Leading Woman at Beverly Hills Home of Bride—Detectives on Guard Following Intrusion Earlier in Day of Unidentified Movie Actor Who Creates Disturbance by Loudly Demanding to See Bride.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Without divulging their destination, John Barrymore, famous motion picture and stage actor, and his bride, Dolores Costello, film beauty, departed on a short wedding trip this evening a few hours after their marriage at the bride's home. Because Miss Costello must be back at her studio by Tuesday in order to resume work on an unfinished picture, the wedding trip will of necessity be brief.

The bride and groom slipped out of the palatial Costello home while their relatives and intimate friends were enjoying the wedding dinner.

Ahead of Schedule.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—In the utmost privacy and two hours before the event had been scheduled, John Barrymore, stage and screen idol, was married this afternoon to Dolores Costello, formerly his leading woman.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a handful of relatives and intimate friends at the palatial Beverly Hills home of the bride.

Scheduled for sundown, the time

LABOR HEADS TO OCCUPY PULPITS

Federation Officials, Including Green, Will Speak In Churches.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 24.—(U. P.)—Officials of the American Federation of Labor, holding its forty-eighth annual convention here, including President William A. Green and the veteran secretary, Frank Morrison, will speak from the pulpits of churches tomorrow.

Officials and delegates spent Saturday sightseeing and in pursuit of other diversions, as no session of the federation was held. This freedom of movement was denied those serving on committees however. A busy day was put in by the committees, in shaping affairs so the convention could be kept "in action" during the final week's sitting.

No apparent friction was noticed in the past week's proceedings and very few delegates have taken issue with the numerous resolutions and committee reports thus far brought before the convention body.

Next week the location of the 1929 convention will be decided upon. At present, Vancouver and Toronto, Canada, are head and shoulders above other bidders.

Boy Flier Progresses

James left Fairfax field, Kansas City, at 12:15 p m.

James, making a San Francisco to New York flight, declared he intended to spend tonight here, resuming his flight tomorrow morning.

Aarts Predicts Centralized Heat For Entire Cities

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 2—(I. N. S.) — Centralized production of heat for great groups of population, even for whole towns, was forecast today by the second international conference on bituminous coal here by J. G. Aarts, director of the Private Technological Institution at Dougen, Holland.

Dr. Aarts visualized the time when no coal will enter towns, when cities and great centers of population will be smokeless, sootless and crimeless.

Heat in Dr. Aarts' "new age" will be supplied from a central works which will transform coal into latent heat of water and steam and gas and distributed in the same way as is gas and electricity at present.

"The problem," Dr. Aarts asserted, "is not a question of a method of production, but conservation of warmth."

Prominent Men Get Blackhand Letters

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 24—(UP) — Three residents of Carmel, Ind., including Hal L. Purdy, vice president of the Marmon Motor Car Co., have received extortion letters from alleged blackmailers recently, it was reported here today.

Besides Purdy, those receiving the letters were Louis Ross, Indianapolis manufacturer, and Bailey Hawkins, Carmel banker.

The letters were said to have been signed "The Hawk" and demanded sums ranging from $500 to $1,500. They have been turned over to the police.

FILM CORPORATION MUST PAY $30,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—As a result of a dynamite explosion on the sailing vessel Llewellyn J. Morse during the filming of the photoplay "Old Ironsides," the Famous Players-Lasky Film corporation today was ordered to pay damages totalling more than $30,000.

United States District Judge Jeremiah Neterer of Seattle awarded $28,541.65 to Harry Broyles, who received a broken back in the explosion.

Mrs. Cora B. Davis, widow of Charles Davis, killed in the blast, was awarded only $2,150 when it was discovered she was drawing compensation from the state.

Probe Death of Indiana Couple

GARY, Ind., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—The double killing of Ralph Campbell, 31, and his wife, Gladys, 24, whose bodies were found in a garage at the rear of their home here, baffled police tonight.

First theories of a suicide pact were belied by finding of a shot gun containing three shells, only one of which had been fired, officials admitted.

The shotgun was found on the floor beside the bodies.

SCREEN ACTRESS IS BROUGHT INTO ROTHSTEIN CASE

Gambler's Files Reveal Name of Lottie Pickford, Mary's Sister.

Police Seek Connection Between Kidnaping and Rothstein's Murder.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(UP)—The Rothstein case—which has grown to eb the stensation of Broadway—had another name well known to Americans brought into its record today.

Authorities searched 56,000 "scraps of paper" from Rothstein's private files and ran across the name of Lottie Pickford ,a screen actress, and the sister of Mary Pickford.

Miss Pickford had correspondence with one Sidney Stajer, a friend of Arnold Rothstein, the slain gambler. Stajer was arrested a few weeks ago on a narcotic charge and authorities said he was head of an international narcotic syndicate. Stajer was a beneficiary in Rothstein's will.

Police Working Hard.

The authorities are doing their utmost—just as they claim to have been doing their utmost for twenty days—to connect the alleged kidnaping of Miss Pickford in Los An-

STORM DELAYS HOOVER'S TOUR ONE FULL DAY

South American Arrival To Be Held Up By Severe Gale.

WATER POURS INTO PARTY'S QUARTERS

Ship's Officers Predict Rough Seas Ahead For Twenty-four Hours.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MARYLAND, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Herbert Hoover's visit throughout South America will be delayed one full day at each point due to the Maryland encountering a storm, it was officially announced today.

Official communications have been sent to all the countries which the delay will affect.

Hoover stood on the bridge of the ship all morning watching its operation in a strong wind. By 11 a. m., the force of the wind had slackened to forty-five miles an hour and the speed of the Maryland was increased to thirteen knots an hour.

Leaks Sealed Up.

The fury of the storm came upon the rugged man-of-war so suddenly that it became impossible to seal all of the hatches. Water streamed through various openings and into the quarters occupied by members of the Hoover party.

Com. A. V. Brown, executive officer of the Maryland, ordered additional men on deck at 4 a. m., to work on the hatches. The leaks which had broken one night's sleep were stopped up.

In the forward quarters the water was a foot deep, but the tars were accustomed to water and slept peacefully through the flood, knowing as they did that it could not reach their hammocks.

Captain Kemberly Alert.

Gigantic waves which swept the decks poured water even down some of the inside ventilators.

Throughout the storm Captain Kemberly, commander of the ship, sat in the pilot house, personally directing the ship's course.

Coffee was served him by a signal man, who always anticipated

END SURVEY ON COMPENSATION

Commission Named By Governor Ready To Draft Report.

Final Meeting Will Be Held In Lincoln This Week.

What will probably be the last meeting of the special compensation survey commission prior to turning in its report and recommendations to Governor McMullen, for transmission to the legislature, is scheduled for Wednesday evening of this week in Lincoln. The final draft of the report was being put together Saturday by Chairman F. A. Good and Secretary E. Glen Callen of the commission at the office of State Labor Secretary Pirie. Its general terms have been agreed upon by the members unanimously, Mr. Good said, and all that remains is to get their approval of the precise language employed in presenting the conclusions reached.

One of the two labor members, Fred Eissler of Lincoln, has not attended any of the recent meetings or hearings of the commission, being temporarily absent from the state. That fact was called to the attention of Governor McMullin, who appointed the commission, but he declined to name anyone else in Eissler's place unless the other members requested it. This has not been done. Instead, the commission decided that Theodore Jensen of Omaha, the other labor member, should cast two votes on all questions that might arise; and there the matter rests.

Chairman Good said that Eissler had never indicated any personal dissatisfaction with what the commission had done; but on the other hand he had gone away without offering any explanation of his absence. Copies of all its proceedings have been sent to him without soliciting any response. Under the circumstances, it was deemed a good solution of the difficulty to give the second labor member full voting power for both.

To Suggest Changes in Law.

A resolution passed by the legislature in 1927 authorized the governor to apoint a commission of seven persons, representing labor, employers, and the general public, to conduct an inquiry into the operation of Nebraska's present compensation laws and recommend to the next legislature where, in its opinion, changes ought to be made.

The commission has definitely turned down a proposal that compensation administration be placed in the hands of a court or board of three members, instead of a single official passing upon claims. It has

AIRPLANE DOWN; MAY BE LINDY'S

"Lone Eagle" Awaited at Brownsville After Tampico Hop-Off.

Army Fliers to Make Search Across Border Early Sunday

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 25 (Sunday—U. P.)—Maj. Bernard Law of the United States army airport here told the United Press this morning he is leaving with two planes later this morning to search for an airplane reported down across the border in Mexico.

Major Law said he had been advised the plane was sighted flying over the montainous, woody area across the border and that it was reported the plane might be that carrying Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been on a hunting trip in Mexico.

He said the reports came to him from the Meteorogical station at Fort Brown and that nothing definite was known as to who was in the plane or whether, definitely, it had crashed.

He said natives in the vicinity had reported the plane passed over and that its engine was missing.

Colonel Lindbergh left Tampico Saturday afternoon for Brownsville but had not arrived, as far as was known here this morning.

Major Law said he planned to start at daybreak.

CORONER'S JURY NAMES HUSBAND

Trobough To Be Charged With Shooting Of Wife.

(Special to The Star)

HASTINGS, Neb., Nov. 24—Sarina Trobough came to her death from a bullet in her chest, fired from a gun in the hands of her husband, Sidney Trobough, the coroner's jury decided here late today.

Vern Tooley, roomer at the Trobought home, testified that the couple had argued through the evening over the visits of a girl to their home. The girl was a friend of Mrs. Trobough, and she resented his objections to her.

Two bullet holes were found in the floor of the kitchen by the sheriff, and Tooley testified that words overheard by him during the argument indicated that they had been made by shots fired by Mrs. Trobough earlier in the evening.

No motive for the shots was brought out.

Charges will be filed immediately, County Attorney Crow said, the degree yet to be determined.

Omaha Officers Question Bird at Prison Saturday Afternoon.

BEAL UNDECIDED ON FILING CHARGE

Plan To Have Mrs. Stribling View Alleged Assailant Again.

Jacob Bird's denial that he is the Omaha axe-man was not shaken during a two-hour grilling at the penitentiary here Saturday afternoon by Omaha officers.

His questioners announced after their interview, however, that Mrs. Harold Stribling, last of the axe man's victims, had again practically identified Bird, this time from an enlarged photo.

Gathered in the Omaha hospital room at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, when the photograph was presented to Mrs. Stribling, were County Attorney Henry Beal, Sheriff Charles McDonald, Police Inspector B. H. Danbaum, and Dr. E. L. Bridges. The portrait showed Bird with his cap on.

"That is the man," Mrs. Stribling was quoted by Beal as saying.

She became hysterical once more, Beal declares, and those in the room withdrew.

Three hours later, an officer called with a small photo of Bird, such as are kept in prison files.

"Yes, I do believe that is the man," Mrs. Stribling affirmed, Beal reports. "You had him here yesterday. But I want to see him before I'm sure."

The officer offered to show her the enlargement again but she declined to look.

"While he doesn't meet the description I gave first, he is the man," she concluded, according to Beal.

Study Finger Prints.

No charges will be preferred against Bird until after his detailed statement, transcribed by a stenographer at the prison, is checked at Omaha, and until Mrs. Stribling has had a chance to see the man a second time. Palm prints were taken of Bird Saturday by the state sheriff and finger prints the day before. These also will be compared, but have not yet been examined.

"It depends on the developments

POSSE HUNTING FOUR GUNMEN

Leap From Car and Take To Fields When Stopped.

Exchange Shots With Officer Who Pursues Them.

GIBBON, Neb., Nov. 24—(UP) — A sheriff's posse still was searching late today for four men, believed to be a gang of bank robbers.

The hunt started after William Johnson, highway patrolman, halted a speeding touring car on the highway east of here. Four men climbed hurriedly from the car and started across a field on foot.

Johnson gave chase and a running gun battle ensued. No one was hit, but one of the gangsters stumbled and was captured by Johnson, who returned him to the jail here and enlisted Sheriff William Blake of Kearney to assist in the hunt.

A posse was quickly organized and Dan Dietrich, local airplane pilot, assisted in the hunt with his plane. While the search was in progress the man who had been placed in the Gibbon jail escaped and was also the object of search tonight.

A search of the abandoned car showed it was filled with a complete burglary outfit. All identifying marks on the car had been removed.

It was considered possible the men may have been the gang that broke open a safe at the York theater Friday night and escaped with $300.

Reginald Denny And "Bubbles" Steiffles Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Reginald Denny, motion picture actor, married Isabelle "Bubbles" Steiffles, screen actress, late this afternoon at the home of the bride in Beverly Hills.

Municipal Judge Samuel R. Blake of Los Angeles, an old time friend of Denny, performed the ceremony in the presence of many friends of the couple, including film stars.

The bride formerly was leading woman for Denny. The couple, according to friends, will take a short honeymoon, trip to an announced destination.

Denny received his final decree of divorce yesterday from his first wife, Irene Haysman Denny.

McAdoo Says 'Nothing' After Reporters Quiz

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 24—(UP)—William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury in the Wilson cabinet and twice a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, granted an "extensive" interview as he passed through Dallas today.

The subjects covered included the past, present and future of the democratic party and why Texas went republican. The interview consisted of seven letters, which were:

"Nothing."

McAdoo was enroute from Los Angeles to Washington.

CONDITION OF KING GEORGE REMAINS SAME

PHYSICIANS ARE STILL OPTIMISTIC

Prince Of Wales, Hunting In Africa, Gets Reports Regularly.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—An official bulletin issued this evening by Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewett, physicians in attendance, said King George had passed a quiet day and that the condition of his affected lung was unchanged.

At 2:20 a. m., Sunday, an official spokesman at Buckingham palace announced that the king's condition was "very much better," and added the information that his majesty was "sleeping peacefully."

Improvement Maintained.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(U. P.)—Millions throughout the British Empire breathed easier today when it was indicated that King George was maintaining the improvement which had been noted in his condition last night.

Lying in a sound-proof room in Buckingham Palace, the king—emperor of nearly half a billion subjects—still is apparently a very sick man. The slight cold which developed into a congestion of the lungs, has now been complicated by pleurisy.

The anxiety for his recovery, which was expressed everywhere yesterday has been somewhat relieved, for an official bulletin issued by Lord Dawson of Penn, physician to the king, and Sir Stanley Hewett, surgeon-apothecary to the king, said today that the king had passed a fair night and that

ARMY SUICIDE RATE IS HIGH

WASHINGTTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Indulgence in alcoholic liquor in the army increased slightly during the last fiscal year over the two years previous, and the suicide rate for the whole army was the highest for a decade, according to the annual report of Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, surgeon general of the army, made public today.

The suicide rate Ireland reported, was more than twice as high as the army's decade rate. There were fifty-two deaths by suicide during the year, compared with forty-four in 1923, forty-two in 1925 and forty-six in 1924. Eleven of the suicides were officers, compared with six in 1926 and five in 1925.

Seven deaths resulted from alcoholism, Ireland reported. All were among white enlisted men.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—The United States fleet will sail from here on January 15 for winter quarters in Central American waters, it was announced by Admiral W. V. Pratt, commander-in-chief.

Both the east coast and west coast fleets accompanied by base forces will participate in the exercises, according to published orders.

MORE AGGRESSIVE ADMINISTRATION LOOMS MARCH 4

Political Leaders Convinced There Will Be More Than a Change of Faces in White House When Coolidge Steps Out—Point to Hoover's South American Invasion, "Unemployment Insurance" Plan, Prospect of Farm Relief Solution After Long Deadlock and Probability of Numerous Cabinet Changes.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (U. P.) — Political leaders, gathering for the opening of the short session of congress one week from Monday, are becoming firmly convinced there will be a real change at Washington March 4, not just a change of faces in the white house.

Though the impression spread in the campaign that Herbert Hoover would be a second Coolidge, politicians feel strongly the Hoover administration will be a new one in fact as well as in name, and that March 4 will date the opening of another political generation as definitely as Harding's inauguration did.

This impression grows out of numerous developments current and impending, including the bold ven-

Dismembered Body Of Japanese Found In "Bargain Trunk"

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Mystery surrounding the discovery of a dismembered body in a "bargain trunk" purchased at an unclaimed baggage sale of the Canadian Pacific railroad, was fused wit hthe element of murder tonight, following an investigation by police.

Hismata Zaa, believed to be the dead man's name, undoubtedly met with foul play in the opinion of T. Ido, official Japanese interpreter. If Zaa was to have been shipped to Japan for burial, he said, it was an exception as he had never heard of such a case before.

The remains were discovered in a hermetically seaeled casket inside the trunk, purchased for $14 by J. E. Betts. A passport found with the remains identified the body and revealed that Zaa had entered Canada five years ago.

Police at first believed the remains had been made ready for shipment to Japan and then abandoned through lack of funds.

DROP TAX CASE AGAINST COUZENS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.— (INS) —The treasury department formally closed its tax case against Senator Couzens, republican of Michigan, by abating the assessment of $10,909,000 and relieving his bond holders of liabilities, it was learned today.

The assessment was levied against Couzens on profits realized from the sale of stock in the Ford Motor Co.

One Negro Killed In Running Battle With The Police.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Three new deaths tonight were attributed indirectly to Omaha's "hatchet murderer," making the toll six since the reign of terror began less than a week ago.

Sanley Haley, negro, died in a hospital today after he and a companion, now believed by police to have been the maniacal slayer who has had an entire city on its nerves, had engaged in a gun battle with police.

The companion, answering in nearly every way, according to detectives, the description of the "hatchet man," escaped following a sensational 10-mile chase.

INJURED YOUTH FOUND IN AUTO

Roy Garrison Taken To Hospital; Driver Held at Jail.

Failure to stop for a red signal light at Twelfth and P streets about 10:30 Saturday night landed Clarence Jennings, 23, in jail and Ray Garrison in St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Jennings, who seemed to be at a loss to account for himself and his companion, or the automobile in which they were riding, said the pair had driven to Lincoln from Nebraska City, arriving here shortly before they were arrested.

As the car in which the two youths were riding rounded a corner at Twelfth and P streets, Officer Frank Robbins noted the driver failed to halt for the red signal light. The officer headed the car toward the curb after a short chase but the brakes apparently were defestive and the car went up onto the walk.

When it had been halted the officer questioned the driver, who gave his name as Jennings. After Jennings drove to the police station Robbins discovered that Jennings' companion was unconscious in the seat of the car with a gash in the back of his head.

Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician, was at the police station when Robbins arrived with the two men and Garrison was given emergency treatment. It was said at the hospital early this morning that Garrison is not seriously hurt. He is being attended by the interne.

Splain and Schnell's ambulance was called and the injured man was removed to St. Elizabeth's hospital in a Splain & Schnell ambulance. Jennings was held at the station for investigation.

COOLIDGE READY FOR A HOLIDAY

Busy Week Enables President To Prepare For Thanksgiving.

Reports Await Decision, But Will Be Held Over To December.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—A week of close application to business has enabled President Coolidge to prepare for his four-day Thanksgiving vacations in Virginia with his flat-topped desk in the executive offices as clean as it is possible to make t.

The annual message to congress s completed and in the hands of the printer. Little remains to be done to the budget message which will be submitted to congress on the Wednesday after the session opens.

Seevral reports of importance await Mr. Coolidge's decision, but there was no indication that action would be taken until after Thanksgiving. Among these is the tariff commission's report upon the middleweet's demand for an increased corn tariff.

Breakfast With President.

A legislative program to the president's liking has been outlined to him during the past week by Vice President-elect Charles Curtis, who still retains office as leader of the republican party in the senate, and by Representative John Tilson of connecticut, house leader. The white house custom of congressional breakfasts was inaugurated Saturday with fifteen guests, including Curtis and Senators Borah, Hale, Smoot and McNary, chairmen, respectively, of the senate committees on foreign affairs, naval affairs, finance and agriculture.

If precedent is followed all members of both houses will meet the president over wheat cakes and sausage before the short session ends. The first breakfast was given over to discussion of the senate legislative program, especially with respect to two pet administration measures—the anti-war treaty and the navy construction bill, which would provide for fifteen cruisers of 10,000 tons and one aircraft carrier.

The president and his party will reach Swannoia Country club, near Waynesboro, in the Virginia Blue Ridge, Wednesday evening and return to Washington Sunday night.

Some invitations are being accepted, but the list is being kept as secret as other matters.

GRANGE URGES EXTRA SESSION

Farm Organization Asks Special Congress to Decide Farm Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—The National Grange today joined in the demand for an extra session of congress to dispose of the question of farm relief.

In a rush of resolutions during the closing hours of its convention it expressed opposition to "hasty or half hearted increases" in the tariff as a means of aiding the farmer, and declared:

"We favor calling a special session of congress for the purpose of disposing of this problem."

The Grange re-affirmed its policies regarding Muscle Shoals, declaring for lease to the highest bidder for fertilizer production, or if it could not be leased soon, operation of the nitrate and electrical project by the government.

A recommendation that the government "honestly strive to make the country dry" was adopted also.

Other last minute policies were expressed as follows:

That the federal radio commission restore to full time allotment radio stations "freely and regularly serving the farmers."

Continuation of present immigration restrictions.

Commendation of the federal farm loan board for its recent reorganization, but criticism of some of its loan policies.

Condemnation of the "despicable policies of the power trust in making use of public education institutions to carry on propaganda."

to her home, shot and killed her husband and then killed herself.

Mrs. Finlayson had purchased the revolver as protection against the "hacker," should he invade her house.

A police squad cruising about an outlying district stopped Haley and his companion for questioning. The pair sought refuge in a cornfield. Fifty shots were exchanged between them and the officers.

One Man Killed.

When the police returned to their car for more ammunition, the two negroes ran for their own automobile. A ten-mile chase ended when the suspects' machine stopped suddenly and a man leaped from it and darted into an alley. Haley lay dying at the wheel.

Meanwhile the web of evidence linking Jake Bird, negro ex-convict now in custody charged with the brutal murders of three and the serious wounding of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Stribling, appeared to be dissolving. Three factors strengthened the opinion that Bird, partially identified by Mrs. Stribling as their assailant, was not the man sought. These were:

1—A statement by Mrs. H. C. Henry, superintendent of the hospital where Mrs. Stribling is under treatment, that the patient was hysterical and in no condition to make a definite identification. Mrs. Henry said Mrs. Stribling's vision is impaired by the injuries sustained at the "hatchet man's" hands.

2—Escape of the unnamed negro in this morning's gun battle with a police squad.

3—A positive declaration by police Inspector Ben Danbaum that Bird is not the "chopper."

Bird, in his cell at the penitentiary in Lincoln, where he was taken for safekeeping, continued this afternoon to protest his innocence.

As Rogers Sees It

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Saturday, minds were not on politics. They were not on national affairs. They were on football. Did you know that football is becoming about as big a nuisance as politics? Millions of football fans went to football games yesterday afternoon. Mind you, I think it's a great thing. You spend all these years playing football and then you go through life waiting for somebody to give you a signal. Harvard and Yale have been beaten by everything but the pages in congress. They played yesterday to determine which is the worst team in America. I think it should have been a tie.

Yours, WILL.

whether any charges will be filed at all," said County Attorney Beal. "We'll probably have Bird up there Monday for her to see him. His clothes check up well with her descriptions and we'll let her examine them."

Mrs. Stribling was in fair physical condition when she saw the photographs, Mr. Beal declared, although she did become hysterical.

Accompanying the Douglas county and Omaha officials to Lincoln were Sheriff Percy Lainson and County Attorney Frank Northrupp of Council Bluffs. During the first part of the interview with Bird, they as well as prison officials were excluded.

Sheriff Lainson states that he has finger prints from the Stribling home, which is in Iowa although on the west side of the Missouri, but that he has had nothing with which to compare them. Nor have the original traces yet been properly enlarged.

Tells Same Story.

Bird told the Omaha officers much the same story that he has related to newspaper men. They quizzed him concerning the report that he might be the man who stabbed his wife to death at Chickasha, Okla., and was committed to an insane asylum, from which he is supposed to have escaped. Though admitting that he had been in Oklahoma, along with America's other forty-seven states he denied ever having been marreid or having been in Chickasha.

H. J. Pinkett, a colored attorney from Omaha and a representatative of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, interviewed Bird Saturday and became convinced of the man's innocence.

Bird lived too far from the scene of the crimes, Pinkett argued. He is not a pervert as the perpetrator of the axe murders must have been, and his haunts are not near the death houses.

C. C. Galloway, publisher of The Omaha Guide, a negro weekly paper, also talked with Bird and likewise was convinced of the man's innocence. Neither intends to take direct action in the matter but will report findings to the national association.

Bird was smiling when released from the deputy warden's office where the interview took place. He seemed worn, however, and more irritable than when first brought to the prison.

Danbaum Unconvinced.

OMAHA, Nov. 24—(U.P.)—Still unconvinced that Jake Bird, held at Nebraska penitentiary as a suspect, is the Omaha hatchet murderer, Inspector of Detectives Danbaum arrived here tonight from Lincoln, where he spent several hours questioning Bird.

Danbaum brought back several photographs of Bird taken at the prison, which were shown to Mrs. G. Harold Stribling, only person to have seen the slayer.

Mrs. Stribling said the photographs resembled the attacker, but that she would not attempt positive identification until she saw Bird again.

Bird probably will be brought back Monday and again viewed by Mrs. Stribling.

END SURVEY ON COMPENSATION

shown an inclination to place some limit upon medical and hospital fees charged in compensation cases—which proposition is favored by most employers and liability insurers but antagonized by the medical profession. The criticism is that doctors get too large a proportion of the money aid by employers or their sureties, and that compensation insurance rates in Nebraska, for that reason, are higher than in other states.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday, four of the commissioners were at Bayard and Scottsbluff, where they heard suggestions from officials of the beet sugar companies and chamber of commerce spokesmen. No labor representatives took part in the hearings, but a number of workers were interviewed personally during trips which the commissioners took through the sugar factories at Bayard and Gering.

Ten per cent of all industrial accidents in the state occur in that industry of northwestern Nebraska, state records show. Because of the large number of claims arising, the business interests there would like to have a branch compensation office established in that section, with a deputy in charge to hear and decide cases.

Chairman Good, Secretary Callen, Walton B. Roberts of Lincoln, and Clyde Dempster of Beatrice were the four members who made the tour through the sugar beet territory.

MISS LOGAN SUED.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—(I.N.S)—Jacquelin Logan, motion picture actress, today was sued in Municipal court for $322.50, alleged to be due a Hollywood boulevard clothier for apparel purchased last May.

'REAL CHANGE' IN WASHINGTON IS PREDICTED

ture of the president-elect into South America, his proposal that the states raise a $3,000,000,000 public works fund to relieve unemployment during depressions, the prospect of disposing of the farm relief problem which has been in stalemate for several years due to irreconcilable differences between Mr. Coolidge and congress, the impending revision of the tariff, and the probability of an almost entirely new group of faces in the cabinet and the higher executive positions.

Does Not Disapprove.

It is not that Mr. Hoover disapproves the condition of affairs as handed over by Mr. Coolidge, but the natural result of an aggressive executive following a more conservative one. Mr. Coolidge's conception of his office was to keep things moving as quietly as possible, with a minimum of change or fuss. Mr. Hoover's conception is likely to be that of an aggressive and experimental businessman who is willing to try anything that promises results. One type governs largely by precedent; the other largely by venturing forward on a sort of trial-and-error basis.

The proposal of a $3,000,000,000 state public works fund as an unemployment cure is typical of Mr. Hoover. It would be entirely out of character for Mr. Coolidge. The South American tou rof Mr. Hoover, announced with starting suddenness, is typical of his tendency to seek his objectives by the most direct route.

Hoover is expected to bring an almost entirely new cabinet with him. No authorized announcements have been made, but the feeling is general in Washington that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will continue. He may be almost alone among the survivors. Secretary of Agriculture Jardine is preparing to leave the cabinet March 4. Secretary of State Kellogg already has announced his intention of retiring. Other cabinet members are still awaiting cals to continue their service, which may or may not come. Some feel that Dwight Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, will be made secretary of state, and that Assistant Attorney General Donovan will be promoted to be attorney general.

Hoover is ready to begin his new administration with another tariff bill to supplant the one enacted early in Harding's administration.

Farm relief, deadlocked for several years, appears to be headed toward the statute books. Hoover, while not going much beyond the Coolidge position, has won the support of western senators and congressmen who opposed Coolidge's view. He has been able to break the strength of the McNary-Haugen bill by winning over many of its supporters. If farm legislation is disposed of in the regular short session of congress it will be due largely to the new atmosphere created by Hoover.

The advent of Hoover into the white house is awaited with some uneasiness among many political leaders. His very aggressiveness, his willingness to make precedents instead of merely observing them, and his independent turn of mind all create much uncertainty in the minds of politicians who were happy under Coolidge because he was a man who launched few innovations and disliked to see affairs disturbed in any way.

In the language of Washington, the political leaders always knew where to find Coolidge, which was a great satisfaction, even if they found him hard to budge.

Want Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—"Wait for Hoover" today became the slogan of a powerful group of members of the so-called "farm bloc" as a drive was launched to enforce an extra session of congress for consideration of farm relief legislation.

The first phase of the campaign, it was announced, will be to defeat enactment of the modified McNary bill in the coming short session.

Leaders of the movement are confidently relying upon President-elect Hoover's promise to summon the special session if farm relief fails this winter.

The only possible obstacle to the success of their effort, in the opinion of "farm bloc" insurgents, is a definite plea from Mr. Hoover for early action.

The revised McNary bill, now in the hands of President Coolidge and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine for approval, is declared to be unsatisfactory to the bitter-enders in the farm relief fight. They hold, too, than an apparent solution of the problem on the lines laid down by Mr. Coolidge would be a confession that the "farm bloc" was wrong in making the fight for the McNary-Haugen bill.

Senators Nye, republican of North Dakota, Brookhart, republican of Iowa, McMaster, republican of South Dakota, Representative Dickinson, republican of Iowa and other western progressives have all indicated an intention to fight the present farm relief proposals.

Comment of Nye.

"I believe that efforts for farm relief in the short session should be limited to the possibility of repassage of the McNary-Haugen bill over a veto which, I admit, appears to be hopeless at this time but deserving of another try," said Senator Nye.

"Failing in this we ought to have a special session which will be devoted to the farm problem and tariff revisions."

Sentiment among returned house members, Representative Dickinson said, is overwhelmingly for a special session.

"Farm relief advocates have more confidence in the new group coming into power, would rather have the problem committed to them and the republican party has pledged itself to deal with the problem," said Dickinson.

"The republican party cannot do anything else than take up the question in an extra session without humiliating itself."

Meanwhile Senator McNary, republican of Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen bill is sponsoring the new plan. He expects to have the administration stamp of approval upon his bill, which omits the much-debated equalization fee, within a few days. It would set up a $300,000,000 fund to be loaned cooperatives for the establishment of stabilization corporations.

HALPIN ELECTED.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 24—(INS)—Robert W. Halpin, Chicago, was elected president of the American Auction Bridge league at the closing business session of the second annual congress here tonight. Clayton W. Aldrich, Cleveland was chosen as vice president and E. T. Tobin, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

SEVEN SEAS ARE SWEPT BY STORM

good will journey to Latin America, ran into a seventy-mile gale in the Pacific which disarranged Mr. Hoover's schedules, putting him twenty-four hours behind in his planned visits.

Trans-Atlantic shipping schedules were disarranged. Liners plying between northern European ports and the United States were delayed in arriving and departing by the cyclonic winds which blew up gigantic seas.

The total damage will run into tens of millions of dollars.

Many small ships off the British and continental European coasts sent out distress signals.

The British steamship Cariboo was reported in Capetown advices to be sinking off East London, South Africa, with her captain on board. He refused to leave his post when the British liner Windsor Castle rescued the crew.

The Japanese Steamship Sakamaru went aground on Masbate island in the Philippines and was wrecked. It is feared the crew was lost.

The Spanish liner Cantabria was driven ashore on the Isle of Man, off the British coast.

geles and the slaying of Arnold Rothstein.

Miss Pickford reported she and a boy friend had been kidnapped November 9, six days after Arnold Rothstein had been shot at the Park Central hotel in New York.

Dragging the Pickford name into the Rothstein case may have been the first realizatino of the threat of the dead gambler's 56,000 "scraps of paper," which were first ballyhooed and then shelved with a statement by District Attorney Jacob Banton that they were "too dreary" for his own men to waste time over.

District Attorney Confident.

Since then the district attorney has made another statement in which he said:

"I promise you that within a short time we will have plenty of news in the Rothstein case. We have obtained all we needed from the Rothstein files regarding the murder. As for the rest of the stuff in those files, there is plenty of time for us to examine them.

"I am in hourly contact with Mr. (Nathan) Burkan and Andrew J. Sheridan, one of the three temporary administrators of the Rothstein estate, who has taken an active part in aiding us. I can rely on them. All the files have been scrutinized. As soon as I can give the public news about the case I shall do so."

Before the "56,000 scraps of paper" were officially declared to constitute a "dreary" task, it had been reported that they contained matter of almost dvilish implications. The original report was that Rothstein, for some reason—perhaps, as a standing threat to protect his own life—had set down detailed notations of all his multifarious connections with great and lowly, supporting them with carefully preserved correspondence relating to all the shadowy details in which he apparently delighted in figuring.

Walker Appears Satisfied.

The files were taken in charge by the police after a visit to Rothstein's Fifth avenue home.

Mayor Walker, whose dissatisfaction wit the manner in which the police investigation was being conducted, took the form of a threat to have removed the heads of those in charge of it last week, seemed appeased today. He issued a statement that he had no desire to "change horses in the middle of a stream."

Meanwhile, his police commissioner, Joseph Warren, tacitly withdrew from leadership in the investigation and the homicide squad and city detectives are turning over their findings to Banton.

The person who fired a bullet into Rothstein's stomach in Room 349 of the Park Central hotel November 4 may emerge as a name on an indictment from the welter of testimony to be presented to the grand jury beginning Monday morning.

the improvement which set in Friday evening was being maintained. The development of pleurisy was lightly passed over in the bulletin as "commonly accompanying this type of congestion." It was added, however, that it was "a prominent feature" in the king's illness.

Rich and Poor Rub Elbows.

In an effort to relieve any great public anxiety for the king's condition Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin followed his usual custom of spending the weekend at his official country home at Chequers. Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, also announced he would leave town today for his country home in Sussex. Both, however, are understood to be keeping in very close touch with the palace and have given orders that they be notified of any change in the king's condition.

Queen Mary has tried to maintain the usual routine of the royal family. Today she left the palace for Royal Albert hall to attend a performance of the Royal Choral society. The crowd of watchers around the palace remained silent as a token of sympathy as the queen passed. The men doffed their hats and the queen smiled in acknowledgement.

Throughout the day the rich and the poor rubbed elbows before the palace entrance.

Prince Constantly Informed.

Meanwhile, the government is making a check-up on all available airplanes in Africa to bring the Prince of Wales to England in event that his father's condition becomes so serious that such a step is necessary.

The prince is being constantly informed of his father's condition, but no alarming messages have been sent.

The prince is now on a shooting expedition in the Doreda district some two days journey from Dodoma, in the wilds of Tanganykian highlands. His brother, the Duke of Gloucester, is also hunting in the Lake Rukwa region and is proceeding toward the Chimbesi river and will meet his royal highness at Livingstone.

STORM DELAYS HOOVER'S TOUR ONE FULL DAY

the captain's wish for more and brought it before being asked.

"You surely are on the job," the captain said as the signal man expertly balanced a cup during a lurch of the ship.

One dramatic incident of the storm occurred when a group of men was hastily mustered to rescue one of the $37,000 airplanes aboard the ship. The plane had loosed its lashings in the heavy swell.

Officers of the ship estimated today that the Maryland would have to weather rough seas most of the day, or at least until she was beyond the Tehuantepec gulf, which is known as the "Hatteras of the Pacific."

They scoffed at attempts by newspapermen to get them to say that the sea was "rough" and would only admit that it was a moderate storm such as is frequently encountered in these waters.

The first indications of the rough weather came during a moving picture show in the evening when a huge wave smashed against the steel hull threw spray over the audience and flooded the Hoovers' sitting room.

Mrs. Hoover joined the president-elect on the bridge of the Maryland today and both showed themselves to be good sailors. Their chairs were placed on the leeward side of the bridge near the conning tower.

Part of the time Mr. Hoover smoked a cigar and read a book on South America. Later he chatted with a newspaperman who joined him.

Occasionally Mrs. Hoover would arise from her chair and pace the limits of the bridge gazing at the huge white-capped waves as they dashed over the bow. She would then return to the knitting which she brought with her when she first came to the bridge.

The president-elect wore his usual costume of a blue coat white flannel trousers and a yeoman's cap.

BARRYMORE AND MISS COSTELLO ARE MARRIED

was moved forward two hours, and most of the fifty friends invited to attend the nuptials began arriving after the ceremony was completed.

The Rev. Theodore Curtis Abel, of the Unitarian Society of Hollywood officiated.

It was believed that the wedding was rushed through because of the intrusion early this aetfrnoon of an unidentified motion picture actor, who created a considerable disturbance by loudly demanding to see the bride, contending that he was Miss Costello's rejected sutor. The man was speedily ejected from the Costello home.

Helene Maid of Honor.

Helene Costello, sister of the bride and herself a motion picture star, was the maid of honor.

Lionel Barrymore, a distinguished screen and stage actor and older brother of the groom, was best man.

Maurice Costello, father of the new Mrs. John Barrymore and one of the pioneer stars of motion pictures, and his divorced wife and mother of the bride, were present.

Newspaper reporters were barred from the interior of the Costello home. A detail of private detectives surrounded the house to guard against any further intrusions.

Although the bride and groom and their relatives were reticent concerning plans for a wedding trip, it was reported in the neighborhood of the bride's home that they planned to leave by train tonight for a tour of the east.

Groom's Third Venture.

The marriage is the third for the eminent actor and the first matrimonial venture of his bride. Their romance began in a Hollywood studio while they were at work in the production of motion pictures.

Barymore's last wife was Blanche Oelrichs of New York, noted poet, whose pen name is Michael Strange.

Barrymore was clothed in formal afternoon dress.

Many film notables were among the intimate friends who attended the wedding. Among them were Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford, Louise Fazenda, George K. Arthur, Louis Wolheim and Ernest Lubitsch. Among the motion picture executives and producers who attended were Joseph Schenck, Jack Warner, William Koenig and Michael Coritz. Miss Costello's director, Bess Meredith, the author, also attended.

A dinner followed the nuptials.

Actresses Defrauded

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Agnes Ayres and Clare Windsor, film actresses, are said to have been defrauded of thousands of dollars in land deals, under investigation by the district attorney's office.

Miss Ayres lost $30,000 and Miss Windsor's losses total $300,000, according to their attorneys. Details of the deals were not divulged.

GIGANTIC WAVE OF SPECULATION ROLLS FORWARD

Favorite Stocks Soar To Dizzy Heights In Past Week.

Dun's Review Reports Trend Toward Rising Production Some Lines.

BY ALBERT L. LA TOUR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—The gigantic wave of speculation, something entirely new in the speculative phase of the country, rolled on this week, leaving even the most optimistic bewildered and casting into the backwash the ordinary and legitimate considerations of business.

That demand for steel was revived this week apparently held little weight as speculative furore reached the highest ever. Favorite stocks soared to dizzy heights in nationwide enthusiasm that burst all bounds, forcing the governor of the stock exchange to hastily order the market closed on Saturday.

Efforts to speed up the ticker by eliminating the sales from the tape and printing only the stock abbreviation and shortened price were virtually futile. On Friday, the second day of the new system, sales reached the staggering total of 6,942,500 shares and caused a delay of more than an hour in reporting of transactions.

Stocks like Wright Aeroplane, which jumped 49 points one day, were leaders of the greatest of all the so-called "Hoover bull harvest." Never before was bidding for the high-priced stocks and selective favorites so frantic, yet with it all there was plenty of liquidation.

Trading was no less hectic in the curb market, governors of which also were forced to padlock the exchange from a speculative-crazed public. On Monday the curb market will also put into force the elimination of sales on the tape after their first appearance.

A Rising Trend.

Dun's review reports a trend toward rising production in certain lines, as in different divisions of textiles, and the great steel industry, although disclosing the expected let-down, maintains noteworthy buoyancy. An important phase in that direction, and also in other channels, is the tendency toward a widening of profits on individual transactions, following many months of narrow margins in this respect.

Weather irregularities made for considerable variance in trade reports. Industry, too, seemed to show a fair amount of variance, in that steel mill operations and automobile output tended to quiet down a trifle, whereas production of textiles and their finished products, clothing, knit goods, etc., seems to have continued the acceleration shown in October. Radio, rayon and some woodworking operations maintained or added to their previous pace.

Higher prices for cotton goods and better buying followed a 3-4 cent advance in the raw material. In the steel, shoe and automobile trades, seasonal conditions seem to have entered, but even in steel specifications were reported freer, while one large automobile concern reported actual acceleration.

Cotton slumped during midweek on ginning returns which proved to be larger than had been generally expected. Toward the close of the week prices recovered moderately. Of eighty-two commodities of all kinds quoted in Bradstreet's, fourteen advanced as compared with last week, sixteen declined and fifty-two remained unchanged.

Bank clearings totaled 14,071,506,000, an increase of 50.2 per cent.

Wheat Lower.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24— (INS)—Wheat closed ⅝@¾c lower today on selling by locals, commission houses and northwest concerns. The market was higher early on scattered buying on firmness at Liverpool. Corn finished 1⅝c to 1½c down with selling on favorable weather over the belt. Oats were ¼@⅜c off.

For the week wheat was off ¼@⅝c, corn ½c while oats were up ⅝c @1c.

Big buying by shorts in December wheat gave the market a steady undertone in spite of bearish features, liquidation of December, which was expected to depress the market, failed to materialize on the scale expected and it appeared shorts and cash interests were more concerned than longs.

Late stimates indicated world's stock of wheat at about 124,000,000 bushels more than a year ago. Canadian marketings this year show such an increase over last year that it is being given considerable prominence as indicating that the official crop estimate was under the real production in Canada. Continued favorable weather conditions both here and in Canada also were bear factors in wheat this week. Cables were uneven. Foreign news mixed. Some complaints have come recently from Argentina of dry and hot weather in the south, which was said to be hurting the crop, but foreign markets paid little attention to these reports. The Russian situation remains unchanged with the wheat crop reaching maturity without serious mishap. Export demand was light.

March and May corn soared to new high highs for the season. December also was active with active buying. Unfavorable weather over the belt which delayed farm deliveries figured in the advance receipts were small but primary arrivals continue larger than a year ago. Favorable weather conditions and weakness in wheat figured in a reaction later. Those who are bullish on corn believe that despite the tendency of country holders to sell, there will be no accumulation in the near future. Export business has been slow. Cash demand continued moderate.

Hog Prices Drop.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(I. N. S)—Hogs finished 60c under a week ago and at the lowest point since last March. Steers were 50c to $1.50 lower, cows and heifers 50c to 75c off. Lambs closed on a par with last week.

Excessive receipts and a light shipping demand were the dominating factors in the hog market. Receipts this week totalled 214,000, the largest since last spring. A week ago arrivals numbered 179,000 and a year ago 153,000. There were 732,000 hogs received at eleven primary markets this week which was 255,000 more than a year ago. The best hogs available sold at $8.55 late in the week and most of the plain heavy and underweight light at $7.75 to $8.25.

Demand for beef was modified on account of poultry competition and buyers had easily managed to pull down prices. Receipts were 61,000 against 64,000 last week and 55,000 a year ago. Weeks top was $17.50 with few steers selling higher than $16.50. The bulk of the supply cleared at $12 to $15. Cows and heifers were lower in sympathy with steers. Beef cows sold at $6.50 to $10 and heifers ranged from $8 to $12. Demand was slack for the calves most of which sold to packers at $12 to $13.50.

Early in the week the market was higher for all good lambs but later the advance was lost. At the close good to choice lambs were listed at $13 to $13.35 and medium to good at $12.50 to $13. Receipts for the week were 64,000 against 77,000 last week and 61,000 last year.

Chicago Cotton Up.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Cotton prices closed 78 to 95 points above a week ago. New highs for the current movement were established. Adverse weather and a private estimate by a leading Chicago house showing moderate ginnings to November 14 were 11,197,023 bales. The census report on ginnings which were 11,320,302 bales against 10,894,912 bales the corresponding time last year induced heavy selling and caused a recreation from high points. However, prices recovered again on scattered buying and moderate offerings. The government weekly weather report was favorable east of the Mississippi but unfavorable for the west.

Today's closing prices were three points lower to twelve higher. December at 19.72; January 1982; March 19.95; May 1992; July 19.80; Oct. 19.46.

GORDON NORTHCOTT WILL BE RETURNED

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Cordon Stewart Northcott, alleged Wineville, Cal., boy slayer will be on his way to California to stand trial of murder charges on Tuesday.

The last delay was removed today when Deputy Sheriff James Quinn of Riverside announced receipt of telegraphic advices from Ottawa that the necessary warrants for extradition of both Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott, had been mailed and will reach this city early Tuesday morning.

If the warrant for Mrs. Northcott reaches Calgary in time for her to be brought here before Tuesday the prisoners will be taken south together.

Capt. William Bright of Los Angeles County sheriff's office arrived here last night.

BROKERS REST AFTER BEDLAM

Stock Exchange Employes Relax at End of Hectic Week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—The weary stock brokers, clerks and floor managers who made up that bedlam of the stock exchange rested today after the most vigorout week in the history of that trading center.

The bull market which followed upon election of Herbert Hoover as president had taxed every resource that New York had for handling the exchange. The trading during the week was on an average of 6,099,524 shares a day.

A few years ago a 3,000,000-share day was something to marvel about. Whenever the traders got so busy that 3,000,000 shares were exchanged every newspaper in the country emblazoned the front pages with the announcement.

Yet, through this week almost every day has seen that 3,000,000 figure doubled while some of the leading stocks have jumped 20 to 30 points. Millionaires were made. Millionaires, so reports go, were broken.

Never before in history has there been such a wave of speculation. From every corner of the country orders have come into Wall Street.

From the opening gong on Monday until the close on Friday tickers hummed with millions of sales. Authorities of the exchange shot their last gun in the war to keep tickers abreast of trading. They made the most radical change known to the conservative exchange in eliminating from the regular ticker all volume of transactions, except the opening sales.

A Success On Thursday.

In one day the Western Union Telegraph Co., turned over to its engineers the job of equipping New York newspaper offices and press associations with a doublemotor ticker service for sales. On Thursday the new system was tried with remarkable success.

The reason for this success was that many traders remained out of the market. The ticker was only a minute or two late most all day and the last quotation was printed at 3:32. Then those absentees came back with a rush and the ticker ran overtime nearly an hour Friday, recording 6,954,020 sales.

Argument now is for a double ticker service. That the members of the exchange think trading will be heavy from now on is seen in the latest prices for seats. A sale was arranged at $550,000 Friday, a new record for all time. At one time a year ago one could have purchased a membership for $170,000.

No change in the course of the "Hoover bull market" was discernible. Prices generally moved forward, some of them sensationally. There was some profit-taking Friday—the usual Saturday selling—induced by the closing today, but the previous momentum left the list on much higher ground.

Brokerage Loans Jump.

Even the expansion of $176,315,000 in brokerage loans this week failed to bring down prices. Last week the loan total rose only $1,849,000. Traders averaged the two and found only about $90,000,000 per week gain—a small matter.

Call money held at 6½ per cent and time money, while firm, had little effect. That the market is peculiarly sensitive to the federal reserve board attitude was shown plainly Friday when an announcement was to be made at the New York Federal Reserve bank. Stocks sold off sharply, but when the announcement came of the appointment of G. L. Harrison to succeed the late Benjamin Strong as governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank the list snapped back quickly.

Radio, Case Threshing Machine, Victor Talking Machine, the airplane stocks and other blue chips of the list made the widest advance. With such high priced issues in demand one could easily judge the calibre of the buying. Wealth is in this market. It cannot be broken easily. On this thesis traders added to their commitments in the issues which have dividend records or possibilities of great increases in value.

Has Your Investing Been Successful?

THE facts and conditions which make one investment safe and another susceptible to weaknesses are complex. All investment literature for selling purposes, by its nature, tells a plausible story. Naturally, unfavorable points are not underlined or written in red ink to attract attention.

Unless one is experienced and constantly and closely in touch with current investment offerings, even ordiary pit-falls may escape otice. In view of this, safe and satisfactory investing is chiefly a matter of where you buy your investments.

LAWYERS FAR APART ON FEES

Charges Recommended By Various Attornies Vary Widely.

Resolutions Adopted In Tribute to F. M. Hall and H. H. Wheeler.

That lawyers often aren't able to agree, even on fees, was demonstrated Saturday evening when, at the regular monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Bar association at the Lincoln hotel, Secretary Guy Tou Velle read a summary of fee suggestions made by forty local attorneys.

The lowest, the highest and the usual charge recommended by various attorneys for standard services were read by Mr. Tou Velle to his colleagues. The high and the low of it often were as far apart as $2 and $100, or $25 and $500.

Yet as a rule, most of the practitioners stuck pretty well to a recognized scale. And that scale, according to Mr. TouVelle, has shown mighty little advance in the last forty or fifty years.

The association took no action on the report nor was it expected to. Questionnaires had been returned by 90 per cent of Lincoln's active lawyers.

"Our fees offer more sound values than the fees of any other profession," Mr. Tou Velle stated. The chief danger, in his opinion, is that the charges are likely to be too low.

Need $235 A Month.

A young bachelor lawyer, for instance, with the lowest office and living charges must make $234 a month or $1.11 an hour to cover his bare necessities. A married man must make $350 or $1.63 an hour. With extra expenses and depreciation and capital investment counted, the income must be between $3 and $5 a day, 8 hours a day every day, to provide a compensatory income.

After the long list of minimum fee charges had been read, members present were called on for discussion.

John J. Ledwith gave as his opinion that fees cannot be arranged in any cut and dried manner. To build up a clientel, lawyers must do far more free work than such a scale indicates.

Much of the law business, what is more, now falls to real estate offices and trust companies, whose competition Mr. Ledwith regards in these matters as unfair. They advertise, for instance, which for a lawyer is unethical.

Too many lawyers is another source of trouble, said Mr. Ledwith. Lincoln has 200 when 100 could do the work.

Judge Reid of the County court spoke out that he considered $50 the minimum for an estate matter. His hardest job, he added, is fixing fees, for then he is liable to criticism from the lawyer himself as well as the lawyer's client.

Dale P. Stough and Otto ...eier also spoke on the subject.

Two Memorials Adopted.

Two memorials to members who have passed away were read and adopted.

H. H. Wilson presented the following committee report to the memory of Frank M. Hall:

"Frank Monroe Hall was born on January 27, 1852 on a farm in Morgan county, Illinois. At an early date his family moved to Nebraska and settled at Humboldt in Richardson county.

"... the seventies Mr. Hall attended the state normal school at Peru in this state and in the fall of 1876 he entered the Nebraska state university as a student in the university. He registered as a "university student" which means that he was not restricted to any particular course of study as most of the students were, but was allowed to choose those subjects of study which he deemed the best preparation for his professional career that he had already determined should be law. At that early date, Nebraska had no law school and, indeed, at that time there were but few such schools in the country.

Studied in Law Office.

"At the end of two years' study in the university, he had a favorable opportunity to commence the reading of law in the office of Cobb and Marquette, one of the leading law firms of Lincoln at that time. This opportunity was so attractive to Mr. Hall that he left the university to become an office law student. After the usual preparation furnished at that time by law office reading, he was admitted to the bar in 1880. Not long after his admission to the bar, Mr. Cobb became one of the judges of the Supreme court and Mr. Hall was invited to take his place in the firm that later became Marquette, Deweese and Hall.

"On June 22, 1882 he was at Hamburg, Ia., united in marriage to Anna E. Ried who for forty-five years was his inspiring companion, dividing his sorrows and doubling his joys.

"Mr. Hall soon became known as an efficient and successful trial lawyer; he did not limit his legal reading to the preparation for the trial of his own cases. By general reading he acquired a broad knowledge of the whole system of law and became known as a scholarly lawyer. He had a keen and analytical mind that led to an understanding of the broad underlying principles that constitute the philosophy of law.

"His services to his clients often went far beyond the function of the mere lawyer and included advice upon business matters quite outside the profession. No lawyer at the bar ever had the confidence and loyal support of his clients more than Mr. Hall. Some of these clients had the benefit of his services and advice for practically the whole term of his career at the bar.

Active Outside Profession.

"Beside his professional activity, he became well known for his activities outside of the law. At an early date he was attracted to the fine arts and became a connoisseur in judging works of art. He and his wife, not only by wide reading on art subjects, but also by European travel qualified themselves to appreciate the best in that line. They gradually built up in their home a considerable collection of valuable paintings and shared the enjoyment of them with the people of the community.

It was largely due to the efforts of Mr. Hall that the city now possesses its chief piece of sculpture—the Lincoln monument on the capitol grounds.

During the many years of his active life, Mr. Hall was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian church of this city. The study of architecture was one of his avocations and it was no doubt one of the greatest pleasures of his life that in his closing years he was privileged to have the oversight of the planning and construction of the monumental home of the church of his faith—the First Presbyterian church of this city.

"Mr. Hall made this community his debtor by several years of faithful and intelligent service as a member of the school board. He was more than a lawyer; he was a broadminded patriotic citizen. In full sympathy with progress, he touched life at many points and never touched it without tending to elevate it.

"Mr. Hall was a marked man in any group of which he formed a part. Strong in his convictions, bold and forceful in the expression of his own opinion, yet he was tolerant of the opinions of others if he felt they were sincerely held and honestly expressed.

Ethics of Highest.

"In the discussion clubs of the city, his contributions were always worthwhile and some of them will long be remembered and preserved. As a lawyer, Mr. Hall stood for the highest standards of ethics in his profession, was honest and fair in his practice, loyal to the courts and strove to inspire a general confidence in the due administration of law.

"His passing has left vacant a place at the bar which it might well be the highest ambition of the younger generation to adequately fill. He was loyal to his country and to its institutions and always sought to promote its best interests as he conceived them to be. In his death this bar has lost a worthy and efficient member, the community an enterprising, influential and upright citizen, and the state and country a patriotic American."

E. P. Brown read a resolution on the death of Hiland Hill Wheeler.

Mr. Wheeler came to Nebraska in the early seventies after he had already won recognition as a scholar and a lawyer, said Mr. Brown. He became deputy clerk of the Supreme court and on his efforts rests the responsibility for much of the state law library's excellence. To him also may be credited the accuracy of reports on early court cases. He compiled the statutes of the state in accurate, brief and convenient form and continued to publish them for many years. Mr. Wheeler spoke the truth, loved honor, was loyal and faithful, concluded Mr. Brown.

CONTINENTAL CO. IN NEW OFFICES

Moves To Quarters On Eighth Floor of the Stuart Building.

The division offices of the Continental Oil Co. will occupy the entire north wing of the eighth floor of the new Stuart building, J. A. Lentz, division manager of the company, announced Saturday afternoon. The offices will be all in a single room, 36 by 107 feet, and comprises slightly less than half the entire floor space of the eighth floor. The transferring was completed Saturday, and Monday will find the offices in their new home.

Lincoln is the divisional headquarters for the company, handling the jobbing, wholesaling and retailing activities throughout the Nebraska and South Dakota territory. Four hundred and eighty-two persons are employed in this territory, over one hundred of wsom are in Lincoln. The company has a $150,000 payroll in Lincoln alone.

Besides the large room which will house and general offices, the new quarters of the company include four large private offices and a display room, located at the west end of the building. The entire eighth floor of the Stuart building is available to the Continental company if future expansion is required, said Mr. Lentz.

BIG ATTENDANCE MASONIC MEETING

Capacity Crowd Friday Evening Reminiscent Of Night William Jennings Bryan Was Raised To Master Mason.

Victor Seymour, secretary of Lancaster Lodge No. 54 said at the conclusion of the work Friday evening that the attendance was the largest he had ever witnessed at Blue lodges with the possible exception of the night William Jennings Bryan was raised. Lancaster Lodge No. 54 wishes publicly to express its regards at not being able to seat all the brethren who came to the banquet. Nevertheless, preparation had been made for considerably more than at any previous meeting this year.

Past Master Alva A. Baer said "The best argument one could produce for a new Masonic temple in Lincoln was witnessed at Lancaster lodge No. 54 Friday evening when the main floor and balcony were taxed almost to the limit."

Many men, some members of Lancaster Lodge No. 54 and visitors sid that the work done by Mizpah Lodge No. 302 was the best they had ever witnessed. This lodge will be remembered many years in this vicinity for the splendid degree work exhibited Friday evening.

Ben Green of the Burlington system who is making plans for railroad night said that one official of the Burlington at Chicago T. E. Pratt, had promised to come to Lincoln for Lancaster Lodge No. 54 Master night on December 28.

Two Master Mason degrees will be conferred Friday evening, November 30. Work begins at 6 p. m. An oyster supper will be served following the work.

Road Conditions

The following report of the condition of Nebraska's highways was issued late Saturday afternoon by the Lincoln Automobile club:

Dirt roads are greatly improved today over the conditions prevailed during the past week. All of the main highways have been maintained. The graveled roads are good although choppy in places on the highways receiving the heaviest traffic. There are but three detours reported in the state.

U. S. No. 38. Lincoln to Omaha, good. Graveled west to this side of Oxford; one detour. Rough stretches fair, passable into Denver, and good in places.

U. S. No. 77. Sioux City to Oakland, good gravel. Dirt rough to Hooper ;good gravel to Fremont and generally good int Lincln, Beatrice, Wymore and to the Kansas line.

U. S. No. 30. Omaha to Fremont, paved. Fair on dirt stretches to Grand Island. Grand Island west to North Platte—rough Gothenburg to Brady Island, and slightly rough for short stretch this side of North Platte. Generally good to Cheyenne.

U. S. No. 81. Good.

U. S. No. 75. Omaha to Auburn, graveled. Dirt road to Fairview, then gravel to Topeka.

U. S. No. 73. Graveled to Falls City.

U. S. No. 20. Generally good across northern Nebraska to Valentine, Merriman, Chadron and Crawford.

U. S. No. 26. Ogallala to Scottsbluff, Bridgeport and Torrington, reported good.

U. S. No. 19. Sidney to Alliance and Chadron, good.

Nebraska No. 11. Lincoln to Union, good. Lincoln to Seward, use Nos. 38 and 15. Seward to York, Aurora and Grand Island, good gravel.

Irrigation At Pen Success And No Indication Constant Watering Is Injuring Soil

After a two-year trial at the Nebraska penitentiary, irrigation has been pronounced a success in this, the first venture of the kind in Lancaster county.

Crops not only have been made certain, say those in charge, but have been increased one half.

Ten more acres were put under irriagtion this year but no further extensions of the system are now contemplated. An additional "booster" pump had to be added for the 10-acre field, so that electricity is supplied from the new power house to two centrifugal devices.

Profits from the penitentiary plat have not been figured exactly, nor will they be so reckoned, because all expense itself cannot be calculated. Later in the fall, however, a report will be made on the approximate amount and value of all the products.

Does Not Damage Soil.

There has been no indication, says L. L. Lawrence, gardener in charge, that the ground of Salt creek valley will become untillable through continual irrigation. In some localities, land watered season after season becomes dank, mucky and unfit for agriculture. It then has to be rested before tilled again.

Twenty acres planted to potatoes this year made about 225 bushels to the acre. Five or six acres of cabbage were planted. This vegetable profits remarkably from irrigation. The weight of none of the great heads was ascertained definitely, but some of them were very large. Sixty-five barrels of kraut and twenty of pickle lilly were put down for winter use at the prison.

From the five or six acres planted to tomatoes, 2,000 gallons of canned fruit were prepared and 2,000 gallons of preserves put up. The fruit is placed in 5-gallon jars at the slaughter house, used temporarily during the proper season as a canning factory.

10 Acres Garden Truck.

Ten acres of small garden stuff such as carrots, beets, turnips, radishes, lettuce and the like were planted. The early plants are not helped much by irrigation by the main root crops improve greatly under applications of creek water. Seven hundred bushels each of carrots, beets and turnips were stored.

Sweet corn of which there were five acres at the pen, flourished.

The reason ordinary garden irrigation often seems ineffectual, Mr. Lawrence has concluded, is threefold.

First, it often is insufficient; second, the water comes cold from the mains and chills the growing plants; third, it is hard and carries no plant food.

All three of these defects are remedies under the system used at the penitentiary. The creek water is warm, it is put on in sufficient quantities, and is carries vast sediments of valuable fertilizer.

Irrigate at Night.

After 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the heat of the day is gone, the pumps are tsarted. Two men besides Mr. Lawrence work until midnight guiding the water down narrow channels between each row. In exceedingly dry weather, the process is repeated every eight or ten days.

During the last of June and in early July, hot spells that hurt garden stuff seems to occur most frequently.

As many as forty men are employed at one time on the 40 acres. Mr. Lawrence must then be chief guard as well as chief gardener. Regular trusties or relaible men with a short time left to serve are detailed for the job.

Not only do their efforts supply the institution with many of its food requirements, but at the same time the men help themselves. Confined for years in some cases in cells or at indoor labor, they become flabby and quite unable to perform ordinary manual labor. For several days when first set to weeding or other tasks, they often are unable to toil continuously. The outdoor life, however, toughens and enables them at the time of their release to go into the world again and do a man's share.

EIGHT ELECTORS CHOSEN TO CAST NEBRASKA VOTE

Group Picked at Election Although Names Were Not On Ballot.

Formalities Of Law To Be Observed Here January 2.

Eight persons in Nebraska whose names did not appear on the official ballot at the election held November 6, and for whom not a single 'X' was marked on any voter's ticket, were nevertheless elected by the sizable plurality of 147,786 votes, as a result of the G. O. P. landslide, and will receive commissions from the governor showing that fact.

They are the group of presidential electors who will meet in Lincoln on January 2, next and cast the eight votes of Nebraska—being the total number of its representatives and senators in congress—for Hoover and Curtis as the choice of this state for president and vice president of the United States.

The peculiar status of these citizens as delegated trustees to carry out the expressed will of Nebraska's electorate, without having been voted for as such, is due to an enactment of the last legislature, amending section 1,918 of the compiled statutes to read as follows:

"In the year 1928 and every four years thereafter, at the general election held on such day as congress may appoint, each (presidential) elector nominated by any party or group of petitioners shall receive the combined vote of the electors (voters) of the state for the candidates of such party or group of petitioners, and a vote cast for the candidates for president of the United States shall be the vote of the voter for the electors of the respective party or group of petitioners."

Legal Shifting of Votes.

The somewhat awkward language in the preceding paragraph means simply that all ballots marked at the late election for Hoover and Curtis, bracketed together, must be counted for the republican presidential electors; those marked for Smith and Robinson are credited to the democratic electors; and the ones on which voters expressed their preference for Thomas and Mauer go into the socialist electors' column.

This has been done by Secretary of State Marsh in compiling the total vote of the state, with the result that each republican presidential elector is given 345,745 votes, each democratic one 197,959 and each one in the socialist group 3,434.

Expressed in the language of an old-fashioned school arithmetic, the effect is to transfer A's votes (those cast for Hoover and Curtis) to B, C, D, E, F, G, H and I. The reason for this is that under the federal constitution the people cannot vote directly for president and vice president but must choose electors, who subsequently cast the votes alloted to each state in determining the choice of the nation's rulers.

Formerly, the names of all candidates for presidential electors were printed on the ballot, while the presidential and vice presidential nominees did not appear thereon. This had the effect of mixing the voters up badly, and to simplify things the law was changed ten years ago so as to leave off the ballot the names of electors, whom very few people knew, and put on those of the candidates for president and vice president, so that anyone might be able to tell at a glance, how to mark his ticket. It was stipulated in the enactment that the governor, after election, should appoint the electors of the party whose presidential ticket carried the state.

The last legislature, seemingly fearful that some future governor might fail to carry out this requirement, and thereby possibly prevent the election of a president, went a step further by changing the law so as to direct election boards to credit all votes cast for president and vice president to the electors of the same party.

No Trip to Washington.

There is sad news in store for the eight electors thus chosen, in the fact that congress has also been doing some legislating in regard to the manner of casting and counting electoral votes, and in so doing has abolished the old custom of sending an official messenger from each state to Washington, charged with the duty of carrying the official returns and delivering them to the proper governmental functionaries.

Always heretofore, there has been a good deal of rivalry for the honor of being sent as the state's messenger to the national capitol, which carried with it a liberal mileage allowance, paid by the United States treasury, sufficient to meet all expenses of the person taking the trip.

That has all been done away with now. The Nebraska electors will merely meet in Lincoln on January 2, the date fixed by congress in its new enactment, cast their votes separately for president and vice president and forward duplicated certificates of their action by registered mail to the secretary of state and the president of the senate at Washington. After that they will be free to go home.

With the governmental trip and its cash allowance gone, there is little left to the job of being a presidential elector. The only remaining perquisite is a $5 per diem while in Lincoln and 10 cents a mile for travel coming here and going home, which the state pays.

It devolves on Governor McMullen to notify the electors of their election and the time when they are to meet here. The meeting date in Nebraska has been advanced several days from what it used to be. It is now uniform throughout the United States.

Personnel of Group.

The republican electors who will convene in Lincoln on January 2 and go through the prescribed formalities are:

At large—Mrs. Augusta M. Berry, Bellevue, and Harry E. Sackett, Beatrice.

District electors — First, H. A Schneider, Plattsmouth; second, Mrs. Bertha Clark Hughes, South Omaha; third, H. L. Webster, Tekamah; fourth, M. M. Aikin, Fairmont; fifth, J. Warren Keifer, Bostwick; sixth, M. L. Fries, Arcadia.

REBEKAH ELECTION.

RED CLOUD, Neb., Nov. 24—At the regular meeting of Faith Rebekah lodge held Thursday evening, the following officers were elected: Noble grand, Pearl Hines; vice grand, Emma Bargman; secretary, Myra Koon; treasurer, Lole Corner.

Boy, 18, and Liquor Car Are Taken

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(I. N. S.)—A giant racketeer organization may be supplying Chicago school children with liquor through "candy stores" and bookstores, federal and city policemen indicated tonight.

Meyer Price, 18, arrested in a car containing a quantity of gin and "moonshine," was released this afternoon on $1,000 bod after arraingment.

The boy was only defiant when arrested, threatening the officer:

"I can get your job: I'm working with a big shot in Evanston."

The arrest of Price indicated, police said, that a syndicate of bootleggers may be operating under cloak of various stores near grade and high schools and using school boy agents for deliveries in the halls of the schools in some cases.

Most of the liquor, according to police, is sold in half-pints, within the reach of student purses, and is little better than poison.

William J. Brogan, superintendant of schools called a special meeting of principals today and issued a request that co-operation be extended by all teachers to police cleanup squads.

A vivid picture of a highly organized syndicate debauching school children, with big profits to the syndicate, was the picture drawn tonight by the local and federal officials heading the "cleanup."

The "broadmont" club, raided today, was sold by police to have been one of many organizations catering almost entirely to high school students.

LEIGH BUYS PUMP OF LINCOLN FIRM

LEIGH, Neb., Nov. 24—The village board entered into contract with the Interstate Machinery Co. of Lincoln, for the purchase and installation of a turbine water pump to replace the present air-list system. The turbine will cost $2,500. The new pump will have a capacity of 200 gallons of water per minute. The air-lift was throwing only 60 gallons per minute.

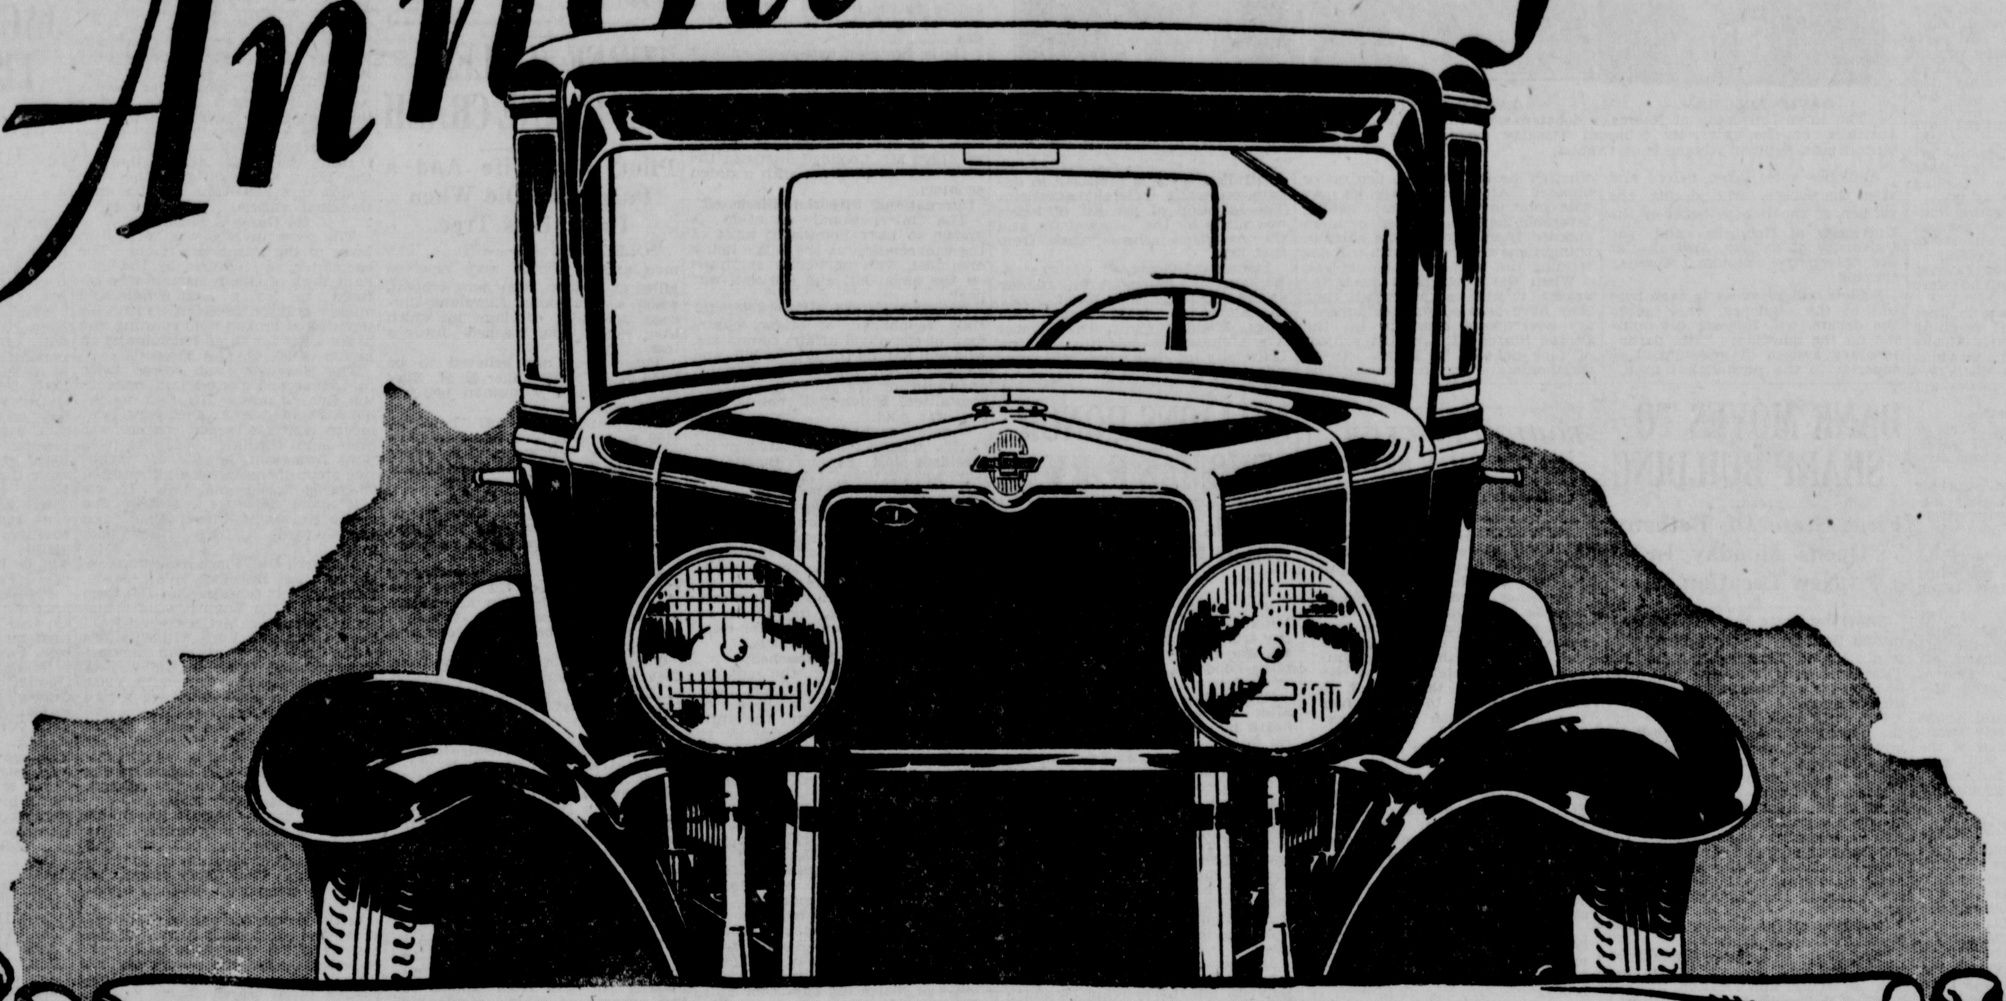
Announcing—



The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

—a Six in the price range of the four!

The Chevrolet Motor Company announces The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History... a Six in the price range of the four!

Spectacular as Chevrolet's achievements have been in the past . . . notable as its engineering triumphs have proved themselves to be—this remarkable new car dwarfs every previous Chevrolet accomplishment. Not only does it introduce into the low-priced field an entirely new measure of performance, comfort, beauty and style—but it is sold at prices so low as to alter every previous conception of motor car value.

The new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine — developed from more than a hundred motors designed especially for this sensational car—stands out as an engineering masterpiece. With a power increase of approximately 32% over the previous Chevrolet motor, with sensationally greater speed and faster acceleration—it offers a type of performance that is literally astounding . . . even to those who have been driving cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

Throughout the entire speed range, it performs with a smoothness and quietness of operation that have never before been approached in a low-priced automobile. At the slower speeds of city traffic it idles along with wonderful silence and ease. On boulevards and country roads it responds with an eagerness that is a constant delight. It takes the longest and steepest hills with an abundant reserve of power that is a source of pride to the driver. And its economy of operation averages better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

This revolutionary performance has been achieved as a result of the greatest array of engineering advancements that Chevrolet has ever announced. A high compression, non-detonating cylinder head... a new heavier crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced... automatic lubrication of the entire rocker arm mechanism . . . semi-automatic spark control . . . hot-spot manifold . . . gasoline pump and filter . . . new and larger carburetor, with automatic acceleration pump and improved venturi choke . . . fabric camshaft gear . . . heavier driving gears . . . heavier differential gears . . . improved crankcase breathing system . . . improved lubrication . . . new 4-wheel brakes that are powerful, safe and quiet under all conditions—these indicate the importance of a group of engineering advancements that embrace every major unit of the entire chassis.

In appearance, this Outstanding Chevrolet is destined to become an automotive sensation—so smart, so stylish and so distinctively appointed that it rivals the costliest custom creations. The new Fisher bodies are longer, lower and roomier with adjustable driver's seat in all closed models—and reveal the matchless artistry of Fisher designers. With their modish new colors, their smart dual mouldings and their distinctive concave pillars, they achieve a degree of original beauty that has seldom been equalled in motor car design.

You are cordially invited to visit our showroom and secure complete and detailed information on this sensational new car which will be ready for delivery beginning January 1st.

MANY SHIPS IN DISTRESS

Second Storm To Strike England Within Week Claims Ten. Distress Calls Sent Out And Lifeboat Crews Kept Busy.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Ten persons have been killed, hundreds are injured and many are homeless in the second storm to strike England within a week.

Although the general storm has abated in England, cyclonic winds are reported from the English channel, the Normandy coast and parts of Germany. Many ships are in distress and have sent out distress calls. Lifeboat crews along the south and east coasts are tremendously busy.

Air services to the continent have been suspended and many of the continental routes through the affected areas have been cancelled. Trans-Atlantic liners are reporting severe buffeting in gales at sea.

In the storm which visited England last week nearly 100 persons were killed, but the present storm is considered even more violent.

Communications between London and many parts of England were severed.

Today impaired telegraphic lines brought reports of winds reaching as high as 100 miles an hour. Heavy rains which accompanied the winds caused creeks to swell to small rivers and crops in many places are completely under water.

Ferries Suspend Service.

The lower part of the Port of Glasgow is under six feet of water. River ferries in many sections suspended service.

A weather forecast of the air ministr ytoday predicted that another severe wind and rain storm would reach the British Isles within twenty-four hours.

Several vessels are reported to be in distress in the North sea while many coast steamers have taken refuge in French ports.

Twenty-three members of the crew of the French steamer Emile del Mas were rescued by the life saving crew of New Brighton, off the Mersey Bar lightship. One of the crew was dead when the lifeboat arrived.

From the coast of Holland it was reported that approximately twenty-five members of the crew of the Greek steamer Eugenia still were aboard the vessel, which is lying at a dangerous angle after grounding.

Typhoon Strikes.

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Word was awaited tonight with anxiety from the provinces of Romblon, Mesbate and Sorgoson which were the center of typhoon, described by the weather bureau "as the most intense since 1882."

Communication with the central Phillipines, in which the storm swept provinces are situated, ceased early today and no word has been received of the damage wrought or the casualties, if any.

The storm center was about 150 miles south of Manila and, according to the weather bureau, Manila was in no danger unless the typhoon change its course.

The last word from the typhoon territory came from Legaspi and stated that hundreds of nipa houses had been destroyed. The populace was being sheltered in the strong stone warehouses maintained by hemp companies in that section.

A navy destroyer, with Red Cross doctors and nurses, will leave tomorrow for the typhoon area.

Fragmentary reports from the affected area indicated that the typhoon had covered a wide belt. This indicated that the storm had not been concentrated and belief was expressed by those familiar with the territory that no large number of lives had been lost.

The inter-island steamer Mindanao grounded at Socorro, according to a report reaching here tonight.

The liner President Grant was the only ship entering or leaving Manila bay today. All others tied up at their piers or sought refuge in outside ports.

NOVELIST-WIFE WINS DIVORCE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Louis Untermeyer of New York her poet-husband, "committed assault and battery," on her and then threatened her, in the presence of friends, last Wednesday, Mrs. Virginia Moore Untermeyer, charged in obtaining a divorce here, it was learned tonight.

The young novelist-wife published her first book recently, dedicated to her husband.

Circuit Judge Mulloy granted the divorce, giving Mrs. Untermeyer $3,000 yearly alimony at a hearing yesterday.

The former Virginia Moore, who is now twenty years old, became the second wife of Untermeyer, who is forty, in November, 1926, in Europe.

The divorce petition of Mrs. Untermeyer charged he threatened violence unless she "let him alone," and that he deserted her in London, leaving her among strangers, in ill health and with a two-month-old baby.

Audience to Judge Nebraska-Australian Debate

DAVID FELLMAN. EVERT HUNT. GEORGE JOHNSON.

The three University of Nebraska debaters who will compete with the team from the University of Sydney, Australia, at the university coliseum Tuesday evening are shown above. Johnson and Hunt are from Lincoln and Fellman's home is at Omaha.

Audience vote, taken before and after the debate, will decide the winner of the debate between the University of Nebraska and the University of Sydney, Australia, at the university coliseum, Tuesday evening.

Ballots will be given to each person in the audience, who, before the debate, will indicate his opinion on the question: "The parliamentary system of government is superior to the presidential form," whether he is favorable, neutral or opposed. After the debate, he may vote mor favorable than before, favorable, neutral, opposed, or more opposed than before. The shift in opinion shown by the votes will determine the winner of the contest.

When the Australians meet Nebraska, it will be the eighth time they have debated the parliamentary government question in the United States. It was the subject of four debates in Texas, two in Oklahoma and one in Kansas. The Australian team is prepared to debate on eight different questions. The selection of the list of topics was made by the Australians and the American schools chose from that list.

Lieutenant-Governor George A. Williams of Fairmont will preside at the debate Tuesday night. When the Australian team meets Hastings, Monday night, Dr. Samuel Avery, chancellor-emeritus of the University of Nebraska, will preside.

BANK MOVES TO SHARP BUILDING

First State Of Bethany Opens Monday In New Location.

The First State bank of Bethany moved Saturday to quarters on the first floor of the Sharp building at Thirteenth and N streets and will be open for business in its new location Monday.

For some time preparations for the housing of this bank have rapidly progressed and complete equipment is in place ready to care for the needs of the bank's customers.

Henry Heiliger, president, has been in the banking business for nearly a quarter of a century. For fifteen years he was president of the Bank of Plymouth and for eight years president of the First State bank of Bethany. He also served two terms in the Nebraska legislature.

Speaking of this change in location, Mr. Heiliger said:

"The desire to increase the activities in the bank prompts the directors to secure this location in the heart of Lincoln's business district. After long consideration, the Sharp Building was unanimously selected. The recent improvements on Thirteenth street including the Sharp building, Federal Trust building, Cornhusker hotel, Montgomery Ward & Co., General Tire company, indicate the desirability of the location of the location as a business center. Our new home, midway between O street and the new capitol, affords us a most desirable location, convenient to the enlarged business activities in this section and to our friends using our banking facilities."

H. P. Heiliger, vice president, was cashier of the Bank of Plymouth for 15 years and has been vice president of the First State bank for eight years. He was formerly a state bank examiner.

O. F. Heiliger, cashier, was formerly with the State Bank of Jansen, also the First State bank and is well known in banking circles.

Harry Heiliger, assistant cashier, has also been connected with the Bank of Plymouth and with the First State bank for many years.

University Notes

Field trips in agronomy, geology, botany and geography will be offered by the University of Nebraska in the next summer session, it was announced by Director R. D. Moritz. The summer session, which was recently changed from two six-weeks terms to one nine-weeks term, will start June 12 and close August 8, 1929. The agronomy field course will be two weeks in length and will be spent in western and northern Nebraska. Six weeks will be spent in the Black Hills on the geology trip. The six-weeks botany course and the three-weeks geography course will both be spent in Colorado. A two-weeks coaching course, under the entire University of Nebraska coaching staff, will be given during the first two weeks of the summer session.

Several prominent visiting professors have been obtained to teach during the summer session, according to Director Moritz. Dr. Ernest Anderson, head of the department of chemistry at the University of Arizona, will be one of the visiting professors. He is a research worker in the field of carbohydrate chemistry, and was formerly at the University of Chicago, Massachusetts Agricultural college, and the Pretoria university, South Africa.

Dr. Paul R. Mort, of the Teachers College of Columbia university, whose proposals for state support of education have been accepted in three states and are being considered in Pennsylvania, Kansas and Nebraska, is to be one of the visiting professors.

A series of lectures for school superintendents will be given by Dr. Marvin S. Pittman, director of rural education of the State Teachers college, Ypsilanti, Mich. Dr. Pittman is the author of three books on educational problems.

Educational studies in spelling an dreading will be offered by Dr. Ernest Horn, chairman of the department of elementary education and director of the elementary training school of the University of Iowa. Dr. Horn's works in spelling and reading have contributed to the changes in methods and subject matter in those elementary school subjects.

Miss Evalina Harrington, of the University of Texas, will instruct in kindergarten-primary methods of teaching. She is vice-president of the International Kindergarten union.

Prof. Burt Cooper of Missouri State Teachers college, will direct work in vitalized agriculture. Professor Cooper has contributed to stimulating of teachers work in Nebraska rural schools.

West Point military academy maintains one of the most extensive athletic systems to be found in any educational institution in the world.

BOHEMIAN CLUB REJECTION STORY AMUSES ROGERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Will Rogers believes that someone is trying to steal his publicity thunder.

In other words, the comedian regards the story from San Francesco regarding the reported rejection of his application for membership in the famous Bohemian club of that city as an effort on the part of an unknown person to obtain free newspaper mention at his expense.

"The story is very amusing," Rogers told members of the cast of "Three Cheers," in which he is co-starring with Dorothy Stone. "I am not interested in the Bohemian club, and have never applied for membership in it. I cannot imagine how the report that my nomination to membership had been tabled originated. Perhaps someone is trying to use me as a publicity foil."

Rogers declined to be officially interviewed on the matter. He explained that it would be making a mountain out of a molehill."

BANK CASHIER WILL BE TRIED

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—"I've been the goat for eleven years, and when the time comes I'm going to do some butting."

In this declaration tonight of John D. Walker, charged with fraud, authorities found an intimation that he may implicate others in the sensational crash of 107 small Georgia banks in 1915.

Walker, one-time political, business and religious leader of South Georgia, was to be returned to Savannah tonight to face trial in Federal court.

Trailed by authorities throughout the United States and Far Eastern countries over a period of eleven years, he was captured as he left his home at Great Neck, L. I.

"For years I have been fleeing justice because I did not have the money to fight my case and be vindicated," Walker said. "I have to win back my good name, at the age of 57, and have no money to help me."

Walker is charged specifically with misappropriation of municipal bonds to his own use after they had been placed in his care as president of the bank of Sparta, parent institution of the chain which he founded. He is also charged with responsibility in the mis-appropriation of $100,000 of the funds of the North Georgia Methodist Conference while he was treasurer.

Eleanor Christian Dies Suddenly At Her Home Saturday

Eleanor Christian, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Christian, died suddenly about 10 o'clock Saturday morning at her home, 2112 Harrison street. Dr. F. B. Johnson, who had been attending Miss Christian during an attack of influenza, believes that death resulted from partial paralysis, brought on by a slight infection of her throat.

Miss Christian, who was a student in the Lincoln high school, became ill several days ago, but was reported to be recovering. She became worse Saturday morning, after the infection had set in, and Doctors John Thompson and O. F. Wilmeth were called into consultation. Miss Christian was seized suddenly with an attack of convulsions and died in spite of the efforts of physicians.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 Tuesday morning at St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Twenty-fourth and Sewell streets, with Rev. W. J. Woon officiating. Interment in Wyuka.

DR. INCHES SHIPWRECKED.

DETROIT, Nov. 24—(INS) — Dr. James W. Inches, former police commissioner, who had been on an African big game hunt since May, was shipwrecked off the western coast of Africa, a cable form him to William E. Metzger stated today.

LONDON, Nov. 24 — (INS) — While no word had been received here tonight concerning the shipwrecking of Dr. James W. Inches, Detroit sportsman, off the African coast, it was made known at Lloyds that the steamer Cariboo was foundered off East London, Africa. No lives were lost, it was stated. It was presumed here that Dr. Inches was among the passengers on the Cariboo.

INJURED IN FALL.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 24 — Anton Policky suffered a fractured left leg, right arm and other bad bruises and cuts when he fell from a windmill tower at Broadwater, striking the ground twenty feet below when his foot slipped.

MILLIONS HONOR THOMAS F. RYAN

Friends Mourn Death Of Self-Made Financial Genius.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Millions of persons paused today to pay tribute to Thomas Fortune Ryan, who rose from poverty and orphan-hood to become one of the wealthiest men of the world.

Ryan died suddenly yesterday after a three-day illness, but his death had been expected for years. He was 77 years old and twenty years ago was advised to quit the active business world.

Wall Street brokers and Catholic dignitaries, leaders in the railway, tobacco and rubber industries, and more humble persons who knew Ryan as a wealthy and kind man, bowed their heads for him today.

Born In Virginia.

Ryan's body lay in state at his Fifth Avenue home and the world from which he retired twenty years ago came for a brief moment to his bier.

Monday high mass will be said for him at the Church of St. Jean Baptiste for the erection of which he gave $,000,000. The body will be placed in a vault at Calvary cemetery after the ceremony to await decision as to place of burial.

Ryan was born in Virginia 77 years ago and orphaned five years later. He began in the drygoods business in Baltimore at the age of 17 and at 23 was able to buy a seat on the New York exchange.

Son Disapproved Second Marriage.

It was the beginning of his financial career, for soon he became known as the organizer of big business.

Among his friends was the late King Leopold II of Belgium, whom he aided in developing grants in what is now the Belgian Congo. He was made a marquis of the papal court in 1907 because of his gifts to charity. His first, wife, the daughter of the man who gave him his start, was made a countess by Pope Pius in 1907.

Mrs. Ryan died in 1917 and Ryan married Mrs. Cornelius C. Cuyler. Alan C. Ryan, one of his three sons, disapproved the marriage and the father and son were never reconciled. Alan was in Europe when Ryan died.

Interested In Politics.

Ryan saved the Equitable Life Insurance Co. from bankruptcy in 1906 by reorganizing it and combining it. He revived the British-America Tobacco, Kentucky and West Virginia.

William Whitney once described him as the most adroit, suave and noiseless man that American finance has ever known.

Ryan also took part in politics and contributed freely to Tammany Hall.

SMITH RESTED AFTER VACATION

Governor Will Visit Mobile and Atlanta Before Returning Home.

EDGEWATER GULF, Miss., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.) — Completely rested from his arduous presidential campaign, Gov. Al Smith wound pp his southern vacation here tonight.

At midnight Governor Smith and his party entrain for Mobile, Ala., where he will stay until Sunday night. Monday will be spent in Atlanta, Ga. From the Georgia metropolis Smith and his party will proceed to New York. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi will leave the party at Atlanta and return to Gulfport.

Tomorrow morning at Mobile Governor Smith will attend mass at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception and spend the afternoon on the links of the Mobile country club.

Governor Smith spent most of his last day at Edgewater Gulf playing golf with the other members of his party.

Horse Show Ends Livestock Pageant

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—The American Royal Stock show ended here tonight and the trek of the cattlemen back to "corral" and the feed lots and the range lands will be under way Sunday. The final horse show brought the livestock pageant to an end tonight and a capacity crowd of 14,000 persons viewed the last of the week's sessions of the show.

Despite the advent of the motor age, the livestock attracted unprecedented attention this year and thousands milled through the American Royal building, inspecting the animals as they promenaded on the walkways, and then went to the arena to view the "million-dollar parades" of livestock and the events of the horse show. Many of the horses and livestock entries will be shipped to the International Livestock show in Chicago.

COOLIDGE BACKS NAVAL MEASURE

Endorses Passage Of Cruiser Bill Over Kellogg's Pact.

International Situation Dominates Conversation At White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—President Coolidge favors passage of the $274,000,000 cruiser bill before ratification of the Kellogg anti-war pact, it was disclosed today.

He is, however, extremely anxious that both measures be approved in the coming short session of congress.

This was revealed today following the first "wheat cake conference," of the congressional season, at which Mr. Coolidge discussed the congressional program with a dozen senators.

International Situation Discussed.

The international situation is known to have dominated most of the conversation at the white house breakfast, with particular emphasis on the naval bill and the anti-war pact.

Among those present were Senator Hale, republican, of Maine, chairman of the naval affairs committee, who will handle the cruiser bill, and Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, which will handle the anti-war pact.

Others present included: Senator Curtis, republican, of Kansas, vice president-elect; Senators Smoot, republican, of Utah; Gillett, republican, of Massachusetts; Sackett, republican, of Kentucky; Shortridge, republican, of California; McNary, republican, or Oregon; Dale, republican, of Vermont; Goff, republican, of West Virginia; Steiwer, republican, of Oregon; Warren, republican, of Wyoming; Waterman, republican, of Colorado; Keyes, republican, of New Hampshire and Senator-elect Glenn, republican, of Illinois.

Farm Relief Untouched.

Senators attending the conference were impressed by Mr. Coolidge's strong desire for success of both the cruiser bill and the anti-war pact, and the conference is said to have obviated any possibility of conflict among administration leaders on the order of consideration.

The Kellogg pact, it is understood, will be sent to congress immediately after it convenes, but while hearings are being held on it, an effort will be mad to pas sthe cruiser bill.

The Boulder Dam bill, Cooper anti-convict labor measure and Jones prohibition bills are ahead of the naval bill. President Coolidge was advised that the Boulder Dam bill could pass without difficulty and there was discussion of the possibility os displacing the other bills, senators said.

Farm relief was not discussed at the conference, it was said.

HUNTER LOSES ARM.

(Special to the Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 24—It was necessary to amputate the left arm of John Bazknaus Saturday as a result of a gunshot wound he received while hunting in Burge district. He was struck by the bullet while stopping to pick up a rabbit. His son fired the shot after accidentally falling from a wagon.

The local negro was hired by the chairman of the democratic national committee after he had demonstrated his efficient caddying on the links here this week.

Raskob took a fancy to the youth and gave him money to bedeck himself in new clothes. The negro's real name is Frank Ivory.

THREE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Pilot, His Wife And a Passenger Die When Craft Hits Tree.

TOLEDO, Nov. 24—(NS) — Two men and a woman were reported killed at Egerton, near here, tonight, when a westbound Cleveland-Chicago passenger airplane in which they were riding crashed into a tree.

Those dead are believed to be Glen Butt, a passenger E. H. Bassett, pilot, and a woman believed to be Bassett's wife.

The plane hopped off here at 4:50 p. m. and is thought to have crashed at Edgerton, fifty miles west. The report of the crash did not reach here until late tonight.

Storm Believed Cause.

Stormy weather is thought to have caused the smashup. Rain and strong winds prevailed in this section tonight.

According to reports reaching here, the bodies of the three persons are being held in an undertaking establishment at Brunersburg, half way between Toledo and Edgerton.

The Bassetts are said to be from Cleveland. Complete identification of the women as Mrs. Bassett has not been established, the reports declared.

Plan Company Investigates.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(I. N. S.)—W. R. Bliss, Chicago manager of the Universal Air Lines, left tonight by plane for Defiance, O., to investigate the crash oi one of the company planes in which three persons were reported fatally injured.

Eddie Bassett, pliot of the plane which fell neaer Edgerton, Pa., was believed to have lost his way in a snowstorm, the plane striking a tree.

Robert Butt, brother of Glen R. Butt of Cleveland, reported instantly killed, said his brother was making the trip from Toledo for the purpose of taking scenic pictures for the airplane company.

Pilot Bassett and his wife were fatally injured and died enroute to a Defiance hospital, according to telephone reports to the Universal company here.

MIL EST CROWN TO COE ELEVEN

BELOIT, Wis., Nov. 24—The Coe college football team earned the title to the midwest conference championshi phere today, swamping Beloit, 68 to 0.

Coe's fast and heavy line tore the Beloit forward wall to bits and opened gaping holes through which the backs dashed time and again for large gains.

Coe ran wild in the final period, scoring 35 points. Ed Barrows, and Frisbee led in the scoring with three and two touchdowns, respectively.

CAPLAIN FILLEY GETS THE PLAY

Reigh Celene Touted As Favorite To Win Coffroth Derby.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—A two year old filly was being touted today to upset all precedent and win the $30,000 coffroth handicayp this coming season.

Reigh Celene, a two year old by Sun Reigh, the sire of America's undisputed champion, Reigh Count, just arrived from Latonia, Ky., is being favored to run away with the first honors in the classic of the winter race meet which opens here on Thanksgiving day.

Reigh Celene will be nominated for both the Coffroth and $35,000 Tijuana derby by Mrs. I. Caplan, her owner. The nearest a filly or mare has ever come to annexing the world's richest stake occurred in the running last year, Handy Mandy, distance horse of the three D. stables was a favorite to win the classic, and showed a remarkable effort. She had advantage in the weights to benefit her.

Combines Best Bloods.

Trainer I. Caplan plans to bend every effort to preparing Reigh Celene for stake engagements. The youngster embodies a strong combination of America's best bloods, Sun Reigh, her sire, Beingby the great Sun Briar. Her dam, Sobranje, is by Polymelus.

Murzim, a clere handicap horse formerly in the stable of James Butler, New York race track owner and sprotsman, was another high class campaigner to arrive with the Caplan string. Bernard C., Commissioner D., Pennsylvania II., High Win, and two unnamed yearlings complete the stable.

In the same car from Latonia came three horses belonging to J. W. Parker, Tangram, Jolly Boy and Betty Bucks were those unloaded.

Scimitar, the $20,000 acquisition of James N. Crofton, San Diego sportsman, took a workout this morning. Trainer Ralph Emerie sent the big hourless gelding for a light breeze of half a mile. Crofton purchased Scimitar to represent him in important stakes, including the Coffroth, here this winter.

The Notre Dame game in Los Angeles called for a two-train expedition from South Bend. Many rooters planned the trip.

Dick Farrell, declared a free agent by Judge Landis, has had several good offers to join big minor league clubs. He was the property of Detroit and had been with Columbus.

Wisconsin-Chicago rivalry now stands: Wisconsin, won 15; Chicago, 13; four games tied. They've played 32 years.

TITLE GAME IN LINCOLN LEAGUE

University Place Meets Havelock In Turkey Day Classic.

University Place will meet the Havelock Engineers for the Greater Lincoln league championship on Ballard field the morning of Thanksgiving day for the third consecutive year.

In the two previous conflicts, the Shoptown crew, under the guidance of Coach Walter Black, managed to beat down a stubborn Jackson high defense to score victories and win the trophy.

Last year the Engineers took advantage of a fortunate break early in the game and tallied the lone touchdown of a spectacular battle. After converting a fumble into a touchdown, the Havelock eleven resorted to a punting duel and staved off a desperate Scarlet attack. A thrilling but futile aerial attack of the Young Methodists in the final period kept 1,500 fans on edge until the final whistle.

'26 Game a Thriller.

The score in 1926 was 20 to 0 in favor of the Purple and Gold. The encounter was featured by the brilliant work of Glenn Barrett who refused to let a cold drizzle and muddy gridiron interfere with his sensational broken field running and broke away for three touchdowns on jaunts of 90, 48, and 35 yards.

The Havelock flash scored twice in the second period and once in the final stanza. His first touchdown resulted from a 35-yard punt return, and his second counter was even more thrilling. Running from punt formation, he slid off tackle, side stepped the safety, and sprinted 90 yards to the goal line. In the last period he broke away from the entire University Place team and ran 48 yards to the final chalk mark.

Although Uni. Place has won more games than Havelock this season, perhaps their schedule has not been as heavy. The Engineers have met such teams as McCook, Creighton Prep, Crete, and York, while Baller's outfit have only ran up against Fairbury and Crete in the way of much opposition. University Place has shown a good defensive record having had only 39 points scored against them in the eight games they have played. However, they have lost many scoring opportunities and only have 93 points on the credit side of their scoring column.

The Havelock Record.

On the other hand, Havelock's record is nearly opposite. They have three victories, two ties, and three defeats chalked up on the record sheets. They have scored 85 points in comparison to their opponents 75.

Little comparison can be made between the two schools in view of the elevens which they have both met. Havelock opened the season against Wahoo with a 51 to 0 win, and University Place scored three touchdowns on the same team in a sea of mud at Wahoo. Both administered defeats to Cathedral, Havelock triumphing 20 to 7, and Uni. Place winning 32 to 13. The Ballermen dropped their second game in the season to Coach Pop Klein's Crete Cardinals before the eight-semester eligibility rule was abolished. That rule strengthened both squads materially and Havelock met the rejuvenated Crete team. The Cardinals being able to win only on a freakish break although they did decisively out-down and out-yard the Engineers.

Beat Lincoln Reserves.

Havelock wallowed around in the mud on Ballard field to no avail against the Lincoln Reserves and the game ended in a scoreless tie. Baller's gridders met the Red and Black seconds on the same field under favorable weather conditions and gave them a 6 to 0 trouncing. These figures do not offer much in the way of comparison because of the entirely different conditions under which most of the contests were played.

The Uni. Place-Havelock tilt has always been a Greater Lincoln league classic, and, weather permitting, this year's clash should prove no exception when the teams meet Thursday morning. Coach Delaporte has had two weeks for preparation, and he has been working behind closed gates. The Jackson high outfit came out victor over Bethany last Friday and seemed in good physical condition.

Vandy Walks Over Centre Collegians

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Vanderbilt defeated Centre college, 26 to 0, in a colorless game here today. Approximately 6,000 persons witnessed the contest which was played under ideal weather conditions.

Centre never made a serious threat. Vanderbilt made 26 first downs against six for Centre and gained 424 yards from scrimmage as against 148 by Centre.

SOONERS SWAMP OKLAHOMA AGS

Oklahoma Runs Away With Rival Collegians on Stillwater Grid.

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—State supremacy on the football fields of Oklahoma rested tonight with the University of Oklahoma Sooners who downed the much-defeated Oklahoma Aggies here today, 46 to 0.

At no time during a long and dragging game did the Aggies make a gesture that pointed toward a possible score.

Drake Drubs Ames.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 24.—(U. P.)—Another Big Six college eleven fell before a Missouri Valley Conference team today when the Drake university eleven played Iowa State college to win, 18 to 0.

The Bulldogs were in command of the game from start to finish, with Dick Nesbit never failing to gain whenever he carried the ball. Iowa State played a ragged game and had no defense against Drake passes.

Two of Drake's touchdowns were made by Nesbit and his punting kept the ball deep in the Cyclone territory. The third Drake touchdown was made on a pass over the goal line from the 15-yard line, King to Barnes.

In the final period Iowa State made a vain effort to stave off defeat by taking the air.

Feb. 22—Hickman at Hickman.

JACKSON QUINT LISTS SCHEDULE

Cage Outlook Bright In Uni Place Camp This Season.

Basketball practice will get under way at University Place Monday after Thanksgiving when the Greater Lincoln league champs start preparations for the hardest schedule ever faced by the school.

Fourteen games have already been arranged and negotiations with Lincoln and Temple high are pending. Temple is to be played at Temple, but the date is not settled. Besides these games, Coach Baller wishes to arrange for a two-day trip during the second week of Christmas vacation. Any one interested in scheduling the Jackson high quintet should communicate with Coach Stuart Balaler at 2825 North 49 street University Place. There are nine home games on the card and five away from home encounters as the schedule now stands. An interclass tournament will be held December 12 and 13.

Four Veterans Return.

Prospects are pretty bright for another championship aggregation as four lettermen and two Aggie high men are available. Duey, Culwell, Powers and Ackerman are the veterans back, and Gunn and George are the Aggie high stars. Culwell and Duey perform at forwards, Ackerman works at center, and Powers holds down a guard station. George, who was pick as the best man in the Greater Lincoln league last year, plays center. Gunn is a guard. Prospective material includes Amos, Jordan, McDaniels, Stith, Hansen, Bowen, and Winship.

Jackson High State.

Dec. 12-13—Interclass tournament.
Dec. 20—Alumni.
Jan. 10—Havelock at Uni Place.
Jan. 11—Wymore at Uni. Place.
Jan. 17—Beatrice at Uni. Place.
Jan. 18—Geneva at Geneva.
Jan. 19—Hastings at Hastings.
Jan. 23—College View at Uni. Place.
Jan. 25—Grand Island at Uni. Place.
Jan. 29—Cathedral at University Place.
Feb. 1—Bethany at Bethany.
Feb. 7—Crete at Uni. Place.
Feb. 8—Aggies at Aggies.
Feb. 14—Thomas Jefferson at Uni. Place.
Feb. 16—Havelock at Havelock.

PRINCETON BOWS TO NAVY ELEVEN

"Whitey" Lloyd Big Gun In Offense Launched By Middies.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 24 — (I. N. S.) — Whitey Lloyd, halfback of the naval academy football team, wrote his name in bold characters over Navy gridiron history on Franklin field this afternoon, scoring all the points for Navy which ended Princeton's victorious career, 9 to 0.

Lloyd broke loose in the second period and ran seventy-three yards for a touchdown. In the final period Lloyd stood on the twenty-six yard line and kicked a goal from placement.

Tigers Muff Opportunity.

Princeton had no excuse. The Tiger had at least three chances to score but failed to see its openings. A couple of times Navy was fighting its own inside its own 10-yard line and so bravely did it fight that Princeton couldn't put the ball across.

In the third period it looked as if Princeton would come from behind and win. It forced back the Navy but all the ground it gained in midfield it didn't count. At the end Navy was better and stronger conditioned team and won cleanly.

Michigan Aggies Win.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Michigan State college closed its 1928 football season in successful fashion here today defeating North Carolina State 7 to 0.

The teams battled on even terms with the exception of the third period when a concerted state line plunging attack by Fred Danziger, sub fullback, netted a touchdown. Smead place kicked the extra point.

How near the teams were matched is demonstrated by the fact that each eleven made 14 first downs.

OTTAWA SENATORS WIN HOCKEY GAME

DETROIT, Nov. 27—(I. N. S.)—In one of the fastest hockey games ever witnessed here, the Ottawa Senators and Detroit Cougars battled to a 1 to 1 tie tonight. The game was very rough, King Clancy, Ottawa's star defense man, drawing a major penalty of five minutes for slashing. Finnigan scored the firts goal for Ottawa early in the first period and a few minutes later Noble and Hay teamed up in a pretty passing game to tie the count, Hay making the goal.

Oregon Gridsters Romp Over Montana

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Oregon defeated Montana here this afternoon, 31 to 6.

Montana put up a strong battle in the first, third and last periods but Oregon was too strong for the visitors. Oregon scored one touchdown in the first period, added eighteen points in the second period and scored a final touchdown in the final period. Montana's only touchdown came in the final period.

Dog's Head Examined.—Superintendent Vose of the state health laboratory has completed examination of a dog's head sent in from Cortland and found positive symptoms of animal's having been afflicted with rabies. Before being killed the dog had scratched a child with its teeth. Another dog's head from Columbus tested negative. A man had been bitten there.

Hits Parked Truck—A light car, driven by Ines Clowe, 2004 Jefferson avenue, struck a parked truck at the corner of Arlington street and Jefferson avenue at 6:45 Saturday evening. C. W. Laymon, 1748 Euclid street owner of the car driven by Miss Clowe said the truck was without lights and was parked about ten feet from the corner. He stated that witnesses of the accident assert that the truck has been parked there for several nights without lights.

Rural Transmission Lines. — Five permits were issued by the state railway commission Saturday to power companies for the construction of rural transmission lines. Four of them were on papliication by the Nebraska Power company. The company will build a line near Brule in Keith county, near Valley in Douglas county, north of Blair in Washington county, and east of Winslow in Dodge county. The Central State Electric company will build a line northeast of Homer in Dakota county.

Barbers' Renewal Fees. — Nearly 4,000 licensed barbers in Nebraska are being notified by Secretary H. J. Walker of the state barber board that their annual renewal fee of $3 each is now due for the ensuing calendar year of 1929. The law provides that unless payment is made by December 31 the holder's license will expire on that date. The barber board's revenue of over $12,000 a year from these and other fees is available to pay its operating expenses, including per diem of its members at $10 a day each and their traveling expenses.

Flowers Still in Bloom.—Because of the continuance of fine fall weather until an unusually late time in the season, broken only by the heavy snowfall of three weeks ago which failed to kill some growing vegetation, a number of Lincoln people still have flowers in bloom outdoors. Pansies, snapdragons, phlox, gillardias, scabiosa, and honeysuckle are among the varieties reported as still showing in isolated spots, while rosebushes and spirea here and there have retained their green foliag up to the present.

Obituary

EDMUND S. DAVISON.

Edmund S. Davison, an old settler of Lancaster county, was born at Grafton, N. Y., February 20, 1842, and passed away Friday, November 23, 1928, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lois A. Guthrie, 3244 Vine street.

On May 10, 1863, he was united in marriage to Amy E. Vaughan at Washburn, Ill. To this union was born five children, Ernest C., Minnie, Volney V., Lois A., and Ira A., two of whom are living, Lois A. Guthrie of Lincoln and Ira A. Davison of Denver, Colo.

In the spring of 1880, Mr. Davison and family moved from Minonk, Ill., to Nebraska, and settled on a farm near Emerald, where he resided for thirty years. In the fall of 1910 he and his wife moved to Lincoln, where Mrs. Davison died December 3, 1917.

In his young manhood, he united with the Baptist church and all his life he was a faithful worker in the church and for everything that would be of benefit to the community in which he lived.

He also leaves ten grandchildren, seven grat-grandchildren and two brothers, Daniel W. Davison and Norman L. Davison, both of Minonk, Ill.

About People

The regular meeting of the Farragut Woman's Relief Corps was held at 2 o'clock Saturday at the Elks' hall. In the business session that followed, one candidate was balloted on, two were received by initiation, and two new applications were presented for later consideration. The quarterly birthday party will be held Wednesday, November 28 at the I. O. O. F. hall, starting promptly at 12 o'clock, it was decided. Twelve comrades of the G. A. R. were present at the meeting, over which Emmogene Downey presided.

Mrs. H. E. Sidles is planning to fly to Chicago Sunday to meet her husband who is returning from the Army-Nebraska game at West Point. Mrs. Sidles will fly to Omaha with her son, Harry Sidles, and at Omaha will take an airmail plane to Chicago.

Miss Ethel Pound entertained six girls of the ready-to-wear department of Parke-Brown company Wednesday evening at a 6:30 o'clock dinner. Yellow chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece. The after-dinner hours were spent informally.

U. S. GROWING UP SAYS STEINER

America is Becoming of Age in Cultural Sense He Thinks.

"In a cultural and political sense America is growing of age," said Dr. E. A. Steiner, noted sociologist of Grinnell college in an address before the Lincoln chapter of the Inter-professional Men's institute at the Lincoln hotel Saturday night. The talk followed a dinner attended by about a hundred, including wives of the members.

The earth itself is comparatively young, the speaker said. It never is sure of what it is going to do next, has seasons, never gets settled, and has occasional upstarts, he said.

"In its national vigor, in its history and above all in its biological sense America is still young," he contended. One proof f the youthfulness of the nation is seen in the energy with which it applies itself. Everybody is busy making progress. All are eager and diligent in applying themselves to the tasks at hand.

"In our enthusiasm we fail to realize how thoughtless progress is for everything else and that it is ruthless in its advancement. In our mad rush wi'h progress we are missing something in contact with culture. That has little to do with size, numbers and quantity; it has rather to do with quality. It is our inheritance, political and spritual."

Dr. Steiner is famed internationally for his researches in his line. He is professor at Grinnell college.

Music was furnished by a trio composed of Emmanuel Wishnow, violin; Phil Jorgensen, piano; and Kenneth Loder, cello. Dr. Benjamin F. Bailey presided.

BOYS, GIRLS TO CLUB CONGRESS

Sixty-three County and State Champions to Visit Chicago.

Group Will Be In Charge of University Extention Directors.

Sixty-three county and state champions of boys and girls club work and their local leaders and chaperones will leave Nebraska for the eighth annual Club congress at Chicago, Saturday night, December 1st. This is the largest party Nebraska has ever sent to the Congress.

The group will be in charge of L. I. Frisbie, state club leader, Miss Helen Noyes, his assistant, and Miss Theresa Judge and C. S. Maddox, also of the agricultural college extension service. L. R. Snipes of Cass county will go with the livestock judging team. Mrs. R. E. Norris, also of Cass county, will accompany her state champion demonstration team as will Mrs. Fairfield of Webster county go with their county champions.

Individuals and teams from the state will enter national competition in the health contests, style show, and livestock, foods, and clothing judging contests. Clyde Gadeken of Bushnell and Ruth Long of Cowles are the Nebraska entris in the health contest. Helen Phares of Guide Rock is Nebraska's style show girl. Irvin Nolte of Walton, Harold Wall of Elmwood, and William Brandt of Nehawka are the livestock judges. Ruth Childs and Gwendolyn Ball of Albion will enter the clothing judging and Marguerite Holcomb and Fairy Wooters of Broken Bow will enter the foods judging contest.

Champ's Expenses Paid.

Four state champions of 1928 club work will have all their expenses paid to enjoy themselves. Miss Birdie Erskine of Havelock, home economics champion will be the guest of Montgomery Ward and Co., and Anthony Pokorny of Waverly, pig club champion will be the guest of Wilson and Co. Vincent Arthaud, Cambridge, baby beef club champion, the guest of Armour and Co., Watson Norris of Eagle, the corn club champion, guest of May Seed and Nursery company.

Clifford and Wayne Domingo of Weeping Water are the champion demonstrators who will accompany Mrs. Norris to the Club congress. Money has been raised from various sources to pay tneir expenses.

Milton Thorsen and Harold Moline of Saunders county will go to the Club congress to demonstrate every afternoon how they tatoo hogs in order to receive a 10 cent bonus for them at the packing house. These boys won the first contest of the kind at the Ak-Sar-Ben show. Their expenses are paid by the Tuberculosis Eradication committee of Chicago.

Other boys and girls in the party are all county champions of club work. Their railway fares are paid by the railroads and these boys and girls pay ther own expenses at the congress. The Northwestern is sending the following fourteen: Marie Keister, Heartwell, Adams county; Howard Pitzer,Neligh, Antelope county; Mable Mattison, Albion, Boone county; Louis Harris, Rising City, Butler county; Harold Rousch, Fairfield, Clay county; Lester Muhle, West Point, Cuming county; Bettie Hawk, Chadron, Dawes county; Francis Westphalin, Scribner, Dodge county; Doris Hafer, Strang, Fillmore county; Faye Sigman, Amelia, Holt county; Carol Gast, Plainview, Knox county; Frederick Rottler, Madison, Madison county; Luther Schulz, Wahoo, Saunders county; Earl Morberg, Beaver Crossing, Seward county.

The Milwaukee and Omaha Railroad the following five: Matilda Anderson, Lyons, Burt county; Lucile Baugous, Dakota City, Dakota county; Burr Ross, Rosalie, Thurston county; Lorin Christensen, Washington, Washington county; Edna Wagner, Winside, Wayne county.

Rock Island railroad gives the following nine trips—Clarence Kitner, Weeping Water, Cass county; Mary McRann, Omaha, Douglas county; Donald Sutherland, Waverly, Lancaster county; Lawrence Paul, Mahaska, Kansas, Thayer county; Christene Dillon, Bostwick, Nuckolls county; Marjorie Mae Jones, Fairbury, Jefferson county; Ruth Carsten, Clatonia, Gage county; Fred Rulla, Lewiston, Pawnee county; Winifred Shallcross, Bellevue, Sarpy county.

Dougas county has a pig champion of its own. Arthur Holst of Waterloo won the honor this year and will go to the congress in December, the guest of the Omaha National bank.

SECOND HAY RATE HEARING MAY BE HELD IN JANUARY

Another hearing in the hay rates investigation will probably be held in Omaha sometime in January, Railway Commissioner John Curtiss said Saturday upon his return from the hearing which was held this week.

The interstate commerce commission examiners heard the testimony of Nebraska growers and jobbers at the Omaha hearing this week, but the state railway commission did not enter its exhibits.

From Omaha, the examiners went to Fort Worth, Texas, to conduct other hearings in the hay rate case. They will also conduct hearings at Seattle, Los Angeles and Phoenix before returning to Nebraska.

Testimony of growers at the Omaha meeting indicated that there has been a depression in the hay industry for the last ten years, and that growers have been barely breaking even. None of them show a profit of more than six per cent.

Jobbers who testified stated that the man who raises the hay has to bear the burden of freight rates. The railroads are asking for increases ranging from 30 to 100 per cent of the present rates.

PREDICT BREAK BETWEEN CRIME AND POLITICS

Conviction Of 15 First Setback To Chicago's Lawless Combine.

Prosecuting Machinery Will Be Continued For Next Two Years.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Law and order appear to be riding toward a bull market in Chicago for the first time in ten years. The merger between criminals and criminals and crooked politicians soon may be dissolved, presaging a rapid decline in the stock of Gangsterism, Incorporated.

Today's trading turned up two significant developments. Gangsters set off their ninety-fifth bomb of 1928. It blew the front out of a south side cigar store and demonstrated that the outlaws have not actually surrendered.

The state retaliated by announcing that the prosecuting machinery would be continued through the next two years.

Swanson Will Take Charge.

The latter announcement is a big help to law and order. It means that the conviction this week of fifteen of the men who turned the April primary into a saturnalia of kidnapings, sluggings and murder is only the first successful move in a campaign to break the political-criminal consolidation.

John H. Swanson, the former Criminal court judge, who defeated State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe for re-nomination in the primary, announced that when he assumes office in two weeks he will take over the full staff of vice and vote fraud investigators now under Special Prosecutor Frank J. Loesch.

"I will invite the entire special staff to join mine," said Swanson. "That will enable prosecution of the election charges to go ahead under direction of the men who know most about it."

Improvements Are Needed.

In taking the office of state's attorney on December 3 Swanson is assuming what is perhaps the biggest law enforcement problem in the country. He believes his main task is to break the political-vice alliance and that under this heading he can strike at racketeering, beer running, and police corruption. Racketeers alone are said to be preying on Chicago to the extent of a million dollars a month in fees coerced from small businessmen.

The determined manner in which Swanson is preparing for his job perhaps would not be sufficient by itself to cause record trading days on the Chicago mart of civic pride. Behind Swanson stands a long list of favorable signs.

The people have twice demonstrated their lack of ocnfidence in the administration of Mayor William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson, once by defeating all of the city and county candidates he supported, and again by rejecting all of the bond issues which "Big Bill" proposed for public improvements. Many voters cvould not deny that Chicago improvements were needed, but they were not willing to let Thompson's administration spend the money.

800 Removed from Payroll.

Another encouraging sign today was the removal from the payroll of the Chicago Sanitary district of the names of 800 men and women who have been drawing comfortable salaries for a minimum of work. Most of them were friends of politicians in control of the district. Already since election day and previous to today's reduction, 1,600 names have been removed from the sanitary district payroll.

So-called "clean-up" campaigns have been started in the past in Chicago, but never before on as impressive a scale as the present one.

CURTIS SOON TO RELINQUISH SEAT

Vice President-Elect Expected Quit Senate Before Christmas. Reported Desirous Of Having Governor Paulen Name Successor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Vice President-elect Charles E. Curtis probably will resign from the senate before Christmas.

One reason which would be sufficient is that if he does not retire before January 1, his political enemy, Gov.-elect Clyde Reed of Kansas will appoint his successor in the senate, whereas his friend, Governor Paulen of Kansas, will have that task if he retires before the expiration of Paulen's gubernatorial term January 1.

Among other reasons are that Curtis desires to rest up before assuming the vice-presidential office, recuperating his health which was taxed last session in the senate even before his strenuous work during the presidential campaign.

While the vice president-elect has made no official announcement of his intentions about resigning, he has let senators and friends know that he does not intend to continue in office until March 4, when the present congress expires.

This information has precipitated the contest to decide which of the various senate leaders will be his successor as republican floor leader. The candidates include Senator Jones of Washington, Watson of Indiana, Moses of New Hampshire, Fess of Ohio and McNary of Oregon. Jones is the favorite because of the seniority rule of succession. Curtis has expressed no preference.

The vice president-elect is working in his office daily clearing up the mail left over from his campaign. He will take his usual seat as leader when congress meets December 3 and probably will continue to hold the office until the Christmas recess, about December 19.

LINCOLN KIDDIES THRONG THEATER AT 'SPUD PARTY'

The "potato party" given at the Lincoln theater at 10 o'clock Saturday morning was attended by 1,800 Lincoln kiddies, each of whom presented one potato one potato as the price of admission. Twenty-five bushels of potatoes were collected.

The prize for the largest potato was awarded to Santo Arigo and James Yocum was given the prize for the funniest "spud." The next fifteen largest potatoes were brought in by Chester Felber, J. Donald Forester, Helen Dalton, Richard Pierce, Roberta Graham, Joe Arigo, Dorothy Graham, Carrol Martin, Lynn Bishop, Jack Unzicker, Harry Mercier, James Evinger, Stephen Barwock and Madeline Smith. Each of these boys and girls was given a prize.

The potatoes were turned over to Lincoln charitable institutions to be used in Thanksgiving baskets. The party was sponsored by Ben Simon and Sons.

LEGION FAVORS NAVAL PROGRAM

"Plan Is Answer To Failure Of Geneva Conferenc," Says McNutt.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(UP)—The American Legion heartily endorses President Coolidge's naval program, Paul V. McNutt, newly elected national commander, said in an address here tonight.

"It is America's answer to the failure of the Geneva conference," McNutt said. "It is the only answer which the other nations of the world will understand. The entire legion, with three-quarters of a million members, will do its part in educating the public on the necessity for carrying out the naval program.

"I ask every legionnaire to take an active part in this campaign. Time and again the legion's national convention has urged the maintenance of the 5-5-3 ratio agreed upon by the Washington conference.

"The United States, alone, has kept the spirit of that agreement."

ASKS COUNCIL TO HELP ELIMINATE STATIC IN ETHER

A plea for assistance in eliminating radio interference has been made in a communication to the city council by Elmer F. Estes, 1315 E street. For some time, Mr. Estes say, there nas been considerable interference on his radio between 7:45 and 8:25, every evening. He added, "In a rough way it could be said to resemble the noise of a locomotive blowing off steam, mingled with the racket of many coffee mills and similar hissings and grinding."

"I have made inquiry as to what might be the cause," Mr. Estes declares, "but without success.

"If you can and will locate the cause and try to have it stopped, it will be something that will be very much appreciated. If I can aid in any way I shall be glad to do so."

BUICK TO CLOSE ITS OPEN HOUSE

Silver Anniversary Car Exhibiion Ends At 8 O'clock Monday.

The Silver Anniversary Buick mystery car which has been attracting hundreds of people to the local show rooms at Thirteenth and Q street during the open house week will be officially stopped at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

As a special attraction an entertainment has been planned for patrons who wish to be at the building when the mystery car has officially completed its forty-four hours of operation—starting by itself, goes across the show room floor, climbs an incline, applies the four wheel brakes, and stops just before reaching the large plate glass window. Then it backs down the incline and returns to its starting point, stops and repeats this routine. For those who have not seen this mystery car Sunday or Monday, the salesmen on the floor will explain why the car was being demonstrated.

Dr. Bennett Will Give Lecture Here On Nervous Disorders

The lecture on "The Causes and Prevention of Nervousness" will be given by Dr. A. E. Bennett, instructor in nervous and mental diseases at the University of Nebraska medical school, Tuesday evening, at 7:30, in the auditorium of the social science building at the university Rev. Ray E. Hunt will preside.

Dr. Bennett will discuss the historical aspects of attitudes towards mental disease and will discuss various problems, social and professional, which arise from nervous disorders. He will describe some of the more common psychic and nervous disorders and laying particular stress upon things that can be done in early childhood to avoid the onset of mental troubles.

The lecture will be given in popular language and will be of interest to any who have the care and direction of children, to those who are interested in the general mdical and legal aspects of nervous disorders, and to any who feel they are at times troubled with "nerves."

This is the second of a series of lectures dealing with various phases of mental hygiene which is being conducted here this wintre. The first of the series was given a month ago by Dr. Johnson of Denver.

Fear An Epidemic.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Six physicians and 100 nurses were sent into the Auburn Park district of Chicago today by Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel t ocombat what is feared might become an epidemic of smallpox. Sixteen new cases of the disease were reported in the district yesterday following the mistake in wrongly diagnosing an earlier case as "chickenpox."

OBJECT TO NEW A. O. U. W. PLAN

Court Action To Stop Change To Old Line System.

Lincoln Men Bring Suit In Hall County Tribunal.

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Nov. 24—In the case brought by George W. Jones and Alexander H. Jones of Lincoln against the grand lodge of Ancient Order of United Workmen, in which the plaintiffs object to having the association change over its fraternal monthly assessment plan of insurance for members to that of "old line," hearing has been postponed until after January 1. District Judge Lewis H. Blackledge of Red Cloud has been called upon by District Judges Paine and Clements of this district to hear the case, inasmuch as the latter both hold memberships and policies in the defendant association.

Hearing had been set for next Monday, but following the visit here Thursday of Attorney Nelson C. Pratt of Omaha, engaged as counsel by the A. O. U. W. for this case, the postponement was secured by stipulation. It is now felt that with another conference or two between the counsel of the contestants, an agreement on facts will be reached. The hearing then would be held early next year. Mr. Pratt is assistant counsel of the Modern Woodmen of America.

More than 5,000 A. O. U. W. members are declared affected by the legal fight. Of this total it is declared all but 730 members, or about 87 per cent of the membership, have already transferred from the fraternal monthly assessment plan to the old line plan. A surplus in excess of a million dollars is said to have accumulated.

Among other contentions of those who are contesting the right of the association to transfer benefits from the monthly fraternal assessment to the old line plan, is that the latter makes membership prohibitive to those who are in advanced years and would be obliged to pay high rates. The prayer of the petition reads as follows:

Prayer of Petition.

"Wherefore, the plaintiffs pray that it be adjudged and decreed, first, that the acts of the defendant association complained of herein in dividing the members into two classes were ultra vires and void; second, that the defendant association be ordered to assess all its members on the basis of their age of admission and according to the amount of their benefit certificates, that the proceeds of such association be kept in one fund for the purpose of paying valid mortuary claims currently arising in the entire membership; third, that the defendant association be required to restore to the beneficiary fund such as it existed prior to September 1, 1928, all funds taken therefrom and wrongfully appropriated to the benefit of members transferring to the American experience division. Plaintiffs pray generally for such other, further and different relief as equity and justice may require."

Two groups have resulted in the ranks. One has held back to retain the fraternal monthly assessment plan, at which is regarded a comparatively low rate, while the other has preferred to change over to the old line insurance policies, at what are regarded as comparatively higher rates. Under the plan of the second group it is further stated, the members have been accredited with benefits which had accrued in the payments under the original plan.

Members of other fraternal organizations in the state are watching the outcome of this case, regarded by jurists as a test, with considerable interest.

Is Old Resident

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., Nov. 24—Mrs. Mary A. Bourne is one of the oldest persons in Richardson county where she has lived for 40 years. She is spending the winter in Humboldt with a son, Homer Bourne. Mrs. Bourne has been a widow more than half a century. Her husband was a Civil war soldier enlisting from Iowa. She is ninety-two years old.

GOES TO SOURCE OF STOMACH AND KIDNEY TROUBLE

Prominent Lancaster County, Nebraska Farmer Says New Medicine Ended His Miseries Quickly. Heartily Endorses It.

"I think I am qualified to speak out in favor of a medicine that has done more for me than everything else combined. The fact that it has benefited me beyond all expectations fully convinces me that it is superior to other medicines, and for this good reason I gladly give it my hearty endorsement and strongly recommended it to everyone. I am speaking of Miller's Herb Extract, known as Herb Juice." The above statement was made a few days ago to the special representative of this famous medicine by Mr. Albert J. Peterson, life-long Lancaster county farmer, who resides on his farm at Davey, Neb.

MR. ALBERT J. PETERSON.

"While I heard others praising this Herb medicine," continued Mr. Peterson, "still I didn't know positively what it would do for me until I gave it a thorough trial. But I want to say right here that it proved to be the very medicine for me or my condition, one that actually accomplished results for me that no other medicine would do. I want other sufferers to share the benefits, so I urge them to take a few bottles of this great medicine in a regular way and get rid of their ailments. I have been troubled with chronic constipation for a number of years, which seemed to cause my entire system to become clogged and filled with poisons, and for the past three or four years had about gotten past going on account of a severe case of diabetes and rheumatic pains in my back and limbs, was constipated continuously and suffered a great deal from indigestion and nervousness, losing heavily in both weight and strength, my kidneys gave me a great deal of trouble and was so sore and stiff and full of aches and pains, as all of my friends well know, that I was not only unable to do any work but could hardly get about at all. These ailments kept getting worse instead of better, regardless of the fact that I tried almost every treatment or remedy within my reach. Nothing seemed to give me more than temporary relief until I commenced taking this Herbal tonic-laxative. It seemed to go to the source of my trouble at once. I felt wonderfully benefited before I finished the first bottle, and since taking several bottles of this great medicine I am glad to state that I feel 100 per cent better in every way. My kidneys are now in a healthier state than they have been for years, am entirely free from constipation, enjoy free and regular bowel action; also relieved of rheumatic pains; get good restful sleep, enjoy a good appetite and have a greater amount of energy than I have had for many a day. This great herbal remedy has so thoroughly cleansed, purified and regulated my entire system that I do not feel like the same person. Indeed, I want to strongly recommend this wonderful medicine to each and every one who is affected with similar ailments. Hundreds call daily to see the Herb Juice Company's special representative, who has established headquarters at Harley's Drug Store 11th and O Sts., Lincoln. To learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many people in and around Lincoln, by mail, postage prepaid, $1.10 per bottle—at store $1.00—Advertisement.

WILD WEST TIME FOR LEGION POST

(Special to The Star.)

ALBION, Neb., Nov. 25—The Albion Legion post closed a three-day fun fest and carnival Thursday evening. It was called the 49-ers. The Post erected a replica of a wild western town of the '49 period, with bar, gambling rooms, dance hal, etc., which were run as near to old times methods as was compatible with present day ideas and customs. Every device was arranged with the motive of extracting all the loose change in the pockets of the revlers, as the Legion boys need it to apply on the debt they tsill owe on their building. Everybody had a good time and the Legion treasury was rewarded by several hundred dollars.

LOSES HIS LIFE IN CAR ACCIDENT

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24 — Stewart Collins, 40, formerly of Summerfield, Kas., was killed in an auto accident near Munturn, Colo., and his brother, Phil, of Summerfield, who went there to attend the funeral. Collins was returning home from work when his car skidded in the wet snow and went over an embankment, rolling 500 feet down into a canyon. He died two hours after the accident. Two other men riding with him received only minor injuries.

WYMORE YOUTH IS MARYLAND SAILOR

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Nov. 24—A Wymore young man is one of the sailors manning the battleship Maryland, carrying President-elect Hoover to South America. He is Elmo Bebout, second son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Bebout, the father being a conductor on the Wymore division of the Burlington. Young Bebout joined the navy about four years ago and for a time was stationed at Hampton Roads, Va., but recently was transferred to the San Pedro, Calif., navy station, and, according to a letter received by his parents, had been assigned to duty on the Maryland and set out on the southern voyage with the Hoover party.

NEBRASKA CATTLE TOP THE MARKET

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—Joe Krotz, farmer and stock raiser living near Odell, topped the market at St. Joseph this week with a carload of purebred Angus steers. They averaged 1,041 pounds and brought $16.50 a hundred. Included in the load was one heifer weighing 1,530 pounds that sold at $11 a hundred, grossing $158.30. Another outstanding feature of the shipment was the sale of a purebred cow that brought $89.90. The cow in her prime cost the owner $1,125. She had netted him several hundred dollars, her first calf selling for $700.

FUTURE FARMERS HOME.

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—Roland Mudge, Alvin Reimer and Harold von Riesen of Gage county, who represented the local Future Farmers at the American Royal stock show at Kansas City, have returned home. Alvin Reimer was honored by being elected vice president. The boys report a fine trip.

FARMERS TOLD TO HOLD CORN

Speakers At Beatrice Meeting Discuss Price Situation.

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—J. C. Knight of Kansas City, head of the Equity Union farmers organization there, said in his address before a meeting of Gage county farmers and corn growers in the Gilbert theatre here Friday evening that farm projects when ably managed and loyally supported, offer agriculture the same advantages that organization has brought to other industries. But the farmer is like everybody else. In the end he must depend on his own good sense and far sightedness if agriculture is to prosper.

E. Severs, Barneston farmers' elevator manager, who called the meeting and who acted as chairman, urged farmers to hold their corn and in that way the price would soon reach 82 to 95 cents, which price some of the farm organizations are advocating at the present time.

"It is alright to hold your corn," said Mr. Knight, "but if the price goes down somewhat, don't be discouraged. Hold on. And when the price gets up to where you can make a reasonably good profit, sell. Don't hold on for that extra cent or two. Let go when you can get a good profit."

Referring to the election campaign, Mr. Severs spoke of the "promises on both sides," then remarked that it is up to the farmers to continue talking for and working for their own interests, regardless of olitical promises or possible congressional action.

Closing his brief talk, Mr. Severs said that "we expect to go all over the corn belt, and on Tuesday night between 6 and 7 o'clock we hope to get in touch with a million farmers over the radio station, KFAB."

Marce Witzenburg of Blue Springs, president of the Gage County Farmers union, gave a talk in which he urged the farmers to stand together for their best interests.

It is planned to hold a state meeting at Lincoln soon, at which the proposed corn price raise will be discussed and at which some definite action will be taken.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET, HEBRON

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 24—The father and son banquet held at the new Methodist church at Hebron Thursday night was attended by 273. Special guests were W. H. Leask, Jefferson county Y. M. C. A. secretary, Mrs. Leask and District Judge Moss of Fairbury, and Rev. Thomas A. Maxwell of Lincoln. Rev. Mr. Maxwell was the speaker of the evening and told of his experiences as chaplain of the Nebraska penitentiary. W. H. Leask led the community singing and general pep stunts.

SUGAR SEASON TO BE SHORTER ONE

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., Nov. 24—On account of high efficiency in the six factories in the North Platte valley operated by the Great Western Sugar Co., the sugar making season will close earlier than usual this year, the estimated closing date being about December 20. The acreage of 75,000 this year was a record one, but the yield per acre was a little lower, so that the production of the sugar will be about the same as in former years.

BURIAL AT STELLA.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., Nov. 24—Charles Ciegler of maha will be buried in Prairie Union cemetery at Stella Sunday. Mr. Ciegler died at his home Thursday. Remains will arrive here on the noon train Sunday, and be taken direct to the cemetery. Mr. Ciegler was a pioneer resident of this locality. He moved from here more than forty years ago, and in the meantime he and his family made frequent visits here. William H. Paul and George P. Griffith, farmers near Stella, are his nephews.

WASHBURN FUNERAL.

(Special to The Star.)

AURORA, Neb., Nov. 24—The funeral of George F. Washburn, former county judge of Hamilton county, will take place in Giltner Sunday afternoon. It will be a Masonic service. Judge Washburn was an ardent Mason and had many times delivered the Masonic funeral oration over deceased members of the fraternity. He was found dead Wednesday evening in his garage with the doors closed and the car running.

GET DAILY MAIL.

(Special to The Star.)

GERING, Neb., Nov. 24—Towns in the North Platte valley southwest and east of here on the new U. P. road and further down the valley, are now receiving daily mail service, a closed mail pouch having been installed on the daily trains, going both ways.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS CHAPTER.

(Special to The Star.)

KIMBALL, Neb., Nov. 24—Members of the Scottsbluff chapter of Job's Daughters came to this place and instituted a local chapter with about twenty-five members. Iloe Carter was elected honored queen; Elizabeth Wilkinson, senior princess; Elsie Christensen, guide; and Mable Lois Travis, recorder.

VISITS OLD HOME.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMRE, Neb., Nov. 24—Jim Abel, formerly a conductor on the Burlington railway for ten years out of here, arrived in Wymore Thursday for a few days visit with old acquaintances. Abel left Wymore three years ago, and is now employed on the Santa Fe railway out of Wellington, Kas. He will visit relatives at Falls City and Rulo before returning home.

ARE STILL HUSKING.

(Special to The Star.)

SABETHA, Kas., Nov. 24—A few farmers who run feeder cattle on their fields have finished husking, but the majority of them are still busy in the fields. Fields average from 40 to 60 bushels to the acre.

WIDOWS GIVEN COMPENSATION

Crete Woman to Receive $5,250 For Death Of Husband.

As one of a trio of decisions just entered by State Labor Commissioner Pirie and involving local uni stof government in Nebraska, Saline county is required to reimburse Mrs. J. M. Wright of Crete to the extent of $5,250 for the death of her husband which occurred in June, 1927.

His death resulted from an infection developing from a wound he suffered on his little finger while using a wrench on a piece of machinery. The compensation payments are to be made in weekly installments of $15 each. Mrs. Wright was also granted $150 to apply on the cost of burial.

Payment has hitherto been made to Mrs. Wright at the rate of $8.06 per week, on the theory that her husband was in seasonal employment for the county and not one of its regular workmen. That contention is overruled, and she is declared to be entitled to the $15 weekly allotment.

School District Must Pay.

Compensation amounting to $4,480, at the rate of $2.80 per week, is awarded to Mrs. Virginia Haney against the school district of Springfield in an order of the labor department, based upon the accidental death of the claimant's husband, Samuel Clark Haney, from an accidental fall last August while he was engaged in a painting job for the district.

An additional allowance of $150 is made for burial expense, as provided by law.

Music Teacher Compensated.

In a case from Cedar Bluffs involving the amount of compensation due Orval Stephenson, part time music teacher in the public schools, on account of an accidental injury sustained while on duty in that capacity, the instructor is found entitled to the maximum of $15 per week during the period of disability.

The computation was made from the contract between the school district and the music teacher for two days per week at $50 a month. This was held equivalent to 9 days per month, at $5.55 per day; and the district is declared liable for all time lost by the injured person, not only from school duty but other days as well.

In the foregoing instances, Saline county and the Cedar Bluffs school district are protected by liability insurance, but the Springfield district carried its own risk.

THWART ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE FROM MARYSVILLE JAIL

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—Sheriff Ace Van Nortwick of Marysville, Kas., thwarted an attempt of R. R. Smith and Albert McGuire to escape from the jail at that place when he found them digging a hole in the wall of the south side of the building.

An investigation showed that they had dug a hole about three feet from the floor and about eighteen inches wide, by the use of knives and forks and a pocket knife. They placed in separate cells on the second floor by the sheriff.

Smith and McGuire are from Rossville, Kas., and were recently arrested at Blue Rapids, soon after they are alleged to have loaded over $200 worth of stolen eggs on a truck and were in the act of driving away from a poultry house where the eggs had been taken.

CRETE NOTES

(Special to The Star)

CRETE, Neb., Nov. 24—Frank Nedela, 52, died at his home early Friday after an illness of several months from neuritis. Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Marie, and a son, Karl.

John Kadlec, 72, died Thursday night following a paralytic stroke. His widow, a daughter, Mrs. Frank Krotochvil, and a son, Lambert Kadlec, survive.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Darling, 80, was held at the First Congregational church Thursday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Harold Cooper, intrement being in the family lot at Riverside. Mrs. Darling was a pioneer resident of Crete, having come here with her husband in 1876. She passed away at the home of her son, George, at Harvard, Neb. Three other sons, Arthur of Yankton, S. D., Frank of Norfolk, and Nelson of Spokane, Wash., also survive, all of them being present at the funeral.

National book week was observed here under the direction of the public library board, Mrs. W. H. Pallet, chairman. Programs were given each afternoon after school in the assembly room of the library. The story telling hour was conducted by the senior girls, who are training in this, earning credits for so doing. Following the story hour a treat of ice cream cones was given the children each day by the directors of the library board, Mrs. W. H. Pallet and Mrs. J. J. Elias. Those attending were from the kindergarten age to the seventh grade. The following senior girls took part in the programs: Norma Nohavec, Evelyn Nemc, Edith Boden, Helen Klasa and Gertrude Kozlik.

Union Thanksgiving services are to be held Thanksgiving day at the Second Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Schaatz, with Rev. Harold Cooper of the First Congregational and Rev. Richard Gibb of the Methodist church taking part. The men's chorus will sing.

Ernest Fritz received a severe injury to his right eye when a blank cartridge he was examining exploded. He was taken to an Omaha specialist and hope is entertained that the sight of the eye may be saved.

Miss Ruth Ball, daughter of F. W. Ball, former state representative from Saline county, was married to Ernest Schlictemeier on Wednesday at the Kramer church. A wedding dinner and reception followed the ceremony. After a short wedding journey they will reside on a farm near Kramer.

A number of neighbors of Adolph Bohac, who is ill in a hospital at Omaha, went to his farm east of Crete and finished husking his corn.

SEWARD NOTES

SEWARD, Neb., Nov. 24—Mrs. Walter Cattle entertained fourteen guests at a 6 o'clock dinner Wednesday in honor of Judge and Mrs. T. L. Norval of Los Angeles. Bittersweet was used in decorating.

The annual Y. W. C. A. banquet will be held Tuesday evening, with Miss Jean Jeary, the sponsor, in charge. The banquet was served by the mothers of the cabinet members. Forty-six active members were present, and were seated at three tables decorated in gold and blue, the Y. W. C. A. colors.

Coach and Mrs. Kellner entertained the football team and the men of the high school faculty at dinner Saturday evening, when twenty-one were present. The football idea was carried out throughout the decorations. Coach Kellner introduced each player present, who responded with a short talk.

Ben Harrison circle, Ladies of the G. A. R., held a special meeting Tuesday. The following guests were present: Mrs. Nora R. Kidder, Fremont, department inspector; Mrs. Trixie Prall, Omaha, department secretary, and Mrs. C. Phillips, president of Gresham circle. Mrs. Harry Rigdon was in charge of the committee.

The Seward faculty entertained the board members at dinner at the Methodist church Wednesday. A faculty quartet gave several numbers, and a program of readings and piano numbers was given. Informal games closed the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Curry entertained the Evening Bridge club at dinner Thursday evening. Sixteen guests were present. A motif of yellow and orange was carried out in the floral centerpiece.

Mrs. Carlos Boyes has left for Atlanta, Ga., where she will spend the winter with her son, Don.

L. E. Ost, veteran Burlington agent, is undergoing a series of treatments at the Mayo clinic.

Mrs. Henry Campbell was stricken seriously ill at her home Friday.

The W. R. C. held a kensington in the Legion hall Friday afternoon. Mrs. E. E. Betzer was chairman of the committee in charge. A grab bag was a feature of the afternoon.

The American Legion auxiliary will have a 6:30 o'clock dinner at the hall Monday evening, preceding the regular meeting. Officers will be elected and installed. The United Brethren ladies are serving the dinner.

Mrs. Charles Campbell is recovering from a serious illness of several weeks.

Dan Hildebrand, Paul Bek, and T. H. Wake left Thursday for Washington, D. C., on behalf of the chamber of commerce. They go in the interest of the veterans' hospital. They will be granted a hearing Tuesday morning. They attended the Nebraska-Army game Saturday.

A delegation from the Lincoln Elks lodge was guest at the chamber of commerce dinner Tuesday evening. They furnished a novel program, consisting of musical numbers and a skit by Pete Ruehl and Ralph Sigman. Miss Florence Bennett gave several piano numbers, Miss Jo Smith a dance. Harry Ridgon presided.

Mrs. James Vogeltanz, a pioneer of Nebraska, died at her home at Bee. She was seventy-seven years of age. Funeral services were held at the Catholic Bee with Rev. A. M. Hanum, assisted by Rt. Rev. A. Klein of Brainard, officiating.

Mrs. Gerald McLane of Central City and Miss Eva Crisman of the Edgar school faculty visited last weekend at the home of their sister, Mrs. Kenneth Strout, and Mr. Strout.

Mrs. Adolph Vahl entertained at a bridge party Wednesday evening. Six tables were arranged for cards. Mrs. Herman Otto received high score for ladies, and Herbert Wergin for men.

The Omar club met Monday with Mrs. Fay Martz. The color appointments and decorations were suggestive of Thanksgiving. Mrs. Guy Evans received first prize and Mrs. Adrian Ayers consolation.

The Athena Delphian chapter met with Mrs. Ted Hughes Tuesday. Mrs. Cliff Brockhoff was leader and the subject was Italian opera.

SUIT STARTED BY SURVIVOR OF VESTRIS SINKING

O. S. Stevens, Boston, Asks $50,000 For Death Of Wife.

List Of Official Inquiries Into Sea Disaster Grows.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—The list of the official groups who are trying to find out what made the steamship Vestris sink grew today.

There are at present two federal hearings under way, while announcements today said one law suit had been started as result of that sea disaster and another hearing was planned.

The official groups looking into the matter are:

1—Federal inquiry before United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill.

2—Department of commerce hearing.

3—Lamport & Holt, British owners of the Vestris, announced they would have an investigation.

4—Orrin S. Stevens in Boston filed suit for $50,000 for the death of his wife and a suit for $2,000 for the loss of baggage. The Lamport & Holt lines and the Liverpool, Brazil & River Platte Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., were named as defendants.

Papers in the Stevens suit charged that the Vestris was unseaworthy; various patrs of the hull leaked; that the ship was not properly loaded; that the crew was incompetent; that the Vestris was not supplied with proper lifeboat, and that the apparatus for launching did not function.

Federal District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle asked, officials of the Lamport & Holt line, operators of the ship, to question surviving officers as to the probable cause of the disaster and report at his hearing early next week.

Line Will Act.

The request was made to Superintendent Harry Wheeler, when he was on the witness stand yesterday. Wheeler explained he had not questioned the crew sooner because he feared charges of intimidation. He promised to start the investigation.

Four probable causes of the sinking were brought out at Tuttle's investigation by Captain E. P. Jessop, American representative, sitting with Commissioner O'Neill and Capt. Henry McConkey, British representative. They were:

1. Inflow of water through open coal ports.
2. Bursting of water pipes running through coal bunkers.
3. Opening of seams in the ship.
4. Loosening of rivets in the bunkers of the shelter deck.

So far little has been determined definitely regarding the disaster. The most important facts revealed have been:

Important Facts Revealed.

1. That members of the "black gang" mutinied at 10:30 a. m., the day the vessel sank. Chief Engineer James Adams offered this testimony at the commerce department hearing yesterday and said he believed the ship could have been saved if the men had stayed at their posts. He admitted he had a pistol, but said there was no ammunition for it. Members of the "black gang" denied they mutinied.

2. That the ship was listing slightly when it sailed from New York the Saturday before the disaster, and this list increased steadily Saturday night, Sunday and Monday.

3. That Capt. William Carey of the Vestris was extremely tardy in sending out an S. O. S. Capt. William Bambra, former master of the Vestris, admitted at Tuttle's inquiry that he would have called for help when the 30-degree list was reached and appeared increasing. The Vestris was listing 30 degrees early Monday, it has been testified.

4. That the Vestris failed to report itself in a serious condition when it was in communication with the Voltaire, sister ship, at 4:36 a. m., Monday. Chief Officer Frank Johnson testified Captain Carey told him at 4 a. m., Monday things were "serious."

Rush Cron Husking Gage County Farms

Farmers Anxious To Get Crop In Crib Before Bad Weather Makes Work Difficult.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24 — The past few days of clear weather has resulted in farmers in all sections of Gage county turning out to resume cornhusking. In order to secure more help some have raised the price of huskers from 6 to 7 cents a bushel and board. In a few localities women are aiding their husbands in gathering the crop in an effort to get it in the crib before winter weather sets in.

In some sections the grain is yielding all the way from 45 to 50 bushels to the acre, while in others it is turning out from 25 to 35 bushels to the acre. Farmers say it is of better quality this year than last. Much of it is being fed to stock at the present time. The total yield over the county, it is believed, will be a little better than a year ago.

Winter wheat in this section looks fine, and because of the late rains will go into the winter in fine condition.

CHARITIES HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

(Special to The Star.)

WYMRE, Nebr., Nov. 24—The following officers have been elected for the Community Charities association: Mrs. R. W. Small, president; Mrs. H. R. Chapman, vice president; Mrs. R. E. Peters, secretary-treasurer. At the meeting fourteen local organizations and lodges were represented and a god donation in pledgs assurs a fund to carry on charity work this winter. A rummage sale will be held on December 1, to help raise funds.

A REAL COAL SERVICE

"Service is a much abused word, but it is the only word that will adequately describe a transaction with this institution."

"When you buy your coal from us, you get more than just the fuel. We give you the best coal that it is possible to secure for the money, but we give you more than that.

"In addition to the coal, we give you prompt delivery, and this part of our service is rendered by courteous and efficient employees.

"We give you the benefit of our experience in recommending the type of fuel best suited to your heating plant — a valuable service if you take advantage of it.

"We give you our guarantee of satisfaction with every ton of coal you buy from us.

"In other words, we give you your money's worth—which you have a right to expect. If you are not getting all of this service, we would like to know about it."

CHEVROLET SIX READY JANUARY

Dealers to Have Display Models Soon But Deliveries Later.

More Speed and Power, With Twenty Miles to the Gallon.

Passing on to the motoring public the benefits of economics arising out of tremendous volume production, the Chevrolet Motor Company, today, introduces "the outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet history—a six in the price range of the four."

In making this important announcement, W. S. Knudson, president and general manager, points out that the sensational public reception accorded the car in recent years has enabled Chevrolet at this time to offer the added power, speed and smoothness of six cylinder performance at practically the same prices that contributed so much to the world-wide popularity of the four.

Production of the new car was started last week and the company's fifteen giant factories across the country will be turning out cars to be shipped to dealers by December 15. Deliveries to the public will start January first.

In its new offering Chevrolet has retained the high successful valve-in-head principle. The motor is of the high compression type with a non-detonating head and develops 32 per cent more power than its famous predecessor; its acceleration is measureably greater and its speed has been stepped up to satisfy maximum requirements. The piston displacement is 194 cubic inches.

Despite this greatly improved performance standard, thousands of miles of testing under every road and weather conditions at the General Motors proving ground in addition to many cross country runs, have shown that the new Chevrolet enugine will operate with an economy averaging better than 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline. Tihs is practically the same fuel economy enjoyed by the owners of the previous four cylinder model.

The motor develops 46 horse power at low engine speed and as a result of the automatic lubrication of the valve mechanism the motor is exceptionally quiet throughout the entire speed range.

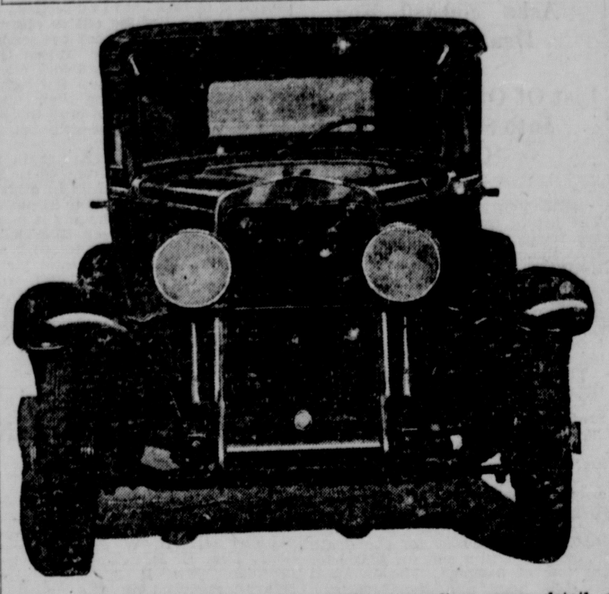
Seven models of passenger cars and three commercial types comprise the line, which according to General Motors officials, embodies the greatest dollar value ever offered in an automobile. Included in the passenger ca rline are five closed and two open modles. All bodies this year carry the famous Fisher stamp of craftsmanship. The commercial car line embraces a new and larger utility truck of one and one half ton capacity, a new light delivery chassis and the sedan delivery.

From an appearance standpoint as well as from inherent design, the range of attractive colors and fine car is completely new with a wide car appointments formerly found only on the more expensive makes.

Despite the score of advanced features, prices remain practically the same, chiefly as a result of the influence of tremendous volume production. The passenger can range is from $525 to $725, f. o. b. Flint, Mich.

Advance showings of the new Chevrolet line will be held in leading cities strategically located throughout the country begining November 24 and continuing until December 22. First deliveries to purchasers will start January first. No deliveries will be made prior to that time, officials stated.

Front View of New Chevrolet



Chevrolet dealers over the entire country can well afford to be optimistic in the outcome of 1929 with the wonderful new car that will make its appearance next month. Today is the first time that the factory has published officially information regarding this new model, but regardless the public has been seeking further information for the past several months. In Lincoln alone, the Du Teau Chevrolet Company reports over 100 orders at the present time for the new model. Even before it was generally known that a six would be made there were many orders placed for the new car. While the new car will not be in Lincoln until after the middle of December, all those who are interested in getting all information regarding every detail of the new Chevrolet can get it at the Du Teau Chevrolet Company by coming to their show room at any time of the day. The Du Teau Chevrolet show room is equipped with all literature and pictures regarding this new model. It has wonderful new color, beautiful upholstering and all the refinements that you expect to find only on higher priced automobiles. The public will be surprised to learn that this new motor, which is valve-in-the-head, is not a light six. It brings to you the latest modern design and construction. It has a high non-detonating head. It develops unusual power at low speed, and it has a total displacement of 194 inches.

Switching Gas Brands.

When changing brands of gasoline, especially from high to low test, or vice versa, good performance cannot be expected unless the carburetor is made to conform to the difference in the quality of the fuel. This, of course, applies especially in the case of the older type of carbureator, which is not automatically adjusted. Many times the thought that there is little difference in grades of fuel must go back to the carburetor for explanation.

CARBURETER OF IMPROVED TYPE

New Air Cleaner Another Feature of Latest Chrysler "75."

New type carburetor and finer air cleaner are two unusual standard equipment features of Chrysler's new "75."

The company's extensive study and pioneering both into carburetion and varying fuel conditions, taking the entire country into consideration, have resulted in the new carburetor. Its design was worked out by collaboration of Chrysler with Ball and Ball, engineers. Owners of all 1928 Chrysler "72" models may also have the new carburetor and air cleaner installed at nominal cost at Chrysler service stations.

J. W. Frazer, Chrysler sales manager, points out that the new carburetor embodies not only a new application of the principle of carburetion, but also the means of counter-acting successfully the effects of fuel surging without sacrificing economy or any other of a carburetor's successful attributes. A degree of efficient carburetion has now been attained which surpasses any previous achievement along that line, he says. Its additional advantages he summarizes as:

Greater capacity, which permits added power, acceleration and speed, newly-designed method of adjustment at idling speeds for smoother operation without the usual hissing; more efficient control of the mixture just above the idling range, insuring a smooth transfer from idling to running speed; requirement of one nozzle only for delivery of fuel from both the primary and secondary stages; parallel air intakes for both stages, with intakes one above the other, permitting thorough functioning of the air cleaner on the secondary as well as the primary air intake; new accelerating device which operates at any throttle opening and is adjustable for condition of temperature and altitude.

For use in conjunction with this new carburetor an improved type of air cleaner has been adopted. Chrysler finds it the most efficient of all types for this carburetor in removing dust and dirt from the air supply. Danger from improper operation and back-firing is wholly eliminated.

The seat is unusually wide, easily accommodating three passengers, and upholstery is genuine black leather. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and balloon tires properly control the car's roadability. Convenience and beauty are emphasized in the arrangement of the instrument board and driver's controls.

Grouped under a frosted silver finished panel are the speedometer, engine temperature indicator, fuel guage, ammeter and oil guage. Carburetor adjuster and manifold heat control are at the drivers right, and ignition switch with theft lock in the left panel. A cigar lighter is in the steering column bracket. Light control levers, and spark and gasoline throttles are mounted on top of the steering wheel. Automatic thermostically controlled radiator shutters afford the greatest year around operating economy. The hand brake at the driver's left and four wheel Lockheed hydraulic service brakes insure braking facilities matching the powerful six cylinder engine especially designed for the senior Six line.

SPORT ROADSTER ADDED TO DODGE SENIOR SIX LINE

Addition of a sport roadster with rumble seat to the senior six line has been announced by Dodge Brothers, and shipments to dealers are being rushed to insure immediate deliveries. Sport types include as standard equipment two spare wire wheels with tires, mounted in the front fenders, and trunk rack in rear.

All exterior hardware of the roadster including radiator shell, head lamps, bumpers, hub caps, door handles, cowl lamps and moulding and spare tire brackets are chrome plated, attractively setting off the body lacquers and color combinations in which the car is available.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Repairs Costly When Delayed.

Engine repairs or overhauling should be made the minute trouble appears or inefficient operation is noticed. A few dollars spent immediately invariably will save many dollars later on.

Bright Rear Lights Insure Protection.

Keep the rear light bright and clean to avert a rear-end collision. The tail light usually becomes dirty after a run through muddy roads in wet weather and this condition makes its car a dangerous obstacle on the highway.

Before Winter Comes.

A general "going-over" would be very timely to any car, after the rigorous uses during the summer months. Heavy fogs are characteristic of fall evenings and in some of the mountain communities ice may be expected at any time. Windshield wipers should be oiled and adjusted to insure their operation when needed. Brakes, which must measure up to a maximum at all times, will be especially vital to safety while driving is subject to such conditions. From neglect and disuse, the lighting equipment becomes out of adjustment, lenses are cracked, bulb filaments are damaged and the entire unit becomes dust covered. Dust creeps into the tiny crevices and filtors inside the lamp so that only a feeble ray reaches the outside if the lamp works at all. Steering in a heavy wind is hard work, but it is positively dangerous if the steering mechanism is not in good condition. See that the chains are in perfect shape for traveling over wet and icy streets.

Attention to Accelerator.

The accelerator should be checked up occasionally to make sure it returns the throttle in the idling position. Sometimes the accelerator spring weakens and allows the throttle to remain partly open when it should be tightly closed.

Proper engine lubrication depends on charging oil every 500 miles and prevention of excess crankcase dilution.

Army Cadets Hang First Defeat on Cornhuskers

Cagle Dazzles In Victory for Army

Backfield Ace of Soldiers Factors In 13-3 Result; Sloan's Kick Gives Huskers 3-0 Lead at Half.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24 — Any ideas or aspirations which Cornhusker football followers may have been nurturing that Nebraska might climax its 1928 season with a formidable bid for highest national honors tonight may be consigned to the ash heap of disappointed hopes. The red-jerseyed Huskers had their chance today on the plains of the West Point Military Academy, stacking up against the future generals of Uncle Sam's army in sixty minutes of frenzied battling, and the final reckoning found the mule hee-hawing over a 13 to 3 triumph.

But Cornhusker football need not inscribe aught of apology in the record of the afternoon's proceedings, for that same record would disclose that the Huskers were making pace, 3 to 0, at half-time and but for the pestiferous activities of one "Red" Cagle and a series of unfortunate breaks in the fates and fortunes of the combat, Nebraska rooters, not the Army mule, might well have done most of the hee-hawing tonight.

Mr. Cagle, serving his fourth season in Soldier moleskin, after a preliminary term of football toil in a college down in Dixie, was the artful gent who dd most of the dirt to the Nebraska cause. This red-thatched gladiator has been pretty well ballyhooed this fall as all-American material of super grade, and after several hundred Nebraska supporters had inspected the speed and football wizardry of the Army team's backfield ace, it was quite unanimously agreed in that portion of the stands where the Nebraska folk were gathered that this Cagle fellow needs no horn-blowing in bolstering the claim the carmine-haired youth in Army moleskins is the cock-of-the-walk in American football.

Smothered in First Half.

Cagle however, had all sorts of trouble in setting up the pins to put on his stuff. He started the ball game with a surprise forward pass while the scrimmage line was deep in Army territory and he perpetated considerable running around in circles during a first half. During this period the Cornhuskers were waging a sturdy defense which had the Soldier boys and their stellar performer prett ywell smothered.

But "Red" positively declined to be denied. Early in the third period, when the Army had the ball just across midfield in Nebraska territory, the Soldiers faked a double pass and reverse play around end. That sort of stuff was a clever coverup for the subsequent proceedings as Red suddenly darted out through a quick opening in the right wing of the Husker line and squared away in the direction of the Nebraska goal.

"Red" Breaks Away.

Unfortunately, it happened that "Red" had the ball tucked under one arm and, quite as unfortunately, he was making tracks so rapidly and squirming away from tacklers with such pernicious dexterity that nary a Husker tackler could lay as much as a careless hand on the galloping ghost in Army duds.

The net result was an Army touchdown. Captain Sprague fizzled the attempted kick of the extra point, but the Soldiers were out in front, 6 to 3, and that three-point lead was quite sufficient to stand up for a victory the remainder of the journey.

Game Ends at Twilight.

The Army management, it seems, has strange ideas as to the proper time of day to inaugurate its home football games. The combat did not

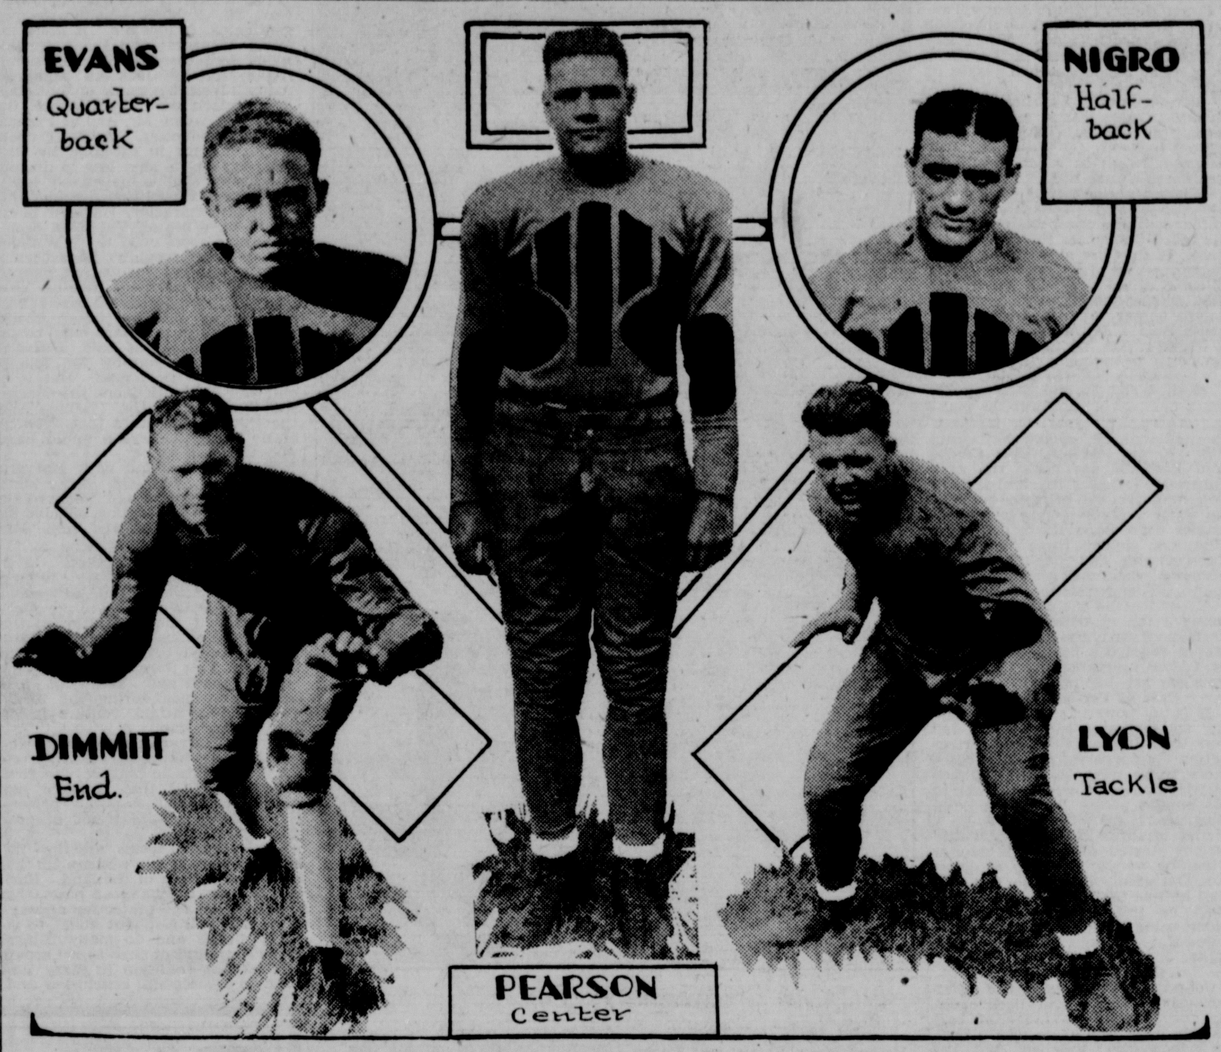
Kansas Aggies Here Thanksgiving Day.



The Kansas Aggies will be the Thanksgiving day opponent of the Nebraska Cornhuskers at the Memorial stadium. It will be the final game of the 1928 schedule and a victory for the Scarlet and Cream would give Nebraska a clear claim to the "Big Six" conference title.

The Wildcats are coached by "Bo" McMillin, former Centre college star, and the Turkey day game is sure to be one of the thrillers on the Cornhusker schedule.

Red and Black Battles in Scoreless Tie With Iowa Eleven; Schmitt's Kick For Winning Points Short.

BY JOHN EDWARDS.

Lincoln high school's hitherto untarnished football record of no defeats, no ties, and an uncrossed goal line, was smeared with a dark blotch over one-third of its brilliance Saturday afternoon when an invading Washington high eleven from Cedar Rapids, Ia., deadlocked in a scoreless draw with the Red and Black.

The Cornhusker-Army classic of the east had attracted Lincoln grid fans, who displayed no special desire to witness a high school football game. Consequently, it was a meagre gathering of half-interested spectators that assembled in the capital city oval for the inter-state encounter.

STATISTICS CHART LINCOLN HI GAME

First downs, earned—Lincoln, 4; Cedar Rapids, 3.
First downs, penalty—Cedar Rapids, 1.

Net yardage gained—Lincoln, 59; Cedar Rapids, 59.
Punts—Lincoln, 12 for average of 44 yards; Cedar Rapids—11 for average of 27 yards.
Punts returned—Lincoln, 5 yards; Cedar Rapids, 45 yards.
Kickoffs—Lincoln, 1 for 25 yards; Cedar Rapids, 1 for 52 yards.
Kickoffs returned—Lincoln, 22 yards; Cedar Rapids, 4 yards.
Field goals attempted—Lincoln 1.
Ball lost on downs—Lincoln, 1; Cedar Rapids, 1.
Ball lost on fumbles—Cedar Rapids, 1.
Penalties—Lincoln, 6 for 40 yards; Cedar Rapids, 5 for 25 yards.

Lincoln appeared to be the stronger eleven of the two and seemed to hold a small but very distinct edge over the Iowans throughout the course of the fray. But appearances must be deceitful for the count in downs and net yardage gained, like the final score, was deadlocked. Both teams claimed four first downs apiece and 59 yards in net gains.

Bauer's Punting Excellent.

Only in the punting department did the Red and Black show a marked superiority. Here the punting of Bauer averaged 44 yards for 12 punts as compared to the 27 yard average in 11 punts of Duncan, Cedar Rapids left tackle. Bauer's kicking work was probably the feature of the game, his last nine boots averaging 52 yards while one was good for nearly 80.

Cedar Rapids exhibited a tough forward wall, too stubborn for the Lincoln backs to penetrate. With two powerful tackles in Captain Hedges and Duncan, the Washington high line staved off all attempts to plunge through their forward wall or circle their ends, and an equally effective anti-air craft defense balked all attempts to travel by the aerial route.

Iowans Start Strong.

Cedar Rapids won the toss and chose to defend the north goal which gave the Brownemen the disadvantage of a stiff wind. All playing was deep in Lincoln territory during the entire opening stanza although the Red and Black held a heavy margin in statistics. Towards the end of the period a McCaffrie-to-Greedy forward pass netted 13 yards for the only first down of the quarter, although not once did the Iowans threaten the Lincoln goal. The period ended with the Red and Black in possession of the ball on their own 21-yard line.

Bauer's punt of 79 yards early in the second quarter carried the pigskin deep into Washington high territory, but here the Iowans made a brilliant stand and registered a little themselves in the form of yardage gained. Bauer's second punt of 52 yards backed the Tiger crew to their six-yard line and a third at the close of the half pushed them back to their eight-yard marker. Once Lincoln held possession of the ball on the Cedar Rapids 20-yard line but lacked the necessary punch to score.

Schmitt's Kick Fails.

Only once during the third period did Washington high hold the ball in the Brownies' territory, and that was when a 15-yard penalty on the Red and Black for roughing gave the Ioawns the ball on the Lincoln 37-yard line. The Tigers were held for downs and auer booted a 65-yard punt that crossed the opposing goal.

Cedar Rapids scrimmaged from its 20-yard line and a few moments later Lyman, Lincoln right guard, recovered a fumble on the 25-yard line and set the Brownemen on a drive to the goal that ended near the middle of the fourth period on

BADGER FUMBLE AWAY GRID GAME

Minnesota Crosses Goal For Lone Touchdown; Beat Wisconsin.

Nagurski Dives Across to Give Gophers, 6-0 Grid Victory.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Wisconsin's hopes for a Big Ten championship were dashed today when Minnesota, taking advantage of a Badger fumble in the second quarter, crashed through for the only touchdown of the game and won, 6 to 0.

Dr. Clarence E. Spears' Gophers clearly outplayed the Badgers, and it was only when Wisconsin took to the air that the home team was able to gain.

Minnesota displayed all the power she was credited with having, the powerful Nagurski knocking Wisconsin's line to pieces.

Badgers Drop Passes.

Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite's Badgers let three possible scoring opportunities slip away from them in the third quarter when pass receivers failed to hold onto the ball when wihtin their grasp.

Although the Badgers were outplayed in every way, with the exception of one quarter, it was a bad break that opened the way to Minnesota's touchdown.

The Cardinals, fighting under their own goal posts, called upon Rebholz for a plunge. Rebholz squirmed passed the line of scrimmage and broke loose. A half dozen Gophers rushed him. While one tackled him low, another grabbed his shoulders. His hand knocked the ball from Rebholz. Kakela fell on it and it was Minnesota's ball on Wisconsin's 17 yard line. Fred Hovde shot through left tackle for

Meehan Gridders Overwhelm Tech

Title Hopes of Carnegie Tech Crushed By Ken Strong and Brilliant Band Of New York U. Violets.

FORBES FIELD, PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—New York university reached for the football heights here this afternoon.

While a capacity crowd of 40,000 people looked on in amazement and wonder. "Chick" Meehan's Violet eleven, playing with the precision and smoothness of a well oiled machine, overwhelmed the powerful and hitherto unbeaten Carnegie Tech eleven by a score of 27 to 13.

Ken Strong, the ace of the Violet ball carriers chose this day to give the greatest exhibition of his sensational career. Carnegie could not stop him. Around the end, off the tackles, and through the line he carried the ball for consistent and off-times sensational gains. Time after time he carried the ball upwards of fifteen yards, the top mark being a dash of forty-one yards for the third New York touchdown.

Two of the New York touchdowns are credited to him and in addition he kicked three goals after touchdown. He was the all-American half back this afternoon.

Tech Clearly Outclassed.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Carnegie Tech. saw its hopes of a football championship dimmed today when the Violet clad eleven from New York university drove through to a 27 to 13 victory.

The New York eleven, gathering tremendous power as the game progressed, charged through, over and above the line to mar Carnegie Tech's hitherto undefeated slate and prevent the Tartans from completing their first undefeated season in history.

It was the first time the two schools had met in football, and the third time Tech had fallen before Coach Chick Meehan's men. It wa sa sad finish to one of the best seasons Carnegie Tech has ever enjoyed, but it was a bright finish to a similar season for New York university. Only a defeat at the hands of Georgetown university marred the season's record of the Violet squad.

Even in defeat Carnegie Tech backers admired and revelled in the stellar playing of Ed Hill and Ken-

PLENTY UPSETS IN GRID REALM

Football World Is Given Some Good Jolts Saturday.

The decisive defeat of Carnegie Tech, Illinois' triumph in the western conference; Harvard's first victory over Yale since 1922; Princeton's upset at the hands of the Navy and the tie played by Stanford and California, featured the Saturday football program in the United States.

Carnegie Tech, having defeated Notre Dame and all other teams it met this year, was prepared to claim a national championship if successful against New York university at Pittsburgh. The final hurdle was a trifle too high for the Skibos to clear and New York triumphed, 27 to 13.

Upsets in "Big Ten."

In the middle-west, Illinois dropped Ohio State, 8 to 0, while Minnesota was trouncing Wisconsin, 6 to 0. The latter defeat ousted Wisconsin from the top rung of the Big Ten and enabled the Illini to claim a clean cut championship. Both teams have lost one game but Wisconsin has a tie to mar its record.

Harvard literally ran wild against Yale at New Haven and the 17 to 0 victory achieved was the first the Crimson has celebrated in five years. In 1925 the teams played to a tie, but Yale won the other four contests.

Princeton was an almost universal favorite over the Navy when the teams took the field at Philadelphia. The Tigers were not prepared, however, for the vicious attack, the middies produced, and lost, 9 to 0. A 77 yard run by Lloyd featured the contest.

Army Spills Nebraska.

Army was host to an unbeaten Nebraska eleven and the Cornhuskers gave the cadets a very busy afternoon at West Point. Army's defense held the invaders to a lone field goal, however, while the offense was sufficient to account for two touchdowns, an extra point and a 13 to 3 decision.

Ann Arbor was the scene of probably the greatest surprise in the

MIZZOU ROMPS OVER JAYHAWKS

Tigers Make Long Jaunts Good For Scores Against K. U.

Missouri Bests Kansas by 25-6 Score Before 25,000 Crowd.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 24—(U.P.)—Old Mizzou found its ancient rival, Kansas, wasn't the potent team it was supposed to be and Missouri romped over the Jayhawkers before a crowd of 25,000 homecomers today, 25 to 6.

Brilliant end runs of Missouri and an accurate passing game of Kansas provided a thriller of a battle that had its climax in the final period with Dills making the fourth Missouri touchdown.

The Missouri back took the ball on his goal line on the kick-off after the Kansas touchdown. Perfect interference provided him the shelter to race straight down the field with not a tackler touching him.

Long Runs Score.

Held scoreless for a time, the Tiger machine started its scoring orgy in the second period with Waldorf, quarter, going over twice in that period. Long end runs made the first touchdown possible and a 28-yard pass, Brown to Hursley, brought the ball near the goal for the second marker.

The third touchdown came in the third period after Lawrence got off a bad punt for the Kansans. Mehrle went over for the score. In the fourth session, Kansas passed to the 7-yard line and then Lyman bucked over for the touchdown.

Georgtown Passes Help Beat Fordham

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—A splendid forward passing attack was flashed by Georgetown university here this afternoon in its anham university eleven, an&d the nual football clash with the Ford-Maroon contributed enough fumbles on its ow naccount to enable the hilltoppers to win, 27 to 7.

Fordham surprised the visitors with the staunch resistance they offered and the play was by no means as one sided as the score indicates. In the second period the Maroon outplayed the Blue and Grey by a wide margin and they also had the edge in the third quarter.

By Day and By Night, Cadets Held Edge Says U. P. Writer

BY FRANK GETTY.

(United Press Sports Ediotr.)

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24—First by day and then by night, the Army proved Nebraska's master, defeating the hitherto unbeaten Cornhuskers in convincing fashion, 1 3to 3, before 25,000 spectators in West Point's picturesque new stadium on the hilltops above the Hudson.

While it was light, Chris Cagle broke loose and ran 37 yards for a touchdown. After darkness fell, and the players were indistinguishable on the trampled gridiron, Hutchinson threw a long forward pass to Allen for a second Army score.

The Gornhuskers, who have swept undefeated across the football fields of the middlewest, came to the plains of West Point in anticipation of a pleasant husking bee, but Cagle grabbed the red ear and then enjoyment was all the Army's.

Victory Well Earned.

The triumph of the Cadets was well earned, for they outplayed their heavier opponents in every period except the second, in which Clair Sloan booted over a 30-yard placement kick for Nebraska's only score. This field goal in the second quarter followed two great defensive efforts by the Cadets inside their 10-yard line. Chris Cagle was badly hurt in tackling Rowley and was replaced by Hutchinson, who had to punt from behind his own goal. The ball went out at Army's 35-yard line and the Cornhuskers opened up a fast running attack, Sloan and Howell advancing the ball to the Cadet's 10-yard line, where the defense again stiffened. On the fourth down, Howell and Sloan dropped back and the Nebraska fullback held the ball for his versatile teammate, who booted over a perfect placement.

The Cadets had romped unchecked across the chalk marks in the first period until they reached Nebraska's 20-yard line. Three times in that neighborhood the brawny Cornhuskers' line held for downs.

Sloan the Dazzler.

In the second period, the Nebraskans' only aggressive effort, forward passes and long dashes by Sloan, the individual star of the game and one of the best backs seen on the gridiron this year, forced the Army on to the defensive, where they remained throughout the quarter.

Coming out for the second half, however, the Cadet eleven showed that it had just begun to fight. Chris Cagle, playing the game of his career, began those devastating dashes off tackle and around end which have been the terror of the Army's opponents this season.

Standing on his own 35-yard line, the Cadet star flung a long pass to Messinger, Army end, who ran to Nebraska's 37-yard line. From that vantage point, after a delayed pass behind the line, Cagle suddenly sprinted through the Cornhuskers' secondary defense and was off on one of his twisting runs, which did not end until he was hugging the ball to his muddied jersey safely behind the Nebraska goal line.

Captain Sprague missed the try for goal, and the Army went out to hold its advantage.

Attack Lacked Versatility.

Sloan's dashes for sizeable gains were offset by a lack of versatility in the Nebraska attack, and the stout defense against the drives of "Blue" Howell, visiting fullback.

Cagle was twice badly hurt in making brilliant and timely tackles and finally was replaced by Hutchinson. So desperate were the Nebraskans as the game drew to a close and darkness closed in upon the hilltop stadium that Sloan tried a 56-yard drop-kick, which, needless to say, fell short.

The final period was played in

Idaho U. Vandals Bother Trojans

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24— (I. N. S.)—After the university southern California Trojans had floundered in a doldrums for two qaurters, Don Williams returned to the line-up and led his undefeated teammates to a 28 to 7 victory over Idaho in their final conference football game here this afternoon.

The victory gave the Trojans no worse than a tie for the coast conference championship, with four victories and one tie game with California.

Williams made an auspicious return to the game after a two weeks' illness rolling up two touchdowns in short order at the start of the third period.

The first score came after Saunders had paved the way with a 35 yard jaunt through tackle, and the second came after a steady march down the field.

Jess Hill, coming in for Saunders late in the period, dashed twenty-nine yards for a touchdown, for a third score.

Hill contributed a fourth touchdown in the fourth period, after two brilliant dashes down the field. Just previous to this, Norton, a Trojan sub-back, had paved the way by returning Idaho's kick off 44 yards. Kemp converted.

HUSKER SQUAD TO VISIT RBOADWAY

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24—The Cornhusker party pulled out of West Point tonight and will see the sights on New York's Broadway and take in a theater performance. A sight-seeing drive is on the program for Sunday morning and the Nebraska special will head away from Weehawken, N. J., Sunday afternoon arriving in Lincoln Tuesday morning in time for classes.

California-Stanford Finish 13-13 After Thrilling Game

MEMORIAL STADIUM, BERKELEY, NOV. 24—(INS)—California 13; Stanford 13.

Thus ended the most thrilling battle of the Pacific coast football season today played before the largest crowd of the year, approximately 100,000 souls.

California led at the half 13 to 0, the result of one touchdown scored by Bancroft on a 76 yard run after an intercepted pass and one scored by Avery who counted on a 20 yard forward pass on the last play of the half.

Cardinals To Rescue

Stanford scored its first touchdown of the game in the third period on a concerted drive from the California 29-yard line, Fentrup counting on a line plunge. The tying count came with dramatic suddeness with less than a minute to play when Stanford made desperate by the trend of events, launched a persistent passing attack. The play that counted was a 35 yard pass from Simpkin to Fentrup, the latter caught the ball a scant foot from the end zone.

California missed the first try forpoint and kicked the second. Stanford kicked the first and missed the second when a goal kick would have given a one point victory.

Statistics of the game shows how even it was. In the first half each team made two first downs, Stanford made 50 yards on running plays to California's 41 and gained 16 yards on passes to California's 41 The Bears intercepted four forward passes, one counting for a touchdown after a 76 yard run.

Light Backs Score.

When "Pop" Warner put in his light backs in the second half it was vastly different. Stanford registered 84 yards from running plays and 108 from passes. California made 29 yards on runningplays and completed one pass for 19 yards. The Cards completed eight first passes in 15 attempts and California completed one asss in one attempt.

As a result of the California failure to win today the University of Southern California takes undisputed claim to the Pacific Coast conference championship.

Stanford packed up immediately after the game and prepared to take a train for New York, where Warner's team is to meet the Army next Saturday. California due to receeive invitation from Pasadena to play the New Year's day game was undecided at this writing whether to accept or stage a post season game of its own on that day.

Tex Rickard On His Job of Blowing Fight Horn

Famed Promoter Hops In With Declaration New Champ Soon Here

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Tex Rickard, ever serious and dignified and solemn, as well as taciturn, has suddenly taken to clowning.

Tex fairly snorts at all the experts, synthetic or otherwise, who say the fight racket is skidding and that the present crop of heavies are but palooka debutantes. And in the same stogie-scented breath he wishes one and all to understand that the boys who are to star in his 1928-1929 edition of "Rickard's Heavyweight Follies" are likely to make everybody forget that there was ever a bird like Sullivan, another like Dempsey and likewise one named Tunney.

Tex Knows His Ballyhoos.

The smart Tex knows that ballyhoo is needed for fistic success. This season the newspaper lads seem to have mislaid their pally horns and their hoo trumpets. Inasmuch as they won't operate in his behalf and write nice pieces about how great are the woodchoppers, sailors, baker boys, acrobats and such—those he has corraled for this season's musicless comedy — Tex has turned author.

In an article under his own signature in the November issue of the "Ring Magazine," Rickard grabs himself a flute, three piccolos and several trombones and toots those words:

Wherein He Tells Why!

"Gene Tunney has retired. Jack Dempsey has announced that he will not come back and the boxing critics of the country are busy now mourning over the heavyweight situation.

"We are told that the heavyweight crop which now stands out is as expert and as promising as the peach crop in Alaska. All along the line there is a moaning and a groaning all because the critics have got it into their heads that the passing of Dempsey and Tunney means the practical death of heavyweight boxing.

Whole World Hollered.

"To one who has seen them come and go, this really is a dandy joke. When John L. Sullivan was dethroned by Jim Corbett, the boxing world hollered that the game had gone to the dogs.

"When Jim Jeffries went into retirement and began to hand the title around to Root and the rest, the situation really was bad. But what happened? A negro by the name of Jack Johnson, who had been a roustabout down at Galveston, Texas, came along, dragged Jeffries out of retirement, became the champion, and started a grand revival of interest which burst out in the 'white hope' epidemic.

Another Crop of Groans.

"When Jess Willard stopped Jack Johnson at Havana there was a new crop of groans. Willard, we were told, was a 'big cheese,' and the heavyweight game was going very rapidly to the bow wows!

"What happened? Out west a kid by the name of Jack Dempsey went smashing along and finally laid Willard low in that hot ring in Toledo.

"When Dempsey began to fall off, Gene Tunney came along to inject new interest into the situation. And that's how boxing goes. The old champion hits the toboggan, a new one, often a better one, takes his place.

Plenty Big Ones.

"Some of the writers have suggested that in view of the conditions among heavyweights, the promoter of the country let the big boys alone for some time and concentrate on rebuilding the middleweight, lightweight and other divisions.

"Why, there are enough big men in New York alone to give the proper impetus to the heavyweight situation. If one great fighter comes out of this group—why, that's all we want."

This Way for Tickets.

Step this way for tickets, ladies and gents. Buy as many as you want for the "Rickard Heavyweight Follies." If you keep crowding into Madison Square Garden often enough, why, who knows but what you'll see another Sullivan, another Dempsey or another Tunnney—somewhere along in 1935 or 1940 or 1948!

MIDGET FIELDER SWINGS BAD BAT

"Little Johnny' Tavener of Detroit Club Busy Mauler of Triples.

BY CAMPAIGNER.

His nicknames are "Firpo" and "Power House." Who? Johnny Tavener, the little 136-pound shortstop of the Detroit Tigers. Why? Because he hits the ball further than any other big league ball player of his size.

Tavener never has been a .300 hitter in any league and yet opposing pitchers rate him as a dangerous batsman, for the little fellow comes through in a lot of pinches with extra-base hits.

When a major league scout visits the sticks to give some well touted minor league slugger the once over, he takes the fences into consideration. If they are close in, he easily perceives that the homers that Jim Clouter drives over the barriers or the doubles he hits against them might be easy outs in a big league park. But, if Jim Clouter is hitting a lot of triples, he knows that Jim is worth trying out.

Strong for His Triples.

Well, little Johnny Tavener always has had a penchant for making triples. This year, for instance, he gathered 14, Gehringer, Sam Rice, Heinie Manush, Earl Combs and Emil Barnes being the only American leaguers to excel him in the manufacture of three-sackers. In fact, Johnny made six more triples than Babe Ruth, one more than Lou Gehrig, three more than Leon Goslin and five more than either Al Simmons or Harry Heilmann, all long distance drivers.

"How does he hit a ball so far?" many a fan or newspaperman has exclaimed when the 136-pound Detroiter swatted a ball to deep right or center for three bases. "Where does he get his power?"

Case of Perfect Timing.

It is not power. It is perfect timing and opposing pitchers will tell you that Johnny times h's drives better than most of his rival batsmen. If he were 20 or 30 pounds heavier and could add the power to his timing ability, he would be a consistent .300 hitter.

And to think the peppery lightweight started out as a catcher when he was a semi-pro in Dayton, Ohio. But, when some one told him he was too small to be a backstop, he shifted to the infield. Along came Zinn Beck, then managing the Columbia, S. C., team and signed him.

Grew Up In Texas.

Johnny did not take the offer seriously, figuring that Beck could not be much of a judge of ball players if he wanted to give a trial to a boy who weighed but 125 pounds, as Johnny did then. But he devoted himself to adding avoirdupois and actually weighed 133 when he reported, and when the season opened he tipped the scales at 140 pounds. Then did so well that Detroit bought him and sent him to Forth Worth to grow up. Johnny, however, never did get any heavier and his playing weight during the last season was 136 pounds.

"Power House" also is somewhat of a base runner. He was thirteenth in stolen bases during the season of '28 and seventh in 1927.

Learned to Run Bases.

"Never knew much about base running, though," says Johnny, "until George Moriarty coached me. George showed me how to study the pitchers and get my lead off the base. And he also told me it was suicide to try to steal onGeorge Uhle, Ted Lyons and Herb Pennock."

Next year, Tavener must battle for his shortstop berth with Henry Schuble, former Cardinal, who was purchased from Houston. If Tavener hits as well as he did in '27, his chances for retaining the place are excellent. And, with a battle on his hands, the little fellow probably will make a better showing with the stick than in '28.

Chicago Sox Rookie Has Ear Marks of Greatness

CARL REYNOLDS.

By JACK BOLTON.

He hails from Rattlesnake Ranch, does Carl N. Reynolds, White Sox outfielder, who, Chicago fans claim, is the fastest thing in spiked shoes in the American league. Boston rooters declare that Jack Rothrock, the Red Sox utility player, is faster. Not much choice between them. Perhaps a race will be arranged for them next season.

Anyway, Reynolds calls Rattlesnake Ranch his home, the ranch acquiring its name because it also is the residence of sundry thousands of rattlers. Perhaps, if Carl had gone in for high or broad jumping at college, he would have won national honors, as he has had plenty of practice in dodging that particular brand of snakes which have a sportsmanslike system of telling you when they are going to strike.

Way Down in Texas.

Rattlesnake ranch is 62 miles out from Del Rio, Texas, the nearest town, and Del Rio is 200 miles from San Antonio, so now you know just how far out in the country Carl resides. Said ranch, by the way, is given over to sheep, Carl and his father having about 3,000 on their range now, about half as many as they used to run.

The wild western stories tell you that the average plainsman is bowlegged from riding horseback, but after you take one look at Carl, who has been riding for the last 15 years, you know you cannot believe all you read.

Guns for Snakes Only.

"Suppose you carry two guns when down home on the ranch?" Carl was asked.

"Only to kill snakes," was the reply. "And, I'm not as good with the six gun as with the rifle. Went down in old Mexico hunting, three years ago and some Mexican rurales decided we were bandits or something else. Anyway, they took a few shots at us and we re-crossed the Rio Grande in nothing flat."

It was when Reynolds was winning letters in four sports at Southwestern university that a White Sox scout lamped him in 1927 and placed him with the Palestine club of the Lone Star league.

Led League in Batting.

All Carl did was to lead the league in batting with a mark of .346 and in base running with 32 stolen sacks. Might have done better, but played only 124 games. Then, he came up to Chicago and played in the first big league game he ever saw. Batted only .214 in his 14 games with the Sox in '27, but he displayed so much rough talent that Charles Comiskey and his lieutenants just about decided he would be a regular this year and he was, although being kept out of about 60 games by injuries.

Topped Some Real Hitters.

At that, he batted .332, topping such redoubtable batsmen as Harry Heilmann, Bing Miller, Sam Rice, Joe Sewell, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Earl Combs. In fact, there were only five American league regulars who batted better. What a sensation he should be in 1929 with his tremendous power as a batsman and his terrific speed on the paths.

YALE FLOPS IN HARVARD CLASH

French Runs Wild As Harvard Rolls Up 17-0 Victory.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

YALE BOWL, New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Ladies, if any, gentlemen, if possible. It gives me great pleasure—and I'm a terrible fellow to please—to place in nomination for the 1928 All American football team the name of that sterling citizen and apostle of the righteous, young Mr. Arthur French, of the Winchester, Mass., French. words fail me in extolling his virtues; oratory is at a loss to do him the justice that is inalienably his.

Suffice it to say that, without this estimable character, Harvard never would have beaten Yale this afternoon by a score of 17 to 0. Without him, Harvard wouldn't have been a team of inspired zeolots that romped all over the premises, making Yale look the part of a beaten outfit from the moment the boys began to get personal and familiar out there. Without French, as said, Harvard wouldn't have won by two touchdowns and a field goal. But it is only fair to the ticknors, the Clarks, the Guarnaccias, the Trainors and the Putnams to state that, French or no French, Harvard would have won this ball game.

It was that kind of a Harvard team. Yale was the other kind. The only thing tough about Yale today was its battle song, concluding with the rather fatuous line: "For Yay-Yale will win."

Yale Attack Fizzles.

They undoubtedly were talking about the Lacrosse team. Yale could not have beaten Harvard in football today if they had allowed the Bulldog to go in there with paving blocks in each hand. It was in the script for Yale to go nowhere at very reckless speed and Yale did just that. Not once during the affair did the Yale attack venture inside the 40-yard line.

It was Harvard's fourteenth victory of the series to twenty-seven for Yale. It also marked the first time since 1922 that Harvard has had anything but a purely protective instinct toward a set of goal posts.

Goal posts, it seems, are the inevitable prey of all winners in this benighted section of the land. Harvard's rush at the goal posts this time had all the protective appearance of a bull elephant about to go many places and do many things. Forty thousand of that 80,000 crowd had its last tradition to carry forward to a successful conclusion and, while it was about the matter, it carried forward and off just about everything that wasn't riveted down.

French The Big Noise.

Just why it didn't concentrate its attention on something really important and proceed to carry off young Mr. French is something a little beyond Mrs. Walsh's bright boy. If ever a man deserved a hand and about anything else available that the Harvard cheering section didn't happen to need it was French.

Yale simply couldn't do anything about him all day long. When he wasn't flashing off tackle, he was taking lateral passes from Guarnaccia to sweep wide around for significant gains. When he wasn't punting, with a great deal of direction and good sense, he was intercepting Yale's passes and running them back through the Blues startled ranks. French was just about everything a back should be today. In total yardage alone, he gained 137 yards, personally outscoring the efforts of an entire Yale team.

French and his arch-collaborator, Guarnaccia, took charge of the situation at an early moment. Yale had reeled off a first down near midfield early in the game and then lost the ball on a lateral pass which went astray. Needing no further encouragement, French produced a series of runs carried the ball inside the 10-yard line and a few moments later Guarnaccia was over the goal line with the only touchdown that mattered.

Harper Runs 52 Yards.

Harvard quickly indicated that this initial success was to be far from an impermanent one when Harper ran the following kickoff back 52 yards. From that moment until the end of the half Harvard was always in a forcing position and thanks to Guarnaccia's 23-yard run around Qalker, was well down in Yale territory all the way.

Harvard's second touchdown was the result of a continuous march of approximately sixty yards, French and Guarnaccia leading the way. Yale could do nothing with the lateral passing of this pair even though it learned a lesson in the first half and covered French avidly. It was one thing however to get your hands on this young man and it was quite another to hold him. Anyhow Yale couldn't.

In desperation the Blue began casting passes to the four winds late in the game. All this got Yale was nothing except the worst of it, French being on the spot to clutch most of these as though they were intended for him. In consequence Harvard was knocking at the portals of another touchdown late in the game and just to add emphasis to the thrills of the day, Putnam kicked a field goal from the 17-yard line for 3 extra points.

Schuyler Wins Easily.

SCHUYLER, Neb., Nov. 24—Coach Frank Gradoville's Schuyler high grid outfit journeyed to Wahoo Friday afternoon and outclassed the Wahoo aggregation to cop a 46-0 victory. Stillinger, Schuyler's scoring ace, was the star of the game, netting six touchdowns to run his individual scoring record up to 89 points.

Schuyler has won five games this year, tied two and lost one to Stnaton. The team has registered a total of 89 points as compared to opponents 27. The season will wind-up Thanksgiving Day with David City, an annual classic. A real battle is in store as the two teams appear to be evenly matched.

Gothenburg Drubs Kearney.

GOTHENBURG, Neb., Nov. 24—Gothenburg high school humbled a heavier Kearney high eleven here Friday afternoon by a count of 19-0, the mid-way city lads failing to register a first down during the entire fray. Barnes, fullback, netted two of the "Swedes" touchdowns in displaying a high caliber brand of ball. Jenkins, quarterback ran back a punt for 65 yards for the third tally. Worley performed in the stellar role for Kearney.

Wymore Loses To Crete.

WYMORE, Neb., Nov. 24—Coach "Pop" Klein's Crete "Huskies" defeated the Gembler Wymore tribe here Friday afternoon by a count of 8-0 braking into the scoring column after three scoreless periods. Harris, star backfield ace, was on the injured list and Bryson acted as captain in his place. Quarterback Jessup of the Crete team was a former Wymore high school student.

Bridgeport Trounces Kimball.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 24—When Corbett, fast halfback on the Bridgeport high eleven, returned the opening kickoffs in the first and third periods for touchdowns against Kimball, it not only established a record in western Nebraska but also provided the fireworks for a game unusually replete with straight football. The final score was 37-0 with Bridgeport registering all its points by plugging the line or circling the ends. Kimball attempted several forward passes while Bridgeport never tossed the ball once during the game. Bridgeport engages Chadron in its Turkey Day encounter.

Scottsbluff Beats Alliance.

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Nov. 24—Scottsbluff swamped Alliance Friday afternoon on the latters gridiron by a count of 31-0, the local team outplaying Alliance in every department of the game. Humphrey, local speedster, opened scoring on the second play after Scottsbluff gained the ball with a 70-yard jaunt for a touchdown. He scored again later in the period. Skinner, halfback, contributed with a 70 yard run in the second period and another in the third, while Wingett, sub half, chalked up a tally in the third. Alliance never threatened to score.

York Grabs Another Game.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Nov. 24—With Captain Wendell of York in the stellar role, York high captured a 26-0 victory over Central City here, Friday afternoon. Wendell netted all four York touchdowns, scoring first in the opening period on a plunge through the line, and then running back the ensuing kick-off for 90 yards and second tally. He intercepted a Central City forward pass and ran 60 yards for the third score and in the closing period caught a pass from Price for another. In first downs York had 11 and Central City seven. The local team displayed its best brand of ball in the second half.

LEXINGTON EASY WINNER.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Nov. 24—Lexington' Minute Men steam-rollered the North Platte Bulldogs here Friday, 46 to 0. The Platters made one first down and the Minute Men had to punt only twice. Coach Harrell used 26 men in the Lexington lineup.

HASTINGS BEATS FAIRBURY.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 24—With a heavier and more experienced team, Hastings beat Fairbury here yesterday in a fast game. Hastings scored twice in the first period, on a long pass to Kockrow, and a line plunge by Johnson which followed a muffed punt by Fairbury. Krebsbach scored another counter for the visitors in the second stanza ,and Marthis made the lone Fairbury touchdown on a line play after two long passes to Jackson had gained 50 yards.

The second half was evenly fought, Kockrow again scoring for Hastings on a pass. Both teams were using the pass frequently with good effect. The ability of the Hastings backs to gain outside of tackle and around the ends spelled defeat for the locals.

Hastings outyarded the Jeffersons, making 12 first downs to Fairbury's eight.

ORLEANS WINS ANOTHER.

RED CLOUD, Neb., Nov. 24—The Red Cloud high school football team was defeated on the local field Friday afternoon by the Orleans high school team by a score of 21 to 0, both teams playing clean hard football throughout the game.

Two touchdowns were made by the visitors during the first quarter after which Red Cloud tightened up and succeeded in keeping them from crossing their goal line until about 10 minutes before the final whistle, when seven more points were earned by Orleans by a successful forward pass. Orleans has not been scored against this season.

HASTINGS DRUBS CENTRAL

HASTINGS, Nebr., Nov. 24—The Hastings Bronchos continued their winning streak by swamping Central, 64 to 0, here Friday. The Bronchos played a slow game during the first half, scoring but one touchdown. The light Central line fought a good battle in this period.

In the second half, however, Hastings showed its old spirit and made two touchdowns in the third quarter and seven in the fourth.

Lindell, Young, Stuckey and Kemp each made one touchdown. L. Owen made two while C. Owen was responsible for four of the counters.

TABLE ROCK, Neb., Nov. 24 — Table Rock defeated Sterling high here Friday afternoon by a count of 12 to 7, exhibiting a forward passing attack that proved very effective against the Johnson county eleven. The defensive work of Captain Shepherd, Jass, Boyles and Hubka stood out for the locals while Beetam and Caley proved shining lights for the visitors. Table Rock acts host to Odell next Friday in the wind-up contest of the season. The season record, which includes but one defeat:

Table Rock, 45; Shubert, 0.
Table Rock, 9; Adams, 0.
Table Rock, 6; Humboldt, 19.
Table Rock, 2; Verdon, 0.
Table Rock, 13; Brock, 6.
Table Rock, 12; Sterling, 7.
Totals .... 146 Opponents 32.

ALBION-COLUMBUS IN TIE.

ALBION, Neb., Nov. 24 Albion and Columbus played to a scoreless tie here yesterday. Triba and O'Callaghan for Columbus and Loken and Beck featured the Albion play.

SPORT BRIEFS.

Georgia Tech claims the best backfield in the country with Mizell, Thomason and Lumpkin playing regularly and either Randolph or Durant to make it a quartet.

Herbert Hoover is a football fan and has seen many games, but after he was elected president his presence at a game was noted in the papers.

SPORT BRIEFS.

Niemic, Chevigny, Collins and Carredeo, one of the Notre Dame backfield combinations, represents, in its ancestry, four nationalities.

The Baltimore Association of ommerce has taken up the matter of getting football games for the big municipal stadium. Navy recently announced it would play no more games there.

Michigan lost 18 letter men from the 1927 team which was part of the cause of the poor early season showing of the Wolverines.

Inside Stuff On Thwarting Bully

A rather frail fellow met up with Jack Dempsey a short while ago and asked Dempsey if he couldn't accord him a bit of time teaching him how to punch.

"What's the idea? Why do you want to learn socking?" countered Dempsey.

"Well, I find that very often I get into little spuabbles with bullies and if I had a punch I could use it instead of retreating in dishonor," was the answer.

"I'm too busy to take up the job of teaching you," said the ex-champion. "Futhermore, it doesn't seem to me that you are built in such a way that you ever could punch with 10 years teaching. But if you get in trouble with roughnecks, I'll tell you what to do that will prove more effective than all the left hooks and the right crosses in the world.

"Aim carefully, fire accurately—and kick the other guy in the shins. Nothing, absolutely nothing, will take the kittenish spirits out of a bully quite as rapidly and effectively as a well placed kick on the shinbones."

Illinois Captures Grid Laurels In "Big Ten"

Zuppke Pupils Finish In Front Ohio While Other Leaders Tumble

BY LEO FISCHER.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 24—Hail to the champions—Illinois!

Thanks to the assistance of Minnesota and Michigan, and their own splendid 8 to 0 victory over Ohio, Coach Bob Zuppke's battling Illini won their second consecutive Big Ten title here this afternoon in the concluding game of the season.

When the final gun ended the battle, the standings of the leading conference elevens looked like this:

Illinois, won 4, lost 1, tied 1, percentage .800.

Wisconsin, won 3, lost 1, tied 1, percentage .750.

Ohio and Iowa, won 5, last 2, percentage .600.

Thriller All The Way.

It was a thrilling fight here today from start to finish and the second half was made even more so by the knowledge that the title hinged on the result. Illinois, however, had the advantage of getting off to an early lead, and had as the Buckeyes fought the Indians fought back harder. Their eight points, scored in the first half, were enough to win, as a result.

Today's contest marked the concluding appearance of "Doc" Wilce, Ohio's coach, as a big ten mentor. He has resigned to enter active medical practice, and the windup of the contest saw the finish of his 16-year career with the Buckeyes.

A fast finish and an even faster start in the first half tells practically the entire story of the Illini victory.

In the first minute they scored a safety and in the last a touchdown. Between these two scores there were thrills galore, just as in the second half, but neither team could come close to marking up a tally.

Illini Plays Well.

It would be hard to pick an outstanding player on the two-time championship. Frosty Peter's kicking and his passing were remarkable, but so were the line-plunging of Fritz Hommert and the running of Mills, Walker and Hill and the play of Illinois' line couldn't be overlooked, either, for the men in the forward wall made it possible to stop Ohio's offensive and open holes for those galloping Illini backs to dash through.

Ohio played well, too, as the players did their best to write Wilce's valedictory with a championship. But it wasn't enough to match the inspired fight of those pennant-bound Illini, and the curtain dropped on the 1928 campaign with the championship still theirs.

PLAN CAMPAIGN IN "Y" CIRCLE

City and Church Loops Will Organize At Monday Meet.

Final plans for the organization of the Y. M. C. A. basketball leagues will be made at a meeting of managers and team sponsors to be held at the Lincoln Y. M. C. A., Monday evening. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock, according to O. B. Anderson, physical director.

The leagues will swing into action the second week of December. The Commercial Industrial league is composed of men working in plants and firms which they represent. This league has been responsible for the promotion of a high type of basketball among the different firms of Lincoln and has given the young fellow who has completed his school work, an opportunity to continue to play basketball.

The following firms have registered teams: Piggly Wiggly, Western Auto Supply Co., Evans Laundry, Central Cafe, Lincoln Telephones, First National Bank, Nebraska State Bank.

Some New Teams.

The new firms represented in the league are Piggly Wiggly, Western Auto Supply Co., and the First National Bank. There is still room for one more team in this league. Last year the Telephone Co., won the Industrial league championship.

The City league is composed of men who are members of the Y. M. C. A., and is sponsored by local firms or organizations. Last year Gooch's Best won the city championship and the state championship.

BADGER FUMBLE AWAY GRID GAME

nine yards and with only eight to go, the show was turned over to Bronko Nagurski. He dived head first over the pile-up and the goal line on his third plunge.

Nagurski Dives Across.

The Badgers could have stopped him only before he dived, and they could not get through the Minnesota line fast enough. Brockmeyer missed the attempt for extra point with a place kick.

There were two distinct reversals of form during the game. First the thundering herd had all the advantage, their plunging Nagurski ripping the Badgers line to shreds. Early in the game Lusby, by holding his own against Brockmever and Pharmer on the punts, prevented Minnesota from scoring. Through the first quarter and most of the second, the ball was in Wisconsin's territory. The Cadrinals could not gain through the bulky, speedy, driving gopher line. They dared not pass near their own goal. The game was all Minnesota's except for Lusby holding his own on punts.

RIVALS BATTLE ON TURKEY DAY

Season to Close With Important Games In All Sections.

Tech and Lincoln Tops Football Card In High Schools.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

Football fires smouldering all season will burst out in Nebraska high school camps this week for one final flare before the season ends. With the exception of a few games, the curtain will roll down Thanksgiving day and the finale will be the signal for games between rivals in every section of the state.

The feature game of the week's card is the Saturday argument between Lincoln and Omaha Tech. The capital city and Maroons each will go into the game undefeated so far as Nebraska competition is concerned and defeat will eliminate one of the pair from consideration in any mythical title awards which may be passed around at the close of the season.

Tech Shows Strength.

A month ago the Red and Black would have been accorded the favorite seat in preference to the Tech eleven, but in view of the recent Lincoln showing at Grand Island, the Saturday battle looks like the well-known toss-up. Comparative scores via Grand Island point to a Tech victory, but the fact Lincoln is playing at home should go a long way toward whittling down the odds

Lexington, one of the strongest teams out in the state, has a tough foe in Gothenburg. The odds appear all with the Minute Men but the dope counts for little in this classic where the boys pay off on touchdowns and not yards gained in scrimmage.

Orleans has a stiff hurdle in Alma, a team which has lost but one game this season. Imperial should have little trouble with Wauneta.

Gering Plays Crawford.

Gering and Chadron, leaders in the western circle, each have hard assignments. The Gering Bulldogs will travel to Crawford to meet Coach Wayne Binfield's northwestern aggregation, which has lost two games to date but is all primed for the Turkey day test.

Chadron, all-victorious and already in with the northwest Nebraska title, will appear at Bridgeport and the game looks like one of the best in the western section.

Mid-State league honors will be decided when Grand Island plays at York. The Third City eleven has had the tougher schedule and will give the York eleven its hardest battle of the year. York is undefeated while Grand Island has bowed only to Omaha Tech and Lincoln.

Pawnee at Tecumseh.

Tecumseh, another undefeated outfit, entertains Pawnee City and is doped to finish a second all-victorious season. A win for the Indians would be an upset, although the Johnson county eleven has floundered a bit in its late starts.

Broken Bow meets Ansley in the Custer county classic of the season. The game will not be a walkaway for the Bow as in the past few seasons. Coach Don Lindell has an improved squad at Ansley this season and his proteges have been doing some "pointing" during the past few weeks.

Coach Dutch Welch and his Nelson high team will lock horns with Edgar in a game which will give the Nelson team an opportunity to rivet down the Southern conference title.

Uni. Place at Havelock.

Other leading games which will bring together Minden at Holdrege, Curtis Aggies at North Platte, Wahoo at Ashland, David City at Schuyler, Fairbury at Hebron and Blair at Tekamah.

Greater Lincoln honors will be at stake when University Place meets Havelock at Ballard field. This is the annual classic of the capital city and it will be played Thursday morning. Havelock has held the upper hand the past few seasons, but the young Methodists are intent on cutting in on the Engineers' winnings this year.

Games this week include:

Wednesday, Nov. 28.

Bayard at Minatare.

Thursday, Nov. 28.

Edgar at Nelson.
Farnam at Cozad.
David City at Schuyler.
Talmage at Shubert.
Wilber at Crete.

Bradshaw Hi Cagers Open With Victory

BRADSHAW, Neb., Nov. 24—Bradshaw high cagers opened the 1928-1929 season with a 23-9 victory at Utica last night. Mason led the scoring with 10 points. The guarding of Captain Goodridge of Bradshaw featured. The Utica reserves beat the Bradshaw reserves, 10-3.

California voted full support to the Olympic games program in 1932. The big event will be amply financed.

FRIEND HI TEAM HAS BIG SEASON

FRIEND, Neb., Nov. 24—By defeating Hebron 13-0 Friday afternoon on the Hebron gridiron, Friend high school closed its 1928 football season with a clean slate, having counted a total of 128 points as compared to the opponents' seven.

The Hebron game was the toughest mix of the season for the local warriors, as the two were evenly matched, according to pre-game superiority in the last period and the final count in downs read six to five and in yardage 116 to 98 yards.

Kuskie, Friend left halfback, played a good game for the victors, running back punts for substantial gains and intercepting two forward passes, one of them resulting in a touchdown. He played but a short time, being removed from the game in the second period when injured. Bauer and Swanson did most of the Friend ball-lugging, the former breaking away for a 25-yard run which set up the pins for the second tally. Hebron threatened late in the second period, but the halftime gun stopped their march to the Friend goal on the 25-yard line. Green at right tackle performed in the stellar role on the line while Houts, Cloyd and Baum were the outstanding members of the Hebron team.

By Day And By Night Cadets Held Edge Says U. P. Writer

twilight, dusk, semi-darkness and finally complete darkness, which obliterated the playing field as far as the spectators and most of the players were concerned.

By the November Moon.

Through the night, with the Cornhuskers bewilderedly trying to follow the trend of the Army offensive, Hutchinson shot a pass to Charley Allan. By the gleam of a pale November moon, Allan spotted the flight of the ball, which was like that of a mallard over a night marsh. The Army halfback plucked the ball from the darkness and stumbled over the Nebraska line for a touchdown.

Then came the big chance of Jimmy Grier, who hadn't seen action as a first string Cadet this season. The youngster, a guard, was sent in to convert the touchdown and did so with a neat placement kick, aiming by flares from the adjacent hillside.

After that it was just naturally too dark for anything that concerned football, but even then the Army moved better in the dark than the crestfallen Nebraskans. Ernie Bearg, Cornhusker coach, yanked his backfield stars, Sloan and Howell, and sent in fresh men with miners' lamps affixed to their headgears, but the ruse failed and the game came to an end with the joyful Cadets corps telling the visiting throng the sad bedtime story of Nebraska's first defeat.

Army Uncorks Passes.

While it still was light enough for football, the Army earned its triumph by the most brilliant passing attack it has displayed this year, coupled with the devastating dashes of Chris Cagle, who now may be safely rated as All-American timber.

All told, the Army's forward passing attack proved a net gain of 233 yards, or quite enough to defeat the Cornhuskers even if Cagle had not been ever-ready to add his fleetness of foot to the irresistible Cadet advance. Nebraska, on the other hand, completed only six passes, for a total of 49 yards.

Out-rushed and outpassed, the visitors excelled only at kicking. Claude Rowley outkicked Cagle and Murrell, while he was in the game, and Sloan held his own in this department.

LINCOLN HELD BY CEDAR RAPIDS HI

the Tiger four-yard line. Held at this point to three downs, Captain Schmitt attempted to place kick the goal, but his work failed and Cedar Rapids took the pigskin on its 20-yard line.

Aided by Bauer's 60-yard punt, Lincoln began a last frantic drive to the Cedar Rapids goal. Pass after pass was attempted, all unsuccessfully, although Captain Schmitt muffed a long toss standing on the Red and Black goal. The last play of the game brought the only completed Lincoln pass of the day when Joy nabbed Bauer's throw for a gain of 20 yards that brought the oval to the 15-yard line.

Plenty of Tie Games.

It must fall in the lot of Washington high to play tie games this season for of eight games played, this is the fifth deadlocked affair. But in seven years as head coach for the capital city high school, Coach W. H. Browne's teams have never been tied and only three times have been sent down to defeat. The tie contest with Grand Island and the one with York during the 1921 season mark the last deadlocks on one of the most outstanding records in the country.

Coach Bill Kelley brought a Tiger aggregation of 22 players to Lincoln for the game. Browne is contracted to play a return contest on Iowa soil in 1929.

Ohio Wesleyan's "Galloping Bishops."

DELAFARE, Ohio, Nov. 24—Notre Dame has had its "Four Horsemen" but this year Ohio Wesleyan has its "Four Galloping Bishops" comprising the backfield of the undefeated Ohio Wesleyan eleven, known as "The Battling Bishops," who have beaten Michigan and Syracuse and advanced the ball more than two and one-fourth miles in winning the seven games they have played.

Known for years as a good small college team, Ohio Wesleyan has stepped ahead of its class this season and swept everything before it with these four backfield thunderbolts, playing brilliant football behind what Ohio sports writers have named "the Iron Chain Line."

These "Galloping Bishops" have advanced the ball 3,967 yards, to be exact, while their opponents have carried it but 1,255 yards against them. They have galloped for a total of 29 touchdowns and scored 195 points to their opponents' 13.

Ohio Wesleyan has defeated Michigan, 17 to 7; Syracuse, 6 to 0; Cincinnati, 71 to 0; Miami, 12 to 0, Marietta, 33 to 0, Denison, 11 to 0, and Wooster 45 to 6.

Although the bishops have made the greater part of their yardage on straight football, their forward passing also has been phenomenal. They have completed 63 of 129 passes attempted for a total gain of 881 yards. Every man in the "Bishops backfield is adept at hurling passes. Only 29 passes have been completed against the Bishops in seven games.

James "Red" Glancy, fullback, and John "Red" Halliday, halfback, have led in scoring this year among the "Galloping Bishops" and look so much alike that they often pass for twins when dressed for the gridiron.

HUSKERS THIRD IN ANNUAL RUN

Frazier Leads Jayhawks To Win in Big Six Harrier Meet.

HOW THEY FINISHED.

Kansas	51
Iowa State	59
Nebraska	79
Oklahoma	85
Kansas Aggies	86
Missouri	131

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 24—University of Kansas won the first annual "Big Six" conference cross country run here today. "Poco" Frazier, set the pace with a time mark of 25 minutes 44 3-5 seconds. The first twelve runners to finish were:

Frazier, Kansas, first; Putnam, Iowa State, second; Miller, Kansas Aggies, third; Hoak, Iowa State, fourth; Christensen, Iowa State, fifth; Griffin, Nebraska, sixth; Springer, Kansas, seventh; Herman, Oklahoma, eighth; Carson, Oklahoma, ninth; Batie, Nebraska, tenth; McComb, Kansas, eleventh; Fortune, Kansas, twelfth.

Hoosiers Win Title.

MADISON, Nov. 24—Indiana won the annual western conference cross-country championship here today by placing three runners among the first ten for a total of 71 points. Ohio State, with 78 points was second, and Wisconsin, failing in its attempt to win a fifth consecutive title, third, with 110.

Captain David Abbott of Illinois was he first runner to cross the finish line. His time was 26 minutes and 42 secnds.

MEEHAN GRIDDERS OVERWHELM TECH.

neth Strong, of New York university's backfield.

The 40,000 fans saw Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech captain, inaugurate his assault in the opening period which led to the first Carnegie Tech touchdown. He intercepted two forward passes at dangerous times and held back the Violet attack. The intercepting of the second pass paved the way for the touchdown which was made by Tony Sweet, right end, after he had caught apass from Harpster on the 16-yard line. Cyril Letzelter, halfback, kicked the seventh point for Tech.

Skibo Line Weakens.

Then came the rapid changing of the game's fortunes as Strong and Hill began to pound at the Skibo line which yielded for a tied score bfore the half had ended. Passing, line charging and end runs were mixed with perfect effect in the second period to put Robert Barrabee, right end, over for New York's touchdown. Strong tied the score with his placement kick.

Striking hard in the third period, the force of the Violet backfield combination of Strong and Hill drove over for two touchdowns, one by Strong and the other by Barrabee.

Tech Passes Futile.

With victory of a lost battle Harpster attempted a forward passing game which put Karcis across the line for Tech's second touchdown. But the visitors had another marker in store.

Strong made a long run to the 11-yard line near the end of the period and on the next two plays weaved his way through to the last touchdown of the game.

LASSMAN VICTIM FRACTURED SKULL

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Albert Lassman, New York university's football captain, suffered a fractured skull in the game here today with Carnegie Tech. He was taken to a hospital where it was said his condition was serious.

Lassman was injured in the last period of the game when Kenneth Strong, New York university halfback, was tackled by Howard Eyth, Carnegie Tech halfback. He was carried from the field.

Lassman is one of the outstanding amateur heavyweight boxers of the country and he has been mentioned as a possible contender for the heavyweight crown.

A leg injury last year prevented him from gaining recognition as an all-American tackle.

Physicians who examined the player at the hospital said it was possible he may have been injured internally.

Chesty Joie Hangs Up World's Record

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Running a magnificently timed race, "Chesty" Joie Ray, America's leading distance runner, ran El Ouafi into the boards at the new Boston Garden to establish a new world's record for professionals over the full marathon distance of 26 miles and 385 yards.

Ray's time for the distance was 2 hours 34 minutes 54 seconds. The old record of 2 hours 44 minutes 55 2-5 seconds was established by Ouafi in the Madison Square Garden, New York City, Oct. 21.

Joie began his winning surge of breaking world's records at the start of the fourth mile. From there he was never headed. At one time Ray held a lead of four and three quarters laps over the Algerian winner of the Olympic marathon.

Norman Scribner, preaching tackle of Ohio Wesleyan, stands six feet two and weighs 240 pounds.

DARTMOUTH EASY FOR WESTERNERS

Northwestern Romps Over Eastern Eleven For Decisive Win.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Northwestern's purple wave rolled right over and deluged the green of Dartmouth, 27 to 6 in a little kick ball game here this afternoon in which Dick Hanleys warriors were supreme from the start. The local eleven had the upper hand and turned in its fanciest ball game of the season.

The purple slashed and passed the boys from the Hanover hills to a clean cut defeat. They rolled up first down after first down and cut the Hawley line to ribbons.

A brilliant young sophomore, Hank Bruder, who had been nursing his wounded bones on the bench most of the season, took a heavy hand in Northwestern's most impressive win of the year.

Purple Runs Wild.

Of course there was Holmer with his line hammering and passes, Levison with his slices off tackle and Calderwood with some nifty running, but it was Bruder who was knifing the tackles for yardage and snaring Holmer's slick passes to the great chagrin of Dartmouth.

Holmer in his last game on Northwestern likewise was a wizard, he cracked the line for one touchdown and scooted 75 yards after recovering a Dartmouth fumble for another. A drive of 80 yards with Bruder going over the line brought the first purple touchdown but Holmer missed the goal. Bruder produced the next touchdown in the third period when he slanted off tackle for 8 yards. Holmer this time place kicked the point.

Dartmouth came to life early in the fourth period and scored on a 47-yard forward pass Marters to Booma. The try at goal was missed.

Homer, Bruder and Levison then teamed up for great slabs of yardage immediately after and Holmer slid over for the third purple touchdown. Holmer closed his career by racing 75 yards for the touchdown after scooping up a Green fumble.

Indiana Humbles Purdue.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—The historical old oaken bucket, the prize trophy of the annual Indiana gridiron classic will remain in the trophy room at Purdue university for another year as a result of the Boilermakers well earned victory of 14 to 0 over the Crimson hoard from Indiana this afternoon.

Incidentally another gold "P" will be added to the chain attached to the bail of the bucket denoting the third victory of the old gold and black gladiators over their time honored rivals.

The game was devoid of spectacular play except in the first period when Welch, the Texas tornado, intercepted an Indiana pass on the Purdue 35 yard line and raced 65 yards for the first touchdown. Both teams played hard and consistent line plunging ball from then until the end of the second period.

Hoosiers' Lone Threat.

It was in the second period that Indiana made its big threat at scoring by line plays, end runs and two short passes the Crimson warriors carried the ball to the Purdue two yard line. Here the Boilermakers line held like the Rock of Gibraltar and had carried to near midfield when the second period ended.

As the third period opened, Purdue started with a rush for the second and last touchdown of the game. Welch, Harmeson, Guthrie and Caraway tore holes through the Crimson line and carried the ball to the five yard line. Welch then drove his way through for the touchdown, Caraway adding the extra point from placement.

TULANE CRUSHES LOUISIANA STATE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Tulane crushed Louisiana College, 47 to 7, this afternoon in a one-sided game. Bill Banker, high-point scoring ace and All-Southern candidate of the Greenies, added 23 points to his total by scoring three touchdowns and kicking five goals after touchdowns.

Bobcats Crush Omaha U. Under Avalanche of Scores, 37-0.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 24—With Paul "Swede" Hertz rolling ponderously over the line, flattening the Omaha forwards and averaging ten yards every time he carried the ball, the Peru Bobcats won the championship of the N. I. A. A. today at Tech Field here by crushing Omaha university, 37 to 0.

When Coach Lon Graf's mammountain wasn't gouging the center of the line, big Joe Krejci was shooting bullet-like passes everywhere on the lot, one went for 44 yards and the first touchdown by Young.

Hertz made the second touchdown, and three others. Pike caught Krejci's pass on the third period for the other. Krejci failing to pass, ran over the goal line for two of the tries after touchdown. End Roberts was the one sole bright star for the Cards. The lineups:

get under way until nearly 2:30 and when the fourth period came bowling along, which apparently is the habit of fourth periods, the gloomy mantle of night had all but blanketed the scene. The darkness, in perfect truth, was quite thick enough to permit cutting with a cheese knife.

While this sort of thing was going on, the Cornhuskers proved their utter inability to qualify as nocturnal prowlers. In all events, the Soldier lads had the gall to attempt a forward pass play when not a soul in the audience of thirty thousand could have located the pigskin without the aid of a searchlight.

Just a Pass in the Dark.

Believe it or not Mr. Hutchinson, subbing for Mr. Cagle in the backfield, hurled the ball high into the gloom and, by some strange demonstration of the art of hocus-pocus the ball descended into the arms of an Army player.

Lynx-eyed occupants of the press box who claimed a light acquaintance with every performer in Army moleskins were unable to agree as to the definite identity of the clever youth who plucked that Hutchinson pass from out of the midst of the dusk. Some of the experts averred it was Crabb, at end, while others stoutly insisted it was Allen, a backfield man, who snagged the ball.

Be that as it may, the receiver was standing on the goal line when he perpetrated his startling feat, and six points thereby were added to the Army total. Fullback Murrell added the extra point, boosting the Army total to 13 points and the jig was up with the Cornhuskers.

Fumbles Halt Nebraska.

Nebraska's scoring achievement punctuated the second period. Messrs. Howell, Rowley and Sloan had just concluded the business of digging of considerable soil in the general direction of the Army goal, but the fumbling jinx horned in when the Huskers had penetrated to within ten yards of the final stripe and apparently were on their way to a touchdown.

Set back by the fumble, but still retaining possession of the ball, the Nebraska signal called for Halfback Clair Sloan to use his educated toe toward the achievement of a goal from the field. The youth from Verdon was fully equal to all requirements of the occasion and his kick sent the ball hurtling over the cross-bar and between the uprights for as nifty a field goal as ever was executed in the annals of the favorite college pastime.

Breaks of the Game.

The breaks of the game served to confuse and confound the Huskers during the same second period. On two distinct occasions Rowley flipped perfect passes to Sloan who snagged the ball while cruising at full speed. Sloan had a clear field to a touchdown on both plays, but the cleats of his shoes cut the sod from under his feet and he tumbled to the turf, an easy prey for Army tacklers.

Efforts of the press box pests, the writer included, to compile statistics of the battle were hopelessly futile. Twelve hundred military cadets were grouped in the stands directly in front of the press box and exuberant youth insisted on having its fling, meaning that after every exciting moment the cadets would stand enmasse, completely obstructing the view of the press box occupants.

The Cadets and Darkness.

During the final ten minutes of the combat the scribes were utterly ignorant of what was transpiring on the field. Only the bare outlines of the Cornhuskers white helmets could be seen from the press coop.

Compilation of statistics, therefore, was a hopeless task.

Despite the lack of definite figures, it is unquestioned that the Soldiers both out-yarded and outdowned the invading gridders from the middle west. Nevertheless, the Huskers made it a ball game for sixty minutes and but for the irrepressible Mr. Cagle might well have plucked the laurels.

Unfortunately for the Cornhusker cause, Mr. Cagle is a considerable football team all by himself and the Army need nothing more than a Cagle team to appropriate the spoils.

Play-By-Play Huskers-Army

FIRST QUARTER.

Captain Howell of Nebraska won the toss and chose the south goal which gave Nebraska the advantage of a slight breeze.

Sloan kicked off thirty-five yards and it was returned seventeen yards. It was the Army's ball on the 35-yard line. On the first play Cagle shot a long forward pass, which was incomplete. A forward pass by Cagle gained thirty-six yards. O'Keefe took the pass. It was Army's ball on Nebraska's 31-yard line.

Cagle swung around Nebraska's right end for three yards. Broadstone made the tackle. Cagle's long forward pass to the goal line was grounded by Rowley. Another toss by Cagle to Nave was incomplete. The Army drew a five yard penalty for the second incomplete pass in four downs.

Another pass by Cagle was intercepted by Frahm. It was Nebraska's ball on its 23-yard line. Rowley faked a punt and Howell fumbled but recovered for a 12-yard loss.

Cagle Cuts Loose.

Rowley punted fifty-two yards, Cagle returning eight yards. Cagle broke through the Nebraska line for seventeen yards and a first down. Gibner was substituted for Nave in the Army backfield. The ball was exactly in the middle of the field. On a quick opening play Cagle broke through for fifteen yards.

It was Army's ball on the Nebraska 35-yard line. Army took out time. On a fake end run, a plunge by Murrell was stopped by Broadstone. A long forward pass by Cagle was incomplete. Cagle smashed the left side of the Nebraska line for eight yards. Howell's tackle dropped him.

Another long pass was incomplete, Frahm grounding the ball. The ball passed to Nebraska on downs on its 27-yard line.

middle west—Mihcigan's 10 to 7 vitcory over Iowa. The Wolverines with their weakest lineup in years startled the conference twice this season, the first being its 3 to 0 victory over Illinois.

At La Fayette, Purdue demonstrated its right to the "old oaken bucket" by trimming its ancient rival, Indiana, 14 to 0. The teams looked to be very evenly matched before the game but the Boilermakers unleashed an attack that ground the Hoosiers defense to bits.

Boston College Repeats.

Boston college kept its slate clean by smothering the Connecticut Aggies, 51 to 13. The Boston eleven has won all its eight games played and have a 6 to 0 victory over the Navy. They play their last game next Saturday with Holy Cross but are expected to have little trouble with the Worcester team.

Dartmouth went to Chicago for an inter-sectional game with Dick Hanley's Northwestern Wildcats. Northwestern was at the top of its game and the easterners never had a chance. The final score was 27 to 6.

Missouri came back strong after its defeat at the hands of New York university and humbled Kansas, 25 to 6.

Drake scored three touchdowns to whip Iowa State 18 to 0.

South Teams Idle.

The South saw little football Saturday, most of the larger teams resting in anticipation of hard Thanksgiving day battles.

Vanderbilt blanked Centre, 26 to 0 in the only major contest in that section of the country.

Michigan State won an intersectional game at East Lansing, ekeing a 7 to 0 decision over North Carolina State. The game was closely contested, both teams exhibiting great defensive power.

Georgetown defeated Fordham, 27 to 7, in the annual meeting of the two teams in New York. Georgetown was a heavy favorite in the pre-game betting and held the upper hand from the initial kick-off.

Brown defeated Rhode Island, 33 to 7, and Rutgers downed Swarthmore, 13 to 2. Holy Cross ran away from Providence to win 44 to 0.

Stanford Bears Even.

The Stanford university of California tie resulted in the bears tieing University of Southern California for the Pacific coast conference title. The University of California and the Southern institution earlier in the season had played to a nothing to nothing tie.

Prior to today's game the Bear goal line had been uncrossed by a college team during the present season.

A few post season gaems including Washington and Washington State at the carnival of roses contest at Pasadena and the Shrine benefit contest in San Francisco between all east and all west organizations remained on the Pacific coast program.

Roby High Scorer.

NELSON, Neb., Nov. 24—Nelson high gridsters trounced Harvard here Friday 25-0. Roby registered 19 of the total points and Zimmerman the other six.

Butte Beats Spencer.

BUTTE, Neb., Nov. 24—A large group of spectators witnessed Butte drub Spencer here Friday afternoon by a count of 6-0. Out of eight games played Butte now maintains a record of seven victories and one tie, the deeadlock being with Platte, S. D. If Butte can defeat Ewing here Thanksgiving day it will place them among the championship aggregations of northeast Nebraska.

Cozad Trims Holdrege.

COZAD, Neb., Nov. 24—Coach Clarence Raish's Cozad high gridsters defeated Holdrege here Friday by a 19-0 score before one of the largest crowds that ever assembled on the local gridiron. Dutton of Cozad was the stellar performer of the day, scoring two touchdowns and averaging 15 yards every time he carried the ball. Montgomery netted the other Cozad tally. Davidson starred on the line for the home team, while Eddy and Brewster performed to a good advantage for Holdrege.

Raish will take a squad of 22 players with him to Merna Thanksgiving day for the game with the Merna outfit. Nineteen have already made their letters, all but five of which will return to school next fall.

Comstock Blanks North Loup.

COMSTOCK, Neb. Nov. 24—Comstock won over North Loup here on Friday, 18-0. The brilliant attack of the Comstock outfit was the feature of the game, while in defense the home team allowed but three first downs to be made against them. Captain Conoway's return of a North Loup punt behind the interference of L. Klima, tackle, was the feature play of the game. Fuller, quarterback for North Loup, starred for the visitors. Comstock engages Sargent, an old athletic rival, in its Turkey day contest.

ST. PAUL WINS ANOTHER.

ST. PAUL, Neb., Nov. 24— Keith Davis of St. Paul was the outstanding figure in St. Paul's defeat of the Genoa Indians here Friday afternoon by a 32-10 count. Davis registered four of the team's touchdowns, counting one on a 75-yard return of a kickoff through the entire Indian team. Everett Davis and Art Lynch were outstanding performers in the line while Rave carried honors for the Braves.

SARGENT REGISTERS WIN.

LOUP CITY, Neb., Nov. 24—Sargent gridsters won a 12-0 victory over Loup City here Friday in the final quarter after playing three scoreless periods. Conrad scored the first touchdown on a forward pass play while Metcalf broke through center for 53 yards to net the second counter. Loup City never threatened the visitors' goal.

Phillies Poison To Chicago Cubs

Those awful Phillies, who lost 109 out of 152 games, in 1928, mean nothing in the lives of anyone but the Chicago Cubs. But to the Cubs they meant disaster, ruin, despair agony, terrific suffering and the loss of a pennant.

The Cards "murdered" the Phillies; the Giants did almost ditto. Yet whenever the Phillies found themselves opposed by the Cubs the very sight of a Chicago uniform inspired them to mighty endeavors. Take a look at the conduct of the Phillies against the Cards, Giants and Cubs:

Phillies Versus

	Won	Lost
Cardinals	2	20
Giants	5	17
Cubs	9	13

The Cards, as can be noted, scored 18 net victories over the Phillies, the Giants scored 12 and the Cubs could garner only four, showing that the St. Louis crowd outscored the Cubs by 14 games in play against the Phillies.

Inasmuch as the Cubs were beaten only four games for the pennant the fact is established that the Phillies in their comparative play against St. Louis and Chicago were the deciding factors.

Luke Urban and Tony Comerford, Boston college's greatest ends of all time, both are coaching—Urban at Canisius (Buffalo) and Comerford at Loyola (Baltimore).

PLACEKICK WINS FOR MICHIGAN U.

Iowa Hawkeyes On Short End 10-7 Score at Ann Arbor.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—In as bitter a struggle as ever was witnessed in this fair college town, Michigan, the underdog, rose to supreme heights to vanquish Coach Burt Ingwerson's Iowa eleven in the new stadium this afternoon, 10 to 7. It was one of those encounters in which the outcome was in doubt until the closing gun, the Hawkeyes especially threatening in the waning moments of play with a barrage of passes out to no avail.

With the defeat went all Hawkeye hopes of a share in the conference title. If Coach Ingwerson's boys had scored a victory, a share of the big ten championship would have been theirs. But Michigan was not to be denied, and climaxed a rather disastrous season with its crowning achievement.

Glasgow Breaks Loose.

The Wolverines looked due for their fifth defeat of the season at the end of the first quarter. Willis Glasgow, one of the fleetest half backs ever to invade Ann Arbor, tore off a brilliant 55 yard run in the first quarter, giving the Hawkeyes a 7 point margin when he booted the kick for the extra point.

Not to be outdone, Michigan took the offensive at the start of the second quarter, and reeled off several first downs in a row, to get the oval on the Hawkeye's 17 yard stripe. Standing on the 28 yard line, Gembis; "Dynamite Joe," as he is known hereabouts, placed one of his kicks squarely between the uprights; and the score was 7 to 3.

At half time, the ball was in midfield when the Hawks gained on a series of punt exchanges.

Launching another drive, the maize and blue ball runners reeled off five first downs in a row, and on a clever lateral pass from Truskowski to Dahlem, scored the winning points. Gembis again goaled, and Michigan was ahead 10 to 7.

CITY TITLE TO OMAHA TECH HI

Maroons Defeat Central In 12-0 Game; Purple Team Surprises.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 24—Technical high school won another city championship Saturday by trimming Central in their annual meeting, 12 to 0, on the Creighton stadium lot. A rejuvenated Purple aggregation made the Maroons put forth their very best to win the tussle and then it was a pair of "breaks" that gave Tech its opportun

LINCOLN STAR

Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads offered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisement.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

The individual advertisements under the following classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick references.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions: Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents. Cash rate per line per day:

1 Time	.12
3 Times	.10
7 Times	.09

These offices are open to receive advertisements from 7:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. daily. All advertisements received up until 12:30 p. m. will appear in all city editions the same day. All ads received between 12:30 p. m. and 10:00 p. m. will appear in all editions the following day.

RECORD SALES OF DE SOTO SIX

Distribution Is Without Parallel Declares C. W. Matheson.

Over 9,500 Machines Are Marketed in Month Of October .

In the first three months of its existence the Chrysler-built new DeSoto six has reached a production and distribution volume unparalleled by any other car during the same period in the entire history of the automobile industry, according to figures released at Detroit yesterday.

In October better than 9500 DeSoto sixes were produced and distributed. The figures for the three months since the car was announced last August, and for nine days production in July, are as follows:

July (last nine days)	744 cars
August	5055 cars
September	7836 cars
October	9562 cars

"No new car in the whole industry ever attained a production and sales volume equal to that of the DeSota six during the three months period immediately following its announcement," said C. W. Matheson, DeSota vice-president in charge of sales, commenting on the record of the newest Chrysler-built car.

"The rapid expansion of DeSoto six production and sales is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that not only is the DeSoto six an entirely new car, but the dealer organization which markets it is also entirely new. These two facts coupled with its tremendous success make the DeSoto six, without exaggeration, the sensation of the automobile world.

"The ever-increasing production volume of the DeSoto six has been gained by utilizing every recognized means to speed up production without sacrificing the high standards of manufacturing practice upon which the success of Chrysler-built automobiles is founded.

"Factory expansion has been under way ever since the announcement of the DeSoto six in order to provide for the tremendous demand for the car, a demand which we confidently foretold months ago. Millions of dollars have been expended on factory expansion during the past three months and still further expansion is now in progress.

"Nothing save widespread and outspoken public approval could elevate a motor car to the commanding position which the DeSoto six has attained in three months. Merit alone could have won such unparalleled popularity. The DeSoto six has set a record for all time and as it enters the fourth month of production it is supported by a host of owners who rate it supreme in motor car value."

Do not attempt any difficult feats in traffic if there is an excess of play in the steering wheel. The "fine"points of guiding the care are then almost impossible.

Navy Perfects Seaplanes.

Lee Schoenhair and John Guglimenti with their plane. Arrow points to carburetor funnel.

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—Now Uncle Sam's sturdy seaplanes can operate in the roughest water and in the heaviest weather.

A little "gadget" makes this possible.

The "gadget," invention of Commander Carl Smith, engineering officer at the naval air station here, is a booster cleaner. It removes dirt and throws it clear out of the engine.

And—it removes water completely from the air stream entering the carburetor.

In the past seaplanes, especially those on pontoons (as distinguished from the flying boats) have had great difficulty in getting off the water because of the heavy spray thrown against the carburetor and intake.

Now their troubles are solved.

Commander Smith's invention is a peculiar funnel which fits on the carburetor. Its mouth faces the propeller beneath the engine. The funnel contains a spiral rotary inductor, a pitot static eliminator and scavenger, and arresting features.

While it frees the engine of dirt and water ,it also saves about 8 per cent on fuel consumption and increases power at takeoff.

Navy officers here hail the invention as a boon to sea flying, especially for service planes that have to take off in all weather.

Lee Schoenhair, former army flier, and John Guglimenti, night airmail pilot, have been using one of the funnels on an Albatross monoplane in which they have planned an attempt at the world's endurance record.

Auto Notes

Easy on the Battery.

A conservation of battery power is made if the clutch pedal is pushed down to the floor when starting the engine. This relieves the starter and battery from the task of cranking against the clutch and gears in the transmission.

Tight Connections Save Anti-Freeze Solution.

Have every connection of the cooling system thoroughly tight when adding glycerine to the water as an anti-freeze agent in the radiator. New hose connections between the engine block and radiator are advised solution, this special loss of the solution, this special treatment is necessary.

An engine operates most efficiently when hot.

The air pressure of tires decreases when there is a drop in the temperature of the weather.

Always apply power and brakes gradually to avoid useless spinning or locking of wheels.

Sit low in the seat when driving over rough roads. This will prevent striking the top of the car.

When starting up a hill, it is a good plan to always notice which side of the road is the high side.

Always sound the horn twice at each dangerous intersection. The second signal is to make sure some other driver did not give a warning simultaneously with the first toot.

In cold weather a gasoline engine must be run slowly until it warms up to its normal temperature before it can develop its maximum efficiency.

SAME BUT DIFFERENT.

The Chicago White Sox have been using the same set of signs for the past 15 seasons, but they mean different things in different innings.

Georges Carpentier may not defend his French heavyweight title, which he has held since 1923 without a single title fight.

BOXING BACK ON SOUND FOOTING

That Is Scheme Proposed By Promoter Harmon of Windy City.

His Plan Is Found School For Development of Youngsters.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—Something must be done if boxing is to be perpetuated as an individual sport, not a crude imitation of wrestling, la savate and calf roping. Here in Chicago there's a man who is proceeding bravely as a rescue squad.

He is Paddy Harmon, chieftain of the Chicago Coliseum, who, becoming disgusted with the pathetic lack of boxing knowledge shown by the newcomers, has opened a school where old masters of ringdom will teach the fledglings how to shoot and, likewise, how to escape having their brains scrambled in every fistic outing.

Chain of Schools.

For many years it has been evident that what ringdom needs is a chain of schools where youngsters can be taught the technique of the game and who can be held in tow as scholars until such time as they no longer run the risk of being rendered punch drunk in their first few battles.

But Harmon is the pioneer in the establishment of a real school, with real teachers, where pupils will remain pupils and not run amuck in "pro" rings until they are fully schooled and officially graduated.

Boxing Stands Still.

"Boxing has not advanced with other sports in the last 20 years," stated Harmon, in an interview with Ed Geiger, Chicago sports editor. "Rather, it really has degenerated from what it was 20 years ago, because then the boxers never became 'pros' until they had been schooled, whereas, in the last generation, boys who hardly know how to hold up their hands have become what is called 'fighters.'

"Most of the boys in the ring today have never been taught the fundamentals of boxing. They go into a gym and see men slugging at each other, then they put on the gloves and the next week they are fighting. Knowing nothing else, they just take swings on the hit-or-miss principle and, having no defense, they are almost annihilated by the wild swings they run into.

Wind Up as "Cuckoos."

"The only result is that before they have really started on a career they have had their faces battered out of shape and generally they ned up as 'cuckoos.'

"You see mighty few good left-hand jabbers or punchers today and still fewer feinters. It's hit or miss and clinch nowadays. The passing of Benny Leonard saw the last of the old school of fighters.

"Stance, or how to stand, is another important factor to successful boxing. The average boy stands with his toes turned in instead of straight out and because of this he has a hook swing and cannot strike straight.

"In the old days a fighter stood firm on his left foot and on his toes on the right. He was able to sway his body with the punch or away from the punch. If hitting, the force of the body went with the wallops.

Little Variety Now.

"There is too much sameness in the ring today. You look at 10 bouts and all 10 are the same; no variety. In the old days if there were four bouts, the styles in all four varied. Today there is no rolling of the head to avoid a punch, no ducking, no slipping the face out of the way so if the blow must land instead of hitting the face it hits the side of the head. Men like Griffo, Abe Attell, Harry Forbes, Johnny Coulon, Packey McFarland, Eddie Santry and that grand old fighter, Harry Gilmore, knew their stuff.

"The boys of today start wrong and they never are corrected. They do not use their brains and eyes.

Hitters and Boxers.

"In the old days there were two kinds of fighters and only two. There were the hitters and the clever boxers. The boys of today do not get any encouragement. I mean the boys that are starting. They do not see the boxer with the type of the old school and naturally they cannot learn. Tommy White, who will be my boss teacher, is going to bring back the old style, the Jem Mace style, the style that was so prominent in the original Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe, Young Griffo, Joe Gans and the present Jack Dempsey, to say nothing of hundreds of others.

In Good Old Days.

"In the old days a fighter had to be drilled six months and then given the O. K. before he could step into a ring. In other words, he had to be 'there.' Today a week's work and they claim to be fighters. Boxing is a big institution and if it is to live, if we are to go ahead, we must develop the boys along correct lines.

"In taking boys for instruction we do not want the lad who has had years of experience. He is set in his ways, and you cannot change him. He got off to a wrong start, and the minute he gets stung by a punch he goes back to the wrong style.

"What we want is the youngster, the strong, intelligent and willing boy, not the boy to stand up and take punishment, for that is not the manly art of self defense, but the boy who will learn to protect himself from the attack and beat the other fellow. We are going to build scientific fighters—the boys of the old school."

Hit Pair Homers In Single Inning

In all baseball history only eight men were able to smack out two homers in one inning.

And the oddity is that five of them turned the trick in the third inning.

Of the eight men to achieve such fame, five are ancients and three are modern athletes, proving that the old-timers were pretty fair at walloping, even though they didn't have the "lively ball" of today to smile at. The records follow:

1880—Charles Jones (Braves vs. Buffalo,) eighth inning.

1890—Louis Bierbauer (Dodgers vs. Buffalo), third inning.

1890—Ed Cartwright (St. Louis A. A. vs. Philadelphia), third inning.

1894—Bob Lowe (Braves vs. Reds) third inning.

1894—Jake Stenzel (Pirates vs. Braves), third inning.

1922—Ken Williams (Browns vs. Senators), sixth inning.

1925—Hack Wilson (Giants vs. Phillies), third inning.

1928—Bill Regan (Red Sox vs. White Sox), fourth inning.

Lincoln People Plan Thanksgiving Dinners

Larger Affairs and No-Host Parties Will Be at Country Club and University Club, While Great Majority of Family Gatherings Are to Be After the Game Home Groups.

AND here we have another Thanksgiving day, the one day that gives November a look in so far as popularity is concerned. And what a day it bids fair to be, with any number of affairs scheduled at the Country clubs, and about two hundred reservations at the University club, to say nothing of those hundreds of persons who will dine at home.

The larger groups at the clubs are no-host affairs, and many of them are family parties, with guests from out of town scattered here and there, in this group and that.

This year, Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Chapin and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Talbot are joining in a Thanksgiving dinner at the club. Included in the list of guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Irving Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Talbot and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Kinder and family, Misses Anne and Melinda Stuart, Miss M. B. Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kimball, Mrs. W. R. Kimball and Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Rector of Omaha.

Family Group at Club.

With Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tilton at the club will be the family group including Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Seacrest, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seacrest and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Seacrest and family, and Mrs. Emma Seacrest.

At another no host table will be Mrs. W. A. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Woodward and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. George Burgert and family, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Jones and family, and Dr. and Mrs. Gibbons of Kearney.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollin H. George will have sixteen guests including Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith, Miss Elsie Hoppe, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Underhill, Prof. and Mrs. Paul Grummann, Miss Katherine Grummann, Burton Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnson and Augustus I. Hasskarl.

Many No-Host Groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whitten, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Whitten, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Varney, sr., and Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Varney, jr., of Broken Bow will be included in a no-host group.

Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall Miles Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rogers, and Mr. and Mrs. Burnworth Minnick will dine together at the club following the game.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Aitken and family, have reservations at the club with Mr. and Mrs. O. . Fee and family, for dinner following the game.

A no host group of sixteen will include Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Tupper, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Maly, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wishart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hellmers, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Straub, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McKelvie, Mr. and Mrs. John Strayer.

A foursome at the club will include Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grainger and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Chenoweth.

Many Dinners at Homes.

The dinners at home are equally large as those at the club. Mrs. E. L. Thornton, for instance, is having as her guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fawell, George Fawell, sr., Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Fawell and son from Hastings, and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Lyman and son, Edward.

Dining with Mr. and Mrs. Homer Honeywell following the game will be Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lau, and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Honeywell.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Branch will entertain the members of their family at a dinner Thanksgiving day, including Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Branch, Mrs. M. Olive Watson, Frank Watson and Mrs. Sarah Latta.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Flansburg and son, Charles, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Westervelt, are dining with Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Westervelt on Thanksgiving.

Mrs. T. J. Doyle will entertain at her home, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Doyle and son, Kathleen Doyle Halligan and daughter, Nancy. Mrs. Mary

Former Lincoln Woman Writes of Interesting Experiences In China

Mrs. Joel Pomerene, formerly Miss Agnes Bartlett, daughter of Mrs. Paul Bartlett of Lincoln, has been spending the past few years in China, where Lieutenant Pomerene is stationed. The forepart of October Mrs. Pomerene was the guest of Mrs. Newell, wife of Colonel Newell, who is in charge of American troops in Tientsin. In a very interesting letter to her mother, she describes her experience:

"Have been having a heavenly time doing Peking with Mrs. Newell—am staying in her Chinese house, and its court yards, surrounding one tremendous tree which is seven hundred years old, are alone worth the trip.

"These Chinese houses are most unique with their continuous links of rooms, each room facing one or several gardens. All real Chinese houses are one story high, and have paper windows (of course in the summer time one doesn't need glass in the windows, and in the winter, paper is warm, or at least adequate to keep in the heat). Mrs. Newell has modernized this "Humble Abode," by putting in five bath rooms and some extra fire places. One can't describe this court, it has to be felt and seen together.

An International Group.

"First! Suppose I should tell you about our party, starting from Tientsun. Mrs. Newell sent us up in her car, a large limousine. The group included Mrs. Calhoun, wife of the ex-United States minister to China; Adrian Davies, British vice president of the Chartered bank of India, Charlmagne La Conut, French army officer, one Chinese boy, and one negro chauffeur. Now don't you think I was in an international group? We joked enroute as to which consul would protect us if we met any Chinese troops—but all went well.

"We went out to the western hills yesterday afternoon, climbed to Tiger Head to see the sun set, and then came down and stayed all night in a real Chinese temple that had two lovely shrines, and was attended by a priest who burns Joss and Kotons. Last night it was mournful to hear the temple bells tolling. We were in sight of the Marco Polo's bridge in the distance. So few people have access to these temples. Minister McGury was in the one below us, and in the one above, we had dinner with an American artist, Charles Child.

"We have been thrilled by the forbidden city (all of it, the Jade Buddha, the summer palace and so forth, in fact we did all of the regular sight seeing acts, but it has been wonderful to have Mrs. Newell with all of her China experience and enthusiasm to direct and inform us.

Visited British Legation.

"We went up on the wall to get a view of the city, and it is a superb sight to see the golden symmetrical roofs dotted here and there by a tomb, and the blue hills in the background.

"We went to the British legation

Many Groups Plan Turkey Day Dinners

The fatted turkey is fast losing any prospect for liberty and life with the busy planning of big dinners both before and after the football game in Lincoln on Thanksgiving day. The bigger and better turkeys are beginning to shiver in their feathered boots and their gobbling is becoming more clamorous concerning their chances of being "picked." "It pays to be thin" is the realization of every healthy turkey who has neglected to count his calories every day. This Thanksgiving day promises to be better than all others. Friends, kin, a football game and a banquet spread. What sounds more jolly?

Entertaining at dinner following the game will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spangler who will entertain Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Searle, sr., and daughter, Helen of Council Bluffs, also Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Spangler and little son, Searle, of Lincoln, and Joe Spangler.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Troup are planning a family dinner after the game. Those to be in the party will be Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Graves, Dr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Welch, Jane, John, Josephine and Jimmie Welch, Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Hanson and daughter, Mary Adelaide.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Leverton will entertain with dinner at their home, 211 South Twenty-eighth street, for Mr. and Mrs. George Baggaley and son, Thad, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and son, Lloyd, of Deadwood and Miss Ruth Leverton of Scotia who is teaching there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hefty of 1641 Q street plan a dinner party after the game for Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Nichols of Detroit, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Hefty of Omaha and Harris Liiga of Kearney. Mr. Nichols of Detroit is general agent for the foreign freight department of the Canadian Pacific aRilway.

Three Lincoln Couples Observing Wedding Days Together for 25th Time

Today marks the forty-fifth wedding anniversary for Judge and Mrs. W. E. Stewart, the fortieth anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Selleck and the thirtieth for Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Barkley.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. and Mrs. Selleck invited Mr. and Mrs Barkley and Judge and Mrs. Stewart to celebrate with them their fifteenth anniversary. At the dinner it was discovered that the wedding anniversary of all three couples came in Thanksgiving week, so for the last twenty-five years these three families have celebrated together at a family dinner. In years past, the children and grand children have been present.

Today the three couples are together for their twenty-fifth dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Selleck. None of the children or grandchildren is in Lincoln today. This marks the ending of these anniversary dinners. All feel that an unbroken record of twenty-five years had best be closed before a break comes, so while the families will probably meet together often, the anniversary dinner will not be continued.

Mrs. W. A. Selleck returned Saturday morning from a month's visit at Washington, D. C. where she visited her daughter, Mrs. George E. Clark.

Lincoln A. A. U. W. Forms Six Round Table Groups

Members of University Women's Association Organized for Study of Short Story, International Relations and the Elementary and Pre-School Child.

The A. A. U. W. round tables which have been getting under way during the last week have been the center of considerable interest. They have been organized under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Forsyth, and include approximately one hundred association members. Aside from the six Lincoln groups—two on the short story, two on international relations, one on the elementary and one on the pre-school child, an additional round table has been organized at Crete, under the leadership of Miss Bernadine Donaldson, dean of women at Doane college, for the study of international relations.

The orgaization of these groups received particular emphasis at the last monthly meeting of the association, when the subject was introduced by Mrs. Vance Traphagen, president, and Mrs. Forsyth, who has had complete charge of the arrangements

Perhaps the largest of the groups are the two literaure round tables, both of which are studying the short story under the leadership of Miss Thelma Sealock. She plans

Out-of-Town Guests Feted At Dinners

Lila Perry Announces Engagement When Mothers Entertain Thirty-Six Thursday.

Mrs. J. G. Ray of Rock Island, Ill., who came Thursday morning has been a feted guest during her short visit. Saturday evening, Mrs. W. S. Cohcrane entertained at a family dinner at her home, 2801 Van Dorn street, with Mr. and Mrs. Ray as honor guests. Mrs. Ray was honoree Saturday at luncheon at Hotel Cornhusker, for which Mrs. R. H. George was hostess. A mound of roses centered the table. The afternoon hours were passed informally. Mrs. Reuben Walt was Mrs. Ray's hostess Friday for luncheon at the University club. Mr. and Mrs. Ray and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blanchard are spending Sunday in Geneva, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Britton. The guests return to their home in Rock Island this evening.

Thirty-Six at Dinner.

Mrs. E. B. Perry entertained thirty-six guests at dinner Thursday evening, honoring her daughter, Lila Fowler Perry, whose engagement to Wilson M. Watkins of Wichita, Kas., was announced. The tables were arranged in the form of a T, with baskets of red and white roses at the ends. The table was centered with a miniature truck, driven by a small groom, and filled with red and white mints. Tiny trucks served as place cards. A bank of smilax, with red and white ribbons running to each cover, concealed little blue birds, which carried the announcement. Following the dinner, Miss Perry particularly to emphasize the various types of present day short stories, through the study of current magazines and standards collections. As a background for this, she is first presenting a brief outline of the development of the short story, together with group discussion of outstanding examples of different types of narrative in various periods, with especial emphasis on structure and technique.

LINCOLN PEOPLE PLAN DINNERS ON THANKSGIVING DAY

Mrs. Aldrich To Talk.

The morning literature group, of which Mrs. H. W. Orr is vice-chairman, will meet next Tuesday morning with Mrs. Will French, 3050 Puritan street. This meeting will be of particular interest, since Mrs. Bess Streeter Aldrich, well-known author, will address the members explaining the suggestions which have led to the development of her plots.

The evening group, of which Miss Bess Bowen is vicechairman, held its second meeting at the home of Miss Gladys Dana, 1955 Washington street Thursday evening. It will meet again December 6, at the home of Miss Marjorie Barstow. Miss Sealock, the leader of both of these groups, has recently had an unusual distinction, in that her story, "Requittal," appears in the well-known O'Brien collection of the best short stories of the year, which has just appeared.

The international relations groups are following out a theme which has already received considerable emphasis in the general meetings of the A. A. U. W. this year. The morning group, under the leadership of Mrs. E. L. Hinman, is following the general outline sent out by the national association, taking as a main topic, "Danger Spots in Europe." It will next meet at the home of Mrs. M. J. Carns, 1734 South Seventeenth street, Friday, November 30, at 10 o'clock.

Dr. Pfeiffer Is Leader.

The evening group will make an intensive study of the multilateral treaties. Its members are considering both the preliminary steps leading up to the recent peace pact, and the pact itself. Dr. Laura Pfeiffer, the leader of this group, is a professor of history at the University of Nebraska, and has studied extensively in this country and in Europe. The next meeting of this group will be Monday, December 3, at the home of Mrs. Maurice Deutsch, 2717 Stratford street.

Miss Clara Slade has charge of the two education groups, one of which studies the pre-school child, the other the elementary school child. The former is beginning with a discussion of heredity and environment. The meetings are to be held every other Friday, the next ttobe November 30, at 3:30 at the home of Mrs. Everett Angle, 2022 South Twenty-third. The latter group is following the national A. A. U. W. outline on the elementary school child. It was organized Friday at the home of Mrs. I. M. Raymond, 2720 South Twenty-fourth street.

Many Dances Are Held By Fraternities

Theta Chi and Sigma Chi Hosts Past Week-end At Fall Parties.

Unusually "peppy" fraternity parties this week-end give a hint of the celebrating which will enliven the next few days, for Nebraska co-eds and new students.

About a hundred couples danced at the Sigma Chi fall party Friday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Blue and gold decorations made a lovely background for the merrymakers. Chaperones were Mrs. Frank Hawley, the Sigma Chi house mother, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Fee, Colonel and Mrs. F. F. Jewett, and Captain and Mrs. H. Y. Lyons. Punch and wafers were served during the evening.

THETA CHI PARTY

Amid a riot of red and white balloons Theta Chi fraternity entertained two hundred couples at a fall party Saturday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Colonel and Mrs. C. J. Frankforter, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Decker, and Mrs. Emma Knapp, house mother, were chaperones for the affair.

ACACIA PARTY SATURDAY

Acacia fraternity members were hosts Saturday evening for twenty-six couples at a dance at the chapter house. After an evening of dancing they went to a down town restaurant for refreshments. Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wilcox and Mrs. W. A. Brown, the house mother.

FARM HOUSE DANCE

Orange, yellow and red crepe paper made a snappy fall background for the Farm House dance at the chater house Saturday evening. Thirty-eight couples attended he party which was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Kern and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Frerichs. Punch was served to the dancers during the evening.

PALLADIANS HOLD BANQUET

"Voyage of the Good Ship Palladian" was the theme of the toast program at the Palladian dinner Friday evening in the Garden room of the Lincoln hotel. T. F. A. Williams was the pilot who introduced the speakers. Those giving toasts were: Captain—"What Makes a Successful Voyage" by Dale Weese; First Mate—"Preparations for the Voyage" by Vearle Russnogle; Second Mate — "Cooperation Working Together" by Merrill Flood; Steward—"Fellowship, Playing Together" by Mary Kinney; Navigator—"Following the Traditions of Pal" by Katherine Kile; Deck Hand—to hear their renowned fife and drum corps beat retreat. Sir Miles Lampson stood next to us. We had tea with the noted Lady Breeden (her place has forty-four rooms and thirteen court yards). She is the mother of Madame Ladrue, and writes under the name of Juliet Breeden. You must read some of her Chinese books.

"Danced at the Hotel de Peking, and met a Mrs. Hutchins, wife of a United States naval officer. She is a sister of Margaret Anglin, the actress, and her daughter just caused so much publicity by eloping with an Hawaiian prince.

"This afternoon we are going to a bazaar that is only open twice a year, Chinese New Year, and the Autumn Festival, this being the latter. People from all over the province come in and sell valuables in order to get money to pay their debts. All debts must be paid by this time. Then we will go to Confucius temple, and the Altar of Heaven."

Parties Held on Birthdays

Left: Olive Ione Helm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Helm, 1616 South Twelfth street, celebrated her ninth birthday November 19. Nine little friends were invited to a surprise party, and the time was spent with games after which refreshments were served.

Flood Tells Women of Cycling Across Desert

Mrs. H. H. Wheeler Explains Conditions in Europe Following War and Says Multi-lateral Pact One of Greatest Forward Steps for Peace; Axis Club Has Large Number of Guests.

The regular meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club was held at the club rooms with Miss Florence Hamm in charge, assisted by Miss Mae Malsbury, Miss Gertrude Auman, and Dr. Ruth A. Warner. Miss Ella Hans, assisted by Miss Alvina Maahs, Mrs Laura Bridenthal and Miss Josephine Gaede, superintended decorations and service. Large yellow "mums" supporting yellow tapers lighced the tables. An electric fruit basket, bridge and floor lamps were scattered about the rooms.

A group of violin numbers were given by Bertram Ellsworth, accompanied on the piano by Miss Kent, and responded to an encore with "Aloha.

Francis Flood Speaker.

Francis Flood, who with James Wilson made a trip around the world on a motorcycle during the past year, gave a description of their journey, illustrated with slides made from pictures of their own taking. He described their start from University Place, with a one-gallon gasoline can as a suit case and their only bagage shaving utensils, fishing tackle, and other small necessities. Thus they reached New York, where they took passage on a small freighter bound for the west coast of Africa. Their first stop was at the Azores, where they were advised by English army officers not to attempt to cross the desert and jungle, where thousands of miles have never been traversed by any white man, nor any wheeled vehicle, and beyond the border of which the land will probably never be penetrated, the swamp and jungle and bush being almost impenetrable. However, they purchased two motorcycles, which they named "Routh" and "Tumble," and after learning to ride, crossed Africa to the Dead Sea, then crossed the Sahara desert, and traversed the Nile valley. Here, Mr. Flood said, all freight traffic goes on the head and all passenger traffic on the hoof.

Describes Camel.

The cycles at times were carted on the backs of camels. After riding a camel for three days, they visited Kartoum, where is the most perfect irrigation system in the world. The motorcycles were sold when they came into Italy. The found India the most beautiful country in the world, with its forty-six million people living in filth, misery and ignorance, with little prospect of improvement. In Calcutta one-fifth of the entire population is beggars. They spent last Christmas eve in Zinder. They floated down the Ganges river 150 miles, visited northern India, Siam, Burmah and toog a Norwegian freight boat to Hongkong, where Wilson was stricken with malaria and sailed for Seattle and home

Japanese Postage Stamp.

Mrs. Flood joined her husband in Honolulu, where they spent a month as their wedding anniversary celebration. Mr. Flood reached Honolulu with a lone Japanese postage stamp, and a debt of $30, liquidated when he met his wife. Another similar trip, Mr. Flood said, would not be taken on motorcycles. They loved "not home less, but romance more," but had had enough.

The Near East relief luncheon at the chamber of commerce was attended by Mrs. Margaret Carns, Miss Lulu Horne, Miss Narcissa Snell, Mrs. A. F. Berggren and Miss Frances Drake, members of the Business and Professional Women's club.

The Business and Professional Women's club at Beatrice invited the Lincoln club to attend a musical comedy given at Beatrice by members of the club on Thursday evening.

The Lincoln club held a successful benefit bridge at the Cornhusker hotel Friday evening. A prize was given at each table, and a door prize in addition.

Mrs. Wheeler Speaks.

Axis club met at the Y. W. C. A. club rooms Tuesday for evening dinner. Mrs. H. H. Wheeler, honorary member of Axis, talked on international affairs. She used a large wall map, pointing out the changes in the boundary lines of Europe since the war ,and told of the financial situation in connection with reparations. She explained the atitude of European countries toward the prosperity of the United States. Mrs. Wheeler said that the Kellog peace pact and the recent conferences on the cause and cure of war, could not help but be the largest factors the world has ever known toward the prevention of war.

Harold Hollingsworth gave several songs, "The Blind Ploughman" and "Of Thee I'm Thinking, Marguarita," followed by an Irish song as an encore.

Miss Leona McCallum, legislative chairman, reported that the recent check up on votes cast by club members showed that nearly every member had voted November 6.

Guests introduced were Misses Viola Swanson and Minne Chrestensen, with Miss Eva Pierce. Mrs. Ruth Hester presented Mrs. Helen Weider and Miss Genevieve Cook. Miss Geneva Wheeler's guest was Miss Gladys Lux, and Miss Nellie Dickman presented Miss Ida Wilson, president of the Flagstaff, Ariz., Business and Professional Women's club. Miss Wilson told the club of the activities at Flagstff, and recalled that the president's special train went through to the Oakland, Cal. convention a year ago, the Flagstaff members dressed up in true western style and boarded the train at 4 a. m. to greet the visitors. Several Axis members were aboard the train and remembered the thrill of an early morning hold-up.

Forty-Niners Celebrate.

Miss Wilson also told of an interesting occasion when the Flagstaff club participated in an 1849 celebration. The men were required to grow beards from May 1st to the Fourth of July so as to look like Forty-Niners, and the business women, to portray the occupations of women of that day, marched in the parade pushing baby carts. Miss Wilson is city librarian at Flagstaff, and is in Lincoln attending the university taking special library work. After the meeting the club adjourned to the gymnasium where dancing was enjoyed under the leadership of Miss Mildred Bryan.

Miss Antonia Stara, a former Axis member and a former teacher in the Lincoln schools, is now connected with the public schools of Chicago.

A group of Axis members attended the bridge part yat the Cornhusker Friday night given by the Business and Professional Women's club.

Miss Ida Hanson, president of the Business and Professional Women's club of Osceola, came to Lincoln Saturday, and accompanied Miss Grace Trott to Omaha, where tney attended the state board meeting. Miss Fay Sherwin, president of Axis club and Miss Merle Lawder, chairman of the magazine committee of the Nebraska Federation, also attended.

Havelock Notes.

Helen Lindekin, former Havelock girl, appeared last week at the Lincoln theatre with the Rainbow Revelries.

Mrs. Mary Conway and Mrs. N. Zarvis spent Wednesday in Council Bluffs with Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, former Havelock girl.

Frank Pickard went to Kansas City Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Marshall spent the weekend in Fremont.

Mrs. N. F. Chancy of Falls City spent the week-end here with her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Hulbert.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cox Saturday night at the Lincoln general hospital.

Let's Lose 20 lbs. Apiece

Excess fat is a blight to men as well as women. It means more than loss of youth and beauty. It means less health and vigor. So men who like slender women should keep normal figures themselves.

The way is easy. Starvation and overexertion are not advised today. Science has found a great cause of excess fat in a deficient gland. The modern method, used by physicians the world over, is to combat that cause.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, perfected by a famous medical laboratory. People have used them for over 20 years—millions of boxes of them. The results are seen in every circle. Slender figures now prevail. Mothers look like daughters.

Users of Marmola told others the results—the loss in weight, the gain in health and vigor. Thus the use has spread, until these tablets have become the greatest factor used in fighting fat.

Don't stay over-fat, when so many people all about you know a way to end it. The way is easy and pleasant. The results are delightful. Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reason for each good effect. You will know exactly why the weight comes down and the health improves.

Don't delay. Excess fat is a blight you must correct to live life to the full. Start now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

News of the Clubs

A group of state and local officers of the Parent-Teach er association, who reside in Lincoln.

Child's Greatest Need Unity of Home, School

Nebraska P. T. A. Makes Rapid Growth In Development of Partnership Between Parent, Teacher and Community for Benefit of Pupils, Welfare Work Is Feature of Educational Program.

Before 1922 there were many Mothers' clubs and Patrons' associations in Nebraska but no central organization until the spring of 1922 when Mrs. F. W. Carberry, field secretary of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association, spent several months in the state. Her visit resulted in the state Parent-Teacher association with Mrs. George H. Wentz, president.

A state convention was held in May and an annual meeting has been held every year since.

Mrs. Wentz was a loyal worker and local units were formed rapidly. Meetings of health and welfare workers in rural and urban districts were the order. In fact all sorts of training classes met regularly for study and discussion.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Wentz, the State Bulletin became a reality in 1924 and is still functioning with Mrs. R. A. Harrison as editor.

The publicity department was born in January, 1925, with Mrs. Mark Pierce, chairman. Mrs. Pierce is still at the helm, as January 1929 draws near.

Mrs. Say President.

Mrs. Wentz was followed by Mrs. W. W. Day as president in 1926. She was reelected for 1928-1929.

Nebraska congress has been fortunate in choosing leaders, as its presidents have been women of exceptional ability and because of their fine leadership the workers have all been the best.

The Lincoln council, of which Mrs. C. M. Duff is president, is composed of adelegate from each building and as many more as care to attend. At the meeting in November, sixty were present.

The recreation work in Lincoln has speeded up because of the arduous work by Mrs. Fred Easterday, P. T. A. chairman, in cooperation with the schools. Mrs. Day and all others connected with the work were pleased with the round-up in the state last summer. The parents responded in a fine way and many children were examined. As a result parents are beginning to see the worth of the clinics and endeavor to follow the recommendations of the examiners. They save many children from long suffering. Mrs. George H. Buer was in charge of the work.

Study Program Making.

This year a school for studying the best ways of preparing programs has been added. Texts and leaflets have been sent to the city council and at each meeting these may be studied for an hour. Seventy-five attended the first meeting. In the early spring a regular school will be in session for three days to study the work from the National congress down to the individual.

A Founders' Day also will be an event of the springtime; Mrs Wentz will have charge.

The district chairmen met in convention at the same time as the educational districts and the state convention will be held in Hastings next October.

Some one has written: "If you want a child to be successful in life, give him splendid he lth, sanity of vision, capacity for work.

Children's Greatest Need

"You've all heard of the wonderful one hoss shay,
That was built in such a logical way,
It ran for a hundred years to a day,
And then, of a sudden, it—ah, but stay—"
"I'll tell you a tale of the P. T. A.
"And the work it's been doing for many a day.
"Helping the children on every hand,
Training the parents to understand.
"Have you ever heard of that, I say?
"Now the women who founded this P. T. A.
"With a vision that reached to a far distant day,
"Built it stronger still than the one hoss shay,
It could go on forever—the Congress way.
"For each year as it comes, brings us parents new,
And that means thousands of children, too;
But training a child today you know,
Is not what it was in the long ago,
So, parents and teachers need more education,
To keep them abreast of this new generation.
"Nineteen twenty-five, and the P. T. A.
Was strong and sound in every way;
New members were coming in each day;
That was the year we all went down
For the big celebration in Omaha town.
"Past presidents came from far and near,
And each told of the work of a former year;
"How the home and school needed cooperation,
How parents lacked interest in school education;
How teachers were doubtful, the plan wasn't clear,
And they wondered if parents would interfere.
"But now, what a difference, for most of them say
That a school's out of date where there's no P. T. A.
"But what was the fate of the one hoss shay?
"You've forgotten to tell us that, you say.
Well, it jogged along, year after year,
Without ever adding a modern idea;
Colts became horses, heads turned gray,
Children and grandchildren passed away,
But nothing changed in the one hoss shay.
"Then exactly a hundred years to a day,
It went to pieces, and there it lay.
"The poor old shay, in a heap or a mound.
As if it had been to the mill and ground
You see of course, if you're not a dunce,
Why it went to pieces, all at once,
All at once, and nothing first,
Just as bubbles do, when they burst."
"Twenty-six, seven, eight, and Convention day,
"All's well with our special, the P. T. A.
"For many years it has gone on it's way,
Without even a flavor of mild decay.
"There couldn't be, for the Congress art,
Has made it so strong in every part,
There wasn't a chance for such things to start,
For every year, some new interest is found,
And that keeps the Congress wheels turning around;
The home and the school have a closer relation,
New parents and children bring new inspiration.
"Now, is you've had fears, let this put them to rout—
It cannot break down, and it will not wear out.
"End of the tale of the one hoss shay—
But for us, just the close of a glorious day,
For in sunshine or shadow, at work or at play
Your love and your loyalty brighten the way.
"And, life has been fuller, and vision more true
Because we have travelled this highway with you.
"Then, here's to each member, forever and aye
Love bless you, joy crown you, long live P. T. A."

Bible Group Hears Lecture, and Plans Completed for Bazaar by Physical Education Section. College View School Children Give Program at Orthopedic Hospital.

Forty-five attended the meeting of the Bible department of the Woman's club at the Y. W. C. A., Tuesday. Preceding the lecture Mrs. C. DeVriendt told of the bazaar plans.

The lecture by Prof. E. R. Lewis was on the teaching of Jesus and the training of the twelve. He showed how Jesus made use of brief, pithy sayings similar in form to the wisdom literature of the Old Testament. "He had great earnestness, idealism and spiritualism in his teaching, the Sermon on the Mount being a fine example of this," he said.

"The Year of Opposition" will be the lecture topic for the next Tuesday.

Attendants Appointed.

The physical education department of the Woman's club met Thursday morn ing at the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium. Plans were completed for the all-club bazaar, in December and the following committees for decorations, flowers and booth attendants were appointed:

Mrs. O. K. Perrin, Chairman pro. com. — Mrs. C. E. Abbott, member pro. com. — Mrs. George Coryell, Pres. Hall in the Grove — Mrs. C. O. Morgan, Sec. Hall in the Grove

A few of the officers and committee members of Hall In The Grove.

Modern Methods Step In for Hall In the Grove

One of Earliest Cultural Societies Comes to Parting of Ways and Old Methods of Study Dropped for the New Order. Change Is Made With Accompanying Growth in Membership.

Apparently, Hall In the Grove has come to the parting of the ways. In the years that have come and gone since the founding of the organization almost continuously a studied sameness has prevailed in the programs. Culture and uplift, as at present, has always prevailed. Now, however, the old order passeth and the new steps in, the majority of the membership preferring the more modern methods and programs, ways of handling the lessons. It fits in better with the present day, it is believed.

The new way is hailed with enthusiasm; it is accepted, encouraged and used, though it is with a feeling of regret that the old is laid aside, even if the new is preferred. As the little girl clings to her first rag doll, no matter if there is a beautiful bisque baby to take the place of the soiled, dilapidated old one, so does Hall in the Grove long for the old while accepting the new. But it must change to keep abreast of the times.

Reorganize Lessons.

Following this line of thought the program committee reorganized the lessons and now the members meet once a month or once in two months. The programs are both enlightening and cultural, with one topic instead of many for discussion. The work is thoroughly done and the preparation is not exacting.

The meeting opens with luncheon where good fellowship reigns, and joy and gladness are supreme. The problem to be discussed may be knotty but none are abashed; laughter and toasting are heard before attacking the brainy part of the day's business.

One evening, back in the fall of 1888, nearly 125 men and women, among them some of the most prominent people of the city, met at the old Commercial hotel. These folks had been meeting four years studying the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific reading course of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific society, headed by Dr. Vincent.

On the Charter List.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Imhoff were the host and hostess at the meeting. Beside these two the company included Mrs. Eva Calvert, Mrs. E. P. Rollins, Miss Phoebe Elliott, Mrs. Thomas Sewell, Mrs. Isaac Johnson, Mrs. M. D. Welch, Mrs. G. B. Chapman, Mrs. H. M. Bushnell, Mrs. W. J. Bryan, Mrs. M. H. Garten, Mrs. C. L. Hall, Mrs. Mary Marley, Mrs. A. M. Davis, Miss Mary Stevens, Mrs. T. H. Leavitt, Mrs. D. L. Anderson, Theodore Stevens, W. E. Hardy, H. M. Bushnell, W. J. Bryan, Judge C. L. Hall, Dr. F. S. Stein, A. L. Metcalf, Frank Smith, James Aitken.

The previous summer these people had received their diplomas as graduates of the C. L. S. C. and now they are gathered to complete the organization which Dr. Vincent planned as a graduate course to the other, to be called Hall In The Grove. The Lincoln Chautauqua circle had graduated twenty-five members to the circle, making that number of charter members.

Officers were elected and Mrs. M. H. Garten, who is still active in the organization, was chosen secretary. Meetings were held in the state capitol and some of the addresses by Mr. Bryan are still frequently recalled. Oftentimes the capacity of the room was taxed to accommodate the attendance.

In 1900 the circle started meeting in the afternoon and the men withdrew.

Bishop Vincent said the Hall In The Grove was commissioned to keep the Chautauqua spirt and associations alive and greet new members each year, "Not for self but for all."

For many years there was but one Chautauqua circle in Lincoln but as time went on the organization grew, and others took up the work. At the present time the Hellenic, Vincent, Victorian and Columbian are graduate circles; the Alexandrian, Emerson, Alethean and Philomethean are still regular circles.

They Are the Same.

The graduate circles are, in reality, the same as the Hall in the Grove, meeting less often than the others and having no fixed study schedule. They admit only members who are graduates of the C. L. S. C.

This last summer Hellenic circle was organized for beginners.

The present officers are:

Mrs. George Coryell, president.

Mrs. M. H. Garten, first vice president.

Mrs. R. J. Slater, second vice president.

Mrs. C. O. Morgan, secretary.

Mrs. A. B. Cole, treasurer.

Program committee, Mrs. Otto K.

and a wholesome attitude toward life. Such work is true education —a joint partnership of the home, school, and community—a training not of the mind alone, but of every activity of the child. To realize this ideal we have found that the school cannot operate alone, unrelated to th home from which th child comes, or the community into which the child must fit himself in later life. There must be a cooperation or partnership of home, school, and community and to meet this need no organization can function better than the parent-teacher association."

Asking for Information About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. GLADYS ROGERS
Route 5, Grand Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl about 14 years old, when I was just entering womanhood. Then after I married, I took more of it. During the time before my baby was born this medicine gave me splendid results. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation also and recommend these medicines to my friends and will answer letters asking about them."—Mrs. Gladys Rogers, Route 5, Grand Avenue, Atlanta, Georgia.

A Lot Better By Taking It

Trafford, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I could not eat a thing. I had no appetite whatever and never felt good. I was talking to my friend one day and she passed the remark of how thin I was getting since I got married and I told her my trouble and she advised me to take the Vegetable Compound. I feel a lot better now since I have been taking it regularly and I can eat most anything. I recommend your medicine to anyone who tells me of troubles like my own, for I know what it has done for me. I have also used your Sanative Wash. I am willing to answer women if they ask about the medicine."—Mrs. E. Gelatic, Box 502, Traffo Pa

Better Homes Chairman

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., Nov. 24—Mrs. B. G. Miller of Crete has again been appointed local chairman for Better Homes in America for 1929. Mrs. Miller was very active in her work last year, the Crete exhibit of Better Homes being the foremost one in the state. It called forth much favorable comment from the thousands of people visiting the state fair. Miss Mary Ellen Brown, state chairman for Better Homes, complimented Mrs. Miller very highly for what she had accomplished in her one year of work.

Ball Opens Season At University

Affair Will Be Military But Is to Have a Feminine Background.

It is to be a military ball, but it is to have its feminine background. All the coeds in the halls of learning are a-flutter and a-gog over this brilliant event, which formally opens the social season at the university, because they are to stand shoulder to shoulder—sixteen of them that is—with the stalwart captains and care not if their period frocks are mixed with a shining sword or two.

The sponsors for the 1928 Military ball are Misses Gretchen Fee, Lincoln, Delta Delta Delta; Betty Campbell, Corning, Ia., Kappa Kappa Gamma; Ruth E. Beck, Broken Bow, Kappa Alpha Theta; Pauline Bilon, Columbus, Alpha Phi; Mary Dolan, Lincoln, Catherine Clapp, Lincoln, Kappa Alpha Theta; Thyra Johnson, Lincoln, Betty Thornton, Lincoln, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Lorraine Gamble, Knoxville, Ia., Delta Gamma; Eunice F. Gaskill, Nebraska City, Alpha Omicron Pi; Frances Farrens, Lincoln, Pi Beta Phi; Faye Williams, Omaha, Alpha Omicron Pi, Charlotte Joyce, Weeping Water, Mary Beard, Lincoln, Gamma Phi Beta; Hazel Carper, Nehawka, Chi Omega; Mary Corcoran, Los Angeles, Cal., Alpha Delta Pi.

Snay, and Captain and Mrs. H. Y. Lyons.

Thanksgiving Party.

Elaborate decorations are being planned by Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity for its fall party Thursday evening at the Lincoln hotel. One hundred and seventy-five couples are expected to attend this dance. Couples who will chaperone this party are Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Dool, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Grone, and Mr. and Mrs Victor Z. Brink.

Plan House Party.

Zeta Beta Tau fraternity will entertain thirty couples at a dance at the chapter house Wednesday evening. Chaperones will be Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Katskee, and Dr. and Mrs. Aaron S. Speier.

Havelock Notes.

H. N. Densmore has been transferred from here to Gibbon, where he will be storekeeper for the Burlington. He will move his family there next week.

The W. B. A.'s met Wednesday afternoon at the Odd Fellows' hall. Mrs. Hal Smith was hostess.

Rev. E. B. Price and Mrs. Price of Republican City, were guests of Mrs. S. D. Smith and family Monday evening.

Miss Edna Frick returned from Denver Saturday and will spent the winter here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Frick.

Mrs. W. M. Rogers, of Casper, Wyo., is here with her daughter, Mrs. Louise Kreiger. She accompanied the body of her husband, which was brought here for interment. Mr. and Mrs. Kreiger were former Havelock residents.

Mrs. T. D. Condon entertained the Idle Hour bridge club Thursday afternoon at her home, 116 J street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ashman had as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hannah and Mrs. Tom Ashman of Des Moines.

Mrs. Frank Boehme left Tuesday for Campbell, Calif., where she will spend the winter with her daughter.

Miss Laverne Morgan entertained the Tri Merry Makers Thursday evening at her home, 1316 L street. A two-course luncheon was served after an evening of bridge.

Gay Parties Planned By Four Clubs

Mafa, Comus, Cotillion and Tuesday Night Groups To Give Dances.

Crowded into a week of festivities, dancing club parties are by no means unimportant and plans for them promise unusually gay affairs.

Cornstalks in the center of the floor, pumpkins, squashes, and turkeys will give a real Thanksgiving air to the Mafa club party Monday evening at the Rosewilde party house. Gobblers patterned in ice cream will be served for refreshments.

Fifty-five couples are expected to attend this dance. There will be three favor numbers. Those in charge of the party are: Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Krause, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Luedke, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wadlow, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Teal, Mr. and Mrs. L C Hanson, Mr and Mrs. M. A. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Easton, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beck, and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Titler.

COMUS DANCE WEDNESDAY

Thanksgiving in tone will be the dance of the Comus club Wednesday evening at the Lincoln hotel. After the dancing which will include two favor dances a lunch will be served. Thirty-five couples are planning to attend the party. Those who will be hosts and hostesses are, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sick, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hickman, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Burke.

PLAN COTILLION PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred DuTeau will lead the Cotillion party Wednesday evening at the Country club. The dance will be in the nature of a Thanksgiving party.

DINNER DANCE PLANNED

Programs of Social Clubs Diversified

Hostess at One Party Pours Tea; Luncheons Are Popular and Bridge and Theater Favored.

Over in Russia people who would a-teaing-go, would consume from ten to eighteen glasses, not dainty little thimblesful that are served at American teas, but tall plump glasses. Visitors in Russia say people there would simply pine away if their tea were taken away from them. They kee ptheir Russian samovars burning all day long, in or outside the house, and when they get thirsty they trip over to the samovar and pour themselves a cup of tea. When their friends come in about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon they must be sociable and offer them at least six or seven glasses of tea and before it is all over with the average individual may have accepted ten to eighteen glasses. Every Russian family, poor or rich, has its samovar and they are not used for decorative purposes either. But probably American women enjoy their tea just as much in their own way even though a hostess doesn't have to buy it wholesale if she plans a party. Tea time in England is a habit but in our country it is a novelty and a pleasure that we like now and then.

Mrs. D. A. Worcester entertained at tea at her home, 801 South Thirty-second street, Friday afternoon for the Teachers College Women's club. About twenty-five called during the afternoon which was enjoyed socially. Lavender and gold chrysanthemums graced the tea table and there were lavender tapers lighted. Mrs. Charles Fordyce poured. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. E. W. Lantz, Mrs. Claude Minteer and Mrs. Letta Clark. Mrs. A. A. Reed will entertain at her home, 1257 South Twenty-seventh street, Dec. 28.

Bide-A-Wee at Dinner.

Mrs. Pearl Brown entertained the Bide-A-Wee kensington members at her home, 502 North Twenty-sixth street, with a 6:30 o'clock dinner Friday. Covers for ten were placed at one table which was apopinted with yellow and white chrysanthemums in a large crystal basket. Mrs. Nelle Ewing will entertain the club at her home in Emerald the evening on Dec. 21.

Theater After Luncheon.

Mrs. Nick Paper was hostess to the J. O. C. club with a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Woodburn Saturday. The one table was placed for fourteen including the guests, Mrs. John Rosenstock and Mrs. Cam Fountain. Two bowls of pink roses, and candelabra with pink and purple candles, graced the table. A theater party was enjoyed by the guests after luncheon.

Hold Business Meeting.

The Lincoln Heights club met Wednesday for a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert Chase, 1219 Garver street. The hostess served a luncheon during the social hour which followed the business meeting. December 19, Mrs. F. W. Leavitt will entertain at her home, 1306 Butler avenue.

Happy Hollow Luncheon.

Mrs. William F. Splain, 1340 Plum street, entertained the Happy Hollow club Tuesday at her home. There were twelve present including as guests Mrs. Otto Stein and Mrs. P. James Cosgrave. Luncheon was served and yellow chrysanthemums appointed the single table.

Luncheon and Bridge.

The Hy-Lo bridge club members held a 1 o'clock luncheon Saturday at the Hotel Cornhusker. The one table was arranged for twelve. Garden flowers formed decorations and bridge was played.

PERSONALS

Jean Ellen Wochner celebrated her seventh birthday and was honor guest at a party given at her home at the state hospital Saturday. She invited as her guests the children in her class room from Yankee Hill school. They spent the afternoon in games.

Betrothals Three Girls Announced

Two Brides-elect Will Be Married Within Week and Third In December.

A most interesting trio of engagements intrigues the attention of society folk in this Thanksgiving week. Within seven days, platinum circlets and Lohengrin are to form a happy background for a couple of the brides-elect, and the third will vie for attention with the crimson holly berries and the frosted white of mistletoe.

Miss Mildred Wright, whose engagement is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wright of Washington, Kas., is to become the bride of M. F. Mullowney of Minneapolis, Monday in Lincoln. Miss Wright is a member of Alpha Delta Pi at Kansas Agricultural college. Mr. Mullowney will take his bride to Duluth to reside.

Quaint St. Anne's church of Annapolis will provide a lovely atmosphere for the marriage of Miss Anna Wright Ridgely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald H. Ridgely of Annapolis, and Frank H. Wirsig. The lines will be read at 6 o'clock on December 1. Mr. Wirsig, who is a graduate of the university, is a member of Alpha Tau Omega, and of Innocents. He was famed as a pole vaulter.

Judge and Mrs. E. B. Perry are today announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lila Fowler Perry, to Wilson M. Watkins, son of Frank Watkins of Lincoln. The wedding is to be a social event of late December. Miss Perry attended the University of Nebraska and is a graduate of the School of Domestic Arts and Sciences in Chicago. She is a member of Chapter K. P. E. O. Mr. Watkins, who also attended the university, is in the advertising department of the International Harvester company in Wichita, Kas.

Four Much Favored In Club Names

Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving Motif Prominent In Appointments At Tables of Groups That Met Past Week.

Black cats crossing one's path, and walking under ladders, spilling salt, and number thirteen will be avoided by woman, and man, as long as they see a star fall or a white horse down the street, or find four leaf clovers and pins, and beam when they draw a number seven. What superstititon one doesn't inherit is often acquired by hearing some one tell of theirs.

Perhaps the four leaf clover is the cause of it all, but the word four is a favorite in the names of social clubs.

The Triple Four club met Tuesday with Mrs. A. O. Mumma, 1805 Pawnee street, for 1 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. O. A. Hochreiter made high score at bridge. There were five guests: Mrs. W. P. Johnston, M. E. Hurbert, Mrs. R. O. Kindy, Mrs. L. E. Davis and Mrs. Kathryn Moore. Mrs. Roy Cleveland will entertain the club at her home, 856 South Thirty-sixth street, Dec. 4, in the afternoon.

Mrs. Mohrman to Entertain.

Mrs. Sherman Smith entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon Thursday at her home, 1245 Garfield street, for the Four E's club. At bridge Mrs. Charles Mohrman made high score, and Mrs. A. H. Youman, consolation. Mrs. Mohrman will entertain the club at her home, 745 Marshall avenue, Dec. 4, in the afternoon.

To Give Tuesday Luncheon.

Mrs. Charles Helm entertained for the Two Fours club with a luncheon Tuesday at her home, 1984 Harwood street. The table had a mound of fruit for the centerpiece. The nutcups were miniature pumpkins at each cover, and tallies and luncheon appointments further emphasized the Thanksgiving idea. At bridge high score was made by Mrs. Harry Harris, and Mrs. C. H. Bentz received low. Mrs. J. L. Vifquain will entertain with a luncheon at her home, 3034 Sewell street, Dec. 12, at 1:30.

Three Fours Guests.

Mrs. Earl Truell was hostess to the Three Fours club Thursday with a 1 o'clck luncheon at her home, Forty-seventh and South streets. The table was arranged for eight and was centered with a cluster of yellow 'mums and yellow tapers at either end. Bridge was played. Mrs. W. H. Frost made high score. Dec. 6 in Mrs. A. A. Hood will entertain at her home, 2781 Alpha street.

Jolly Twelve Luncheon.

Jolly Twelve members enjoyed a 1 o'clock luncheon Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Will Jacobs, 429 South Twenty-fifth street. There were twelve present. At cards Mrs. James Short made high score. The one luncheon table was decorated with lavender chrysanthemums. Miss Mayme Gregg will entertain the club at her home, 1114 F street, Dec. 4.

Miss Morgan Hostess.

Miss LaVerne Morgan presided as hostess at an informal evening party Thursday at her home, 1316 L street in Havelock, for members of the Tri-Merrymakers club. Miss Mabel Partington was a guest. Twelve were present. At bridge Miss Harriet Malone made high score and Catherine Downing low. A two course luncheon was served at small tables appointed with chrysanthemum clusters in various shades and Thanksgiving decorations. Dec. 6 in the evening, Mrs. George Walroth will entertain at her home, 4404 Adams street.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cree of Springfield, O., who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. C Hansen for several weeks left Wednesday for their home.

Miss Fred DeBattle of Iowa City, Ia., left for her home today after spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Cora Weir, 503 South Eleventh street.

The following Lincoln people were registered at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City this week: Mr. and Mrs. George F. Burt, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Truman, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Dorgan, and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Holmes.

Denies She's to Wed Lindbergh

Central Press telephoto of Miss Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, U. S. ambassador to Mexico, snapped on her arrival at New York City from Europe. At the pier Miss Morrow denied newspaper reports that she was engaged to Colonel Charles Lindbergh. "There is absolutely nothing to it," she declared. Colonel Lindbergh has been friendly to both Elizabeth and her younger sister Anne.

Expression Regard for Mrs. Hall

Woman's Forum Approves Appreciation Declaring Deceased Member Tireless Worker for Organization.

The Lincoln Woman's Forum, meeting in the Y. W. C. A., approved the following appreciation and regard for Mrs. Hall, Friday: "We, the members of the Lincoln Woman's Forum deeply regret the passing of our member and friend, Mrs. Annie Reid Hall, the widow of the late Frank M. Hall.

The members of the Lincoln Woman's club can testify to the efficiency of Mrs. Hall and to her loyalty to and support of every good work of our community. She organized the music and dramatic departments of the Lincoln Woman's club during her second administration as president and has the distinction of being the only woman who was elected to the presidency of the club for two administrations.

Mrs. Annie Reid Hall was a resourceful, energetic and loyal worker, for bettering the interests of the University of Nebraska, the City Mission, the First Presbyterian church and institutions of the city. She will be missed by a host of friends.

Club Work Mixed With Good Time

Social Groups Hear Lecture, Play Bridge and Hem Linens At Meetings of Past Week.

Forty-five members of the Palladian Alumni association met Tuesday evening at the home of Prof. and Mrs. O. W. Sjogren, 1303 Idylwilde drive. Francis Flood spoke on his trip around the world. This was followed by a business meeting at which officers were elected as follows: Prof. Frederick Stuff, president; Mrs. E. P. Stoddard, secretary-treasurer; Miss Manet McLelland, assistant secretary. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hall of Cleveland, O., were out of town guests. A luncheon was served and fall flowers formed decorations. Assisting hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mr. F. A. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Rosenquist, Miss Janet McLelland, Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Ford.

Mrs. Swallow Entertains.

Sigma Kappa alumnae met with Mrs. Raymond Swallow at her home, 2526 A street, Tuesday evening. There were twelve guests and they spent the evening with bridge. Mrs. Norman Johnson made high score and Miss Charlotte Kizer, second high. Luncheon was esrved at small tables. Bridge and luncheon appointments were in Hallowe'en motifs. The meeting place for Dec. 11 wil be announced later.

Mrs. E. A. Burnett Hostess.

Mrs. E. A. Burnett was hostess to the Chaperones club at her home, 3256 Holdrege street, Tuesday. Forty were present. The afternoon was enjoyed socially and luncheon was served. Mrs. J. Baer will entertain Dec. 4, at the Sigma Delta Tau house, 212 South Twenty-seventh street.

Informal Afternoon.

Mrs. B. W. Hillard and Mrs. C. L. Fahnstock were hostesses Thursday afternoon at the Alpha Chi Omega Mother's club meeting at the chapter house. Thirteen attended and spent an informal afternoon. Part of the time was spent hemming napkins. The hostesses served a luncheon at one table centered with yellow and red chrysanthemums. Hostesses for the meeting at the house December 20 will be announced later.

Hem Table Linen.

Fifteen mthers of the Pi Kappa Phi Mothers' club met at the home of Mrs. L. S. Henderson, 928 South Fifteenth street, Wednesday afternoon. The next meeting will be in January.

Clubs Hope for Growth Aid Funds

Engage In Project to Project Natural Beauty and Give Greater Assistance To Girls In School.

The general Federation of Womens' clubs has for some years been active in a project for preserving beauty along the highways. Mrs. W. L. Lawton, chairman of the committee, was a recent speaker at the New York Conservation society, talking on the "Conservation of Rural Beauty."

Use Budget System.

The Business affairs of the Federation are conducted on a strictly business basis. Probably no organization trancasts as much business with as little capital. The budget system is used in apportioning convention expenses and other outputs.

The federation collects a fund of fifty cents ner capita from approximately 15,000 members and collects interest on a time deposit of several hundred dollars. The organization also receives money from an endowment fund, created a number of years ago by the effort of Mrs. F. A. Long of Madison, chairman of the scholarship loan fund committee.

The state treasurer of the federation, Mrs. D. S. Hills of Aurora, keeps two accounts in the name of the federation, a general fund and a Nebraska Club Woman fund.

Endowment Fund.

The $10,000 permanent endowment fund of the Federation is invested in Liberty Argentine and Belgian bonds, with a small sum in the bank on interest. Previous to this year the entire sum was invested in Liberty bonds. As these bonds matured the money was reinvested.

The trustees paid the state treasurer $449.93, the largest sum ever received from this source.

Besides this there is an accumulating funds created from money raised above the $10,000 endowment.

This has been invested and allowed to accumulate, now amounting to $1,998.79. It is the plan to allow this to increase to $3,000 and then add it to the permanent fund.

The scholarship fund is used in aiding worthy young people in securing an education. In no case has the federation lost by default.

Boys Observe Birthdays

—Portrait of Gilbert Merner by Gray

Gilbert Jean, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Merner, 2600 Woodsdale, celebrated his third birthday anniversary, September 29.

Jack LeMoyne Suhr, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Suhr was 2 years old Thursday, November 22. In honor of the event, he entertained seven little guests at a birthday party at his home, 2847 T street. A birthday cake with two candles, centered the luncheon table.

Chinese Party Is Novelty

Hostess Shows Originality By Declining to Use Thanksgiving Motif.

There is nothing quite so original as having a Chinese party for one's friends when all the rest of the world is having Thanksgiving parties by the score. When one expects the rooms to be smothered with pumpkins and cornstalks it is quite delightful to find instead a Chinese interior with gay colored lanterns giving the rooms a festive appearance.

Mrs. Clarence Penton entertained members of the Tuesday Luncheon bridge club with an informal luncheon at her home, 5211 Cleveland Avenue, Tuesday. The luncheon table was attractive with a centerpiece composed of tiny lanterns and place cards in Chinese motifs at each cover. The living rooms were appointed with huge clusters of 'mums in rose shades. Bridge tallies also carried out the Chinese idea. The hostess served a luncheon consisting of Chinese foods. There were eight guests who enjoyed the afternoon with bridge, Mrs. M. J. Blish making high score. Mrs. Blish was the only guest. December 4 Mrs. George Wood will entertain at her home, 1724 South Twenty-second street, with a 1 o'clock luncheon.

Three Tables Of Bridge.

The LaMardi bridge club met with Mrs. C. F. Greenburg at her home, 2619 Q street, Tuesday afternoon. There were three tables of bridge. Mrs. Ralph Grubb received high score and Mrs. L. A. White second high. For the 1 o'clock luncheon the guests were seated at two tables. Thanksgiving motifs formed appointments. Mrs. K. D. Cary will entertain December 4 at her home, 311 North Thirty-fourth street.

Mrs. Toohey Entertains.

The Le Mieux bridge club members spent a pleasant afternoon Tuesday with Mrs. J. Toohey following the 1 o'clock luncheon which she gave in their honor at her home 2606 K street. The Degall club members met at the Y. W. C. A. Monday evening at 7 o'clock for a business meeting. There were twelve members in attendance. This Tuesday Miss Laura Glantz will entertain at her home. Twenty-sixth and Ryons for club members.

P.T.A. Will Give Novel Size Social

A "Size Social" is the novel event planned by the Pleasant View Parent-Teacher association of district No. 76 for Wednesday evening.

Children's reading was discussed at the regular meeting of the Pleasant View Parent-Teacher association Friday evening at the school. After the talks, arrangements were made for placing a traveling library in the school room.

Community singing, games, and refreshments completed themeeting.

Recreation Discussed.

"Recreation for Children's was the subject of a talk given at the West Lincoln Parent-Teacher association meeting Friday evening in the school. After the business session, there was a dialogue by the seventh and eighth grades, a recitation by the pupils of the primary grades, a song by Ruth Monasmith, a dancing contest by June Gray and Evelyn Wilson, and reading by Verna Umberger.

A mandolin orchestra furnished music. Later there was community singing. Refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. J. L. Witmer and Mrs. A. J. Witmer.

Officers Essential To Clubs

Social Groups All Find Set Officials Needed; Sojourners Elect.

If one would a-clubbing go, one must a-voting go. For if one has a club, one must have a president, and a treasurer and a patoent secretary to arrange meetings, programs, assess and then collect the dues. A social club in this modern red-tape era without officers is about as efficient as a department store without an office force.

The Sojourners club at its Monday afternoon meeting held with Mrs. Elizabeth McLeod at her home, 1700 Washington street, elected Miss Clara Snyder, president; Sadie Dean, treasurer; and Ada Tucker, secretary. Following the business meeting the hostess served refreshments at small tables. A variety of chrysanthemum blooms decorated the rooms. The remainder of the afternoon was enjoyed with sewing for the bazaar to be held the first week in December. The next regular meeting will be with Miss Blanche Brungard, 1401 South Twelfth street, December 17.

Theta Rho Entertained.

Miss Evelyn Soukup entertained at her home, 2612 Lafayette avenue, Monday evening at 8 o'clock for members of Theta Rho. There were thirty-five present including as guests Mrs. H. C. Saunders and daughter, Lucille, and Paul Grant. Evening hours were devoted to games after which refreshments were enjoyed. Yellow carnations centered the tables and other appointments were in Thanksgiving ideas.

Mrs. Cox Is Hostess.

Mrs. Frank Cox presided at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Lincoln hotel Monday for members of the Monday Bridge club. Twelve guests at one table made attractive with gold and bronze pomoms in a large silver basket and with bronze tapers in silver holders at either end. Nutcups were in bronze shades. The after-luncheon hours were spent with bridge. December 3 Mrs. Will Daily will be hostess at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Lincoln hotel.

Two Parties For Club.

The Happy Hollow bridge club members were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Al Busch at their home, 1403 North Twenty-seventh street Wednesday evening of last week. There were three tables of bridge, Mr. and Mrs. Saunder Snyder making high score and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Betz low score. Luncheon was served at a late hour. Six couples attended the party. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Heffley entertained club members with a Thanksgiving party November 20 at their home, 2811 South Eleventh street. Twelve guests attended and spent the evening with bridge, Mr. and Mrs. Saunders Schneider making high scores and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Betz the low. The hostess served a two-course luncheon at small tables which were brightened with vases of dark red roses. On December 4 in the evening Mr. and Mrs. John Hoehne will entertain at their home, 3011 Ryons street.

Dinner Held By Church Club.

The Eighty-one club of the First Presbyterian church met for a covered dish dinner at 6:30 o'clock Monday at the church. Those in charge were Professor and Mrs. G. W. Rosenlof. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Frerichs, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Gould, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford King.

Thirty Attend Dinner.

The business girls class of the Trinity M. E. Sunday school gave a 7:45 o'clock dinner at the Hotel Cornhusker Monday. Thirty were present. Miss Carolyn Wickes was in charge of Program arrangements. Lavender and rose shades were used in appointments.

WILL REMEMBER SHUT-INS ON XMAS

Hickman, secretary; and Miss Jane Onnick of Firth, treasurer.

Committees appointed by the new president are: membership, of which Will TeSelle of Firth is chairman; program, Mrs. Gertrude Reischlain of Hickman, chairman; publicity, Miss Vida Barnard, Firth, chairman; and social, Mrs. Emma Tiedeman of Hickman, chairman.

Songs and recitations were given to entertain the parents and teachers, and refreshments were served. Eighteen dollars was raised to buy recreation apparatus.

Havelock Notes.

J. L. Biddlecom, who has been confined to his bed on account of illness, is improving.

The Arbor Community club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. H. W. Hunt. Seventeen members and two visitors were present. The subject was color harmony in clothing and the leaders were Mrs. E. R. Martin and Mrs. Larsen. Assisting hostesses to Mrs. Hunt, were Mrs. Wieshrest, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Larsen.

Miss Wilson To Speak On Buying Toys

University Instructor Will Talk at Meeting of Hartley P. T. A.

Despite the rush of Thanksgiving activities, several parent-teacher associations are planning lively meetings for this week.

The buying of Christmas toys for children will be discussed by Miss Clara Wilson of the kindergarten department of teachers' college at the University of Nebraska before the Hartley Parent-Teacher association at the November meeting on Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock in the school auditorium.

First grade pupils will give a group of songs, and there will be a dramatization and songs by chilgren of the third grade. Mothers of third grade pupils will act as hostesses.

Supervisors To Talk.

An unusually instructive meeting is in store for members of Irving Junior High Parent-Teacher association on Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock at the school library when supervisors of the Lincoln public school system will talk.

Supervisors of different departments who will address the meeting will be; J. R. Patlow who will talk on "Industrial Arts," Miss Rose Shonka who will discuss "Household Arts," Miss Charlotte Kizer who will talk on "Art." Charles B. Righter, Jr., will talk on "Music," and Earl Johnson on "Recreation and Gym."

Assembly At Irving.

"Ambassador's March," played by the school orchestra opened the assembly at Irving junior high school Wednesday morning. This was followed by a group of games played by the ninth grade girls directed by Miss Mildred Ryan.

Household arts classes gave original songs and verses pertaining to clothing and foods. Eight girls gave a Highland Scotch folk dance which was followed by a group of tumbling acts by one of the gym classes.

The orchestra played "The Dancing Doll," and Zella Owens recited "L'Envoi." "Artograms," a play was given under the direction of Miss Laura Harris. Parts were played by Madeline Hagerty, Flora Albin, Patricia McGeer, Douglas Dort and Harold Bookstrom.

Bethany Club Has Program Negro Music

The music department of the Bethany Woman's club met Tuesday in Bates hall. Mrs. E. R. Priel had charge of the program. A paper on current events was read by Mrs. Roy Kohler and the study of negro music was given by Mrs. Ruth Van Derzee McWilliams who presented a paper the reading of which was interspersed with groups of spirituals and jubilee songs by a quartet composed of Harrison Miller, tenor; Mrs. Pearl Crisman, soprano; Mrs. Jean Edwards, contralto; J. W. Bedell, bass.

Mrs. McWilliams gave two piano selections, by Coleridge Taylor. "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child," and "Bamboula, African Dance."

The songs used were "Steal Away" "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've seen." "Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," by the quartet.

Tenor solo, "Deep River," Mr. Miller.

"Its Me, Its Me, Its Me, O Lord," "Listen to de Lambs," "Somebody's Knocking at Yo' Door." "Every Time I Feel De Spirit." by quartet.

"Sinner Please Doan Let Dis Harvest Pass," Mrs. Crisman.

A group of jubilee songs closed the program.

Brides-to-be Inspiration for Parties

Although Thanksgiving affairs are paramount this week, December brides are holding their own and several attractive affairs are being given to honor them.

Miss Lila Perry whose engagement to Wilson M. Watkins was announced last week will be entertained at a shower Tuesday evening by Miss Evangeline Fleetwood at her home, 2005 Ryons. Sixteen guests have been invited for the evening which will be spent playing bridge. The nature of the shower is to be a surprise.

Another bride-to-be who is the inspiration for social affairs is Miss Leona Heidtbrink whose engagement to Joe Johnson was announced recently. On Sunday Miss Laura Wang of Malcolm was hostess at a family dinner at her home to honor Miss Heidtbrink and Mr. Johnson. There were six guests.

Miss Heidtbrink's sister, Mrs. Clarence Garber of Malcolm, is planning a dinner for Thanksgiving day to honor Miss Heidtbrink.

Gifts From Every Corner of the Globe

ARE assembled on the main floor of Gold's. Although the Keynote of these varied things is the popular price, still you'll note the individuality of each clever piece of bric-a-brac. Colored earthen pitchers and cookie jars artistically decorated in bright painted hollyhocks would be a nice suggestion for some housewife. Novelty cigaret containers and ash-trays of bronze and brass make ideal inexpensive gifts for men; Gay bridge accessories and table numbers make charming tokens for the busy hostess. There is no age or taste that cannot be supplied with unusual gifts in this huge department where tables and tables have been devoted to the showing of these and especially you'll enjoy the extremely convenient place to shop as well as the nice prices.

LINCOLN'S well known haircutter is now located in the beauty shop at Ben Simons and Sons., and you'll be interested in knowing the extremely low prices they're offering, ladies hair-cut and ends of hair curled for fifty cents. Children's hair cut thirty-five cents; with curl sixty cents. Phone them for appointments.

The Real Secret

OF BODILY beauty is a well-groomed figure. There is a certain magnetic power and appeal that charms the personality of a well groomed figure. A well groomed figure is richly beautiful, is socially esteemed; is teeming with vigorous health and personalfty. Women are entitled to a well-groomed figure, but they can't get it without following a scientific system created by experts in figure-grooming. That is what the Champe's system of body culture guarantees. One months course only $15.00. We are reducing and building up others, why not you? Free demonstration without obligation. These Next Three Days

BEFORE Thanksgiving will be spent assembling smart togs to wear to the Thanksgiving game. How nice that these should be the days chosen for the big hat sale at the Famous. Lovely soliel, velvets, felts, velours, and metalics are included at prices of $1.65 to $5.65. These hats were formerly selling from three to fifteen dollars.

DON'T mind asking my help on your Christmas shopping worries, that's my job and I like to do it. My services are absolutely free and it takes only a small amount of my time and might save you hours of worry. Write me telling me in detail just what you want and send checque if you have no charge account.

MODERN EVE.

Because You Love Nice Things

AND are not fond of spending a lot of money to obtain them let me direct you to Harris-Goars where quality and low price are combined to make shopping in this store an especial pleasure. An unusually large space has been given over to the jewelry section where beautiful hand tooled leather bags, diamonds, watches, men's cameos, and tiger-eye stone rings are selling now for Christmas gift giving. By buying now I mean selecting now and making the payments at your own convenience, for this is the store popular for the slogan "credit with a smile." It's a fine way for wives with limited Christmas allowances to stretch the payments until after Christmas.

The Gift for Hubby

HAS long been a source of worry to many wives. My suggestion is a nice tailor-made shirt. The Nelson Shirt Co., make shirts to their exact measure. There is nothing so annoying to the fastidious male as an illfitting shirt and you might as well give him nothing as to give him one that does not fit. That is the beauty of the Nelson made shirts. They fit to a T. Have hubby go in and let their experts get his measure, for it is almost impossible to do that correctly yourself. Prices from $3.50 up.

In a group of fabric slippers, crepe de Chine assumes considerable importance. In addition to white-to-be-dyed to match the costume, it attracts interest in printed versions.

Ensemble Promoted in Prints

SHOES of these tyres will be matched by handbags, promoting the ensemble idea that a number of manufacturers promise to exploit in two to four matching accessories. Other interesting crepe de Chine slippers include embroidered models, and those decorated by hand with oils in swirling multicolored designs.

Orkins Is the Place

TO SHOP for your Christmas lingerie. Take a look at the exquisite types shown in the new case just outside of the door, look closely at the gorgeous materials used, then step inside and get their extremely low prices on each. I was amazed when I discovered shimmering crepe satin teddies selling for as low as three dollars. Divine cup-shaped brassieres with shorties to match the pastel shades and fashioned with fine laces. Then there are nighties and step-ins too. Their Christmas stock of blue-moon hose almost took my breath away. You know there are two hundred boxes of these awaiting Christmas selection. They don't buy these hose by the pair, but by the box.

Mrs. Champe Says:

THE Ridnour Beauty Shop is giving re-waves of guaranteed beauty and lustre-with perfect results every time. No need to wait for the old wave to grow out. No need to have it cut off. With the new Frederic's combination heaters we can rewave your hair any time —at any stage of your permanent. The price for the complete permanent is always $5.00. Expert operators. All work personally supervised by Mrs. Champe. Ridnour's Beauty Shop, 10th and O Streets, Phone B6871.

Red and Blue for Evening

INCRUSTATION of lace motifs into chiffon is another fabric novelty.

For evening, light dresses of georgette are shown in clear red or one of the richer medium blues such as sapphire, made with scarf treatments, with fulness inserted by incrustations and with an occasional motif of jewelry to hold a scarf or other drapery.

A few dresses of black satin are shown. This is a fabric which is much in use for afternoon. Still other evening frocks are composed of black chiffon and black lace, the chiffon worked with fine tuckings in lingerie fashion.

Champe Says:

THERE are only two methods of permanent waving, we use them both in our shop. But it is not the method nor the machine used, nor the price you pay that assures you a beautiful and lasting permanent, but rather the skill and knowledge of your operator. Today there is no reason for paying more than $5.00 for your permanent. The material used in giving you a permanent wave does not cost more if you pay $5.00 or $25.00 for it.

The cost today of all permanent waves is labor, overhead expense and a fair profit. Champe believes in a small profit and large volume rather than large profit and small volume. 300,000 women in the middle west testify, Champes do better permanent waving yet charge you less—satisfied customers have made this large volume possible—Listen in over WAAW, Omaha each Tuesday and Friday at 2 p. m., and learn how you may receive a free permanent wave. Champe's Beauty Shop, 1229 N Street, (upstairs).

Now Is the Time

TO GO ahead and have that favorite chair of mother's or dad's re-upholstered for Christmas, especially since georgeous pieces of fine damask, chintzes and tapestries of sample length go on sale at Vance and Holm's tomorrow and lasts all week. There is from forty to fifty per cent saving on each piece and remember, each piece is of a nice useable length. Many Christmas pillows and exquisite table covers will be made from these. A good idea would be to select your piece at this sale and then have Vance and Holm do the making for you.

Select Your Evening Slippers at Magees

AND have all your evenings a howling success. There's nothing like beautiful foot-wear to give one the comforting assurance of being well-dressed in every detail. I was especially impressed with the silver and gold brocaded models. Then there are those of gold and silver kid as well as black satin and white satin for dyeing the shade of your dress. The price range on these are from ten fifty to sixteen fifty.

Lou Holden's Russian Dressing

IS FINE for fish and game as well as in salads. Order your Thanksgiving supply now from your grocer.

FROM now on you can save your mind the grief of trying to think up unique presents. This department will confine its chat to the needs of the season—gifts of all kinds — artistic gifts, capably described and yet with an underlying vein of interest for the economical buyer and the bargain seeker.

The merchants who give you their message here are daily combing wholesale markets for new articles to intrigue you.

MODERN EVE.

Evening frocks are again given to the irregular hemline.

The most arresting silhouette for evening appears in the type with sheathlike front, with fulness introduced at the back, placed low.

Princess lines are in good standing.

Bead embroideries are mentioned, more frequently than strass.

The ensemble ranks important, but the showing of dresses separately chiefly of the afternoon type in georgette or chiffon, is significant.

Low-placed fulness is the distinguishing feature of the new silhouette. In soft dress types, godets or circular cuts achieve this effect, while in sportswear, pleats that are released to within about a foot above the hemline create the same silhouette.

Back fulness is approved, both for day and evening.

Loose panels contribute in the development of the animated skirt, which is otherwise a matter of marked circular cut.

The waistline is established at the top of the hips, or even above.

Hobby of Lincoln Woman Is Raising Rare Specimens of Fish Brought From Tropics

Raising rare tropical fish in Nebraska is a hobby!

It is the unique hobby of Mrs. H. A. Fortney, who raises imported fish that are natives of tropical waters, at her home, 3644 A street. Not only has she the largest collection of imported fish in Nebraska but she also has many different kinds of snails and aquarium plants. Her collection is housed in forty-seven separate aquariums containing more than a thousand living specimens.

"Most interesting among the fish is the Paradise, a native of India," Mrs. Fortney told an inquiring reporter. She continued they grow to be nearly three inches long, and during the mating season takes on an iridescent and apparently ever changing coat of bluish green with very distinct markings of red, orange, gray and black. Just as the bird of Paradise is the most beautiful of all birds, this fish is the king of all fish.

Nest Made of Bubbles.

"The Paradise fish's manner of keeping house, is an unusual source of interest," Mrs. Fortney says. "In the spring and summer it builds a nest of small bubbles, often covering a fourth of the aquarium surface. After the nest is finished, which some times takes several days, the male will drive the female under the nest and force her to deposit her eggs in it. I then have to remove the mother and leave the daddy in charge of the babies. If I did not, the mother would fail to recognize her young and eat them." Mrs. Fortney has raised over one hundred and fifty of these fish during the summer.

"My fish may be grouped into classes," Mrs. Fortney said, "those that lay eggs and those that are live-bearing which are the more unusual." In her collections she has a dozen or more different kinds of live-bearing fish which give birth to young the year around. In this category is the mosquito fish—the smallest live-bearing fish in the world.

The most fascinating fish in the group are the Mexican sword tails. They are the size of the average goldfish and have a sword-like tail one-third the length of its body. A red stripe from the eye to the base of the tail, which is orange trimmed in black, makes this fish one of the most exquisite and flashy colored in the aquarium.

Require Too Much Water.

When asked why she did not include the common goldfish in her collection Mrs. Fortney said: "They require too much care and you cannot have a water garden in a goldfish aquarium. Goldfish need more water per inch of fish and will not live in crowded places. I have over a hundred fish in one aquarium holding only twenty-five gallons of water." This is also true of the fish native to Nebraska waters.

There are about four hundred different kinds of tropical fish commonly kept in aquariums by American aquarits. Mrs. Fortney is constantly adding new specimens to her collection which is now considered the largest in the state, and many Lincoln nature lovers have become interested in her hobby. In the east, aquarium lovers have formed societies and are importing fish from foreign waters. Fish hobbies have not, as yet, become the vogue in the middle west, although water gardens and pools are rapidly becomnig popular.

One aquarium in particular attracts the attention of the many visitors to this private fishery. It is a tweny-five gallon affair and contains about two hundred specimens living happily together. The bottom is covered with gravel which gives it a rustic appearance much as one would expect to see on the ocean floor. This aquarium might be thought of as a world within a world. There are just enough water animals to furnish the proper amount of carbon dioxide for the plants and a sufficient number of plants to furnish the needed amount of oxygen for the animals. A relationship such as this in an aquarium is called balance—a condition much sought after by amateur aquarits as the water never need be changed, according to Mrs. Fortney.

Snails Keep House Clean.

Snails, acting as scavengers, do there part to keep the aquarium in order. "Snails in themselves, are a hobby," Mrs. Fortney says. "No two of the seven different kinds I have are alike in their habits. Some lay there eggs on the glass sides of the aquarium or on the plants, and some on the plants growing up and out of the water. Then, there are some that do not lay eggs at all but give birth to living young."

Children as well as many grown-ups are well aquainted with Mrs. Fortney and delight in having her tell about her fish and the queer things they do. Her large pool and propagation tanks in the yard also interest visitors during the summer months. When asked if she enjoyed having the visitors and telling them of her fish she replied that they were always welcome.

New Chapter D. A. R.

In Franklin, Neb., Friday, Nov. 16 Mrs. York A. Hinman of North Platte, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, met with Franklin County ladies interested in organizing a D. A. R. chapter.

The meeting was at the home of Mrs. D. C. Benedict and instruction was given bf Mrs. Hinman.

After luncheon at the Lincoln hotel the afternoon was spent in the informal organization. The gavel used was given to Mrs. Hinman at Fairmont just before coming to Franklin. It was presented to the Nebraska society by Lewis H. Badger of Fairmont. The gavel was made from cotton wood bark from the largest tree in Nebraska, on the farm of L. H. Badger in Fillmore county. The circumference of the tree is more than 19 feet, five feet above the ground.

The twelve forming the chapter were: Mrs. Mae Benedict, Mrs. Marjorie Clopine, Mrs. Namie Humphreys, Mrs. Mary Porter, Miss Annie Porter, Mrs. Ella Sprout, Mrs. Jennie Whitmore, Miss Inez Kent, Boise, Ida.; Mrs. Gladys Walker, Lincoln, Neb.; Miss Virginia Caldwell, Guide Rock; Mrs. Mary Patterson, Bloomington, Neb.; Miss Suth Douglas.

The organizing members were: Mrs. Mary Patterson, Mrs. Mary Porter, Mrs. Mamie Humphreys, Mrs. Marjorie Clopine, Mrs. Jennie Whitmore, Mrs. Mae Benedict, Miss Annie Porter.

Those bringing transfers from other chapters: Mrs. Carrie Hevner, Franklin, Neb.; Mrs. Ruth Wilmet, Naponee, Neb.; Mrs. Mattie Shepherdson, Riverton, Neb.

The officers elected and installed: Regent, Mrs. Mary Patterson; first vice regent, Mrs. Mary Porter; second vice regent, Mrs. Ella Sprout; recording secretary, Miss Annie Porter; treasurer, Mrs. Jennie Whitmore; registrar, Mrs. Mae Benedict; historian, Mrs. Marjorie Clopine; chaplain, Mrs. Mamie Humphreys.

Chapter Guest Day.

The annual guest day of the Elijah Gove chapter D. A. R. at Stromsburg, was held Tuesday evening and each member was privileged to bring a friend. The meeting was well attended.

Mrs. York Hinman of North Platte, state regent, was present and talked on D. A. R. activities. She was followed by Mrs. Adam McMullen of Lincoln, vice state regent and the wife of the governor.

Mrs. C. S. Paine of Lincoln, vice president general for Nebraska, also spoke, and there was a dinner and music. Mrs. J. C. Malster, regent of Elijah Gove chapter, presided. The Lincoln and David City ladies were guests of Mrs. J. A. Westenius.

Doane College Notes

A number of representatives of the college were out in the churches Sunday, November 18, conducting Doane day programs. Mr. Korab accompanied by Miss Dorothy Mansfield, and Ruth and Millard Taylor, were with the church at Arlington for the morning service; President Dean, with Mr. Kettering and the Misses Marie Grosshans and Kathryn Palmer, were at Blair; and Mr. Taylor gave the special address in the church at David City. Mr. Burlingame conducted the morning services at the church in Liberty.

The following changes of address of Doane alumni will be of interest to some: Lieut. S. L. Mains, jr., '22, Fort Robinson, Neb.; Miss Alice Anderson, 500 Delaware S. E., Riverview, apartment No. 106, Minneappolis, Minn., and Miss Aletha Jean Daniels, '25, Blue Hill, Neb.

The chapel address Wednesday morning, November 21, was by Mr. H. S. Thorpe of Lincoln, a member of the state board of control. Mr. Thorpe described his experiences as an apprentice in a two-year sea voyage in an old fashioned sailing vessel.

Skating Party Is Planned

Variety Girls Planning Novel Entertainment at Next Gathering.

It is not every dignified social club and kensington that goes in for such strenuous activities as roller skating. An afternoon of cards often seems a big day's work for women who play their bridge or five hundred with that seriousness and science that keep more casual and happy-go-lucky players on their toes the whole afternoon. But to go a-roller-kating is almost as exciting as for the Prince of Wales to a-riding-go.

The Variety Girls are ever faithful to their name and have planned a roller skating party to be held soon. They met Monday evening for their regular semi-monthly meeting at the home of Miss Dorothy Dillon, 828 South Thirthieth street. It was in the nature of a business meeting. Refreshments were served at the close. Miss Dorothy Feather will entertain at her home, 2100 Calvert street,, at the next meeting. During the past week the club held a theater party in honor of the birthday of Miss Irene Stickles.

Laf-A-Lot Club Meets.

Miss Cecile Shephard entertained Laf-A-Lot club members Wednesday evening at her home 654 North Twenty-fourth street. There were four tables of bridge and Miss Alma Wagner received the first prize. Miss Amy Soderberg received the guest prize and Miss Marian Kirshner received the low score prize. A one-course luncheon was served at small tables. Garden chrysanthemums in a variety of colors formed decorations. Miss Ruby Loper will entertain the evening of December 5 at her home, 332 Floral court.

Mrs. Allen Entertains.

The Lennox club met with Mrs. George Allen at her home, 4219 Lennox street, Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of fourteen. Mrs. Frank Eddy was a guest. The hours were pleasantly spent with Thanksgiving games an dcontests in which Mrs. G. M. Clark won the first prize, Mrs. E. T. Lintt the consolation and Mrs. Eddy the guest prize. The hostess served a buffet luncheon. Mrs. James Edwards will entertain at her home, 4312 M street, December 19 in the afternoon.

Iversons Are Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Iverson entertained the Imperial Bridge club members at their home, 857 South Thirty-fifth street, Wednesday evening. There were five tables of bridge at which W. O. Villott and Mrs C. W. Hoke made high scores. Luncheon was served the guests during the evening.

Thanksgiving Decorations.

Shades of orange and Thanksgiving motifs made attractive the informal afternoon party Wednesday for the Octavia bridge club at which Mrs. William Vidlock presided as hostess at her home, 714 Elmwood avenue. Mrs. W. H. Pfeiff and Mrs. Arthur J. Anderson were the only guests. High scores were made by Mrs. George Vlasnik and Mrs. George Saville. The hostess served a two-course luncheon and decorated the table with orange tapers in crystal holders and all other table and bridge appointments carried out the Thanksgiving idea. Mrs. J. B. Cloyd will entertain the afternoon of December 5 at her home, 2656 South Thirteenth street.

Guests of Mrs. Worrest.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

The Mother Who Bores Her Friends with Constant Conversations About the Wonders of Her Children Is An "Unloader" — A Mothers' Club Sometimes Effects a Cure—A Man's Dinner and the Atmosphere Thereof Is of Prime Importance In His Life.

One-Way Conversation.

"Unloaders" is the delicious name which H. A. Overstreet, a most discerning psychologist, gives the type of person described in the following letter. These "unloaders" come in many varieties. There is the middle-aged lady who recites an interminable legend about her own ailments and the man who insists one telling you how he broke ninety at golf. In the letter below, the type of "unloader" considered is the elder who is determined to unload stories of her children to the exclusion of everything else.

Dear Minerva: I have a very dearly beloved sister who is married and has two lovely children. They are lovely children, I grant that, with enthusiasm. But Minerva, my sister makes a bore of herself, tires all her friends and relatives almost to the point of violence with her constant relating of the cunningness of those children.

We belong to the same bridge club. The rest of the girls have children but they are not such perfect idiots over them. The girls don't say much before me, but I know they complain about her and I see them exchange glances when she gets off on the children which is every time she opens her mouth. They try to shoo her off on some other subject, but no use. It is a positive mania with her. We have talked it over at home, but we are stumped. We don't know what to do with her. Have you any suggestions.

She is an adorable girl, has a good mind, and used to be so entertaining and witty. But now days all she has to say is along the line of, "Junior said the cutest thing this morning," or "you should have seen Dorothy go after that cake of soap this morning," meanwhile interrupting some attempt at worthwhile conversation or trumping her partner's trick.

This may sound trivial to you, but to me it's a form of going to seed and a mighty annoying one and I'd like to do something about it, if possible. Mary.

A. This fond mother is the type of person that all of us sorrowfully recognize, the type of person who insists on doing all the talking and that about but one subject. For such mothers, conversation is like a narrow side street; one-way traf-&c exists only.

For some reason all types of the so-called "unloaders" assume the other person will be overwhelmingly absorbed in what they are saying. They never bother to find out whether he is or not. That's the unloader's technique. Their entire concern is solely with their subject in hand—in the case of your sister, with her children. They never regard conversation as an occasion for exchanging ideas of interest. To them it's merely a golden opportunity to inflict upon another hapless victim the supposedly brilliant exploits of their own hopefuls.

The best place for your unloading sister is a mother's study club. If you can get her into some such club, she can work a lot of that out of her system. The Child Welfare Magazine (the national Parent-Teacher association house organ) devotes several pages each month to "Parental Education Courses," and suggests how mothers can unload their troubles and joys systematically, how those who have nothing to unload because they are not tongue-gifted or afflicted, can learn of the problems of other mothers, and how both groups can help one another.

A Slacker.

Dear Minerva: I am a married man; have been married about four years and I have reached the end of my patience and am coming to you for advice. My wife is as pretty and coy as you could imagine, but we simply do not get along together. Before we were married and even for a long time afterward I tried to do everything in my power to please her and to make her happy. At night when I come home from work and am tired and hungry she says that she has been too busy to plan supper and asks me what I want to eat. Sometimes I suggest something and she goes to the neighborhood grocery and buys a few cans of food and heats them up on the stove. But frankly, Minerva, I get very tired of coming home every night and suggesting things for supper. What I seem to crave is to come home and find supper cooked and ready to eat.

Now I may be in the wrong, but it seems that my wife is shirking her duty. I work hard all day and of course she has the house to keep up and all that; but it is my opinion that a wife should plan the meals and cook them. If I were a rich man I would be glad to hire servants and all that, but I am not a rich man and my wife knew that when we were married.

She goes to a picture show nearly every afternoon and seldom gets home before I do, that is, only a few minutes before I do. We have no children and I honestly don't think she has to work very hard to keep house for just the two of us. Now, Minerva, please tell me what you think I should do. As I said before, she is very pretty and sometimes is awfully sweet to me, but never the less, I do not think she is treating me right.—Troubled Husband.

A. Your wife isn't doing her part. That is certain. Have you tried explaining the situation to her, reasonably and carefully, as you have explained it to me? If she doesn't react to that, you might try going back down town for your dinners on such nights that she made no preparations for you, with no excuse greater than late attendance at a moving picture show. I haven't much patience with cheaters and I think the wife a cheat who plays all day and fails to provide a comfortable atmosphere and attractive meal for the husband who has been working hard for her all day. She is doubtless just thoughtless. But a jolt as I suggest might cause her to ponder. And change her ways.

Friendship or Pride.

Dear Minerva: My cousin and I chum together. We have little quarrels, but always make up. She seems to think she should always have her own way a nd I can't agree with that. She is the sweetest girl if she wants to be, but she can be awfully mean.

We are angry now because I wouldn't let her have her way. I always have made up before, so should I do it again? Girl of Twelve.

A. I live the idea of making up with people if you value their friendship more than you do your pride. But there comes a time when friendship's traffic officer must hold up a sign and say "Stop." Your friend must proceed with extreme caution, otherwise friendship's road will be closed.

Causes of Truancy.

Dear Minerva: How can you account for an otherwie tractable child playing truant from school. My boy is the fourth grade in school and ever since he started to school he has had spells of playing truant. M. L.

A. There are many causes for truancy. Discouragement over school work, Parental indifference. Failure of parents to co-operate with school and to check up on the child's school work. Feeling on the part of the child that the teacher is down on him. Wanderlust. The failure of the teacher or the school or both to attract the child.

I would judge that wanderlust—a natural wandering spirit—is at fault with your youngster, since it is a chronic or periodic state with him. Perhaps you can counteract it through giving him the privilege of little adventure expeditions by himself on vacation days.

The Employer's Right.

Dear Minerva: There is a group of girls back of this letter who wish your advice. Our employer does not allow any personal calls, coming in or going out, believing we are too young to have any relations with persons of the opposite sex. We have a half-hour lunch period, during which business is not rushing, and as we have several phones and maintain a switchboard we do not interfere with business. What is your opinion.

A. It is your parents' business and not your employers' whether or not you are too young for boy friends. However it is his business that you are helping manage and not your own affairs during office hours. It is privilege to prevent personal calls. During your lunch hour, go outside, spend your nickels and make your dates, if it is with the consent of your parents.

Land Barons Caused War, Says Wesleyan Professor, Ex-Consul At Strassburg

BY LULU MAE COE.

"Who won the war?" is still a question for lively debate.

"Who started the war?" is generally agreed upon with remarkable unanimity.

Prof. L. W. McDrmott, head of the business administration and economics department of Nebraska Wesleyan for the last two years, dsagrees with the popular theory. He spent a couple of years as American consul in Strassburg, Alsace-Lorraine, just previous to the war, and thinks the kaiser overrated as the person causing the world's great war.

In Mr., McDermott's estimation Prussian land barons, the old guard, were the actuating force of the march into Belgium and the cataclysmic events of the following four years. The very small, but very powerful, inner circle of that most powerful and populous state of the German federation, Prussia in its greed for wealth and power was responsible for a war involving most of the world.

Nine Land Barons.

Nine land barons of Prussia held among them 25,000,000 acres of land, about one-quarter of the empire. Their land holdings and their power were too limited to satisfy insatiable ambition, and the loss of a million lives, millions in property, irreplaceable age-old beauty and art, international trust, and honor meant nothing could the country and they gain greater holdings and prestige.

The greatest land holders of the Fatherland, they wanted more lands. Larger territory meant a greater variety of products of the ships of the companies in which they were large share holders, increased tonnage for those ships, larger revenues, other and newer countries turning to Germany for commerce by sea and by land.

The kaiser was not opposed to the idea. Egotistical, the tales of broader and richer empires under his control were not unsavory to his ears. As the old guard gained in wealth, he gained in power, and the plan was pleasing.

No one in Germany believed the ex-kaiser the man responsible for the war. The Prussian land barons were strong enough to dictate the policies of the throne. While not averse to the idea of a bigger and better Germany, even though he probably knew something of the cost, it was the nine men behind the throne who directed the man who sat there and who were the real causes of the World war.

Talked With Kaiser.

To enter the consular service before the war, Mr. McDermott was obliged to take an examination. At the present time, consuls are endorsed by their congressmen, with the award made on merit.

While in Alsace, the kaiser came to Strassburg, when the governor of the province held a reception in his honor. The consulate officials were presented to him and he greeted each one in excellent English. The conversation was naturally limited, but in a social way he appeared a friendly individual. The egotism of his character, for which he was known, did not appear in casual remarks.

At that time, he was on his way to his summer home at Hoekernigberg, a moated castle, which had every appearance of being a relic of feudal days. It was said that the $30,000,000 from the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, was kept at the castle. The money was found to be but a meager payment of the war for which it was preserved.

While in the consulate, the Germans of the territory thought Mr. McDermott and the secretaries spies. Germany had its spies in this country, and it seemed incredible that the consulate was not being used to forward inside plans of the empire to the federal government. However, Mr. McDermott was never asked to act as spy in any matters during more than two years he remained in Strassburg.

Consul Kept Busy.

The life of a cosnul is a busy life. Among other things, he is obliged to institute search for persons of his own country who may have disappeared while on a grand tour of Europe, to notify the department of justice of any fugitives from home, who may be wanted, or to try to find those in whom the department is interested, and the issuing of passports.

In his district were about 400 old pensioners of the United States gocvernment, men who had come here in the '50s and '60s and had entered service with the Union forces in the Civil war. At the close of hostilities, many of them had returned to the old country, but were still receiving pensions from the government. As they died, Mr. McDermott served as administrator of their estates.

He was obliged to look up the credit rating of some individual in whom an American was interested commercially. One American woman wished to have him give a banquet, so that she might meet persons of title in the country. In one month, thirty American beggars visited the consulate. Where the need seemed to be actual and the funds not idly dissipated, Mr. McDermott helped the destitute one to get to a seaport. The government has an arrangement whereby needy Americans can work their passage, and the government pays the difference but there is no means of getting these persons to a seaport.

Involved In Dispute.

An American woman motoring through the district was struck in the eye by a stone thrown by a child, losing the sight of the eye. Because a consul cares for his countrymen in trouble, he was forced to watch her case, when she tried to secure $25,000 from the father of the child. She only received $300, however.

The consuls must make reports on matters affecting commercial, industrial, financial and agricultural pursuits. In addition to his consular duties, Mr. McDermott visited starving Italians, investigated Belgian factories, reported on infectious disease, and described new processes in any industry.

He was forever getting Americans, former residents of the district who had left without doing military service out of jail. Whenever they returned, they were liable for service, and were placed in confinement until their case was investigated. The government was always just in this work, and the consulate was generally able to get homesick Alsatians who had returned for a visit out within a week. Because this country had no treaty with the province, even American citizens of Alsatian birth were liable to military service.

The consuls had to certify to the contents of any shipment of goods, so that duty could be levied. One copy was sent to the shipper, one to New York, if that were the port of entrance, and another to an interior customs port, if the shipment went that far, and one was retained at the consulate.

There was only one thing a consul can't do. He can't marry people. The United States government won't let him.

University Notes

Prof. J. P. Guilford of the psychology department, is the author of an article in the November issue of the Psychological Review entitled "The Method of Paired Comparisons as a Psychometric Method." He also is credited with two book reviews in the current number of the American Journal of Psychology, and is author of the index of that magazine for the year 1928.

Prof. F. M. Fling of the history department will talk at the World Forum meeting, sponsored by the university Y. W. C. A., next Wednesday on the topic of "The Kellogg Pact."

Hanna Fam, an Egyptian now studying in Chicago, will be on the University of Nebraska campus December 11-16, at which time he will explain at several meetings the work done by the Y. M. C. A. in Egypt. He is going to return to Egypt after his schooling as a representative of the Y. M. C. A. in that country. His early training in Y. M. C. A. work was under C. Steele Holcombe, University of Nebraska graduate of 1916, who was at Cairo, Egypt, but has been transferred to Assuit, Egypt, to enlarge and extend the work there.

At the request of Chancellor E. A. Burnett, Chancellor-emeritus Samuel Avery will preside at the debate between Hastings college and the University of Sydney, Australia, at Hastings, Monday evening.

Dr. Avery was installed Wednesday evening as chairman of the Nebraska section of the American Chemical society. At the meeting Dr. George Clark of the University of Illinois, talked on "What a Chemist Can do with X-Ray."

"Carbon and Hydrogen Determinations Using a Metal Tube," is the subject of a research paper by Df. Samuel Avery published in the magazine, Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. This is his third research paper since resuming studies in the chemistry department a year ago.

The November issue of the Nebraska Alumnus was mailed out during the week. The feature article of this issue was devoted to homecoming day.

The first meeting of the course in making of musical instruments, under Dr. C. C. Weidemann, will be held from 7 to 8 o'clock Monday evening, November 26, in room 21, Teachers college. A special edition of Dr. Weidemann's work on "How to Make Musical Instruments" will be available through the extension division.

Chadron Normal

President Robert I. Elliott attended a meeting of the Nebraska state board of education at Wayne, Monday, November 19. H. E. Reische, secretary of the board, accompanied him on his return.

Frederick Songer, a Civil war veteran, aged parent of Miss Myrtle Songer, who was taking advanced work toward a degree at the State Teachers college, Greeley, Colo., was instantly killed in an interurban car accident at Denver, Monday, November 12.

The art section of the Chadron Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. Clayton B. Snow; nee Merian E. Smith. Monday evening, November 19. Mrs. Snow last year was president of the Alumni association.

The Alpha Phi Pi sorority furnished the program at a special volly assembly of faculty and students, Thursday, November 15.

Misses Susie E. Boyer, Edna E. Work, Sophia M. Uhlken, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Buckingham, Coach Arthur R. Stark, Assistant Coach Ray D. Hahn, Harold Sprague, Mabel Power, George Winston, and Luella Reder witnessed the football game between the college team and the University of Wyoming team at Laramie, Saturday, November 17. Chadron won, 31 to 0.

The alumni association of the college at a recent business meeting elected new officers for the year as follows: Orin Weymouth, A. B. '25, president; Welmar Bostder, A. B. '27, vice-president; and Mrs. Pearle Summers, '16, secretary-treasurer.

The first regular business meeting of the Kappa Theta Sigma sorority since the initiation of new members was held at the house, Monday evening, November 19. At the close of the session games were played. Refreshments consisted of fruit cake and cider.

Mrs. Bess Gearhart Morrison of Lincoln appeared at the Pace theater in a reading entitled, "The Woman Haters," Tuesday evening, November 20, under the auspices of the music and drama department of the Chadron Woman's club for the benefit of the city hospital fund. A violin quartet, composed of Evelyn Wilson, Lucile Beamer, Winifred Cook, and Elenor Nylen, students of Mr. Roy A. Peterson, furnished the following numbers on the program: "Air Melodieux" by Jacob Dont and "Gavotte and Musette," and old French dance, by Nicolai von Wilm.

The all-school banquet annually sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. took place in the college gymnasium, Friday evening, November 23. This was featured as an Indian powwow. The table decorations consisted of small Indian figures, totem poles, tents, and Indian vases filled with bittersweet berries, while menu books were in the form of wigwams. Colored quills marked with the name of the college comprised the favors. The Girl Reserves from the normal training high school served as waitresses. The theme of the toast list was "Evening in the Lodge," and Marjorie Rouse, Chadron, president of the Y. W. C. A. and "Big Chief" of the occasion, presided as toastmaster. The toasts were as follows: Freshmen, Hope Roe, Mitchell, "Totem Pole"; sophomores—Geraldine Trachta, Galesburg, Ill., "The Peace Pipe"; juniors—Elinor Johnston, Hay Springs, "The Happy Hunting Grounds"; seniors—Evelyn Currie, Chadron, "The Council Fire"; the faculty—Mrs. Robert I. Elliott, "Strongheart." Stunts were provided by the faculty and each class, respectively, one of which was "Hiawatha" in pantomime, the participants wearing full Indian costume including feathered headbands. The "Indian Love Song" was sung by Ruth Rigdon, Omaha, who appeared in Indian dress.

Bridge occupied the evening at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Alpha Phi Pi members in their sorority house, Monday evening, November 19. First prize was won by Julialyn Ford, Marsland, and Ethel Littlejohn, Mitchell, was awarded second. The hostesses were Luella Reder, Hot Springs, S. D., Marjorie Gerlach, Harrison, Ella Loewenthal, Chadron, and Wilma McLaughlin, Gordon. Ruth Johnson, Mcorrill, was a guest. Light refreshments were served.

"The Youngest," a modern comedy of American family life by Philip Barry, was presented as the annual freshman class play in the Pace theater, Thursday evening, November 22. Burton Beamer, Chadron, leading man, and Neva Hartwell, Crawford, leading woman, were supported by a cast composed of Frances Kelly, Bassett; William Hartman, Bayard; Harold Thompson, Chadron; Beulah Funk, Atkinson; Albert Reed, Chadron; Mildred Hubbard, Rapid City, S. D.; and Ilda Wilcox, Oelrichs, S. D. Miss Florence M. Henderson, instructor of speech, directed the production. Music was furnished by the college orchestra.

A 5 o'clock supper was served by the seventh grade girls of the training school with their mothers as guests, in the domestic science dining room, Monday, November 19. Gertie May Burke, Chadron, a practice teacher in home economics, supervised those in charge.

McCook Junior Notes

The American history class, under the direction of Miss Helen Shurtleff, is doing some interesting work in the investigation of local history. They have been interviewing local pioneers and writing up their biographies. They are also looking up a certain Dr. Carver who is reputed to be the original "Diamond Dick" This work is a continuation of the work that the American history class of last year begun.

Re-elected Governor

Among the governors re-elected to office is Richard C. Dillon, of New Mexico.

GAS TAX YIELDS $140,635,398 IN FIRST HALF 1928

Nebraska Ranks Sixth In Consumption Gain Over Year Ago.

TOTAL SALES OVER BILLION GALLONS

Average Tax 3.02 Cents Is Greater Than During 1927.

For the first six months of 1928, forty-six states and the district of Columbia, report a total sale of 4,652,393,535 gallons of gasoline which is a gain of 680,970,224 gallons over the same period of 1927, according to information on gasoline taxation collected by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture.

No tax was levied in Massachusetts and New York and a tax was in force for only one month in Illinois.

The revenue collected amounted to $140,635,398 which is $39,384,557 more than collected on the 3,971,423,311 gallons sold in the first six months of 1927.

Nearly every state showed a gain in consumption. California heads the list with a gain of over 39,000,000 gallons and with an increase of one cent a gallon in the tax. Texas is second, with a gain of 38,900,000 gallons. Ohio is third with a gain of over 36,000,000 gallons and at an increase of one cent a gallon in the tax. Pennsylvania is fourth, with a gain of over 31,000,000 gallons and at an increase in tax of one cent a gallon. Kansas ranks fifth with a gain of over 28,000,000 gallons. Montana, with 29,678,808 gallons, more than doubled her 1927 sales of 14,278,756 gallons.

In addition to the six states above mentioned, eleven others showed gains in sales ranging from 10,000,000 to 19,000,000 gallons, as follows:

Alabama	more than	11,000,000 gallons.
Arkansas	more than	10,000,000 gallons.
Connecticut	more than	10,000,000 gallons.
Indiana	more than	15,000,000 gallons.
Minnesota	more than	12,000,000 gallons.
Missouri	more than	15,000,000 gallons.
Nebraska	more than	19,000,000 gallons.
North Carolina	more than	14,000,000 gallons.
Oklahoma	more than	17,000,000 gallons.
Washington	more than	14,000,000 gallons.
Wisconsin	more than	15,000,000 gallons.

The average gasoline tax per gallon for the six month period of 1928 was 3.02 cents as compared to the average of 2.55 cents for the same period of last year. Of the total revenue collected $95,849,113 will be used by the state highway departments in construction and maintenance of state roads; $29,557,416 will be used in construction and maintenance of local roads, and $5,630,668 will be applied to the interest and premium payments of state and county road bonds.

In general, the states showing the greatest gains in gasoline consumption are those which have improved a large mileage of highways during the last three or four years.

Tornado Hits Oklahoma Town

A tornado which swept Orlando, Okla., killing three persons, accomplished the devastation shown above. The storm preceded the disastrous flood which inundated parts of Kansas.

Seventh Annual Congress of 4-H Club Members in Chicago Means Nebraska Champions Have Opportunity To Compete for a Number of National Honors

BY LULU MAE COE.

The boys and girls who carried off the high awards and the blue ribbons at the Nebraska State fair are to have a second reward this week.

The seventh National Boys and Girls 4-H Club congress and the tenth annual reunion of the 4-H family will be held in Chicago, beginning Friday and continuing through December 7. Nebraska champions of club work will be among the attendants at the congress, at which the outstanding club members of many states are present.

Dorothy Donaldson, whose costume placed first at the state fair is sending her frock and accessories as an entry in the clothing exhibit as a complete outfit for a 4-H club girl. Dorothy is a member of the J. E. Donaldson family at Albion, which has been actively interested in club work for some time.

As a rosy-cheeked sixteen-year-old girl, five feet one inch tall, weighing 111 pounds, Dorothy chose green flannel for her dress. She might have chosen an outfit for a party, sports, or home ywear, but she chose one suitable to wear to the Albion high school, where she is a student. The outfit is the major project of her clothing club, of which she has been a member for three years.

The total cost of Dorothy's outfit is $19.29. The costs are divided as follows: Green flannel dress, $7.29; pongee underwear, $2.60; hose, $1.50; black oxfords, $4.95; green felt hat, $2.95.

Other Honors.

Dorothy is a member of the Busy Needle Workers, of which her sister, Ella, is leader. It has a membership of fourteen, and Ruth Childs, Gwendolyn Ball, and Mabel Mattison, placed first, second, and third, respectively, in the clothing judging contest at the 1928 state fair.

This club has an interesting history, due entirely to Miss Ella Donaldson. The club members of that section were interested only in live stock projects, and Miss Donaldson herself was a member of live stock clubs until almost too old for club work. Becoming convinced that the girls needed domestic projects, she gave up her own club work, and began the study of clothing and food. It was most difficult to get the girls interested in this new club, but Miss Donaldson's perservence won out.

Not so spectacular as champion beeves, clothing clubs have been rather overlooked in 4-H club work, but about one-third of the total membership of the clubs is registered for clothing projects. The 3,000 members have a three-year course, with simple stitches the first year, and the project for clothes pin bags or dress protectors, the second year, embroidery, with very plain clothes, and the third, a complete costume.

Any clothing club member may enter the state fair style show, provided she is a neat, competent stitcher, and this entitles her to a possible championship. Her second goal is the entry of a complete costume, which can not be done until the end of her three years of club work. If successful, another first place is hers, and the entry of the outfit in the Chicago congress, as Dorothy is doing.

Teach Selection.

The aim of the clothing course is to encourage selection as well as the making. The girls are taught to study their types, so that they may dress themselves appropriately and attractively, and at the same time within their means. Emphasis is placed on the cost of an outfit, but the leader also demonstrates that a simple, inexpensive frock, with correct hat and shoes, may be as attractive as a more costly one, if the girl understands the art of dress.

For about six years, the congress has had exhibits of complete outfits, shoes, hose, hat, and frock. Marjorie Joyce of Weeping Water placed second in the national competition in 1925 and first in 1926.

Helen Phares of Guide Rock was the best dressed girl in the annual style show at the Nebraska state fair. Because she was, she is to enter the national club girl's style revue in Chicago.

Helen is 14 years old and has finished her second year of clothing work. For the largest and best style show ever held at the fair, the Webster county girl modeled a street costume, costing $22.97. The material for her dress cost $6.47, her shoes $7, hose $1, hat $3.75, and other accessories $4.75. While her costume was rather more expensive than others, the judges found that she had spent her money wisely, and complimented her on her taste and selection.

As members of the Nebraska clothing judging team, Ruth Childs and Gwendolyn Ball will go to Chicago for national honors. Both are members of the Busy Needle Workers at Albion. Ruth, who placed first in the clothing judging contest at the fair, goes as its entry, and Gwendolyn is being sent from the town where she attends school in Illinois to Chicago.

New Projects.

Among the projects added to the club congress this year is a new division added to the home economics judging contest—that by home furnishings. Nebraska girls registered under this division belong to the girls' room improvement clubs. As members, they study simple room decoration, the decorating of walls, refinishing of furniture, curtains, shades, pleasing color schemes, the relation of one group to another.

Nebraska is to be represented in Chicago by Ruth Long of Cowles, who is also the health champion, and Birdie Erskine of Havelock, as the home furnishings team. Unusual interest is attached to this event, because of its novelty.

Birdie Erskine, who placed second in the last style show, enters the Chicago contest also as the champion home ec girl from Nebraska. She is outstanding among the state club girls, for her activity in the clubs, for the work she has produced, for her leadership of younger girls, and for her part on various demonstration and judging teams.

This marks Birdie's third year in a clothing club, and she has been a local leader as well as a member. In her club, she has gathered together the younger sisters of the members of her club, and has organized them into a clothing club. She has also been engaged in projects in three other clubs, hot lunch, keep well, and rope.

Deserves Trip.

During her years as a club girl, Birdie has been a member of two judging and one demonstration teams, all of which were Lancaster county champions. She also won the news writing contest of one of the state daily papers, and has contributed to its columns from time to time. For her success in these various activities, Birdie Erskine goes to Chicago as the champion home ec girl.

Vincent Arthaud of Cambridge exhibited the champion baby beef at the state fair. He is one of the outstanding club boys of his section, and has been president and vice president of a district organization of club workers formed in the southwest part of the state. He is a leader among the boys, and can always be depended upon to maintain their interest and to help them. His grand champion was a Shorthorn calf.

At the last state fair, Anthony Pokorny of Waverly walked off with three distinct honors. He placed as pig club champion with his Spotted Polands, and placed first in the showman's contest, where he won on his manner of handling his entries, and first in the weed identification contest.

Saved Money.

This is Anthony's fourth year in pig club work, and he has accumu-

TO STUDY ATOM DURING ECLIPSE

Scientists Think Its Possibilities Are Only Scratched.

Laboratory Will Be In Jungle of the Malay Peninsula.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—A new attempt to solve the secret of the atom during a feverish five minutes while the sun is in a total eclipse is to be made by four British scientists in the jungle of the Malay peninsula next spring.

All preparations have already been made for the expedition, which is to start in February. The eclipse is due to occur on May 9, and in order to be fully prepared for the investigations which are to be made during the brief period of totality, scientific instruments of every description are being taken on the long journey.

The four scientists, who have been appointed by the joint permanent committee of the Royal society and the Royal Astronomical society, are Dr. J. Jackson and P. J. Mellotte of Greenwich, and Col. F. J. M. Straton and Dr. E. Carroll of Cambridge university.

Uppermost Thought.

One thought is uppermost in the minds of all scientists today, as the eagerly awaited period draws nearer. Will the secret of the atom, which has baffled scientists for centuries, and whose possibilities are believed only to have been partially scratched by the discoveries of recent years, be solved during the five minutes during which the light of the sun is to be eclipsed entirely?

It is hoped that at least a clue may be obtained, for while living the life of bushmen in the Malay jungles, the scientists intend to attempt to measure the temperatures and pressures of the gases around the sun, which cannot be reproduced in a laboratory.

Dr. Jackson and Dr. Carroll, who are connected with the solar physics laboratory of Cambridge, will make their headquarters at Alor Star, in the Malay state of Kedah, on the western side of the peninsula. Colonel Stratton and Mellotte will camp near Patani, in Siam. Dr. Carroll and Colonel Stratton will carry out the spectroscopic observations which it is hoped may assist scientists to understand something of the constitution of the atom. Dr. Jackson and Mellotte will concentrate on attempting to reaffirm Einstein's theory of relativity by what is known as the astronomical test.

"Professor Einsten," Mellott said in explaining the expedition, "formulated three tests by which human beings could affirm his theory of a fourth dimension.

"The first test was to prove that a ray of light would be diverted from its course if it passed close to the sun.

Photograph Stars.

"Therefore, while the eclipse is in progress we shall take a photograph of the field of stars behind the sun, and immediately afterwards take another exposure on the same plate of a field of stars some distance away. This will give us a scale to work by.

"Three months later, when the sun is out of the way, we shall take two more exposures. A comparison of the two plates will prove to us the exact position of the stars in relation to light which appears to be the stars."

Greenwich Observatory is buzzing with excitement in preparation for the expedition. The gigantic 21 foot telescope which is to be used will occupy the entire time of two carpenters for two months in packing. Wooden sheds are being taken in sections to Malay.

The astronomers will have a tremendous advantage over the last period of eclipse, when the sun was obscured for only 24 seconds at the depth of the belt of totality. This time the eclipse will last for a full five minutes, and the scientists are working out abstruse calculations.

The belt of totality—the band of earth along which the full eclipse will be visible—will stretch across the north of Sumatra, the Malay Peninsula, the southern portion of Indo-China and the Phillipine Islands to end in the Pacific.

BRITISH DRINKS COST A BILLION

Yet England Consumes Less Alcohol Than Before the War.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Although Great Britain in the past ten years has spent at least $10,000,000,000 on drink, she is casually drinking less alcoholic liquor than before the world war.

This fact is gleaned from statistics presented in the seventy-sixth annual report of the United Kingdom Alliance, one of the country's oldest established temperance reform guilds.

It is pointed out that this sum was two and a half times as much as the total outlay over the same period on national health insurance, old age pensions, poor relief and unemployment insurance.

"It is freely suggested by the liquor trade," comments the report, "that the increasing sobriety of the people renders further remedial measures unnecessary. But while many persons are drinking less liquor it must be remembered that at least $1,500,000,000 was actually spent last year.

"Public drunkenness still abounds though the cases before the courts have diminished. Last year about 100,000 men and women were dealt with by the police in Great Britain, but these were only a fraction of the total cases of drunkenness which occurred."

The report notes with gratitude that there has been no revival of last year's demand that saloons be permitted to keep open later.

"The present closing hours have apparently been accepted with equanimity by the mass of the population, who find they can have plenty to drink between the time of opening and closing."

The Alliance, early net year, will commence another campaign to increase temperance in England, H. Cecil Heath, General Secretary, told International News Service. The forthcoming campaign, will be the biggest yet attempted, and it is hoped to win many converts.

Classes In Ponca School First In State To Build Own Vocation Farm Shops

The new vocational farm shop of the Ponca high school built by two classes of boys in vocational agriculture provides a properly equipped building for the students to build apparatus necessary to a farm. The builders, with the instructor, Harold F. Vance, are shown in front of the shop.

PONCA, Neb., Nov. 24—The distinction of being the first class of any high school in Nebraska to construct their own vocational farm shop probably goes to the vocational agricultural classes of Ponca high school.

Two classes numbering 27 boys did all the work under the instruction of Harold F. Vance, teacher of vocational agriculture in Ponca high school. The building was started early in September and was completed six weeks later. It is 24 by 40 feet, of frame construction and bungalow type. The floor consists of two sections, the first being concrete 24 by 16 feet, and the other maple, 24 by 24 feet. A power mixer was used for all the concrete work.

The Shop Floors.

The concrete floor is called the mechanical floor and supports two forges, a soldering bench and a stove. The tool cabinet, twelve wooden work benches, saws and other equipment are on the wooden floor. Instead of lath and plaster the building is lined with a composition.

The building will be used entirely for farm shop practice and the boys will build wagon boxes, hay racks, hog houses, self feeders, brooder houses and the like. Instruction will be given in forge work and soldering and in repairing farm machinery. The boys will be taught mechanics in automobiles, tractors and trucks, under the Smith-Hughes plan. The project has received the heartily support of R. H. Fletcher, superintendent of Ponca public schools.

Constructing a building of this kind gave the boys considerable practical experience in squaring corners, fitting doors and windows, building doors, laying floors, cutting rafters, shingling and putting on siding.

Those In Picture.

Lost Algonquin Tribe Still In Dread of Fiery Iroquois Found Roaming Baffin Land

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Up on the roof of the world in Baffin land and northern Labrador remnants of the old Algonquin tribe of Indians, chased north about the time of the Revolutionary war, still live in fear and trembling that the warring Iroquois will follow them north and drive them still further into the recesses of the frozen north.

Dr. William Duncan Strong of the Field Museum of Natural History, told of finding the "lost tribe" when he returned to Chicago after spending fifteen months as anthropoligist with an expedition.

Have Old Legends.

"The tribes still have legends and myths that prove beyond all doubt that they are the old Algonquins," Dr. Strong declared.

"They are nomadic and live almost entirely as hunters o fcaribou. They use modern rifles, furnished by the Hudson Bay company, but the guns are only a bit of modern equipment they possess.

"The word 'Shekokive,' which is pronounced almost as is Chicago, means in language 'skunk' and lends color to thier Algonquin origin as Chicago, in the old Indian tongue of the Illinois valley meant "land of the skunks."

"From close abservation of the northern Indian tribes it would seem that the Indian and the Eskimos both came originally from Mongolia by way of the Aleutian islands and thence through north America.

Are Dying Out.

"Temperatures range about 40 degrees below zero but that cold temperature seems hardly colder than in New York, Chicago and other cities. The women, when they acquire a new outfit of clothing put it on over their old clothes so that a waddling figure may mean an indication of great relative wealth.

"No whiskey or other alcoholic drink is sold to the Indians or Eskimos but they take one part of molasses to nine parts of water and a cake of yeast and boil up a mixture that is extremely potent and almost as vile in taste as our own moonshine.

"The Indians are dying out rapidly. The 1918 influenza epidemic cut the tribe in half. Within 150 years they will be a vanished race.

Blame Boyish Ways Of Parisien Girls As Lads Misbehave

PARIS, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Boyish-mannered mademoiselles are making monsieurs misbehave.

Once a lily-white hand was gracefully kissed. Now it is just smacked.

This is the conclusion of M. Andre de Fouquieres, accepted judge of elegant manners and masculine styles who has decreed what is "comme il fault" for many years.

"Look at those boys, they will meet a girl in the street and kiss her hand—a courtesy reserved for the drawing room or boudoir," complained M. de Fouquieres.

"And how they kiss them! Instead of bending over a woman's finger tips they jerk them up to their lips.

And that isn't all; I have actually seen a man raise a feminine hand to kiss it while keeping his left hand in his coat pocket.

"Other times the gesture was reserved for married women. Now a boarding school girl can expect it.

"Show me a man who asks a woman for permission to smoke. He lights up when he pleases. Is the woman offended? Not at all. She probabl yasks him for a cigarette.

"Right there is the explanation. Our young folk are reared well, but the girls have that post war negligence. They refuse to draw a line on manners, so the boys go the limit."

HELEN ASPIRES BECOME ARTIST

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Now that Helen Wills has annexed all the tennis titles in sight, at home and abroad, she is going after another and more difficult title: "Artists."

Miss Wills might admit that she is the best woman tennis player in the world today but she would never admit that she has earned the right to call herself an artist.

That, next ot retaining her tennis rank, is what she most wants.

On the other hand she is producing drawings so good that they are published in leading magazines of this and foreign countries.

Every morning at her home here where she has a studio, she sits down at her drawing board. She works until noon. She permits nothing to disturb her, for this business of becoming an artist is work.

"Some times I wonder," she laughed, laying aside her pencil, "whether I shall ever succeed. But I do love it and that is compensation."

As Miss Wills spoke her eyes sparkled. They are blue eyes and sometimes they can be cold. Newspaermen in the past have seen them that way. But they changed as she talked.

WAR IS ART, SAYS FOCH IN HIS BOOK

PARIS, No. 24—(I. N. S.)—War is an art, according to Marshal Foch generalissimo of the allied armies.

Pertinent utterances and writings of the great chieftain have been put in book form and entitled: "Word of a Soldier."

"A war is well conducted according to whether there is continuity in the ideas, methods and adaption of the rules of the art," he explains.

"Ancient warfare was sparing of the use of armed force, preferring ruses, menaces, negotiations, manoeuvres, skirmishes, occupation of territory and the capturing of isolated positions.

"Modern warfare, since Napoleon employs every means available for it knows but one argument — a strong blow.

"It is only crushing the enemy in battle and routing him that there is time for discussion.

"Before strateev can be put into execution preparations must be made to launch an offensive under the best possible conditions; then, the battle won, a new strategical stroke can be planned but always withthe same end in view—another battle."

CLEMENCEAU IN PARIS CINEMA

ARIS, Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—Monsieur George Clemenceau, France's 'Grand Old Man' turned moviet artist for a few days last summer when taking his usual vacation at his summer home in the Vendee region. Now, tthe Paris cinemas are showing a series of simple scenes in the life of the lively French statesman, 87 years young.

One wonders what words of persuasian must have been used to induce the man who has always fought so shy of publicity to submit to the wiles of the cameraman. The pictures show him passing his days in quiet among the flowers in his garden and with his pet dog; taking tea with friends and strolling down by the sea which roars up to his very front door.

Endurance Record For German Actor

BERLIN, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Fred Elmenberger, a German actor, is the world's champion endurance speaker.

He talked for 120 hours in succession, sleeping only eight hours in between. When he finished, he wasn't even hoarse.

The speech was an exhibition speech, to be judged by its length and not by its contents. But the audience was scarce and the exhibition was not a financial success.

TALKIES REVIVE OLD FAVORITES

Hollywood is Bringing Former Stars To Fore Again.

Varied Languages Make Showings in Europe Difficult.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—In social affairs a sneeze was considered somewhat of a faux pas. In making talking pictures a sneeze is little less than a calamity.

Lionel Barrymore, famous actor who has 'clicked' in the 'talkies,' has learned that an actor can do anythink in talking pictures that he can do on the stage—except sneeze.

The sneeze does not record as a sneeze but as some violent disturbance. It might be called talky static.

"The sound of a sneeze," Barrymore explains, "sets up a peculiar vibration that distorts the sound track for a considerable distance. It gives back a noise like a phonograph needle that has slipped out of its groove and sputters across the entire record."

Because of this unexpected condition actors suffering from colds will not be allowed to work because of the danger of a sneeze. A villain, it has been pointed out, by scattering a spoonful of snuff could wreck a super-production.

The 'talkies,' however, are expected to result in the revival of many old favorite films that will be revamped with sound. A number of once popular films already have been brought again to public attention with the addition of sound and production companies in Hollywood are busy taking from their files former big box office productions and working them over with sound effects. Sounds! Zounds!

More "Talkie" Trouble.

Here's more talkie' trouble. The Universal, pioneer Hollywood producing company, is trying to work out a plan to make their speaking pictures popular in Europe. The perplexing job had been handed to Jay Marchant, veteran director.

"It's just too bad that movie fans in Greece, Roumania and other nations, don't know English," explained Marchant. "Our biggest market is in Europe and it's a pipe we can't sell these 'talkies." The difficulty is that in making 'talkies' the films are slowed up. The popularity of American films is their speed. We'll have to work out a scheme to make the 'talkies' faster so that the black and white films can continue to get across 'over there.'

On Potato Diet.

Hollywood has suddenly gone on a potato diet. Folowing the announcement of a famous dietician that the chief fod value of the spud is in the peel, slim screen sirens find a new zest in the democratic tuber served with the jackets.

"If I thought I could put on weight," sighed Colleen Moore, "I woud eat potatoes three times a day." She admitted being partial to escalloped potatoes with cream cheese and butter. Other cinema celebrities wooing the flesh via th humble potato are Sally O'Neil, Garry Cooper, Betty Brent, Norma Talmadge, Dolores Costello, Claire Windsor, Mary Duncan, June Collyer and William Blackwell.

Irene Rich always includes potatoes on her menu. Florence Vidor likes them baked. Boiled potatoes and buttermilk appeals to Russel Gleason. Mary Astor, Constance Talmadge and Lila Lee eat everything on the bill of fare, including potatoes, and still remain slender. The shell of the baked potato, decorated with paprika, is the favorite dish of Dorothy Dwan. There is no waste to the potato in Hollywood because stars are no longer worried about their waistline.

PROF. MILLIKAN DESCRIBES HUGE NEW TELESCOPE

BY ROBERT A. MILLIKAN.
(Executive President, California Institute of Technology)

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 24—(INS)—The i nternational educational board has made an apropriation to the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena for the construction of an astro-physical observatory to be equipped with a 200-inch reflecting telescope and many auxiliary instruments. A prime purpose of the gift is to assure the new observatory the advantage and experience of the strong group of investigators in the research laboratories of the institute and in the neighboring Mount Wilson observatory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington

The terms of the gift are so board as to offer a unique opportunity for securing scientific results of the greatest interest. This can be seen from the nature of the equipment, the problems to be solved, and the group of men assembled to attack them.

The new observatory which will be designed to upplement, not duplicate the Mount Wilson observatory, will comprise two main parts. One of them will be the 200 inch telescope with its buildings, dome and auxiliary equipment, to be erected on the most favorable mountain sites that can be found within effective working distance of associated groups of investigators and their extensive scientific equipment. The other will be an astro-physical laboratory on the campus of the California Institute in Pasadena.

What may be hope to learn with the new telescopes and its auxiliary instruments? It should render possible the exploration of many "island universes" beyond the Milky Way, the nearest two or three of which ar now but slightly known. It should tell us something about the evolution of these spiral nebulae, millions of light years distant, and much about the development of the stars of our own galactic systems one of which is the sun with its encircling planets.

It should solve many of the probems of physics or chemistry that depend upon the enormous masses or temperatures, or upon the immense density of extermeity tenuity, exhibited by celestial bodies in which titanic expeiments exceeding the capacity of any terrestrial laboratory are constantly in progress.

Incidentally, it should reveal hundreds of millions of stars and hundreds of thousands of nebulae beyond the range of existing telescopes.

Missouri Girl's Calf Best

WAR THREATENS BALKAN STATES

Depredations Of Revolutionaries May Necessitate Intervention.

VIENNA, Nov. 24—(INS)— The Balkans, long known as the "cockpit of Europe," again lies under the ominous threat of warfare and possible intervention by the big powers tonight.

This latest menace to Balkan peace lies in Bulgaria and arises from the warlike depredations of the Cacedonian revolutionaries (comitadjis) under Ivan Mihailoff.

Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, is described as an armed camp with soldiers guarding the palace and the public buildings to prevent a coup by the Macedonian rebels.

Bulgarian Army on March.

A Bulgarian army is on the march against the Macedonians massed at Petriz, their stronghold.

According to Belgrade advices, Foreign Minister Burow of Bulgaria, told the Bulgarian parliamentary committee that England and France have been asked to intervene to aid the Bulgarian government in preventing warfare.

Greece and Jugloslavia have already protested to Bulgaria against the activities of the Macedonians, who are threatening the peace along the Greek and Jugoslav frontiers.

Population Panic Stricken.

Fighting between Bulgarian regulars and the Comitadjis is threatened at Petriz.

The population of the Petriz district is panic stricken. Hundreds are in flight towards Sofia or across the borders into Greece and Jugloslavia. Mihailoff is defying the Sofia government and announced his intention of fighting against forces sent against him.

Two Bulgarian army officers were assassinated at Haskow following an army council which adopted a resolution calling upon King Boris' government to adopt strong measures to put down the Macedonian movement.

Martial law may be proclaimed over the disturbed area.

Dissensions in the Bulgarian cabinet were reported in dispatches from the frontier.

OPEN WOMEN'S INSTITUTION.

ALDERSON, W. Va., Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—Attorney General John G. Sargent today threw open the doors of the nation's first shelter for federal women prisoners—the United States Industrial institution for women.

LIEUT. OGDEN TO WED.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—Friends of Miss Frances Snook, formerly of Flint, Mich., today anticipated her early marriage to Lieut. Henry H. Ogden, who was a member of the army's round-the-world aerial expedition in 1924. Their engagement has been announced. Miss Snook, who is living here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George James Snook, was at one time a prominent member of the younger social set of Flint.

ADMITS KILLING WIFE.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, 53, yesterday, was cleared here tonight when her husband, George Davis, 33, confessed to police that he strangled her during an argument at their home.

A Cincinnati physician had pronounced her death to have been caused by heart disease when he examined the body late yesterday afternoon.

Cabinet Possibility

Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis, former congressman, has been mentioned as a possible member of Hoover's cabinet. Newton is a close friend and political associate of the president elect.

GERMAN DECLARES WRONG WAR VIEW IN SCHOOL BOOKS

BERLIN, Nov. 24—(INS)—American school history books are under fire by Dr. Otto Karstaedt, who was guest professor at the Peabody college at Nashville, Tenn., last winter.

In an article in the periodical "The Way to Fredom," Dr. Karstaedt points out that most American school histories still represent Germany as the only nation guilty of starting the world war.

"All of them show at first glance,' Dr. Karstaedt says, "that they are either unable to view the war objectively, or clothe the scientific objectively which thy would like to affect in opinions born during the war."

Dr. Karstaedt attaks especially Edward R. Turners' "Europe Since 1789," which, he says, "shames America and is destructive for the restoration of understanding between the two nations."

Cotner Notes

Prof. J. K. Snellenberger, dean of men, spoke at the bi-weekly meeting of the Aylsworth club Monday evening. His subject was "The Characteristics of the Successful Preacher."

The Y. W. C. A. held its annual recognition service Monday evening. This ceremony follows the membership campaign each year.

WATERWAY PLAN CHANGE IS SEEN

Minneapolis - St. Paul Group Expected To Demand 9 Foot Channel.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 24—(UP)—Drastic changes of the inland waterways program, calling for uniform nine-foot river channels in both the upper Mississippi and Missouri rivers, are expected to be proposed at the tenth meeting of the Mississippi Valley association, in session here, Monday and Tuesday.

It is understood the Minneapolis-St. Paul group will be organized at the association meeting to demand that a nine-foot channel program be adopted for the upper Mississippi. This group has already launched a movement for appropriations from congress for a deeper channel.

Cleveland A. Newton, vice president and general counsel of the association, is said to favor the uniform program. His advocacy of the plan brings him into prominence as a candidate to succeed James E. Smith, retiring president.

If the proposal is made in the form of a recommendation it will be one of the most important matters before the association, it was said.

Gen. Jacques Dead

BRUSSELS, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Gen. Baron Jacques, Belgian hero of the World war, died today at his home here of pneumonia. He was 68.

The general, who was a personal friend of King Albert, won international fame by his brilliant defense of Mismude during the German drive to capture the channel ports. Jacques' resistance at Dixmude was responsible for the failure of the Germans to capture Calais.

HERE AND THERE

Man and Machine.

(The Omaha World-Herald.)

William H. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is quoted as having said that the organization will fight to the last ditch the displacement of labor by machinery.

If the organization wastes its splendid energies in that kind of fight, then the last ditch is precisely where it will ultimately have to do its fighting. It might as well try to hold back the tides or check the flight of the earth in its orbit as to resist growth of the use of time and labor saving machinery in industry. And if it could stop the march of progress by junking the machinery of production and replacing it with man power it would find itself right back where it started. For what of comfort, what of leisure, labor has won for itself in the past half century it is indebted not alone to its splendid, winning, organized fight for these things, but in part at least to the fact that machines have given them an existence to be won.

"Our philosophy and objective throughout the world," says Mr. Green, "is human betterment and it is our aim always to protect humans before machinery."

Human betterment is a magnificent ideal and no one will deny that the labor movement in general and the American Federation of Labor and its subsidiary unions in particular have achieved great results in fighting for that ideal. Its further progress is not to be helped by resisting machinery which releases more of time and energy to be used in non-productive pursuits. It is rather to be made in fighting for a fairer, more equitable distribution of its benefits.

It is true that in the process of replacement of man power by machine power violent upsets are temporarily occasioned in particular fields of labor. When a machine is introduced into industry which does the work of ten men those ten men, thrown out of work, are momentarily in distress. But as soon as the industrial adjustments are made everybody is better off than before, including the ten displaced men, provided the adjustment permits them to share in the benefits of the leisure thus created. It is a part of the mission of the labor movement to see that it does.

Old time newspaper men can remember how the old printer at the cases opposed the coming of the typesetting machine. Now the typesetting machine and other mechanical aids to the publishing industry have made possible a progress which makes employment for an army of men. It is something that never could have been attained had the old conditions remained stabilized. It has meant bigger and better newspapers and magazines and books and better conditions for those employed in the industry.

Sometimes we compare our mechanical civilization with the golden age of Pericles. We mourn for the loss of the simplicity and the culture of Athens in her days of glory. But we forget that this Athenian culture with the richness of its intellectual achievements rested upon the backs of a submerged, oppressed class of helots, the hewers of wood and carriers of water. It was they who made the leisure possible that flowered in Athenian culture.

There are, it is true, some consequences of the mechanization of industry which there is reason to deplore, but these are not the mere replacement of men by machinery. It is that in so many industries the laborers are made mere machine tenders where those engaged in the same industry in the old hand working days were artisans if not artists. But what the old artisan has lost in the satisfaction of craftsmanship the new machine tender has gained in increased leisure. The net gain or loss to him all depends upon how well or ill he uses the time thus placed at his disposal.

SWING SATISFIED BILL WILL PASS

Co-Author Boulder Dam Measure Confident It Will Go Through.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Representative Swing, republican of California, co-author of the Boulder Canyon dam bill, predicted the passage of the measure at the coming session of congress, following a conference with Persident Coolidge today.

He said the report of the special board of engineers, expected about November 30, will meet all of the objections raised against the physical features of the measure last winter.

Swing refused to admit he had seen the report, but said a digest of it as reported to him indicated the engineers had decided the construction of a high dam in Boulder Canyon was not only feasible, but safe. He recalled the talk at the last session of possible seismic disturbances in that vicinity which might render the site impracticable.

"I am satisfied with the report," he said as he left the White House.

"You mean you will be satisfied?" he was asked.

"Yes, that's right," he replied laughingly.

Eternal Triangle Blamed For Double Shooting By Wife

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 25—(INS)—The eternal triangle was blamed here tonight for the death of Fred Perlingo, 23, and the serious wounding of Josephine Munzella, 18, by Mrs. Fanny Perlingo, 21, police declared.

The young wife, police said, after she had given herself up, stated that her husband and Miss Munzella had been in the "habit of going out together," and that "she had warned them."

The shooting took place in the garage of the Perlingo home at Lowellville, near here, the reports said. Mrs. Perlingo was said to have waited for the couple in the garage and shot them as they came in.

Plump Figure, Out of Style For Ages, Replaces Slimness

CHICAGO, Nov. 24— (U. P.) — Women's figures were discussed at length tonight before the Associated Apparel Industries at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Styles in feminine bodies it was said, have changed only three times in the history of the world. In the beginning, forms were plump and fat—a nice padding of flesh over the framework of bones.

Then, about 4,000 years ago, according to statistics presented to the convention by Kathryn Cunningham, American designer of foundation garments, the vogue for slimness set in.

Plump Girls Popular.

The art of appearing slim, said Miss Cunningham ,which goes back some hundreds of years, was perfected and enabled fat women to appear slender.

"This is the beginning of the second cycle in 2,700 years," she said. "History is repeating itself now. We are on the outcurve of plumpness.

"Of course, there have been the pet curves of each generation, the wasp waist and the curving thigh of the Floradora Girl. But in general, slimness has been the idea of the white races for ages.

"This season's curves of fashionable figures show a swing back to the type of plump girl that was stylish back in the first era of

The Wynn Literary society gained possession of the Glenn Fennel trophy for the first time in three years when members of its team won the inter-society debate from the Kalophroneans, two to one, Monday evening. Members of the Wynn team, which took the negative of the question, "Resolved, that the present jury system of the United States should be abolished," were Harry Coder, North Platte; Eugene Tanner, and Lindsay Search, Hutchinson Kas. The Kal speakers were Marjorie Petersen, and Carl Barz, both of Fremont, and Leo Nielsen, Craig.

Members of the Forum, college forensic society, at their meeting Monday afternoon heard reviews of the lives of five prominent American orators. The reviews were given by Gifford Mullins, Fremont, on James Otis; Josephine Miller, Fremont, on Daniel Webster; Werner Jessen, Omaha, on Henry Clay; Ralph Rasmussen, Fremont, on William Jennings Bryan, and Paul Wiegman, Hastings on Patrick Henry.

Short Circuits Checked by Insulated Leads.

In constructing a set where shielding is used, care must be taken in preventing a short circuit. In most cases the shield is connected to the "A" negative through the condensers. All leads passing through the metal should have sufficient insulation so that rubbing against the "can" will not cause a short.

Reactivating Tubes.

Tubes cannot always be reactivated. Flashing should last from 10 to 20 seconds, and cooking for about half an hour. The '99 and '20 types are flashed at twelve volts and cooked with four volts. The '01-A type is flashed with 18 volts and cooked with seven volts. Those are maximum voltages; lower one are permissible. There should be no "B" voltage connected to the tube while ti is being reactivated.

Wiring the Receiver.

To keep the resistance of the set as low as possible and to make the wiring self-supporting and permanent, use a rather large wire for the connections. No. 14 soft copper wire will be satisfactory. No. 14 hard drawn or copper clad wire, such as is used in the construction of an antenna, should not be used on account of its hardness, making it stiff to work. This type of wire is also brittle and a bend or kink cannot be straightened out without danger of breaking the wire. Acid soldering flux should never be used with copper wire as it will cause corrosion later on.

Building Loop Antenna.

The loop antenna is constructed on a wooden frame, built of two cross pieces, each one-half inch square and 29 inches long. Cut nine slots in each end of the cross pieces. Make these cuts with a hack saw, about one-quarter of an inch deep and one-half inch apart. In the exact center of each cross piece cut a slot one-half inch wide and one-quarter of an inch deep for the joint of the two pieces. Fasten the two cross pieces together with five small wood screws. On the bottom end of the upright piece fit an ordinary telephone plug. Use copper braid one-quarter of an inch in width and approximately one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness, commencing at the inside row of slots. Press the braid into the slots making the winding in a circular form, connecting the two ends of the winding to the two terminals of the telephone plug.

Good Ground Connections.

A great many grounds for receiving sets are secured on water or gas pipes. Those are usually satisfactory grounds, but sometimes they make a very poor ground and are responsible for the poor operation of the set, which is blamed elsewhere. The reason for this is that a good many pipes have the threaded joints cemented with white lead or paint to make them air or water tight. This is a high resisance and cuts down the efficiency of the set very materially. The ground clamp is the best method to secure a good ground. Remember, the surface of the pipe where it is to be attached should be scraped or filed clean and bright, as the clamp will not make a proper connection when used over paint or other protecive covering the pipe. Cold water systems are to be preferred to those of the heating system so as to avoid the expansion and contraction of the metal which will make a loose connection in time. To make certain that the ground is satisfactory, combine grounds secured in several places and run them all to the ground binding post on the set.

For the Notebook.

Old dry-battery terminals can be used for binding posts.

A ground connection to a cold-water pipe is much better than one to a radiator.

A dynamic speaker will improve the quality of the reproduction of an inferior receiver, but it will not make a good set out of a poor one.

Keep the set clean, both inside and outside. Dust accumulation soon gives rise to current leakage, which reduces the efficiency and introduces noises blamed on static.

Distorted tones coming from the receiver are sometimes due to a defective loud-speaker, and not to the set itself. The best way to conduct a test is to borrow a neighbor's speaker and try it on the circuit.

Continuous vibration of a receiver sometimes causes the elements of the tubes to become loosened so that they become quite microphonic after a while, and also to loosen certain connections in the set.

Radiograms.

Approximately 90 per cent of the communication of the United States navy is now carried on through radio.

Russia now has 67 broadcasting stations. The estimated number of receiving sets in use is only 250,000, or fewer than 4,000 to each transmitting station.

The Radio club of Princeton university has so organized its members and its station, 3DH, as to be able to send free of charge messages to practically any part of the world at any time for undergraduates of the university. The club recently announced that Christmas greetings will be sent anywhere for members of the university, "whether they be addressed to Camden, N. J., or Canton, China."

The History of Thanksgiving Day

The First Thanksgiving—1621

From the painting by J. L. G. Ferris.

In 1628, a day of feasting and prayer in the midst of drough. was changed into Thanksgiving by the coming of rain.

Gradually the New England colonial governors established the custom of Thanksgiving by designating a day each year after harvest.

During the Revolution a day of national Thanksgiving was annually recommended in congress.

In 1864, President Lincoln appointed a day of Thanksgiving and since then the presidents have issued a Thanksgiving proclamation annually.

THE "OLD WEST" IS NOT SO OLD

Vivid memories of the "Old West" were reawakened last Friday with the brief announcement that the state of Oklahoma was celebrating its twenty-first birthday. That is the age when a man comes into his legal rights.

For many years, however, before its admission to statehood, Oklahoma had attained its physical growth If settlement, development and population had been the sole considerations in determining its relations with the national government, Oklahoma would have become a state long before the date that recognition was formally accorded it—November 16, 1907.

It was in the late eighties that settlers began to drift into Oklahoma territory. At that time the plan was to make two states of its 70,057 square miles of territory. Once the flood of people to its borders started, however, there was no abatement. No state in the union ever gained more rapidly in population. The census of 1890 gave it 258,657 citizens. Ten years later, in 1900, or seven years before it became a state, there were 790,391 while in 1910, or but three years after statehood, its population was 1,657,155. The last census showed Oklahoma had 2,028,283 people, or three-quarters of a million more than our own native state of Nebraska.

And yet no portion of the "Old West" was more picturesque or colorful than this commonwealth which has just "come of age."

Its trails echoed to the hoofbeats of long lines of cattle slowly working their way northward from the Texas Panhandle. There were bold and daring bands of violent men who sought to lose themselves from the relentless pursuit of officers of the law, seeking to bring them to justice. There was the open-hearted hospitality, the ready generosity, the quick comradeship of people facing common dangers and common hardships. Then oil was discovered in the soil which had been the despair and the joy of those who tried to till it.

With its discovery, the pageant of the "Old West" was re-enacted. It brought hundreds of thousands of eager settlers, bent upon making a "strike" which would enable them to live in comfort and in riches. Towns became roaring cities, wealth poured out in streams, great industries were established, and towering skyscrapers lifted their roofs to the heavens. It gave Oklahoma its "Deadwood" and its "Cripple Creek." It brought its gunmen and its gamblers, its bandits and its highwaymen but they were only a sprinkling of the multitude of sober, industrious, thrifty men and women who drifted into this more remarkable region.

One historic event stands out in the story of the settlement of Oklahoma. That was the method of parcelling out 160-acre claims which opened up a vast 100-mile strip of country to homesteaders. "Run" is the only word which describes it, for thousands lined up on foot, with teams and wagons, and on horseback on the starting line to stake up a claim somewhere in the unsettled expanse. It had a duplicate later when the same system was employed to parcel out lots in Oklahoma City.

Oklahoma's sister states will join in felicitating her upon the amazing progress which has characterized her admission to statehood. She is a rich and powerful commonwealth. She boasts of two large cities—Tulsa and Oklahoma City—and scores of others while not so large in population fill with complete satisfaction that human hunger for "Home." She has balanced educational progress with material advance. Her state university is one of the finest in the country, and her other colleges take high rank. Her public school system is adequate for all needs. Her spiritual life is matured in magnificent church buildings, her parks and her roads bespeak a strong civic spirit.

In a measure Oklahoma is symbolical of all of the western country.

Men of middle age may recall that when they attended public school, the territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington were still indicated upon the geography of the United States. That is all the more amazing when it is recalled that New Mexico, with the first known settlement in 1537, and Arizona, in 1580, were the far-flung outposts of the Mexican empire. From Dakota, two states were carved—North and South Dakota each taking their place in the union on November 2, 1889. Little less than a year before, Washington territory had been officially recognized on November 11, 1888. Six days after the Dakotas attained statehood, Montana, with her 46,997 square miles of territory, came into the union. On July 11, 1889, Wyoming was granted admission, and just a year later, lacking eight days, Idaho took her place.

Think what a remarkable acquisition in territory, in material resources, and in population that period of history represented. Here are the states and their area; with the date of admission:

State	Admission	Area
Washington	Nov. 11, 1888	69,127 square miles.
North Dakota	Nov. 2, 1889	70,837 " "
South Dakota	Nov. 2, 1889	77,615 " "
Montana	Nov. 8, 1889	146,997 " "
Idaho	July 3, 1890	83,880 " "
Wyoming	July 11, 1889	97,914 " "

More than a half a million square miles of territory boasting of hidden stores of priceless minerals, great forests of fabulous wealth, and millions of acres of land upon which cattle might graze and crops might be produced ushered into the crowning glory of statehood in the brief span of a decade.

One other great period followed on its heels, with Oklahoma, admitted in 1905 and New Mexico and Arizona coming in seven years later or on January 6, 1912 and February 14, 1912 respectively. New Mexico's physical area was 122,634 square miles, Arizona's 113,956, and Oklahoma's 70,057. That is another 400,000 square miles of territory. Thus in the short period of twenty-five years, the American nation was enlarged by the addition of more than a million square miles of land, divided among nine sovereign states. And it was not so long ago, either. They have made their contribution to the national wealth and happiness.

REMEMBER THE POSTMAN.

Approach of the holiday season again furnishes the American people with an opportunity to show their consideration for others. For the postman and for scores of employes in mercantile establishments, Christmas is a reason of increased labors. Hence at this time the postal authorities are resurrecting the slogan of shop early and mail early.

Most of us are guilty of procrastination, particularly so when it comes to the problem of selecting Christmas gifts. Naturally we desire to put some thought and care into their choice but unfortunately when we delay our shopping the opportunities for it are lost. Each year after a frenzied last minute rush we form the splendid resolution to do our shopping early and then too many of us forget it for eleven months and twenty-three days.

In his communication to the public, Postmaster Trev Gillaspie calls attention to the fact there are just twenty-four shopping days before Christmas. Now is the time to find stocks fresh and complete and to make selections free from the inconveniences of hustling crowds. Mail for distant points should be in the postoffice not later than December 15, and for nearby points by December 18, in order to insure delivery before Christmas day.

PORTO RICO AND STATEHOOD.

The people of Porto Rico want state government and the majority party is to bend all its efforts in that direction, according to late news dispatches from the island. To that end they have prepared and will have introduced in the congress of the United States a bill providing for a constitutional amendment allowing overseas states. Under this amendment the representatives in congress from such states would be permitted to vote only on such legislation as might effect those states, while other national laws would not be enforced in insular states unless ratified by the legislatures of the same.

Some time ago Porto Ricans were demanding independence, but they have apparently changed their attitude in that respect, the futility of pressing such demand being obvious. State government such as is now asked, however, does not appear to be beyond the realm of possibility, and should it eventually be brought about might prove to be for the best interest of all concerned.

It should be understood that the Porto Ricans are a proud people, with a rich country, which has made remarkable progress since coming under the rule of the United States thirty years before. That it did not make greater progress prior to that time was in large measure due to the repressive colonial policy of Spain. The people of the island appreciate what has been done for them by the United States, but they are of a different race, with different traditions and inclinations from those of the governing country; and they desire to govern themselves to as great an extent as is possible, while still retaining allegiance to America.

To what end does the United States hold Porto Rico? Principally that it may not fall into the hands of any other nation, thus becoming a menace to us, and that it may be available to us for military or naval purposes should it become necessary. It has always been denied that there was anything imperialistic in our taking the island from Spain; we have not been actuated by lust of power nor desire to exploit the people of Porto Rico for our own material gain. Why then, should not the people of Porto Rico be allowed to govern themselves, even as are the people of the sovereign states of this union?

Porto Ricans believe that they should be allowed this privilege and they propose to lay the matter before the people of the United States for their decision.

AN ESTABLISHED INDUSTRY.

Five years ago when severe depression in agriculture necessitated sharp readjusment in Nebraska, the Dairy association began its campaign to improve the dairy herds on the farms in this state. The fact that butter production has been increased from 65,000,000 pounds to 120,000,000 is ample evidence of the effectiveness of its efforts. But that does not tell the entire story. In the same period of time Nebraska has built up a stable cheese industry which is adding materially to the wealth of the farmers of this region.

There were grave misgivings when it was first suggested Nebraska should attempt to fit her rapidly-growing dairy industry into cheese-making. It was said that climatic conditions were unsuitable to the successful operation of cheese factories. Wisconsin, the leading dairy state of the union, was blessed with a cool climate during the summer months. During a considerable portion of the summer in Nebraska, it was claimed operation was impossible. Then again the doubters insisted milk production in the state had not been built up to a point where a cheese factory could depend upon the regular supplies necessary for economical production.

In the North Platte valley seven cheese factories have been built in the last five years and have enjoyed a profitable existence. Announcement Thursday that another factory was to be constructed at Bayard is an indication of the success which has greeted the efforts to establish the cheese industry. There are now more than twenty plants in the state, most of them small to be sure, producing 750,000 pounds of cheese yearly. That record of production has given Nebraska important ranking in the nation. In the face of the earlier failure in this state, the present expansion of an industry which was tried and abandoned thirty years ago, only to be revived and carried through successfully, furnishes every reason for encouragement and pride.

PRESIDENTIAL RECREATION.

President-elect Herbert Hoover takes his place alongside the imposing list of American presidents who can handle the rod and reel with more than average skill. On his good-will tour to South America, Mr. Hoover gave a demonstration of his ability by catching two splendid specimens of deep sea fish which are noted for their gameness. He did such a thoroughly workmanlike job of it that even those who were bold enough to claim a reputation as a disciple of Izaak Walton were impressed.

Mr. Hoover will go into the white house with a formidable record as an angler. In that respect he has the advantage of Calvin Coolidge who did not discover the joy of fishing until three years after he assumed the heavy responsibilities of his office. But Mr. Coolidge has more than made good for lost time in seeking the out-of-doors in the last three years. He has been an inveterate fisherman during his summer vacations for the last three years and in Wisconsin discovered he was a fairly good shot. Consequently he is going into Virginia during the Thanksgiving holidays to try his hand at wild turkey hunting.

Woodrow Wilson never indulged in fishing or hunting but before him the portly and genial "Bill" Taft found recreation and pleasure in fishing although the golf links claimed him oftener. Colonel Roosevelt, who preceded Taft in the white house, was the greatest sportsman of all the American presidents. He was a remarkable fisherman and equally expert with the gun. His nearest rival since the Civil war was Grover Cleveland, who also fished in tropical waters.

A Virginia judge ruled that the death of a young man from drinking poisoned liquor was accidental. Such is the reputation of Southern hospitality.

A Connecticut dealer held a canary up to the phone and it sold itself. That's a mark for some "birds" we have heard through the receiver.

Looks like a surplus of presidents.

Disaster by Sea and Land

By WILL ROGERS

"I'll take mine in an airplane."

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers. This sea tragedy has just been about all we could see for the last 10 days, and it was awful hard to get your mind off it. Talk about stage plays and dramas, don't they fade into nothing when a thing like this comes along! And the great part about it is nobody knows where, or who will bob up in the way of a hero. The old ordinary that looks like a mere matter of fact, even weakling, might be the big thing in an emergency.

I will never forget when Canada entered the war and their first (and for that matter all their troops) had made such a brave fight. I think their first big hero was not some rugged Northwest Mounted Police, or some nervy westerner, it was a little enemic cigarette smoking piano player in a cheap movie house. He was the first to do something away beyond the demand in bravery.

Just think of that radio operator on that boat! Has to be sacrificed because he had to wait for orders from somebody that was thinking about his company instead of the lives of his people. You know those old fellows have just gone through so many things that it never strikes them that there will be any come up that they can't get through. I tell you I will take mine in an aeroplane and stay off those boats. In those things when you leave, if they are "listing" and not going so good you turn around and go back, or come down and land and fix it. They don't try to bull their way through. Expense to the owners means nothing to a good pilot in comparison to the safety of his passengers.

And say the old aeroplane thing is going along good. This commercial thing is developing fine, especially for mail and express. Passenger thing is not making headway as it should, for we are in too big a hurry in this country to even save time. We would rather talk about how big a hurry we are in than to do the hurrying.

New York Wiser.

Well I guess you all outside of the old "burg" wonder how she took the election. Well, it started out with what looked like was going to be an awful noisy night. But when those first returns commenced percolating in why it was just like rain on a country picnic. Horns that were meant to be blown might just as well have been meant for a decoration. They never uttered a blast. It was just a show that was billed but never come off. In the theaters the folks was pretty late coming in. They had stayed out purposely to see what would happen and when they saw they come in. I took my last straw vote of the audience that night. I had taken it at every performance since we opened, and I also took it all last year in almost every state in the Union, even before the nominations and am not boasting, but I think I had as good an idea as the Literary Dijest. Hoover run away with the vote on election night, the same as he had run a way with it in every town I had played all year.

New York took it pretty game though. They had a game loser to set the pattern for them. Smith never let out a squawk, and the statement that he issued over the radio a few days after made him a lot of friends.

'Course New York at heart felt mighty bad because they felt that the rest of the country had not stood by them. Having a big city man for the first time they felt you all would help them out. In fact they did have a little of the New York conceit, and this has brought them to realize that there is a terrible lot of you boys that don't get your mail up and down one of these gullys here.

I kept trying to tell 'em you fellows had been doing a little thinking for yourselves and dident need any outside advice when it come to voting, but they still thought they could swing you over.

But now its all blowed over and you could hold a Klan Klam Blake in the center of Broadway and not have anyone hiss you. They just don't care now. Everybodys got their minds on something else.

Al left us and went down to play golf with Pat Harrison, the biggest surprise about that was to know that Pat Harrison could play golf. They will get a great welcome down there in Mississippi, thats the state that passed a resolution since the election to have Jefferson's and Lee's body moved from Virginia since it went Republican. They wanted em moved to Mississippi. They better been doing like North Carolina, and Texas, they better been passing some resolutions to get some factories down there. Thats what is making those two states step so fast, they are not looking for any historical prestige. This is an age of business, not tradition. Mississippi needent worry about Virginia. Virginia will run out of republicans like they run out of presidents.

Cooled Off Quick.

But take it all around the folks got over it all over the country mighty well. Everybody was awful het up, but they cooled off mighty quick. Both sides was haywire most all summer.

I personally believe that Al will make the race again. They aint nobody else that can hold that many votes. This fellow Roosevelt if he gets away good here in New York as governor is the only one I know of outside Al that could carry his own precinct. Well, yes they have got another awful good man, thats this Owen Young, head of the General Electric. He is the fellow that should have been chairman this year. He packs an awful lot of respect and ability. But I doubt if he has any idea of committing suicide So it looks like Al. He will remedy a many a mistake that was made in his name last time, and with four more years of dissatisfaction over this liquor he may round up the other five million.

Discussing the Campaign.

HAVELOCK, Neb., Nov. 22.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: So many have been expressing their opinions regarding the democratic defeat in the past campaign that I would like to say a few words to those democrats who seem to be down-hearted. I cannot consider it a defeat for true principles when fifteen and a half sovereign voters supported those principles. What I mean by sovereign voters are those who cannot be coerced for fear of losing their jobs, but who will stand by their principles no matter what the price.

In my time I have voted for president for only three men who I believed could not be controlled, and they were Blaine, Bryan, and Smith. The republican leaders knew that if Smith were elected, they could not swerve him from his sworn oath to enforce the laws and also to advise them what he believed was for the best interests for every man, woman, and child in our country.

Now Mr. Davis seems to think that all those men who have been in this fight should be replaced and I will agree with him if he is able to produce men capable of replacing them. How many young men in this last campaign came out to the front? Very few, he must admit. With a few men like Blaine or Bryan to help, we would have won.

The republican preachers claimed that if Bryan had lived he would have fought against Smith. I deny that charge. I get my authority from his book entitled, "The First Battle." The preachers in that campaign did everything they could to defeat him. Why?

And another thing, did any of those who were talking about how corrupt Tammany was tell of one corrupt act in the last fifty years? No. Now if they could not show any corruption in fifty years, how could any man be corrupt even though he affiliated with Tammany?

Bryan fought the gold standard and the republican leaders fought him and misled people in 1896. Those of us who have read his work

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright, 1928, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

What is religion coming to when religious conviction and conversion can be accomplished merely by a half hour conversation with hurrying laymen acting as deacons, which results in the signing of a card and the selection of the most convenient day for joining whatever church is near by?

If that is the religion Jesus Christ founded, mine must be a bootleg Bible. Business men and the psychologist have apparently joined forces to convince us that, after all, it is not converts that churches need, but customers.

This is a caricature rather than a description of conversion, and also one exhibiting ecclesiastical animus. Why not read as a corrective the accounts of conversion given by typical Protestants? The spiritual experiences related by men and women of transformed and serviceable lives are worthy of your serious attention and should be consulted before you further discuss the matter in hand.

Any process of regenerating grace, whether sacramentarian or evangelical, can be similarly misrepresented by ill disposed persons. What matters it how a soul's access to its redeeming God is obtained, provided He is made manifest to that soul?

I have known members of all churches whose witness to the reality of fellowship with Christ is one and the same. Yet in some instances they received it at the mass, in others at the penitent form, in still others by educational means. Neither is there need to drag in your version of the Bible, since all versions practically agree on the basic teaching of Israel and of Christianity.

Your allusion to converts versus customers is equally infelicitous. Prophets and apostles rank far higher in biblical doctrines than business men and psychologists. Consult St. Paul on conversion and you will not have to reduce its divine power to the level of the market place or the vagaries of psychology.

Elmwood, Mass.

Will you please state again what, upon careful review, are the merits of Swedenborg, and gratify many of your readers.

I have read with interest the able letter which accompanies this question. From what it relates and all I can gather elsewhere Swedenborg seems to have believed that the truth as he saw and proclaimed it would spread itself and prevail. If this was his epectation it has not been fulfilled.

In his famous essay on the prophet, Emerson advertised the gist of his teachings. Yet has he ever had a great expositor? In my college days Prof. R. L. Tafel and Dr. Garth Wilkinson were his able advocates. But surely Swedenborg is worthy of the study of a first-class interpreter who will do for him what Huxley did for Darwin and the theory of evolution. His scattered principles, buried in numerous volumes and expressed in a prolix style, should be resolved into a coherent system.

It will not be an easy task, and the scholar who undertakes it must be prepared to spend laborious days and nights upon it. Yet until it is accomplished we shall not know Swedenborg as he deserves to be known, and consequently his following will be limited.

I wonder if his development is not paralleled by that of Tolstoy. The craeers of both celebrities were sharply divided into two parts. The Russian was first a novelist and then a seer. Swedenborg was first a scientist and then a seer. As a scientist his standing is good. As a seer it is even better. Yet he never seems to have acquired the range of influence exercised by Plotinus and the later mystics. This can only be the fault of presentation, for in intellect, knowledge, sincerity and practical endeavor Swedenborg was the superior of the majority of mystics. As I have said in previous answers, he molded the spiritual thinking of not a few leading men and women. Had he written more simply and directly it is a fair inference that his light would have shone more clearly for the multitude.

Which do you consider the best histories of a great war and the best biography of a great soldier?

I presume Caesar's Commentaries take classic rank, but William Napier, who was brought up on them and on Plutarch's "Lives," wrote a "History of the Peninsular War" which is one of my favorite works.

There are many crudities and mistakes in Napier's account of the prolonged struggle in Spain and Portugal that ended in Wellington driving every marshal of France opposed to him over the Pyrenees and across the plains of France. But the literary genius of the book is marvelous and its knowledge is not less comprehensive than its emotional appeal is powerful.

For the best biography of a great soldier I select Colonel Henderson's "Life of Stonewall Jackson," who showed that men and not mountains, quick daring balanced by intimacy with the territory and not numbers, decide the fate of battle.

Famous Pets Of Famous People

GAUTIER'S DOG LUTHER, WHICH KEPT WATCH ON HIM AFTER HE LEFT HOME AND MOTHER.

"So Luther gave himself up to chasing rats."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

Theophile Gautier, the celebrated French writer, had a great deal of fondness for both cats and dogs, though his partiality seems to have extended more to cats than to dogs.

He pleaded in extenuation that there was in his liking for canines "a strong admixture of fear" because "these animals, excellent, and faithful, devoted as they are, may at any moment run mad."

Gautier whimsically writes: "But, apart from this, dogs somehow produce a disquieting effect upon us. Their eyes are so deep, so intense; they place themselves before us with such an interrogative air that it is embarrassing. Goethe did not like, any more than ourselves, this gaze which seems to assimilate a man's most secret thoughts. He would drive the poor animals away and say to them, 'You have done your best; you shall not devour my identity.'"

One of the earliest dogs to claim the affections of Gautier was a handsome red and white pointer, with brown ears, called Luther.

Luther had lost his original master and finally adopted the Gautiers and their home, which was then at Passy. He was a hunting dog, but the Gautiers were not hunters, so Luther gave himself up to chasing rats, and the author says he became as proficient at this sport as a fox terrier. However, he had greater gifts than this.

Soon after the pointer had become a part of the household at Passy, Theophile Gautier took his "final flight from the family nest," establishing himself in bohemian quarters with artist and literary friends in a quarter of Paris near the Louvre. From then on, Luther took upon himself the duty of making Gautier a daily visit.

He left Passy each morning at an early hour, followed the Quai de Bolly and the Cours-la-Reine, and arrived at Mr. Theophile's apartment about eight o'clock, just as he was waking up.

Invariably he followed the same procedure. Scratching at the door, which was speedily opened for him, he threw himself upon Gautier with joyous yelping, put his forepaws upon the young man's knees, received a few caresses, got down and made a rapid inspection of the room, and then set out on his homeward journey.

Arrived at Passy, he ran at once to Gautier's mother, wagged his tail, and barked, saying as plainly as word's, according to the writer, "Do not be anxious. I have seen the young master and he is well."

Having delivered himself of his message, he would lap a bowl of water, eat his porridge, stretch himself near the easy chair of Madame Gautier, whom he particularly loved, and nap an hour or two to refresh himself from the labor of his self-imposed journey.

Commenting on Luther's assumption of this daily duty, which had not been suggested to him in any way, Gautier says:

"Those who hold that animals do not think and are incapable of putting two ideas together, may explain as best they can this daily visit which kept up the family relations, and gave to the old birds in the nest regular news of their recently escaped fledgling."

Luther had a sad end. He became silent and morose. Eventually from bits of news received here and there, the Gautiers reached the conclusion, with good reason, that he had been killed as a mad dog. They believed he had fled from home so that he might not be led to bite his master.

Here and There

The French Giant.

(The Grand Rapids Herald.)

France has turned once more to Raymond Poincare as the pilot of the ship of state. When radical members of his ministry retired out of lack of sympathy with current measures, the last Poincare government crashed. The premier resigned along with his aids. But, after more than a week of surveying the other potential leaders of government, President Doumergue again has given authority to Poincare. France has no man who is his equal; and, for that matter, where is there another of like stature in all of Europe? He has been the key statesman of France for nearly 20 years. Since he first assumed the premiership in 1912, he has been, except for brief intervals, either at the tiller of the ship or on the presidential bridge constantly. Since 1912 England has intrusted her government to Asquith, Lloyd George, MacDonald, etc. The men who were high in the councils of government during the war seldom now are heard of in England. But Poincare, who once was feared by the world at large as unstable, continues to dominate France. During the war as president he was the man who dared to call the redoutable Clemenceau, hitherto feared as a superradical, to the headship of government. Since the war it has been Poincare as premier who has formulated the financial policies which gradually are extricating France from the post-bellum fiscal slough. Gladstone figured in the government of England for 62 years first entering parliament in 1832 and retiring for the last time from the premier's post in 1892. Poincare does not approach that record. But he has been for 41 years active in the government of France, first entering the chamber of deputies in 1887. It was 16 years ago that he formed his first government as premier. He has weathered the storms of France's greatest menace, and has survived, lacking some of the fire of war time, but still at 68 a virile figure. France is not lacking in other leadership. Briand for example, is a brilliant diplomat and student of foreign affairs. But France knows her leaders; and with eloquent constancy she turns to Poincare for safe guidance. Americans cannot sympathize wholly with him in his attempts to balance an unwieldly budget, so long as the

Three Governors Appear In This Old Photo of Former University of Nebraska Students

Standing: Horace Whitmore, Ernest Gerard, Eugene W. Brown, Billy Wilson, William Johnston.
Seated: George Dern, Ed Strode, James Johnston, Arthur Weaver, Adam McMullen.

Were they collegiate—and how! Back in the days of '94, long before the hatless era had struck the campus of Nebraska university, when only Eskimos appeared in raccoon coats, and when ankle socks were still to be thought of, three men who have been prominent politically, in this state and others as well, were students at the University of Nebraska, and were charter members of Beta Tau chapter, Delta Tau Delta.

These men were Adam McMullen, present governor of Nebraska, Arthur Weaver, governor-elect, and George Dern, governor of Utah, who was re-elected to his second term this fall, and about the only survivor of the republican landslide in his state.

Surely there is never a boy who does not dream of being a conquering hero, but only too often is he content with dreams. However, Adam McMullen, Arthur Weaver and George Dern were spurred on to bigger and better things through various influences.

In case no one would recognize him, Governor-elect Weaver is the rather poetic looking person who is reclining gracefully on the arm of the chair occupied by the man seated in the center. His Delt pin is on the right lapel of his coat, and we can't help but wonder why.

Governor McMullen is seated in the front row at the right, looking very much as though he knew what it were all about. In the front row on the left is none other than Gov. George Dern.

Governor Dern, by the way, had a very clever campaign slogan this year which, no doubt, won him many votes. His opponent's name was Maybe, and so, the slogan read like this: "We want a Dern good governor and we don't mean Maybe." Judging from his appearance he must have been as popular in school as the other two governors.

In the same group with the three governors, were other Delts who also made worthwhile progress in their varied lines. Ed Strode, for instance, was considered one of Nebraska's foremost attorneys, and the two Johnston brothers, William and James, have also won enviable places in the legal world, so it is said. Wilmer W. Wilson is now a member of the supreme court commission.

Recently Mr. Weaver, Governor Dern and Governor McMullen spent a short time together at the executive mansion, when Governor and Mrs. Dern were guests at the McMullen home last week end. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver came from Falls City and the three charter members of Delta Tau Delta talked over old times, and plans for future activities.

NEBRASKA BOYS AND GIRLS ENTER NATIONAL CONTEST

lated a fine herd and a satisfactory bank account. Borrowing $30 to buy his first pig, he has since then bought all his feed and sows with his own money, besides saving money. Anthony has practically become a local leader, as well as a club member. He is a firm believer in starting with the best stock, and as proof he offers that he sold one pig for twice the amount his original sow cost.

One of the prominent club boys is Watson Norris of Eagle, a member of the Eagle Blue Ribbon corn club, which has gained its own fame in the state. Watson is one of its strongest members and a leader among the others. A corn club member for four years, he this year was adjudged corn club champion.

He helped with the county exhibit which placed first and displayed the contrast between the amount of water required by sunflowers and corn. It emphasized the importance of clean cultivation.

Marguerite Holcomb of Broken Bow, Nebraska's champion 4-H food judge, and Fairy Wooters of Broken Bow are to represent the state as its food team. Marguerite placed first in food judging at the fair and Fairy third, and together they form the champion team. These girls are likewise the members of the champion home ec judging team.

Health Champions.

Nebraska's healthiest boy and girl are Clyde Gadekin of Kimball and Ruth Long of Cowles. In the annual contest at the state fair, Ruth scored 97.6 and Clyde 95.45. They will compete with other healthy youngsters from all parts of the country when in Chicago.

The members of the 4-H livestock judging team do their work previous to the arrival of some of thecontestants of the congress, but they are a vital part of the meeting. Irvin Nolte of Eagle, William of Nebraska, and Harold Wahl of Eagle are the three members. Clyde Walker, former Smith-Hughes instructor at Eagle, has removed to Oregon, and the boys are being taken by L. R. Snipes, county agent, and C. S. Maddox, state agent in charge of livestock at the college of agriculture.

Harold Moline and Milton Thorson, both of Mead, are going to Chicago to demonstrate the tattooing of hogs every afternoon at the international Live Stock exposition, Union stock yards, held at the same time as the club congress. Boys from three Nebraska and six Iowa counties entered teams in the recent Ak-Sar-Ben live stock show in Omaha, and the Mead youngsters placed first. They are given their expenses by the Tuberculosis Eradication committee of the Live Stock Exchange.

The state champion team in farm demonstration will also attend the congress. Clifford and Wayne Domingo are the members.

These champion boys and girls are to attend a conference, where they will gain inspiration from other young people interested in the same projects, and will receive a number of intangible benefits. The congress establishes ideals and standards for club work by giving opportunity for competitive exhibits, demonstrations and judging ability, furnishes the visitors an educational program with tours about the city, contributing to their education, and extends the 4-H club movement so that it may reach additional thousands of rural youths.

Martel District No. 22 First In State To Meet Requirements Needed to Qualify As A Superior Standard Rural School

District No. 22, Martel school, Lancaster county, has been designated as the first Superior Standard Rural school in Nebraska. It scored niney-six points.

This school has an up-to-date, attractive brick school building with a good-sized porch with roof. In addition to the class rooms there are two cloakrooms, a library room, and a full sized basement. In addition to meeting the requirements for a Standard school, this school has a well sodded lawn, neatly fenced with Spanish barberry hedge of 320 plants, planted with twenty-five growing trees, twelve tamarack bushes and 126 small lilac bushes.

This school has a basement which serves as a work and play room, as well as a community room, cloak rooms, and library room, and is lighted by electricity. The library contains 105 juvenile books with not less than ten suitable for each grade a good school encyclopedia, large unabridged dictionary and thirteen desk dictionaries, and United States and university extension bulletins.

P. T. A. Assisted.

A progressive Parent-Teacher association is co-operating with the school. The teacher has complied with the standards for better rural school teaching. The school is well equipped with pictures: Monarch of Glen, Can't You Talk, Lincoln, Hoovver, and Old Ironsides. The Parent-Teacher association and the school recently purchased a piano for the school.

Miss Louise Hornung is the teacher and the members of the board are: Mr. Ernest Freye, director, Mr. John Brandt, and Mr. Carl Brandt, Martel.

There are at this time 561 standard schools in Nebraska.

In order to be a standard school a school must score 75 points of a possible 100 points and meet the following minimum requirements:

1. The school term must be at least nine months in length.
2. The teacher must have one year of experience or the equivalent in training.
3. School grounds must be adequate, well-drained, and kept clean. One or more acres of ground is also recommended.
4. There shall be a good well on the grounds or nearby and sanitary methods for the use of water must be provided.
5. The school must provide single desks of suitable size adjusted to the needs of the children, and the room must contain at least fifteen square feet of floor space to each child.

Abundant Light and Air.

6. The school room must be lighted from the left or the left and rear with the window area equivalent to one-fifth of the floor space.
7. Heating must be of approved type and the room must contain 200 cubic feet of air space for each child.
8. The school must be equipped with teacher's desk and chair, dictionary, globe, maps, blackboards, and up-to-date textbooks.
9. Sanitary methods of cleaning must be employed.
10. Outbuildings must be placed as far apart as possible, and kept clean and free from marks. In front of each there should be a board shield screening the entrance.

The first superior standard rural school of the state is located in District No. 22 at Martel, and has been so adjudged because the building is well equipped, the teacher has proper training, the surroundings are sanitary and well kept, the patrons co-operate with the board and the teacher, and the course of study is well covered by the pupils. W. H. H. Moore erected the school and presented it to the district a year ago.

Superior" Requirements.

In order to be a superior school, the school must meet the following requirements in addition to meeting the requirements for a standard school:

1. There must be at least one acre of school yard, neatly fenced, covered with a good sod and planted with trees, shrubs and flowers, and concrete or cinder walks to the entrance and to outbuildings.
2. There must be a well equipped with sanitary drinking fountain within doors.
3. Besides the schoolroom, there should be a basement, work and play room, cloak room, and a library room.
4. The library shall contain at least eighty juvenile books, ten suitable for each grade, a standard school encyclopedia, suitable dictionaries, and a supply of the bulletins published by the United States government and the University of Nebraska, useful in the school and in the community.
5. There must be in operation a Parent-Teacher association which secures the hearty co-operation of the parents with the school.

Need Re-inspecting.

6. When the teacher, under whose administration the school is recognized as "superior," ceases to teach school, it must be re-inspected to remain so recognized. The teacher should meet the requirements of the "Standards for Better Rural School Teaching." The teacher shall hold not less than a first grade elementary certificate. The school must score 95 per cent.
7. In conclusion, before a school can be recognized as "superior," the teaching and the schoolhouse must in every respect be suitable to the best work; it must be equipped with everything necessary; it must be taught by a teacher of superior qualifications and skill; the course of study must be well covered by the pupils; the people of the district must co-operate to make the school "superior" in every respect. The work of the teacher, the pupils, and the patrons, is of first importance.

Before asking for inspection with a view to being recognized as a "suerior" school, the school should be thoroughly inspected by the county superintendent to make sure that all the requirements have been met. If, in his or her judgment, the school is up to the requirements he should arrange for inspection of the school by a representative of the state department at the time that the high schools of the county are being inspected.

W. W. H. Moore who erected this modern school and presented it to the district gives all the credit o the Parent-Teacher association, the community, and County Superintendent Charlotte Alexander. He said, "You should have seen the army of men laying the sod and working for the school. The credit belongs to the community. All the efforts have been made for the the little folks."

Names of Lincoln People Trace Far Back to Ancient Woods, Valleys, and Even Land

"In the New York city directory the fourth most common name is Murphy, and the fifth is Meyer. These names rank fifty-seventh and forty-first respectively for frequency in Lincoln. The first three names in New York for popularity are Smith, Brown and Miller, and these rank first, sixth and third in Lincoln, where Johnson is second.

"Miller is second in Philadelphia, thirtieth in Boston, and fourth in Baltimore. Jones is second in England and Wales, twenty-third in New York, and seventh in Lincoln. The names which rank eighth and ninth in America's largest city are Cohen and Levy. There are but thirteen Cohens in Lincoln, two Levys. Levi appears four times. Robinson is twelfth in England, thirty-ninth in New York, and twenty-third locally. In Chicago Johnson is first and Anderson third. The latter is fourth in Lincoln.

33 Myers In Lincoln.

"Olson ranks forty-third in Lincoln, Meyer forty-first, and Schmidt thirty-ninth. Hansen is nineteenth and Taylor, fourteenth. In Chicago these four names are all ahead of Taylor. In that same city Hoffman and Becker are ahead of Ward. Hoffman is found just twenty-seven times in Lincoln, Becker forty-eight and Ward, which ranks fifty-sixth, occurs fifty-three times. There are thirty-three Myers in Lincoln, but in Philadelphia this name ranks just below Robinson."

With that introduction, Miss Pearl Joan Cosgrave begins an interesting survey of "Surnames of Greatest Frequency in Lincoln." It is a study made recently at the University of Nebraska.

Continuing her investigation, Miss Cosgrave says there are more Smiths in the United States than Johnsons, and more Johnsons than Browns, according to one authority. The Browns are third in this list of the ten names of greatest total national usage. Of the surnames in the Lincoln city directory for 1926-27, Smith is first with 414. Schmidt appears 84 times, Schmitt 17, Schmitte once, Smyth, Smitz and Smitty, each once. There are four Schmitzes. Smith with its variants total 504. The United States has 1,304,300 Smiths.

Appear Most Often.

The 10 names of greatest national frequency are Smith, Johnson, Brown, Williams, Jones, Miller, Davis, Anderson, Wilson and Moore, in the order named. In Lincoln, the order follows Smith, Johnson, Miller, Anderson, Wilson, Brown, Jones, Davis, Thompson, and Nelson.

Of the 1,024,220 Johnsons in the country, 387 live in Lincoln. Five Johannes, 18 Johns, one Johnes, 2 Johansens bring the total to 413. Johnston appears 57 times and Johnstone once.

Three hundred Millers reside in Lincoln, according to Miss Cosgrave. Milner, the oldest form of the name is used three times, the Scotch Millar once and Mueller 13 times. Muller appears three times, the Scandinavian Moller two, Moeller 12, and Mohler four, with a total of 338.

Lincoln has 260 Andersons, one Andreson, eight Andersons, or a total of 269. Wilson is numbered 212 times, Wills 3, Willson three, and Wilsen one, bringing the number to 219. Brown, nationally third, appears 205 times in the city, Browne five times, and Braun seven. Jones appears 170 times here, Jonas twice, and Joneson once. Davis is used 168 times in Lincoln, Davies 14 times and Davison the same. Williams has 135 persons, Williamson 15 times and Wilhelm 17. Moore is found locally 113 times, Mohr 17, Moor once and Muir—the Scotch form, according to Miss Cosgrave — three times.

139 Thompson Names.

Thompson appears 139 times in the directory, with Thompsen adding five, Thomsen one, Thomson two, Tompson two, Tompkins three, Thoms four, Tomson three, Thomas 94, and Thomason three. Nelson, the tenth in popularity locally, is listed 138 times. Nelson 6 times, Neilson twice, Neilsen once, Nielsen nine and Nielson once.

Williams ranks eleventh in Lincoln, followed by Clark with 132, with seven Clarkes and one Clarkson. Peterson, thirteenth in rank, has 123 listings, Pedersen five, Pederson three, Peter four, Peters 32, and Petersen 29.

Taylor holds fourteenth place with 122. Campbell, with 115, fifteenth and Moore, tenth nationally, is sixteenth here. Becker appears 105 times. Martin 104, Hansen 96, Hanson 32, Scott 95, Wright and Robinson, each 89, White, Young and Hall each 83, Lewis 82, and Allen 81, with Allan twice, and Allyn three times.

Graham is listed 80 times, Grahm twice, Adams 76, Cook 75, Koch 28, Harris 74, Wood 73, Woods 52, Walker 73, Green and King 72, Hill 70, Roberts 64, Robertson 46, Robinson 89, Pierce 63, Meyer 62, Jackson 61, and Olson 60. In the Lincoln list of names, Meyer appears 62 times, Meyers 49, Myers 33, Meier 13, and Myer once. Jackson 61, Olson 60 and Olsen 11; Schneider 59, Bauer 58, Stewart 58, Phillips 56, Fisher and Marshall 56, Weber, Mills, Bailey 55, Long 54, Morris, Reed, Murphy 53, Lee 52, Ward, Evans 53, Sullivan 52, and Carter 51.

Brehm In First Place.

Of the surnames in the local directory between thirty and fifty times Brehm is first with 49. Others include Becker, Kelly, Gardner, Mason, Hunt, Erickson, Bennett, Cox 48, Larson and Elliott, 47, Butler and Jenkins 46, Turner, Perry, Dean and Bell 45, Wolfe, Wells, Sherman and Foster 44, Stevens and Jensen 43, George, Craig and Carlson 42, Watson 41, Swanson 40. In the thirties are Hudson and Wagner each numbering 39, Reynolds, Chapman, Mitchell and Carr 38, Stone, Cunningham and Rogers 37, McCoy 36 Richards, Homes, Abbott and Morgan 35, Armstrong, Porter, Ferguson, and Schwartz 34, Little 33, Austin, Palmer, Edwards, Wheeler, Howard, McDonald, James, Welch, Hamilton, Andrews, Warner and Coleman 32. Names appearing 31 times are Ray, Amend, Stroh, Zimmerman and Parker. Sharp, Loos, Griffin, Arnold, Black, Collins, Rice, Gibson, Schultz, and Roth are listed 30 times each.

Miss Cosgrave has found that the most popular patronymic surname locally is Johnson. Variants are Johannes, Johns, Johnes, and Johansen, meaning the son of John, as do Jones and Jennings. "Because of the lack of fixed spelling at the period when surnames were adopted, many Johnsons, today, are cognate in name with Johnstone," Miss Cosgrave writes. Jonas, Joneson, Jensen, Jenson, Janssen and Janson are also patronymics. The second most popular patronymic surname in Lincoln is Anderson. The Johnsens and Andersons are followed by Wilson, Jones, Davis, Thompson, Nelson, Williams, Peterson and Hansen.

Has Many Variations.

Variants of Anderson are found in Andrews, Andersen, Andreas, Andros, Andrus and Andreson. Wills, Willson and Wilsen are all varients of Wilson, the patronymic form of William, or Will. Wills having dropped the "son" of Davison, and Davidson is a patronymic of David. Nelsen, Nielsen, Nielson are variants of Nelson. Neil is from Nigel and gives the patronymics Neilson and Neilsen. Hudson and Hutson were sons of Hud, a very common medieval name, Miss Cosgrave found. Watson was the son of Wat, or Walter, regularly pronounced Water at an earlier date. Millson and Mills are the sons of Miles, though some forms of Miles, Mill and Miller have become confused. Alexander has given us Sanders, Saunders and Sanderson as patronymic forms.

The patronymic prefix Fitz claims Fitzgerald with eleven, Fitzpatrick with seven, Fitzsimmons with three, Fitz with two, and Fitzer, Fitzsim, and Fitzsimons with one each. The O's have O'Connor noted seventeen times, with 26 other O's in varying numbers, and Mc, a patronymic prefix, appears 275 times, with McCoy leading with 36.

Martin Most Common.

Of baptismal names used unaltered as surnames, according to the writer, the most common in Lincoln is Martin, appearing 104 times. Marten is perhaps from the animal. Thomas comes second with 94 and Lewis third with 82. Harris, Harriss, and Hawkins are from Henry. Henry turned to Harry except in Scotland and the English kings of that name were always called Harry by their subjects. Mason is derived from Matthew, and Thomas but Mason is usually from Thomas, and Abbott is a diminutive of Ab, which stands for Abel, or Abraham.

The most ppoular surname derived fro ma place, in Lincoln, is Moore, Scott, Hall, Wood, Green, Hills, Lees and Woods follow in the order given. Marsh occurs 23 times, and the Scandinavian forms for marshy land, Kerr and Carr, are found 9 and 38 times, respectively. There are 15 Heaths and Whitmarsh is also listed.

Continuing the survey of Lincoln names, Miss Cosgrave makes a study of Wood. "If it is a small wood, it is called Strode, or Straud. It may be a Redwood. People living about the region may be given such names as Atwood, Woodside, Underwood, Dubois and Underdown. The Forester, who loked after the forest, was called the Woodward. Woodworth, or Foster. Graves and Grove we find as well as Groves, and Grover. Graves is sometimes official however.

Peculiar Derivations.

"In northern England Shaw was almost as common a word as wood itself, and Holt was popular in the east and south. Broad-shaw has given Bradshaw, and also find Belshaw. A Slade was an opening in the wood, and glade or valley in the wood was called a Dean. This sometimes becomes Deahn, and included Dryden, Bradden, Snowden, Denner and Denman. A triagular piece of land was a Gore, and we also find Gordon. Hedge, and Hedges, have given us Hayes, Hays, Haynes, Haw, Hawes, Hay, Hayden and Haydon. Cowden and Borden also appear locally.

"Going from Wood and Field, we find it may be a Brownfield, a Whitfield, or a Greenfield. If it is well taken care of it is a Beauchamp or Fairfield, perhaps. The Fielder may have several Fields, under his care, and in the course of time may cal lhis Field a Champ, Champe, Shamp or Schamp. A hollow in the hills was called a Combe, sometimes Comb, Combs, Duncombe or Whitcomb."

Aces Club Is of Special Service to Young Man In His Years of Adjustment

Aces Club of the Young Men's Division of the Y. M. C. A.
Upper row—J. C. Hollingworth, Cliff Carter, Myron Busch, Henry Baker, L. E. Dade, W. A. Brokaw.
The following were members, who were not in the picture: Roy B. Hackman, Richard Hufnagle, R. V. Matthews, C. C. Robinson, Lloyd Walter, Wendell Woods.

The Lincoln Young Men's Christian association recognized the importance of working with young men of 18 to 24 and organized its program with their development in mind. In this period, that between leaving the parental home and establishing one's own home, arise such problems as vocational choice, adjustment, selection of a life partner, range of religious, social and physical affiliations, and in fact the whole of life's philosophy.

Two years ago eight young men organized what is now known as the Aces club. The letter of the name "aces" make up the first letters of the words, athletics, Christianity, education and sociability. Their purpose is to promote the mental, social, religious, and physical development of its members.

Sponsor Week-end Camps.

During the two years fifty-six young men have been identified with the club. At present the the original eight are still members of the club. They are Raymond original eight are still members of the club. They are Raymond Abernethy, Paul Caulk, Dick Hufnagle, and Rex Matthews. This club has been very active in promoting club basketball, inter-club swimming.

A membership campaign was held last spring. The club has been the back-bone of the camping program for young men, having sponsored a total of six week-end camps during the past two years. The club members have affiliated and co-operated with the Y. W. C. A. in social programs during the summer and winter seasons.

The Aces club is now under the leadership of Merle Wissler, who was recently elected president to launch forth on a program of activities for the winter season which is in keeping with the boys character development and program carried on in the association for young men. Through this club they have developed initiative leadership ability determining their own program and are rendering valuable service to the Y. M. C. A.

McCook Junior Notes

Convocation on Tuesday was given over to a program of student talent. Miss Eleanor Suess, Miss Estelle Zink, and Miss Elizabeth Manley gave a number of violin, flute, and piano trios. Miss Zink is not a student of tht college, but his played with Miss Suess and Miss Manley a number of times. The trios were followed by two humorous readings given by Miss Mildred Meyers. The program was completed with two piano solos played by Russell Whitaker.

The W. S. G. A. gave a luncheon to the women of the college and the women faculty members on Thursday noon. Miss Eleanor Suess was in charge of the program. She had secured Mrs. M. T. Boulware to give her reminisences of a Paderewski recital.

The W. S. G. A. board met on Thursday afternoon. They completed plans for a Christmas festival to tbe sponsored by them and planned a series of convocations for women.

Miss Gladys Tipton, director of music for the college, led the Friday afternoon session of the music section of the McCook Women's club.

Miss Helen Shurtleff and Miss Gertrude Clark entertained at bridge on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. A. N. Lineburg. Mrs. J. A. True won high honors.

The third episode of the history film, "The Pilgrim," was shown on Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium.

The cast for the operetta to be put on soon by the college glee clubs was announced on Tuesday. Those having principal parts are the Misses Mabel Warner, Margaret Finn, Mildred Meyers, and Martha Jones and the Messer. Charles McCarl, Russell Whitaker, Frank Uridil, Hervon Snider, Harold Kleckner and Thomas Egan.

AFTER ALL, Christmas shopping is merely shopping, and shopping is seeking the best assortments, service and values the shops afford. In order to secure the best results, shopping should be done leisurely, thoughtfully; with the best arranged, most extensive and comprehensive displays from which to choose; with the best attention and assistance the sales-person can accord. Such shopping advantages can only be assured to the Christmas shopper who shops early. It pays—it pleases.

The "Varsity Eight" On the Stage—Lincoln—

part in the picture. It must have been about five years ago that I saw it. I don't know whether this description will mean anything to you or not, but if you can supply me with the title, I shall be everlastingly grateful to you. Sincerely ALMA L.

No imposition at all, I assure you. I'm only happy to be of service to you and the rest of the fans with any information that I may be able to give. Your picture, I should say, is "Scaramouche." It's been so long since I saw it that I am a little hazy as to the context, but Alice Terry, Ramon Novarro and Lewis Stone all did some unusually capable work in the feature. Rex Ingram, as you perhaps recall, directed the production and it was released as a super-feature.

Dear Movie Editor—May I come in for a short visit with you today? I enjoy reading your "answers to the fans" in the Sunday paper, and find most of my questions answered before I get around to write in concerning them.

Corinne Griffith is my favorite star, but I don't very often see anything about her in your columns. I think she is an aristocrat in every sense of the word. She is beautiful, and graceful and wears her clothes with distinction. I never miss her pictures if it's at all possible to see them.

I noticed that she is making "The Divine Lady." I am so glad because I happened to read the book and I couldn't help thinking of her as the heroine all the time I was reading it, so you can imagine how delighted I was when I learned that she was going to play in it. Do you happen to know what picture she is working on now? Is she married and if so to whom? Has she any children? How long has she been in pictures and what was her occupation before she became a motion picture player? Also, how old is she?

Isn't Pauline Frederick making pictures now? I always liked her, too. I wish we could have a return of some of the old favorites. We have so many new ones bobbing up that I don't enjoy pictures as much as I used to when I could go and visit Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Pauline Frederick, and other old-timers.

Hoping I have not taken up too much of your time, I am

AN OLD TIMER.

Corinne accepts your praise with her most gracious bow. Fan letters are the only means the film players have of hearing their applause. Miss Griffith has been a general favorite over so many years that there is little left to be told about her. That is why she seldom appears on this page. It has been at least fourteen years since she made her first screen appearance.

She was a professional dancer and a beauty contest winner before she made her film debut. She started out as an extra and soon became a featured player for Vitagraph productions.

After several years as a Vitagraph player she went over to First National, where she starred in "Black Oxen." Later she decided to produce her own pictures, but was wise enough to return to First National when she discovered the grief connected with the production end of the picture industry.

"The Divine Lady" is Miss Griffith's first production under her new First National contract. She is about to start work on "Saturday's Children."

Your favorite is included among the six most successful beautiful screen stars, and she is also rated for her talent as well as her beauty. Nothing "beautiful but dumb" about Corinne.

In private life she is Mrs. Walter Morosco, and she has no children. Oh, yes, her age! I'll have to whisper it because she's just reached thirty. No more birthdays for Corinne.

You will have the pleasure of hearing Miss Frederick as well as seeing her again because she has a contract with Warner Brothers to be featured in Vitaphone productions. She has played in pictures late years occasionally, but has spent most of her time on the stage.

You will feel more at home now at picture shows, because many of the older players are returning with the sound pictures. However, Norma, Mary and Gloria have been with us all the time. They have become so "ritzy" that they only make one or two pictures a year, which accounts for their sparse appearance.

Dear Movie Editor—Have you a place in your department for another new fan? I read your page every Sunday and often wish I could see my letter there, but I just couldn't get the nerve to write until now.

I've been having some trouble in convincing my friend that Alice White is a blond. She insists that she has heard Alice has brown hair, but wears a blond wig. I'm sure if you told us which is right, that would settle the argument for good and all.

And who was the boy that played the part of "Harold" in "Harold Teen." He certainly was a scream.

Who was "Bob" and who was "Marcella" in "Tracked by the Police." Rin-tin-tin played in the picture.

Please give me the cast for "Seventh Heaven" and I won't bother you any more this time. Many thanks.

A BLUE EYED FAN.

Move over fans, and make a place for this bashful young lady. We hope she will feel at home with us so she won't have to worry about writing her next letter.

I'll hold the stakes for you, but neither of you are right about Alice's hair. She does wear a blond wig, once in a while, but her real hair is neither blond nor brown. It is reddish gold.

Arthur Lake was the clever "Harold."

Jason Robards and Virginia Browne Faire were the pincipal human characters in "Tracked by the Police." Rinty was the star. He has his picture along with those of Irene Rich, May McAvoy, Conrad Nagel and others of importance at the Warner Brothers Studio. Done in oils, too. Nothing slow about that dog.

The cast for "Seventh Heaven" is: "Diane," Janet Gaynor; "Chico," Charles Farrell; "Brissac," Ben Bard; "Papa Boul," Albert Gran; "Gobin," David Butler; "Madame Gobin," Marie Mosquini; "Nana," Gladys Brockwell; "Pierre Chezillon," Emile Chautard; "The Rat," George Stone; "Uncle Georges Vulnar," Brandon Hurst; "Aunt Veltine Vulnar," Jessie Haslett.

Screen Siftings

His First Talkie—"Hunted" the vivid story of twenty-four hours elapsing after a prison escape, will be Willard Mack's first contribution to the talking screen. Mr. Mack will direct the play for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer from his own original dialogue story. Robert Ames, Duane Thompson and Mary Doran are prominent in the cast. They are all former stage players.

Ready For Work—Colleen Moore has returned to the First National Studio after a week's rest at Palm Springs and has plunged into the business of dancing lesson, screen tests, costume fittings, etc.—the preliminary steps for her new production, "That's a Bad Girl." Neil Hamilton will be her leading man, and William Seiter will direct the action.

Loans Fighters—The War Department at Washington has consented to loan some of its fighting equipment to John Boyce-Smith, vice-president of Inspiration Pictures, for some of the important sequences in "She Goes to War." The picture is coming to the screen under Henry King's direction from the story by Rupert Hughes. Eleanor Boardman, Edmund Burns, Al St. John, Alma Rubens, Margaret Seddon, John Holland and Eulalie Jensen are featured in the story.

Like Tall Ones—Leading men are gradually "getting altitude" in motion pictures. The heroes of a few years ago were all fairly short,—that is under six feet in heighth,—but the present day matinee idol rises six feet and over. On the Paramount lot, sixteen of the twenty-one male players under contract are six feet tall or over. Gary Cooper, Lane Chandler, John Loder and Robert Castle tower two inches over the six foot mark.

Sign Whiteman—Paul Whiteman, nationally known orchestra leader and song writer, has been signed by Universal to be starred in a super-sound production. Mr. Whiteman will start work on the feature shortly after the holidays, and in the meantime is originating several new tunes to introduce to the public in the picture.

Want Meighan—Talking pictures will give film fans an opportunity to hear Thomas Meighan on the screen. He is a veteran of the legitimate theater, and Warner Brothers were eager to sign him up as soon as his contract with Caddo productions was completed. No picture has been announced for Mr. Meighan but he expects to start work on his new contract after the first of the year. "The Racket" is Mr. Meighan's current release.

Lead For Nora Lane—As soon as Nora Lane completes her part opposite Adolphe Menjou in "Marquis Preferred," she will pack her make-up kit and take the train for Arizona where "Sunset Pass" is taking screen form. Miss Lane will play the leading role opposite Jack Holt in this new Zane Grey story. She is familiar with westerns, having made her "break" opposite Fred Thomson in his western pictures.

Back From Abroad—Dolores Del Rio has returned to Hollywood from her trip abroad and as soon as she rests up will start work on "Evangeline." The screen version of the Longfellow poem will be filmed by Edwin Carewe as a talking feature.

New Lon Chaney Song—Gus Edwards, famous for his "School Days" and other popular songs, has composed a new one which will be heard in his next Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer song revue. It is dedicated to Lon Chaney and titled, "Lon Chaney's Gonna Get You If You Don't Watch Out." The picture will not only be synchronized with sound, but will be filmed with natural color photography.

Select Title—Bebe Daniels new Paramount picture in which she takes the role of a newspaper reporter has finally been titled, "What a Night."

Chauffeur Again—Jack Mulhall just can't get away from chauffeur roles, and no wonder when the uniform is so becoming. His last chauffeur role was in "Man Crazy" with Dorothy Mackaill, and now he is co-featured with her again in "Children of the Ritz."

Want Man With "It"—It appears that leading men as well as leading ladies must have "It." First National is seeking a man to play opposite Alice White in "Hot Stuff." It's a jazzy tale of modern youth which Mervyn Le Roy will direct. Twenty-two probable "It" men have already been given film tests, but no hero has as yet been selected.

Work Rewarded—Joseph Schildkraut's work in "Show Boat," in which he played the part of Ravenal, was so commendable that he has been signed to a long-term contract by Universal. His first production under the new contract will be "The Bargain in the Kremlin." Work will start on the picture under Edward Sloman's direction shortly after the New Year. The picture will be made with sound and dialogue.

A Bit Particular—While Myrtle Steeman's face is not seen on the screen as frequently as in former years, she appears in an occasional picture when the role happens to be one that appeals to her. At present she is playing an important part in Fox's "The Great White North," which features Nancy Carroll and John Boles.

Work for Laura—Immediately upon her return from a shopping trip to New York, Laura La Plante will start work on the screen version of Adela Rogers St. John's story, "The Haunted Lady." Ian Keith, noted stage and screen actor, will play an important role opposite Miss La Plante.

University Notes

Prof. Clark E. Mickey, chairman of the civil engineering department, is in Kansas City, Mo., conferring with the United States army engineers in regard to flood control. He will return Monday.

Work on the directory of alumni of the college of engineering is expected to be completed by the first of the week. It will be published in the next issue of the Nebraska Blue Print, university engineering magazine.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I've noticed considerable talk about a picture to be filmed called "Noah's Ark." Has it been made yet, and if so by whom and who are the players? Or is it going to be made, or is it just a legitimate show that is making a hit?

How old is George K. Arthur? Is he married? How tall is he? He looks so short on the screen beside big, tall Karl Dane. I like him immensely.

How tall is Monty Banks? He is another small looking man on the screen.

I was sorry to learn of Larry Semon's death. He was always one of my favorites in comedies. I didn't like his conception of "The Wizard of Oz," but that's neither here nor there, now. How old was Larry Semon and was he married?

Many thanks for answering my questions. AN INQUISITIVE FAN.

"Noah's Ark" is a new Warner Brothers Vitaphone production. It is said to represent an outlay of $2,000,000 so it's quite some feature, you see, and was worthy of presentation at the Grauman's Chinese Theatre where it is now being shown. As you may surmise, it is founded on the Biblical story. Dolores Costello, George O'Brien, Noah Beery and Louise Fazenda head an all-star cast.

Mr. Arthur admits that he was born in 1899 and has a wife and baby. He's not so tall, only five feet six, but at that he can top Monty Banks by an inch.

Mr. Semon was married to Dorothy Dwan, who appeared with him in several of his comedies. He was 39.

Dear Movie Editor—I'm wondering why more of the fans don't admire Norma Shearer. I think she's one of the sweetest, most charming players we have. She takes so many different kinds of roles, and always plays each of them so well. I saw her first in "A Tower of Lies" several years ago and immediately fell in love with her. Is she married and if so to whom? What is her home address?

Who played with John Barrymore in "Beau Brummel?"

Is George O'Brien a brother to Eugene O'Brien?? Are either of them married and if so to whom?

I'm glad that Lila Lee and James Kirkwood have separated. I always did think he was too old for her. A man that's that old has no business marrying a girl young enough to be his daughter.

I think Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque are just an ideal match. I hope they continue to be happy together. I like them both as players, too. I'd like to see them together in a picture once.

Richard Dix is my screen hero. I just adore his looks, and he is a wonderful actor, too. I never miss a picture in which he appears. I can hardly wait until I see him in "Redskin," as I noticed by your columns that some of the picture will be in colors, and I'm so anxious to see how he really looks.

Guess I'd better step aside now so the "waiting list" will not have too long a wait. Faithfully, PANSY.

Miss Shearer fails to divulge the home address, but if you write her at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio, Culver City, Calif., she might accidentally send you a photograph for those words of commendation. Irving Thalberg, one of the M-G-M executives, is her husband.

Mary Astor was the beautiful and interesting heroine of "Beau Brummel."

Eugene and George are related in no way whatsoever, except professionally and matrimonially. Both are single.

I'm surprised at you, Pansy, rejoicing over the severing of "those whom God hath joined together."

It may be possible to see Rod and Vilma together on the screen at some later date. Hollywood is a city of magic, and it wouldn't require much art to feature Rod opposite Vilma in a picture. Just a suggestion from Mr. Goldwyn, and Rod's name on the dotted line.

You will see Mr. Dix as an Indian, and not "as is" in "Redskin." Don't see how he ever stayed single so long with his vast appeal to the fair sex.

Dear Movie Editor—I saw "Wings" and of course I did my share of weeping over it. I'll confess, however, that I didn't enjoy it quite as much as I would have had I seen it six months ago, because all of my friends have seen it in other cities, and save written me or told me all and have written me or told me all about it. Of course that always spoils a picture for me but nevertheless it was a noteworthy production.

Clara Bow was adorable as always. I just love her. She is my favorite actress. I don't see any comparison between her and Alice White. I think Clara has it "all over" Alice any day.

I saw Richard Arlen in "She's a Sheik" with Bebe Daniels, and was surprised to see him again in "Wings." He reminds me a great deal of Richard Dix, or rather what Richard might have been ten years ago, because I judge Richard Arlen is much younger than Richard Dix.

I thought they showed too many air fights in "Wings," for one thing, since I must criticize. It became monotonous after the first few, and lost its thrill. I think about half of them would have been plenty. And I did enjoy the race between Charles Rogers and his friend. They both did some clever work in those scenes.

Well, I wouldn't be a fan if I couldn't criticize a little. I haven't any questions to ask this time so I'll give the space to some other anxious fan. Thank you, K. K. K.

Dear Movie Editor—Here we are, clad in armour, so the eggs and bricks thrown from the pens of the Clara Bow lovers will just slide off and do no harm.

Can't tell me that the majority of fans are simple minded enough to enjoy such flapper stuff forever. I'll wager every one of the defenders are weakening a little by now and maybe turning over to Alice White. It's first one favorite and then another with the movie going public. They are all like a bunch of sheep, have to follow the leader. I believe in having a mind of your own and expressing your opinions.

But I did cause much agitation when I expressed my views of Clara, didn't I? That's the reason I've been dodging for so long. I thought I'd just let the excitement die down a little.

But why did they cast her in "Wings?" I wanted to see the picture, because I had heard so much about it, and here I had to sit through several thousand feet of Clara again, I'm still of the same opinion, too. I can't hand her a thing. She's too frivolous, light, empty, just a glorified flapper, with no talent in dramatic lines.

But here I am, causing more torment among her followers. Dear me, I must learn to keep my comments concerning the young lady to myself. But why did they cast her in "Wings?" CRITIC.

You take your life in your hands when you step out before Clara fans with more comment concerning her. You are a brave, venturesome person.

Dear Movie Editor—I certainly do miss seeing Bill Hart and his Pinto in pictures. I always loved them so. And Tom Mix and Tony seem to have deserted us also, at least I haven't seen them for a long time. I am very fond of animals, particularly horses. Do you happen to have any information on hand that you could give me concerning Pinto and Tony. I appreciate your kindness. A HORSE LOVER.

There's an old saying that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," but in the case of Tom and Bill it's through their horses. Mr. Hart is so fond of Pinto that he has written books concerning him, and you have doubtless seen the picture that Tom filmed in which he "took a back seat" for Tony.

And Tony has a double, too. Mr. Mix has groomed Buster to perform the dangerous stunts in his pictures. Buster played most of the difficult scenes in the picture in which Tony was supposed to be the star.

Tony was a small colt running behind his mother with a vegetable vender's wagon on Western avenue, when Mr. Mix noticed him and purchased him for $12.50. Needless to say it was one of the best investments Mr. Mix ever made. He trained Tony, himself, to do the tricks that have made him famous. And Tony is capable of doing everything for which he uses a double.

Pinto is a direct descendant of Red Top, a pure blooded Arabian sent to General Grant by some European admirer at the close of the war. General Grant had no place for Red Top in Washington, so he sent him to a friend in Nevada, where he ran loose on the plains. Pinto came from the same neighborhood and so much resembled Red Top that Mr. Hart believes there is no doubt but that he is one of the descendants. Pinto served Mr. Hart well for about twelve years on the screen and is now enjoying a rest.

Dear Movie Editor—I think it's just awful the way people impose upon your good nature by asking you impossible questions, but here am I doing the same thing.

Several years ago I saw Ramon Novarro in a picture that made a big impression on me, in fact, I doubt if he has ever done such wonderful work since. I just can't recall the title, but perhaps if I give you some of the details you may be able to tell me what it was, and that is what I wish to know.

Alice Terry played with him, I am sure. It was a costume picture, and seems to me that the story dealt with the French Revolution, because I have a distinct recollection of some of the characters, such as Danton, Robespierre and Marie Antoinette. There were many mob scenes as I recall, and quite a thrilling love episode. Lewis Stone, by the way, had a prominent

Lincoln Symphony Orchestra Notes

Following is the financial statement of the Lincoln Symphony orchestra as presented to the board of directors by Knox Burnett, business manager.

As a municipal affair, it is felt that the public is entitled to know the orchestra's financial condition. Attention is particularly called to the amount of cancellations and tickets still unpaid for. It is hoped that most of the outstanding subscriptions will be collected, but alarm is felt at the cancellations.

The directors feel that this situation shows a lack of civic spirit in Lincoln. It is also pointed out that it places the orchestra management in a serious predicament, since the city ordinance stipulates that rehearsals may not be started until ticket sales are sufficient to meet the budget.

A great deal of hard work was done to sell sufficient tickets to meet the requirement, and for that reason the cancellations are especially discouraging.

TULLIS STUDIO.

Lillian Miller, Dorothy Beever and Gladys Callender are singing with the young ladies chair at St. Paul church. Martha Thornton is the accompanist for the choir.

Marie Quick, director of the Epworth church choir, is rehearsing a "minstrel evening," to be given in the near future.

Raymond Englehorn and L. Franz have joined the young men's choir at St. Paul church.

Mrs. Tullis, director for the junior choir of St. Paul church of thirty voices is also director of the newly-organized chorus of "Camp Fire Girls," having fifty members.

Charlotte Hayden, soprano student with Mrs. Tullis, is teaching voice and public school music at Stromsburg.

Louis Wilbe, baritone, and Carl Zimmerman, tenor, are singing every week-end with a male quartet at Beatrice.

The Schubert Centenary was celebrated by the music pupils of Mrs. Edward S. Luce in a studio recital Friday evening. Part one was devoted to relating interesting details of the masters life and composition. Those taking part in this division were Bobbie Maxwell, Margaret Lindstedt, Mae Spader, Lucille May and Dorothy Maxwell, Helen Ewing, Ruth May Shoemaker, Betty Jane Lindholm, Mary Tree, Hervey Ewing, Margaret Fultin, Dorothy Kepner.

Part two consisted of musical numbers presented by Thelma Barrett, Delbert Pinkerton, Mae Spader, Frank Fedallar, Dorothy Kepner, Helen Ewing, Dorothy Maxwell, Ramah and Beulah Stickler. In part three the instructor gave the second of a series of California travelogues dealing with the musical events; the two weeks of Grand opera at the Shrine theater and the Symphony concerts in Hollywood bowl. Mrs. Luce illustrated the travelogue with mounted pictures. She said that Los Angeles was one of four cities in the United States to have its own grand opera association, using in their season local orchestra, dancers and directors. In the presentation of Carmen the huge stage one hundred feet wide was large enough to permit the appearance of 250 performers.

In telling of the Hollywood bowl she said it was the largest amphitheater in the world, and was a mecca for tourists from all parts of the world. Mrs. Luce heard the Pacific coast premier of Strivinsky's "Rite of Soring" by the Philharmonic Symphony orcehstra of one hundred pieces with Eugene Goossens as guest conductor.

Schools & Colleges

Wesleyan Notes

The sophomore and freshman debate teams were the victors in the class debate tournament held November 15. Members of the sophomore team are: Warren Guthrie of Syracuse, Thelma James of Bloomington, and Charles Wingett of Scottsbluff. Eleroy Stromberg of Oakland, Edwin Frohardt of Omaha, Harold Ried of Kearney, and Gerald Thompson of Gothenburg made up the freshman team.

Arthur J. M. Johnson, '24, is to read a paper on "X-ray Spectroscopy" at the meeting of the American Physical society at Minneapolis November 30.

The Physics club held a business meeting Monday, November 19. Maynard Welsh of Westerville was elected president and Rolland Zabel of Western secretary. November 22 the club will hold a joint meeting with the Geography club. Moving pictures, illustrating the sources of power in the United States and the operation of the power plants, will be shown.

Ten children from the Mothers' Jewels orphan home at York, gave a program in Y. W. C. A. chapel November 19. Msr. Calvert, head of the home, gave a short talk on the new nursery.

Dr. M. E. Gilbert spoke in the Methodist church at Fairbury Sunday, November 18. He remained in Fairbury over Sunday, working in the interests of Wesleyan university.

The senior breakfast was given Friday at the University club. Besides the ninety members of the senior class, the deans of the colleges and Chancellor Schreckengast were present. The toasts were: "Our Men" by Lionel Loder of Waverly, "Our Women" by Irma Nelson of Beatrice, and "Our School" by Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast.

The program for senior recognition day, November 23, consisted of music by the mixed quartet, invocation by the chaplain, reading of the class roll, presentation of the class to the chancellor by the class president, recognition of the class by the chancellor, class oration, evening, November 18. Next week Dean Gossard will go to Auburn, where he will speak at the sectional Hi-Y conference to be held there December 1 and 2.

Dean B. E. McProud of the teachers' colege, who is chairman of the state board of examiners for colleges, went to Omaha Thursday, where he visited four colleges: Creighton, the University of Omaha, Mt. St. Mary's Seminary, and Duschesne.

The play, "The Patsy," was given at Edgar November 19.

Doane College Notes

Miss Louise Triplett, '26, who received her master's degree in religious education at Yale last commencement, has a position in the Franklin Street Congregational church of Manchester, N. H., as director of religious education. Miss Triplett's address is 11 Walnut street Manchester, N. H.

Reed Higby, '15, of Encampment, Wyo., has presented a mounted deer head to the museum to be hung in the entrance hall of the Carnegie Science building. Mr. Higby, a forest ranger, found a dead deer on Deer mountain in the Estes park region. It had been recently killed by a mountain lion. Tracks in the snow and small pieces broken from the horns gave evidence that a fierce struggle had taken place.

A box of zoological specimens was received from Miss Florence Folda, '27, recently. The specimens included a couple of Pacific starfishes, a large sand worm and several tubes of smaller marine animals. Miss Folda received her A. M. degree from Washington university last spring and was called back as technician in the zoology department.

Mr. Higby and Miss Folda are both former biology students in Doane.

The regular work of the college was suspended after the second period Friday morning, November 23, in order that the entire group might accept the invitation of Cotner college to spend the day as guests from 11 o'clock in the morning until the close of the banquet in the evening. Besides the football game two joint programs were presented in which representatives of both institutions took part.

The foods class in the home economics department took a trip through a creamery plant, November 19, under the guidance of the teacher, Miss Ruth Schrader.

Babes In Kindergarten Take Rest

Too tired—too tired to braid another mat or string another bright paper chain, and the youngsters of the Prescott school kindergarten take their little rugs, spread them neatly on the floor, and become prone for five or seven minutes. Scarcely more than babies, the kindgarteners become weary before an entire morning has passed, so Miss Evelyn Daly, the instructor, devised this plan of giving her young charges a little rest. The children brought their rugs from home, and like the novelty of lying down for a brief siesta. Miss Daly is shown in the back of the picture.

Dr. Manter Will Talk On Marine Animals at Morrill Hall Sunday

An illustrated talk on "Some Marine Animals of the Atlantic Coast" will be given by Dr. H. W. Manter of the department of zoology at the regular Sunday meeting in Morrill hall at the University of Nebraska. The program begins at 4 o'clock.

This will be preceded by a children's program at 2:45 o'clock.

MORE STARTLING DISCLOSURES OF A WRONGED WOMAN.

The First Awakening of Love—Lilac Time and the Summer Boarder.

(NOTE BY EDITOR: In the First Chapter of her Intimate Disclosures, the writer described with daring realism the circumstances of her childhood. She kept back nothing, not even concealing the fact that her father had been born in Peterboro, Ontario, and that her mother had lived in Little Block Oklabraska In the present chapter she describes the first coming of love into her life. We print it just as written, without palliation or apology. Startling as it is in its realism, it at least represents a woman's soul.)

CHAPTER II

What Girls Don't Know.

Last week I was telling my readers in the most intimate language I could get hold of all about my girlhood.

I said that I was brought up ignorant, in the dense ignorance that enshrouds so many young girls today. Even with the resolution I have taken to conceal nothing from my readers, it is hard for me, without a blush of shame, to go into details of my ignorance.

But I will quote as a characteristic example the fact that till I was nine years old I could hardly spell properly. I mixed up words ending in ough with words ending in double f.

A Girl's Ignorance.

Figures also gave me great trouble. For a long time I used to think that 7 and 8 made 13. I was too timid and too reticent to take my difficulties to anybody, least of all to my parents. Sometimes I thought of going to the minister of our church and asking him what 7 and 8 made, and how to spell hemorrhage. But a false shame held me back, and I feared perhaps that even he might not know.

And sinnce I am confiding so fully in my reader I will make another confession, namely, that for many years I did not know the names of the branches of the Amazon, and always imagined that the Xingu came in on the top side. I concealed this as best I could from the people about me.

Of physiology and the human body and of the laws of health I knew absolutely nothing. I could not have told where the oesphagus was nor the prosencephalon, nor the duodenum nor the semicolon nor the major axis of the patella. Once while quite a child I caught a cold and was quite sick for three days without being aware of it.

The First Young Man.

My first love affair took place when I was just turned sixteen. I had hardly turned it when a young man came to stay at our house as a summer boarder. His name was Joe Granger, and he was training for aminister. This ought to have warned me, but I was young and without guidance. In any case, he seemed to me little more than a boy, which was perhaps the case, as he was only five feet, one inch high. But he was quite stout.

There was, however, one thing about Joe that my parents kept from me at the time and that I only learned later on accidentally. It was this; He paid us $2.00 a week for his board, but he was supposed to help father pitch hay and make himself handy around the place.

From Lane to Pasture.

Well for the first two or three weeks that Joe Granger was at our house, I hardly spoke a word to him. But one evening just as I was starting down the lane to the pasture to fetch up the two cows there was Joe standing beside the door of the barn.

It was lilac time and I had on a print dress with a bunch of liliacs at my throat and a branch of apple blossoms in my hair and a bunch of wild convolvulus and chickweed in my waistbelt.

"Where are you going?" Joe asked. "Down to the pasture," I answered, "to fetch up the cows." "All right," he said, "I'll go too." I was feeling in a kind of reckless mood, as if I didnt care what happened to me. "Come on!" I said.

It was a hundred yards or perhaps more down the lane, but all the way Joe said nothing except "Say, look at that oriole. That's pretty early for orioles, isnt's it?" So I know that he was keeping himself pretty well in hand.

Love's Awakening.

When we got to the pasture, the two cows were there standing under the shade trees.

"You chase up the black one," Joe said, "and I'll start up the other."

I was feeling in a sort of desperate mood, as if I didnt care. "All right," I said.

We got the two cows started up the lane, and Joe and I walked along behind them.

"They're easy cows to drive," Joe said. I don't know just how much he meant by it but I answered just recklessly, "They sure are." "Some cows," Joe said, "are much better milkers than others." I didn't even stop to think. "Is that so?' was all I could find to say. "Yes," Joe went on, "when I was on a farm near Cobourg, Ontario, I used to milk six cows a day." I don't know just what he would have said next, but just than we came to the corner of the barn and there was Father.

Joe is a preacher now and has children of his own, but looking back on it seems strange. I often wondered how many cows he milked after he left Cobourg.

Temptation.

My next love adventure was a few months later; in fact, that same Autumn. I was walking along the road to the village and the rural mail delivery man stopped his cart. "Like a ride, sis?" he asked. "Kind of hot walking, ain't it?"

Just for a minute I hesitated. The driver was a quite elderly man and had four or five children, and it should have warned me. But a sort of spirit of daring had got hold of me for a minute I hesitated. Already he had made a place on the seat beside him. "Climb right in," he said.

Then all of a sudden I realized my danger. "Thanks," I blurted out, "I guess I'll walk." "All right," the man said, "please yourself. Get up, there!" and he touched up his horse and was gone.

I stood in the road for quite a time thinking of what I had escaped.

I never saw the man again, but years after I heard that he was still driving on the same mail route and that his eldest girl had just finished high school. A queer fact about the whole thing, however, is that the government has never promoted him and that he is still on the same route.

By this time, of course, I had begun to realize that men are all wolves and are not to be trusted.

A Father's Downfall.

There was a young man one day came to deliver a load of cord wood and after he had unloaded it, he asked me for a drink of water. Quite unsuspectingly, I fetched him a glass of water from the pitcher and was just going to give it to him when he said, "Do you ever go to the pictures?"

I threw the water in his face and rushed upstairs to my own room, where I threw myself on the bed, but it was a narrow escape.

Well, it was along about this time that our home got all broken up and Mother and I had to move away. It was all on account of Father, because Father began to use alcohol. Of course, where we lived the law didn't allow anyone to buy alcohol and people couldn't get it. But they could get it in indirect forms.

They say there's a lot of alcohol in barbers' perfumes and things like that. Well, Father found out that there is alcohol in axle grease and he began smearing his face with it evenings. He only put on a little at first, just enough to make him feel bright, but then he got to putting it on thicker and thicker and he'd sit there evenings with his face covered with it and the axle grease stupefying his mind. He found, too that there is alcohol in linseed oil and he'd go out to the barn and soak himself in it.

It got so bad that Father was soaked most of the time, and he'd just stagger round the place soaked and plastered.

Braving City Perils.

So the end of it was that our home was broken up and Mother and I went to live in the city. I have promised to tell my readers all my sensations and feelings that a girl gets when she goes to live in a city that she has never had before.

I am in a way ashamed to speak of it, but the truth is that for nearly two months, perhaps, I didn't like going up and down in elevators.

And since I am telling everything, I may as well say straight out and be done with it that I dont think the pie in the city is as good as in the country.

We hadn't been very long in the city before I began to learn that the men are just as much wolves and hounds there as they are in the country.

A young girl, even though she weighs 175 pounds, as I did, has got to be on her guard all the time. It was just the same old story, and it began right away.

Urban Villains.

The first one was the house-agent who showed us over the apartments. He managed to sidle pretty close up to me and he sort of whispered, "This is a very desirable location." I just gave him one push in the chest that put him against the wall and I said "You just cut that right out."

Then here was the young feller that came to turn on the electric lights. He said: "If you wouldn't mind holding this candle for me, I'll adjust the meter. "Don't you get so darned smart," I answered.

I found it was just the same way when I went out to look for work in the stores. The first man I went to looked up at me from his desk and he said, "Just sit down, please, and tell me what you can do." "You just quit that right now," I answered and I was out of that place in five seconds.

However, I had not been very long in the city before life all changed and I met my first husband and got married. But I want to tell my readers just how it feels for a young, inexperienced girl to find herself married to a man—I think that will hold them down for a week pretty easily. So I'll stop here for the present.

major expenditures contemplate continued maintenance of a huge army. Nor can we wholly agree with the foreign policy which he has permitted to be put forward: but no man of less than gigantic stature could hold the faiths of a fickle republic as long as has Poincare.

People's Forum

carefully see the conditions today that he said would follow the adoption of the gold standard.
Now I see that Mr. Hoover wants to create a three billion dollar fund to be used in time of unemployment or over production. We ask for one as a laboring man denounce such a law. If the monetary system of this nation had been properly handled, there would be no over-production, and everyone could afford to live as he should in a land of plenty.
Let all true men and women who believe in the true democratic principles, study and be willing at all times to defend those principles by true facts. In place of quarreling over what is past let all true democratic voters dedicate themselves to those true principles of government that the Fathers founded to the end that true liberty shall not perish from the earth.

University Notes

Alumni callers at the college of engineering during the past week were: Everett B. Sawyer, E. E. '98, with the Railway and Industrial company, Denver, Colo.; Maurice A. Swan, C. E. '27, field representative of the Western Bridge and Construction company of Omaha, McCook, Neb.; Archie P. Fenner, E. E. '26, with the Westinghouse company, East Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Marjorie Shanafelt, curator of visual education, spoke to the third grade of Bryant school Wednesday afternoon on the subject of Indian pottery.

Prof. N. A. Bengston, chairman of the department of geography, has been invited to present a paper before the annual meeting of the American Meteorological society, in New York City during the Christmas holidays. His subject will be "The Climatic Record of the Honduras."

One of the feature addresses of the national annual meeting of the council of geography teachers in New York City, December 26-27, will be given by Dr. Julia M. Shipman, who taught here during the past summer session, and is scheduled to teach here again next summer. Dr. Shipman is now at the University of Tennessee. Her topic will be "Enriching the Geography Curriculum with Current Material."

The department of geography plans to offer a summer field course next August, spending fifteen days in the Rocky mountains, including visits to Yellowstone national park, and the Salt Lake for study of geographical conditions and formations. Prof. E. E. Lackey will have charge of the trip, which will be made by bus. The course is patterned after similar trips offered by the University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, Clark university, and Columbia university.

Prof. W. H. Adolph of the department of chemistry is the author of a book review in the November number of the Journal of Chemical Education.

At the Churches Sunday

ST. PAUL METHODIST

11:00 a. m. "America--Our Inheritance"
7:45 p. m. "Great Changes."
The Junior Choir, a new organization, under the direction of Mrs. Tullis will sing in the evening service.
The Quartet will also give numbers of superior merit.
The musical features in St. Paul Church are out of the ordinary.

No White House Wedding Bells

There isn't going to be a White House wedding before March 4—at least so says Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, who has refused to deny rumors of her engagement to John Coolidge, the president's son. Friends of young Coolidge insist he will not marry until he is able to support his wife on his own salary. Above, a new photo of the young couple together.

Golden Rule Sunday Will Be Observed in Lincoln December 2

The sixth anniversary of International Golden Rule Sunday this year falls on December 2 and extensive plans have already been made in Lincoln for its observance. The day has been proclaimed for several years by the president and by governors of the various states and by many churches for expressing in gifts the interest of the country in providing shelter, food and training for the Near East relief orphan children.
In this city plans for the observance were started at a Near East luncheon held at the chamber of commerce Thursday at which about 200 were present.
Dr. Benjamin F. Bailey, chairman, presided and spoke briefly of the obligation to the needy boys and girls. Mrs. E. L. Hinman, secretary, spoke of the fine spirit always manifested in Lincoln and the co-operation of the churches and citizens in general.
William J. Shallcross, regional director of Iowa and Nebraska, emphasized the part Nebraska had played in the helping to rehabilitate these eastern countries and stated that of the more than $105,100,000 contributed during the years that Near East relief has been operating, Nebraska had contributed approximately $1,000,000.
Dr. H. P. Fox described a boys' home which he saw at Beirut, Syria, last summer. He said the boys practically operate the home themselves, preparing the meals, baking the bread and nursing the sick.
Dr. Fox emphasized the cleanliness, sanitation and rigid economy that prevailed everywhere and the fine spirit, kindness, courtesy and appreciation which was reflected.
The following churches have already been organized for Golden Rule day:
First Christian—Mrs. F. L. Wilmeth, chairman.
Tabernacle Christian—Miss Naomi Turner, chairman.
First Baptist—Mrs. Jeff Yelton, chairman.
Second Baptist—Miss Jennie R. Hall, chairman.
First Presbyterian—Mrs. E. C. Babcock.
Westminster Presbyterian — Miss Ruth J. Easterday.
Second Presbyterian—Mrs. F. G. Puliver, chairman.
First Congregational—Mrs. J. E. Almy, chairman.
Vine Congregational—Mrs. J. W. Staton, chairman.
Grace Methodist—Miss Eunice Miller.
St. Paul Methodist—Mrs. I. E. Atkinson, chairman.
Trinity Methodist—Miss Eleanora Miller, chairman.
College View Union—Miss John Layton.
United Brethren—Mrs. G. A. Spangler, chairman.

Governor Issues Statement.
Governor McMullen has issued the following statement to Nebraskans on the significance of the Golden Rule Sunday:
"Service to distressed children, wherever found, combined with the purpose of creating a spirit of good will among all nations of the world, is the basic principle for observing International Golden Rule Sunday.
"Last year fifty countries, together with every state of the Union joined in this universal expression of friendship.
"December 2 has been designated htis year as International Golden Rule Sunday, and I urge that the day be generally observed throughout the state of Nebraska."
Golden Rule day was first suggested by Charles V. Vickrey, now executive chairman of International Golden Rule Sunday. He is a former Nebraska boy and an alumnus of Wesleyan.

MISS COSTELLO, BARRYMORE WED

CEREMONY OVER BEFORE MOST OF GUESTS ARRIVE

In Utmost Privacy and Two Hours Before Scheduled Time, Stage and Screen Idol Marries His Former Leading Woman at Beverly Hills Home of Bride—Detectives on Guard Following Intrusion Earlier in Day of Unidentified Movie Actor Who Creates Disturbance by Loudly Demanding to See Bride.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Without divulging their destination, John Barrymore, famous motion picture and stage actor, and his bride, Dolores Costello, film beauty, departed on a short wedding trip this evening a few hours after their marriage at the bride's home. Because Miss Costello must be back at her studio by Tuesday in order to resume work on an unfinished picture, the wedding trip will of necessity be brief.

The bride and groom slipped out of the palatial Costello home while their relatives and intimate friends were enjoying the wedding dinner.

Ahead of Schedule.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—In the utmost privacy and two hours before the event had been scheduled, John Barrymore, stage and screen idol, was married this afternoon to Dolores Costello, formerly his leading woman.

The ceremony was performed in

LABOR HEADS TO OCCUPY PULPITS

Federation Officials, Including Green, Will Speak In Churches.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 24.—(U. P.)—Officials of the American Federation of Labor, holding its forty-eighth annual convention here, including President William A. Green and the veteran secretary, Frank Morrison, will speak from the pulpits of churches tomorrow.

Officials and delegates spent Saturday sightseeing and in pursuit of other diversions, as no session of the federation was held. This freedom of movement was denied those serving on committees however. A busy day was put in by the committees, in shaping affairs so the convention could be kept "in action" during the final week's sitting.

No apparent friction was noticed in the past week's proceedings and very few delegates have taken issue with the numerous resolutions and committee reports thus far brought before the convention body.

Next week the location of the 1929 convention will be decided upon. At present, Vancouver and Toronto, Canada, are head and shoulders above other bidders.

Boy Flier Progresses

LAMBERT FLYING FIELD, ST. LOUIS, Nov. 24—(INS)— Dick James, 17-year-old school boy, coast to coast aviator, brought his biplane to rest here at 2:17 this afternoon.

James left Fairfax field, Kansas City, at 12:15 p m.

James, making a San Francisco to New York flight, declared he intended to spend tonight here, resuming his flight tomorrow morning.

Aarts Predicts Centralized Heat For Entire Cities

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 2—(I. N. S.) — Centralized production of heat for great groups of population, even for whole towns, was forecast today by the second international conference on bituminous coal here by J. G. Aarts, director of the Private Technological Institution at Dougen, Holland.

Dr. Aarts visualized the time when no coal will enter towns, when cities and great centers of population will be smokeless, sootless and crimeless.

Heat in Dr. Aarts' "new age" will be supplied from a central works which will transform coal into latent heat of water and steam and gas and distributed in the same way as is gas and electricity at present.

"The problem," Dr. Aarts asserted, "is not a question of a method of production, but conservation of warmth."

Prominent Men Get Blackhand Letters

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 24—(UP) — Three residents of Carmel, Ind., including Hal L. Purdy, vice president of the Marmon Motor Car Co., have received extortion letters from alleged blackmailers recently, it was reported here today.

Besides Purdy, those receiving the letters were Louis Ross, Indianapolis manufacturer, and Bailey Hawkins, Carmel banker.

The letters were said to have been signed "The Hawk" and demanded sums ranging from $500 to $1,500. They have been turned over to the police.

FILM CORPORATION MUST PAY $30,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—As a result of a dynamite explosion on the sailing vessel Llewellyn J. Morse during the filming of the photoplay "Old Ironsides," the Famous Players-Lasky Film corporation today was ordered to pay damages totalling more than $30,000.

United States District Judge Jeremiah Neterer of Seattle awarded $28,541.65 to Harry Broyles, who received a broken back in the explosion.

Mrs. Cora B. Davis, widow of Charles Davis, killed in the blast, was awarded only $2,150 when it was discovered she was drawing compensation from the state.

Probe Death of Indiana Couple

GARY, Ind., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—The double killing of Ralph Campbell, 31, and his wife, Gladys, 24, whose bodies were found in a garage at the rear of their home here, baffled police tonight.

First theories of a suicide pact were belied by finding of a shot gun containing three shells, only one of which had been fired, officials admitted.

The shotgun was found on the floor beside the bodies.

Gambler's Files Reveal Name of Lottie Pickford, Mary's Sister.

Police Seek Connection Between Kidnaping and Rothstein's Murder.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(UP)—The Rothstein case—which has grown to eb the stensation of Broadway—had another name well known to Americans brought into its record today.

Authorities searched 56,000 "scraps of paper" from Rothstein's private files and ran across the name of Lottie Pickford ,a screen actress, and the sister of Mary Pickford.

Miss Pickford had correspondence with one Sidney Stajer, a friend of Arnold Rothstein, the slain gambler. Stajer was arrested a few weeks ago on a narcotic charge and authorities said he was head of an international narcotic syndicate. Stajer was a beneficiary in Rothstein's will.

Police Working Hard.

The authorities are doing their utmost—just as they claim to have been doing their utmost for twenty days—to connect the alleged kidnaping of Miss Pickford in Los An-

STORM DELAYS HOOVER'S TOUR ONE FULL DAY

South American Arrival To Be Held Up By Severe Gale.

WATER POURS INTO PARTY'S QUARTERS

Ship's Officers Predict Rough Seas Ahead For Twenty-four Hours.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MARYLAND, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Herbert Hoover's visit throughout South America will be delayed one full day at each point due to the Maryland encountering a storm, it was officially announced today.

Official communications have been sent to all the countries which the delay will affect.

Hoover stood on the bridge of the ship all morning watching its operation in a strong wind. By 11 a. m., the force of the wind had slackened to forty-five miles an hour and the speed of the Maryland was increased to thirteen knots an hour.

Leaks Sealed Up.

The fury of the storm came upon the rugged man-of-war so suddenly that it became impossible to seal all of the hatches. Water streamed through various openings and into the quarters occupied by members of the Hoover party.

Com. A. V. Brown, executive officer of the Maryland, ordered additional men on deck at 4 a. m., to work on the hatches. The leaks which had broken one night's sleep were stopped up.

In the forward quarters the water was a foot deep, but the tars were accustomed to water and slept peacefully through the flood, knowing as they did that it could not reach their hammocks.

Captain Kemberly Alert.

Gigantic waves which swept the decks poured water even down some of the inside ventilators.

Throughout the storm Captain Kemberly, commander of the ship, sat in the pilot house, personally directing the ship's course.

Coffee was served him by a signal man, who always anticipated

END SURVEY ON COMPENSATION

Commission Named By Governor Ready To Draft Report.

Final Meeting Will Be Held In Lincoln This Week.

What will probably be the last meeting of the special compensation survey commission prior to turning in its report and recommendations to Governor McMullen, for transmission to the legislature, is scheduled for Wednesday evening of this week in Lincoln. The final draft of the report was being put together Saturday by Chairman F. A. Good and Secretary E. Glen Callen of the commission at the office of State Labor Secretary Pirie. Its general terms have been agreed upon by the members unanimously, Mr. Good said, and all that remains is to get their approval of the precise language employed in presenting the conclusions reached.

One of the two labor members, Fred Eissler of Lincoln, has not attended any of the recent meetings or hearings of the commission, being temporarily absent from the state. That fact was called to the attention of Governor McMullin, who appointed the commission, but he declined to name anyone else in Eissler's place unless the other members requested it. This has not been done. Instead, the commission decided that Theodore Jensen of Omaha, the other labor member, should cast two votes on all questions that might arise; and there the matter rests.

Chairman Good said that Eissler had never indicated any personal dissatisfaction with what the commission had done; but on the other hand he had gone away without offering any explanation of his absence. Copies of all its proceedings have been sent to him without soliciting any response. Under the circumstances, it was deemed a good solution of the difficulty to give the second labor member full voting power for both.

To Suggest Changes in Law.

A resolution passed by the legislature in 1927 authorized the governor to apoint a commission of seven persons, representing labor, employers, and the general public, to conduct an inquiry into the operation of Nebraska's present compensation laws and recommend to the next legislature where, in its opinion, changes ought to be made.

The commission has definitely turned down a proposal that compensation administration be placed in the hands of a court or board of three members, instead of a single official passing upon claims. It has

AIRPLANE DOWN; MAY BE LINDY'S

"Lone Eagle" Awaited at Brownsville After Tampico Hop-Off.

Army Fliers to Make Search Across Border Early Sunday

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 25 (Sunday—U. P.)—Maj. Bernard Law of the United States army airport here told the United Press this morning he is leaving with two planes later this morning to search for an airplane reported down across the border in Mexico.

Major Law said he had been advised the plane was sighted flying over the montainous, woody area across the border and that it was reported the plane might be that carrying Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been on a hunting trip in Mexico.

He said the reports came to him from the Meteorogical station at Fort Brown and that nothing definite was known as to who was in the plane or whether, definitely, it had crashed.

He said natives in the vicinity had reported the plane passed over and that its engine was missing.

Colonel Lindbergh left Tampico Saturday afternoon for Brownsville but had not arrived, as far as was known here this morning.

Major Law said he planned to start at daybreak.

CORONER'S JURY NAMES HUSBAND

Trobough To Be Charged With Shooting Of Wife.

(Special to The Star)

HASTINGS, Neb., Nov. 24—Sarina Trobough came to her death from a bullet in her chest, fired from a gun in the hands of her husband, Sidney Trobough, the coroner's jury decided here late today.

Vern Tooley, roomer at the Trobought home, testified that the couple had argued through the evening over the visits of a girl to their home. The girl was a friend of Mrs. Trobough, and she resented his objections to her.

Two bullet holes were found in the floor of the kitchen by the sheriff, and Tooley testified that words overheard by him during the argument indicated that they had been made by shots fired by Mrs. Trobough earlier in the evening.

No motive for the shots was brought out.

Charges will be filed immediately, County Attorney Crow said, the degree yet to be determined.

GRILLING FAILS TO SHAKE STORY NEGRO SUSPECT

Omaha Officers Question Bird at Prison Saturday Afternoon.

BEAL UNDECIDED ON FILING CHARGE

Plan To Have Mrs. Stribling View Alleged Assailant Again.

Jacob Bird's denial that he is the Omaha axe-man was not shaken during a two-hour grilling at the penitentiary here Saturday afternoon by Omaha officers.

His questioners announced after their interview, however, that Mrs. Harold Stribling, last of the axe man's victims, had again practically identified Bird, this time from an enlarged photo.

Gathered in the Omaha hospital room at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, when the photograph was presented to Mrs. Stribling, were County Attorney Henry Beal, Sheriff Charles McDonald, Police Inspector B. H. Danbaum, and Dr. E. L. Bridges. The portrait showed Bird with his cap on.

"That is the man," Mrs. Stribling was quoted by Beal as saying.

She became hysterical once more, Beal declares, and those in the room withdrew.

Three hours later, an officer called with a small photo of Bird, such as are kept in prison files.

"Yes, I do believe that is the man," Mrs. Stribling affirmed, Beal reports. "You had him here yesterday. But I want to see him before I'm sure."

The officer offered to show her the enlargement again but she declined to look.

"While he doesn't meet the description I gave first, he is the man," she concluded, according to Beal.

Study Finger Prints.

No charges will be preferred against Bird until after his detailed statement, transcribed by a stenographer at the prison, is checked at Omaha, and until Mrs. Stribling has had a chance to see the man a second time. Palm prints were taken of Bird Saturday by the state sheriff and finger prints the day before. These also will be compared, but have not yet been examined.

POSSE HUNTING FOUR GUNMEN

Leap From Car and Take To Fields When Stopped.

Exchange Shots With Officer Who Pursues Them.

GIBBON, Neb., Nov. 24—(UP) — A sheriff's posse still was searching late today for four men, believed to be a gang of bank robbers.

The hunt started after William Johnson, highway patrolman, halted a speeding touring car on the highway east of here. Four men climbed hurriedly from the car and started across a field on foot.

Johnson gave chase and a running gun battle ensued. No one was hit, but one of the gangsters stumbled and was captured by Johnson, who returned him to the jail here and enlisted Sheriff William Blake of Kearney to assist in the hunt.

A posse was quickly organized and Dan Dietrich, local airplane pilot, assisted in the hunt with his plane. While the search was in progress the man who had been placed in the Gibbon jail escaped and was also the object of search tonight.

A search of the abandoned car showed it was filled with a complete burglary outfit. All identifying marks on the car had been removed.

It was considered possible the men may have been the gang that broke open a safe at the York theater Friday night and escaped with $300.

Reginald Denny And "Bubbles" Steiffles Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Reginald Denny, motion picture actor, married Isabelle "Bubbles" Steiffles, screen actress, late this afternoon at the home of the bride in Beverly Hills.

Municipal Judge Samuel R. Blake of Los Angeles, an old time friend of Denny, performed the ceremony in the presence of many friends of the couple, including film stars.

The bride formerly was leading woman for Denny. The couple, according to friends, will take a short honeymoon trip to an unannounced destination.

Denny received his final decree of divorce yesterday from his first wife, Irene Haysman Denny.

McAdoo Says 'Nothing' After Reporters Quiz

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 24—(UP)—William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury in the Wilson cabinet and twice a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, granted an "extensive" interview as he passed through Dallas today.

The subjects covered included the past, present and future of the democratic party and why Texas went republican. The interview consisted of seven letters, which were:

"Nothing."

McAdoo was enroute from Los Angeles to Washington.

CONDITION OF KING GEORGE REMAINS SAME

PHYSICIANS ARE STILL OPTIMISTIC

Prince Of Wales, Hunting In Africa, Gets Reports Regularly.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—An official bulletin issued this evening by Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewett, physicians in attendance, said King George had passed a quiet day and that the condition of his affected lung was unchanged.

At 2:20 a. m., Sunday, an official spokesman at Buckingham palace announced that the king's condition was "very much better," and added the information that his majesty was "sleeping peacefully."

Improvement Maintained.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(U. P.)—Millions throughout the British Empire breathed easier today when it was indicated that King George was maintaining the improvement which had been noted in his condition last night.

Lying in a sound-proof room in Buckingham Palace, the king—emperor of nearly half a billion subjects—still is apparently a very sick man. The slight cold which developed into a congestion of the lungs, has now been complicated by pleurisy.

The anxiety for his recovery, which was expressed everywhere yesterday has been somewhat relieved, for an official bulletin issued by Lord Dawson of Penn, physician to the king, and Sir Stanley Hewett, surgeon-apothecary to the king, said today that the king had passed a fair night and that

WASHINGTTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Indulgence in alcoholic liquor in the army increased slightly during the last fiscal year over the two years previous, and the suicide rate for the whole army was the highest for a decade, according to the annual report of Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, surgeon general of the army, made public today.

The suicide rate Ireland reported, was more than twice as high as the army's decade rate. There were fifty-two deaths by suicide during the year, compared with forty-four in 1923, forty-two in 1925 and forty-six in 1924. Eleven of the suicides were officers, compared with six in 1926 and five in 1925.

Seven deaths resulted from alcoholism, Ireland reported. All were among white enlisted men.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—The United States fleet will sail from here on January 15 for winter quarters in Central American waters, it was announced by Admiral W. V. Pratt, commander-in-chief.

Both the east coast and west coast fleets accompanied by base forces will participate in the exercises, according to published orders.

MORE AGGRESSIVE ADMINISTRATION LOOMS MARCH 4

Political Leaders Convinced There Will Be More Than a Change of Faces in White House When Coolidge Steps Out—Point to Hoover's South American Invasion, "Unemployment Insurance" Plan, Prospect of Farm Relief Solution After Long Deadlock and Probability of Numerous Cabinet Changes.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — (U. P.) — Political leaders, gathering for the opening of the short session of congress one week from Monday, are becoming firmly convinced there will be a real change at Washington March 4, not just a change of faces in the white house.

Though the impression spread in the campaign that Herbert Hoover would be a second Coolidge, politicians feel strongly the Hoover administration will be a new one in fact as well as in name, and that March 4 will date the opening of another political generation as definitely as Harding's inauguration did.

This impression grows out of numerous developments current and impending, including the bold ven-

Dismembered Body Of Japanese Found In "Bargain Trunk"

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Mystery surrounding the discovery of a dismemoered body in a "bargain trunk" purchased at an unclaimed baggage sale of the Canadian Pacific railroad, was fused wit hthe element of murder tonight, following an investigation by police.

Hismata Zaa, believed to be the dead man's name, undoubtedly met with foul play in the opinion of T. Ido, official Japanese interpreter. If Zaa was to have been shipped to Japan for burial, he said, it was an exception as he had never heard of such a case before.

The remains were discovered in a hermetically seaeled casket inside the trunk, purchased for $14 by J. E. Betts. A passport found with the remains identified the body and revealed that Zaa had entered Canada five years ago.

Police at first believed the remains had been made ready for shipment to Japan and then abandoned through lack of funds.

DROP TAX CASE AGAINST COUZENS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.— (INS)—The treasury department formally closed its tax case against Senator Couzens, republican of Michigan, by abating the assessment of $10,909,000 and relieving his bond holders of liabilities, it was learned today.

The assessment was levied against Couzens on profits realized from the sale of stock in the Ford Motor Co.

One Negro Killed In Running Battle With The Police.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Three new deaths tonight were attributed indirectly to Omaha's "hatchet murderer," making the toll six since the reign of terror began less than a week ago.

Sanley Haley, negro, died in a hospital today after he and a companion, now believed by police to have been the maniacal slayer who has had an entire city on its nerves, had engaged in a gun battle with police.

The companion, answering in nearly every way, according to detectives, the description of the "hatchet man," escaped following a sensational 10-mile chase.

INJURED YOUTH FOUND IN AUTO

Roy Garrison Taken To Hospital; Driver Held at Jail.

Failure to stop for a red signal light at Twelfth and P streets about 10:30 Saturday night landed Clarence Jennings, 23, in jail and Ray Garrison in St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Jennings, who seemed to be at a loss to account for himself and his companion or the automobile in which they were riding, said the pair had driven to Lincoln from Nebraska City, arriving here shortly before they were arrested.

As the car in which the two youths were riding rounded a corner at Twelfth and P streets, Officer Frank Robbins noted the driver failed to halt for the red signal light. The officer headed the car toward the curb after a short chase but the brakes apparently were defestive and the car went up onto the walk.

When it had been halted the officer questioned the driver, who gave his name as Jennings. After Jennings drove to the police station Robbins discovered that Jennings' companion was unconscious in the seat of the car with a gash in the back of his head.

Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician, was at the police station when Robbins arrived with the two men and Garrison was given emergency treatment. It was said at the hospital early this morning that Garrison is not seriously hurt. He is being attended by the interne.

Splain and Schnell's ambulance was called and the injured man was removed to St. Elizabeth's hospital in a Splain & Schnell ambulance. Jennings was held at the station for investigation.

COOLIDGE READY FOR A HOLIDAY

Busy Week Enables President To Prepare For Thanksgiving.

Reports Await Decision, But Will Be Held Over To December.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—A week of close application to business has enabled President Coolidge to prepare for his four-day Thanksgiving vacations in Virginia with his flat-topped desk in the executive offices as clean as it is possible to make it.

The annual message to congress is completed and in the hands of the printer. Little remains to be done to the budget message which will be submitted to congress on the Wednesday after the session opens.

Seevral reports of importance await Mr. Coolidge's decision, but there was no indication that action would be taken until after Thanksgiving. Among these is the tariff commission's report upon the middlewest's demand for an increased corn tariff.

Breakfast With President.

A legislative program to the president's liking has been outlined to him during the past week by Vice President-elect Charles Curtis, who still retains office as leader of the republican party in the senate, and by Representative John Tilson of connecticut, house leader. The white house custom of congressional breakfasts was inaugurated Saturday with fifteen guests, including Curtis and Senators Borah, Hale, Smoot and McNary, chairmen, respectively, of the senate committees on foreign affairs, naval affairs, finance and agriculture.

If precedent is followed all members of both houses will meet the president over wheat cakes and sausage before the short session ends. The first breakfast was given over to discussion of the senate legislative program, especially with respect to two pet administration measures—the anti-war treaty and the navy construction bill, which would provide for fifteen cruisers of 10,000 tons and one aircraft carrier.

The president and his party will reach Swannoia Country club, near Waynesboro, in the Virginia Blue Ridge, Wednesday evening and return to Washington Sunday night.

Some invitations are being accepted, but the list is being kept as secret as other matters.

GRANGE URGES EXTRA SESSION

Farm Organization Asks Special Congress to Decide Farm Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—The National Grange today joined in the demand for an extra session of congress to dispose of the question of farm relief.

In a rush of resolutions during the closing hours of its convention it expressed opposition to "hasty or half hearted increases" in the tariff as a means of aiding the farmer, and declared:

"We favor calling a special session of congress for the purpose of disposing of this problem."

The Grange re-affirmed its policies regarding Muscle Shoals, declaring for lease to the highest bidder for fertilizer production, or if it could not be leased soon, operation of the nitrate and electrical project by the government.

A recommendation that the government "honestly strive to make the country dry" was adopted also.

Other last minute policies were expressed as follows:

That the federal radio commission restore to full time allotment radio stations "freely and regularly serving the farmers."

Continuation of present immigration restrictions.

Commendation of the federal farm loan board for its recent reorganization, but criticism of some of its loan policies.

Condemnation of the "despicable policies of the power trust in making use of public education institutions to carry on propaganda."

to her home, shot and killed her husband and then killed herself.

Mrs. Finlayson had purchased the revolver as protection against the "hacker," should he invade her house.

A police squad cruising about an outlying district stopped Haley and his companion for questioning. The pair sought refuge in a cornfield. Fifty shots were exchanged between them and the officers.

One Man Killed.

When the police returned to their car for more ammunition, the two negroes ran for their own automobile. A ten-mile chase ended when the suspects' machine stopped suddenly and a man leaped from it and darted into an alley. Haley lay dying at the wheel.

Meanwhile the web of evidence linking Jake Bird, negro ex-convict now in custody charged with the brutal murders of three and the serious wounding of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Stribling, appeared to be dissolving. Three factors strengthened the opinion that Bird, partially identified by Mrs. Stribling as their assailant, was not the man sought. These were:

1—A statement by Mrs. H. C. Henry, superintendent of the hospital where Mrs. Stribling is under treatment, that the patient was hysterical and in no condition to make a definite identification. Mrs. Henry said Mrs. Stribling's vision is impaired by the injuries sustained at the "hatchet man's" hands.

2—Escape of the unnamed negro in this morning's gun battle with a police squad.

3—A positive declaration by police Inspector Ben Danbaum that Bird is not the "chopper."

Bird, in his cell at the penitentiary in Lincoln, where he was taken for safekeeping, continued this afternoon to protest his innocence.

As Rogers Sees It

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Saturday, minds were not on politics. They were not on national affairs. They were on football. Did you know that football is becoming about as big a nuisance as politics? Millions of football fans went to football games yesterday afternoon. Mind you, I think it's a great thing. You spend all these years playing football and then you go through life waiting for somebody to give you a signal. Harvard and Yale have been beaten by everything but the pages in congress. They played yesterday to determine which is the worst team in America. I think it should have been a tie.

Yours, WILL.

GRILLING FAILS TO SHAKE STORY NEGRO SUSPECT

whether any charges will be filed at all," said County Attorney Beal. "We'll probably have Bird up there Monday for her to see him. His clothes check up well with her descriptions and we'll let her examine them."

Mrs. Stribling was in fair physical condition when she saw the photographs, Mr. Beal declared, although she did become hysterical.

Accompanying the Douglas county and Omaha officials to Lincoln were Sheriff Percy Lainson and County Attorney Frank Northrupp of Council Bluffs. During the first part of the interview with Bird, they as well as prison officials were excluded.

Sheriff Lainson states that he has finger prints from the Stribling home, which is in Iowa although on the west side of the Missouri, but that he has had nothing with which to compare them. Nor have the original traces yet been properly enlarged.

Tells Same Story.

Bird told the Omaha officers much the same story that he has related to newspaper men. They quizzed him concerning the report that he might be the man who stabbed his wife to death at Chickasha, Okla., and was committed to an insane asylum, from which he is supposed to have escaped. Though admitting that he had been in Oklahoma, along with America's other forty-seven states he denied ever having been married or having been in Chickasha.

H. J. Pinkett, a colored attorney from Omaha and a representatative of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, interviewed Bird Saturday and became convinced of the man's innocence.

Bird lived too far from the scene of the crimes, Pinkett argued. He is not a pervert as the perpetrator of the axe murders must have been, and his haunts are not near the death houses.

C. C. Galloway, publisher of The Omaha Guide, a negro weekly paper, also talked with Bird and likewise was convinced of the man's innocence. Neither intends to take direct action in the matter but will report findings to the national association.

Bird was smiling when released from the deputy warden's office where the interview took place. He seemed worn, however, and more irritable than when first brought to the prison.

Danbaum Unconvinced.

OMAHA, Nov. 24—(U.P.)—Still unconvinced that Jake Bird, held at Nebraska penitentiary as a suspect, is the Omaha hatchet murderer, Inspector of Detectives Danbaum arrived here tonight from Lincoln, where he spent several hours questioning Bird.

Danbaum brought back several photographs of Bird taken at the prison, which were shown to Mrs. O. Harold Stribling, only person to have seen the slayer.

Mrs. Stribling said the photographs resembled the attacker, but that she would not attempt positive identification until she saw Bird again.

Bird probably will be brought back Monday and again viewed by Mrs. Stribling.

END SURVEY ON COMPENSATION

shown an inclination to place some limit upon medical and hospital fees charged in compensation cases—which proposition is favored by most employers and liability insurers but antagonized by the medical profession. The criticism is that doctors get too large a proportion of the money aid by employers or their sureties, and that compensation insurance rates in Nebraska, for that reason, are higher than in other states.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday, four of the commissioners were at Bayard and Scottsbluff, where they heard suggestions from officials of the beet sugar companies and chamber of commerce spokesmen. No labor representatives took part in the hearings, but a number of workers were interviewed personally during trips which the commissioners took through the sugar factories at Bayard and Gering.

Ten per cent of all industrial accidents in the state occur in that industry of northwestern Nebraska, state records show. Because of the large number of claims arising, the business interests there would like to have a branch compensation office established in that section, with a deputy in charge to hear and decide cases.

Chairman Good, Secretary Callen, Walton B. Roberts of Lincoln, and Clyde Dempster of Beatrice were the four members who made the tour through the sugar beet territory.

MISS LOGAN SUED.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—(I.N.S)—Jacquelin Logan, motion picture actress, today was sued in Municipal court for $322.50, alleged to be due a Hollywood boulevard clothier for apparel purchased last May.

'REAL CHANGE' IN WASHINGTON IS PREDICTED

ture of the president-elect into South America, his proposal that the states raise a $3,000,000,000 public works fund to relieve unemployment during depressions, the prospect of disposing of the farm relief problem which has been in stalemate for several years due to irreconcilable differences between Mr. Coolidge and congress, the impending revision of the tariff, and the probability of an almost entirely new group of faces in the cabinet and the higher executive positions.

Does Not Disapprove.

It is not that Mr. Hoover disapproves the condition of affairs as handed over by Mr. Coolidge, but the natural result of an aggressive executive following a more conservative one. Mr. Coolidge's conception of his office was to keep things moving as quietly as possible, with a minimum of change or fuss. Mr. Hoover's conception is likely to be that of an aggressive and experimental businessman who is willing to try anything that promises results. One type governs largely by precedent; the other largely by venturing forward on a sort of trial-and-error basis.

The proposal of a $3,000,000,000 state public works fund as an unemployment cure is typical of Mr. Hoover. It would be entirely out of character for Mr. Coolidge. The South American tou rof Mr. Hoover, announced with starting suddenness, is typical of his tendency to seek his objectives by the most direct route.

Hoover is expected to bring an almost entirely new cabinet with him. No authorized announcements have been made, but the feeling is general in Washington that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will continue. He may be almost alone among the survivors. Secretary of Agriculture Jardine is preparing to leave the cabinet March 4. Secretary of State Kellogg already has announced his intention of retiring. Other cabinet members are still awaiting cals to continue their service, which may or may not come. Some feel that Dwight Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, will be made secretary of state, and that Assistant Attorney General Donovan will be promoted to be attorney general.

Hoover is ready to begin his new administration with another tariff bill to supplant the one enacted early in Harding's administration.

Farm relief, deadlocked for several years, appears to be headed toward the statute books. Hoover, while not going much beyond the Coolidge position, has won the support of western senators and congressmen who opposed Coolidge's view. He has been able to break the strength of the McNary-Haugen bill by winning over many of its supporters. If farm legislation is disposed of in the regular short session of congress it will be due largely to the new atmosphere created by Hoover.

The advent of Hoover into the white house is awaited with some uneasiness among many political leaders. His very aggressiveness, his willingness to make precedents instead of merely observing them, and his independent turn of mind all create much uncertainty in the minds of politicians who were happy under Coolidge because he was a man who launched few innovations and disliked to see affairs disturbed in any way.

In the language of Washington, the political leaders always knew where to find Coolidge, which was a great satisfaction, even if they found him hard to budge.

Want Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—"Wait for Hoover" today became the slogan of a powerful group of members of the so-called "farm bloc" as a drive was launched to enforce an extra session of congress for consideration of farm relief legislation.

The first phase of the campaign, it was announced, will be to defeat enactment of the modified McNary bill in the coming short session.

Leaders of the movement are confidently relying upon President-elect Hoover's promise to summon the special session if farm relief fails this winter.

The only possible obstacle to the success of their effort, in the opinion of "farm bloc" insurgents, is a definite plea from Mr. Hoover for early action.

The revised McNary bill, now in the hands of President Coolidge and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine for approval, is declared to be unsatisfactory to the bitter-enders in the farm relief fight. They hold, too, than an apparent solution of the problem on the lines laid down by Mr. Coolidge would be a confession that the "farm bloc" was wrong in making the fight for the McNary-Haugen bill.

Senators Nye, republican of North Dakota, Brookhart, republican of Iowa, McMaster, republican of South Dakota, Representative Dickinson, republican of Iowa and other western progressives have all indicated an intention to fight the present farm relief proposals.

Comment of Nye.

"I believe that efforts for farm relief in the short session should be limited to the possibility of repassage of the McNary-Haugen bill over a veto which, I admit, appears to be hopeless at this time but deserving of another try," said Senator Nye.

"Failing in this we ought to have a special session which will be devoted to the farm problem and tariff revisions."

Sentiment among returned house members, Representative Dickinson said, is overwhelmingly for a special session.

"Farm relief advocates have more confidence in the new group coming into power, would rather have the problem committed to them and the republican party has pledged itself to deal with the problem," said Dickinson.

"The republican party cannot do anything else than take up the question in an extra session without humiliating itself."

Meanwhile Senator McNary, republican of Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen bill is sponsoring the new plan. He expects to have the administration stamp of approval upon his bill, which omits the much-debated equalization fee, within a few days. It would set up a $300,000,000 fund to be loaned cooperatives for the establishment of stabilization corporations.

HALPIN ELECTED.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 24—(INS)—Robert W. Halpin, Chicago, was elected president of the American Auction Bridge league at the closing business session of the second annual congress here tonight. Clayton W. Aldrich, Cleveland, was chosen as vice president and E. T. Tobin, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

SEVEN SEAS ARE SWEPT BY STORM

good will journey to Latin America, ran into a seventy-mile gale in the Pacific which disarranged Mr. Hoover's schedules, putting him twenty-four hours behind in his planned visits.

Trans-Atlantic shipping schedules were disarranged. Liners plying between northern European ports and the United States were delayed in arriving and departing by the cyclonic winds which blew up gigantic seas.

The total damage will run into tens of millions of dollars.

Many small ships off the British and continental European coasts sent out distress signals.

The British steamship Cariboo was reported in Capetown advices to be sinking off East London, South Africa, with her captain on board. He refused to leave his post when the British liner Windsor Castle rescued the crew.

The Japanese Steamship Sakamaru went aground on Masbate island in the Philippines and was wrecked. It is feared the crew was lost.

The Spanish liner Cantabria was driven ashore on the Isle of Man, off the British coast.

SCREEN ACTRESS IS BROUGHT INTO ROTHSTEIN CASE

geles and the slaying of Arnold Rothstein.

Miss Pickford reported she and a boy friend had been kidnapped November 9, six days after Arnold Rothstein had been shot at the Park Central hotel in New York.

Dragging the Pickford name into the Rothstein case may have been the first realizatino of the threat of the dead gambler's 56,000 "scraps of paper," which were first ballyhooed and then shelved with a statement by District Attorney Jacob Banton that they were "too dreary" for his own men to waste time over.

District Attorney Confident.

Since then the district attorney has made another statement in which he said:

"I promise you that within a short time we will have plenty of news in the Rothstein case. We have obtained all we needed from the Rothstein files regarding the murder. As for the rest of the stuff in those files, there is plenty of time for us to examine them.

"I am in hourly contact with Mr. (Nathan) Burkan and Andrew J. Sheridan, one of the three temporary administrators of the Rothstein estate, who has taken an active part in aiding us. I can rely on them. All the files have been scrutinized. As soon as I can give the public news about the case I shall do so."

Before the "56,000 scraps of paper" were officially declared to constitute a "dreary" task, it had been reported that they contained matter of almost dvilish implications. The original report was that Rothstein, for some reason—perhaps, as a standing threat to protect his own life—had set down detailed notations of all his multifarious connections with great and lowly, supporting them with carefully preserved correspondence relating to all the shadowy details in which he apparently delighted in figuring.

Walker Appears Satisfied.

The files were taken in charge by the police after a visit to Rothstein's Fifth avenue home.

Mayor Walker, whose dissatisfaction wit the manner in which the police investigation was being conducted, took the form of a threat to have removed the heads of those in charge of it last week, seemed appeased today. He issued a statement that he had no desire to "change horses in the middle of a stream."

Meanwhile, his police commissioner, Joseph Warren, tacitly withdrew from leadership in the investigation and the homicide squad and city detectives are turning over their findings to Banton.

The person who fired a bullet into Rothstein's stomach in Room 349 of the Park Central hotel November 4 may emerge as a name on an indictment from the welter of testimony to be presented to the grand jury beginning Monday morning.

CONDITION OF KING GEORGE REMAINS SAME

the improvement which set in Friday evening was being maintained. The development of pleurisy was lightly passed over in the bulletin as "commonly accompanying this type of congestion." It was added, however, that it was "a prominent feature" in the king's illness.

Rich and Poor Rub Elbows.

In an effort to relieve any great public anxiety for the king's condition Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin followed his usual custom of spending the weekend at his official country home at Chequers. Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, also announced he would leave town today for his country home in Sussex. Both, however, are understood to be keeping in very close touch with the palace and have given orders that they be notified of any change in the king's condition.

Queen Mary has tried to maintain the usual routine of the royal family. Today she left the palace for Royal Albert hall to attend a performance of the Royal Choral society. The crowd of watchers around the palace remained silent as a token of sympathy as the queen passed. The men doffed their hats and the queen smiled in acknowledgement.

Throughout the day the rich and the poor rubbed elbows before the palace entrance.

Prince Constantly Informed.

Meanwhile, the government is making a check-up on all available airplanes in Africa to bring the Prince of Wales to England in event that his father's condition becomes so serious that such a step is necessary.

The prince is being constantly informed of his father's condition, but no alarming messages have been sent.

The prince is now on a shooting expedition in the Doreda district some two days journey from Dodoma, in the wilds of Tanganyikian highlands. His brother, the Duke of Gloucester, is also hunting in the Lake Rukwa region and is proceeding toward the Chimbesi river and will meet his royal highness at Livingstone.

STORM DELAYS HOOVER'S TOUR ONE FULL DAY

the captain's wish for more and brought it before being asked.

"You surely are on the job," the captain said as the signal man expertly balanced a cup during a lurch of the ship.

One dramatic incident of the storm occurred when a group of men was hastily mustered to rescue one of the $37,000 airplanes aboard the ship. The plane had loosed its lashings in the heavy swell.

Officers of the ship estimated today that the Maryland would have to weather rough seas most of the day, or at least until she was beyond the Tehuantepec gulf, which is known as the "Hatteras of the Pacific."

They scoffed at attempts by newspapermen to get them to say that the sea was "rough" and would only admit that it was a moderate storm such as is frequently encountered in these waters.

The first indications of the rough weather came during a moving picture show in the evening when a huge wave smashed against the steel hull threw spray over the audience and flooded the Hoovers' sitting room.

Mrs. Hoover joined the president-elect on the bridge of the Maryland today and both showed themselves to be good sailors. Their chairs were placed on the leeward side of the bridge near the conning tower.

Part of the time Mr. Hoover smoked a cigar and read a book on South America. Later he chatted with a newspaperman who joined him.

Occasionally Mrs. Hoover would arise from her chair and pace the limits of the bridge gazing at the huge white-capped waves as they dashed over the bow. She would then return to the knitting which she brought with her when she first came to the bridge.

The president-elect wore his usual costume of a blue coat white flannel trousers and a yeoman's cap.

BARRYMORE AND MISS COSTELLO ARE MARRIED

was moved forward two hours, and most of the fifty friends invited to attend the nuptials began arriving after the ceremony was completed.

The Rev. Theodore Curtis Abel, of the Unitarian Society of Hollywood officiated.

It was believed that the wedding was rushed through because of the intrusion early this aetfrnoon of an unidentified motion picture actor, who created a considerable disturbance by loudly demanding to see the bride, contending that he was Miss Costello's rejected sutor. The man was speedily ejected from the Costello home.

Helene Maid of Honor.

Helene Costello, sister of the bride and herself a motion picture star, was the maid of honor.

Lionel Barrymore, a distinguished screen and stage actor and older brother of the groom, was best man.

Maurice Costello, father of the new Mrs. John Barrymore and one of the pioneer stars of motion pictures, and his divorced wife and mother of the bride, were present.

Newspaper reporters were barred from the interior of the Costello home. A detail of private detectives surrounded the house to guard against any further intrusions.

Although the bride and groom and their relatives were reticent concerning plans for a wedding trip, it was reported in the neighborhood of the bride's home that they planned to leave by train tonight for a tour of the east.

Groom's Third Venture.

The marriage is the third for the eminent actor and the first matrimonial venture of his bride. Their romance began in a Hollywood studio while they were at work in the production of motion pictures.

Barymore's last wife was Blanche Oelrichs of New York, noted poet, whose pen name is Michael Strange.

Barrymore was clothed in formal afternoon dress.

Many film notables were among the intimate friends who attended the wedding. Among them were Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford, Louise Fazenda, George K. Arthur, Louis Wolheim and Ernest Lubitsch. Among the motion picture executives and producers who attended were Joseph Schenck, Jack Warner, William Koenig and Michael Coritz, Miss Costello's director. Bess Meredith, the author, also attended.

A dinner followed the nuptials.

Actresses Defrauded

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Agnes Ayres and Clare Windsor, film actresses, are said to have been defrauded of thousands of dollars in land deals, under investigation by the district attorney's office.

Miss Ayres lost $30,000 and Miss Windsor's losses total $300,000, according to their attorneys. Details of the deals were not divulged.

GIGANTIC WAVE OF SPECULATION ROLLS FORWARD

Favorite Stocks Soar To Dizzy Heights In Past Week.

Dun's Review Reports Trend Toward Rising Production Some Lines.

BY ALBERT L. LA TOUR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—The gigantic wave of speculation, something entirely new in the speculative phase of the country, rolled on this week, leaving even the most optimistic bewildered and casting into the backwash the ordinary and legitimate considerations of business.

That demand for steel was revived this week apparently held little weight as speculative furore reached the highest ever. Favorite stocks soared to dizzy heights in nationwide enthusiasm that burst all bounds, forcing the governor of the stock exchange to hastily order the market closed on Saturday.

Efforts to speed up the ticker by eliminating the sales from the tape and printing only the stock abbreviation and shortened price were virtually futile. On Friday, the second day of the new system, sales reached the staggering total of 6,942,500 shares and caused a delay of more than an hour in reporting of transactions.

Stocks like Wright Aeroplane, which jumped 49 points one day, were leaders of the greatest of all the so-called "Hoover bull harvest." Never before was bidding for the high-priced stocks and selective favorites so frantic, yet with it all there was plenty of liquidation.

Trading was no less hectic in the curb market, governors of which also were forced to padlock the exchange from a speculative-crazed public. On Monday the curb market will also put into force the elimination of sales on the tape after their first appearance.

A Rising Trend.

Dun's review reports a trend toward rising production in certain lines, as in different divisions of textiles, and the great steel industry, although disclosing the expected let-down, maintains noteworthy buoyancy. An important phase in that direction, and also in other channels, is the tendency toward a widening of profits on individual transactions, following many months of narrow margins in this respect.

Weather irregularities made for considerable variance in trade reports. Industry, too, seemed to show a fair amount of variance, in that steel mill operations and automobile output tended to quiet down a trifle, whereas production of textiles and their finished products, clothing, knit goods, etc., seems to have continued the acceleration shown in October. Radio, rayon and some woodworking operations maintained or added to their previous pace.

Higher prices for cotton goods and better buying followed a 3-4 cent advance in the raw material. In the steel, shoe and automobile trades, seasonal conditions seem to have entered, but even in steel specifications were reported freer, while one large automobile concern reported actual acceleration.

Cotton slumped during midweek on ginning returns which proved to be larger than had been generally expected. Toward the close of the week prices recovered moderately. Of eighty-two commodities of all kinds quoted in Bradstreet's, fourteen advanced as compared with last week, sixteen declined and fifty-two remained unchanged.

Bank clearings totaled 14,071,506,000, an increase of 50.2 per cent.

Wheat Lower.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24— (INS)—Wheat closed ⅝@¾c lower today on selling by locals, commission houses and northwest concerns. The market was higher early on scattered buying on firmness at Liverpool. Corn finished 1⅛c to 1½c down with selling on favorable weather over the belt. Oats were ¼@⅜c off.

For the week wheat was off ¼@⅝c, corn ½c while oats were up ⅝c@1c.

Big buying by shorts in December wheat gave the market a steady undertone in spite of bearish features, liquidation of December, which was expected to depress the market, failed to materialize on the scale expected and it appeared shorts and cash interests were more concerned than longs.

Late stimates indicated world's stock of wheat at about 124,000,000 bushels more than a year ago. Canadian marketings this year show such an increase over last year that it is being given considerable prominence as indicating that the official crop estimate was under the real production in Canada. Continued favorable weather conditions both here and in Canada also were bear factors in wheat this week. Cables were uneven. Foreign news mixed. Some complaints have come recently from Argentina of dry and hot weather in the south, which was said to be hurting the crop, but foreign markets paid little attention to these reports. The Russian situation remains unchanged with the wheat crop reaching maturity without serious mishap. Export demand was light.

March and May corn soared to new high highs for the season. December also was active with active buying. Unfavorable weather over the belt which delayed farm deliveries figured in the advance receipts were small but primary arrivals continue larger than a year ago. Favorable weather conditions and weakness in wheat figured in a reaction later. Those who are bullish on corn believe that despite the tendency of country holders to sell, there will be no accumulation in the near future. Export business has been slow. Cash demand continued moderate.

Hog Prices Drop.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Hogs finished 60c under a week ago and at the lowest point since last March. Steers were 50c to $1.50 lower, cows and heifers 50c to 75c off. Lambs closed on a par with last week.

Excessive receipts and a light shipping demand were the dominating factors in the hog market. Receipts this week totalled 214,000, the largest since last spring. A week ago arrivals numbered 179,000 and a year ago 153,000. There were 732,000 hogs received at eleven primary markets this week which was 255,000 more than a year ago. The best hogs available sold at $8.55 late in the week and most of the plain heavy and underweight light at $7.75 to $8.25.

Demand for beef was modified on account of poultry competition and buyers had easily managed to pull down prices. Receipts were 61,000 against 64,000 last week and 55,000 a year ago. Weeks top was $17.50 with few steers selling higher than $16.50. The bulk of the supply cleared at $12 to $15. Cows and heifers were lower in sympathy with steers. Beef cows sold at $6.50 to $10 and heifers ranged from $8 to $12. Demand was slack for the calves most of which sold to packers at $12 to $13.50.

Early in the week the market was higher for all good lambs but later the advance was lost. At the close good to choice lambs were listed at $13 to $13.35 and medium to good at $12.50 to $13. Receipts for the week were 64,000 against 77,000 last week and 61,000 last year.

Chicago Cotton Up.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Cotton prices closed 78 to 95 points above a week ago. New highs for the current movement were established. Adverse weather and a private estimate by a leading Chicago house showing moderate ginnings to November 14 were 11,197,023 bales. The census report on ginnings which were 11,320,302 bales against 10,894,912 bales the corresponding time last year induced heavy selling and caused a recreation from high points. However, prices recovered again on scattered buying and moderate offerings. The government weekly weather report was favorable east of the Mississippi but unfavorable for the west.

Today's closing prices were three points lower to twelve higher. December at 19.72; January 1982; March 19.95; May 1992; July 19.80; Oct. 19.46.

GORDON NORTHCOTT WILL BE RETURNED

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Cordon Stewart Northcott, alleged Wineville, Cal., boy slayer will be on his way to California to stand trial of murder charges on Tuesday.

The last delay was removed today when Deputy Sheriff James Quinn of Riverside announced receipt of telegraphic advices from Ottawa that the necessary warrants for extradition of both Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott, had been mailed and will reach this city early Tuesday morning.

If the warrant for Mrs. Northcott reaches Calgary in time for her to be brought here before Tuesday the prisoners will be taken south together.

Capt. William Bright of Los Angeles County sheriff's office arrived here last night.

BROKERS REST AFTER BEDLAM

Stock Exchange Employes Relax at End of Hectic Week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—The weary stock brokers, clerks and floor managers who made up that bedlam of the stock exchange rested today after the most vigorout week in the history of that trading center.

The bull market which followed upon election of Herbert Hoover as president had taxed every resource that New York had for handling the exchange. The trading during the week was on an average of 6,099,524 shares a day.

A few years ago a 3,000,000-share day was something to marvel about. Whenever the traders got so busy that 3,000,000 shares were exchanged every newspaper in the country emblazoned the front pages with the announcement.

Yet, through this week almost every day has seen that 3,000,000 figure doubled while some of the leading stocks have jumped 20 to 30 points. Millionaires were made. Millionaires, so reports go, were broken.

Never before in history has there been such a wave of speculation. From every corner of the country orders have come into Wall Street.

From the opening gong on Monday until the close on Friday tickers hummed with millions of sales. Authorities of the exchange shot their last gun in the war to keep tickers abreast of trading. They made the most radical change known to the conservative exchange in eliminating from the regular ticker all volume of transactions, except the opening sales.

A Success On Thursday.

In one day the Western Union Telegraph Co., turned over to its engineers the job of equipping New York newspaper offices and press associations with a doublemotor ticker service for sales. On Thursday the new system was tried with remarkable success.

The reason for this success was that many traders remained out of the market. The ticker was only a minute or two late most all day and the last quotation was printed at 3:32. Then those absentees came back with a rush and the ticker ran overtime nearly an hour Friday, recording 6,954,020 sales.

Argument now is for a double ticker service. That the members of the exchange think trading will be heavy from now on is seen in the latest prices for seats. A sale was arranged at $550,000 Friday, a new record for all time. At one time a year ago one could have purchased a membership for $170,000.

No change in the course of the "Hoover bull market" was discernible. Prices generally moved forward, some of them sensationally. There was some profit-taking Friday—the usual Saturday selling — induced by the closing today, but the previous momentum left the list on much higher ground.

Brokerage Loans Jump.

Even the expansion of $176,315,000 in brokerage loans this week failed to bring down prices. Last week the loan total rose only $1,849,000. Traders averaged the two and found only about $90,000,000 per week gain—a small matter.

Call money held at 6½ per cent and time money, while firm, had little effect. That the market is peculiarly sensitive to the federal reserve board attitude was shown plainly Friday when an announcement was to be made at the New York Federal Reserve bank. Stocks sold off sharply, but when the announcement came of the appointment of G. L. Harrison to succeed the late Benjamin Strong as governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank the list snapped back quickly.

Radio, Case Threshing Machine, Victor Talking Machine, the airplane stocks and other blue chips of the list made the widest advance. With such high priced issues in demand one could easily judge the calibre of the buying. Wealth is in this market. It cannot be broken easily. On this thesis traders added to their commitments in the issues which have dividend records or possibilities of great increases in value.

LAWYERS FAR APART ON FEES

Charges Recommended By Various Attornies Vary Widely.

Resolutions Adopted In Tribute to F. M. Hall and H. H. Wheeler.

That lawyers often aren't able to agree, even on fees, was demonstrated Saturday evening when, at the regular monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Bar association at the Lincoln hotel, Secretary Guy Tou Velle read a summary of fee suggestions made by forty local attorneys.

The lowest, the highest and the usual charge recommended by various attorneys for standard services were read by Mr. Tou Velle to his colleagues. The high and the low of it often were as far apart as $2 and $100, or $25 and $500.

Yet as a rule, most of the practitioners stuck pretty well to a recognized scale. And that scale, according to Mr. TouVelle, has shown mighty little advance in the last forty or fifty years.

The association took no action on the report nor was it expected to. Questionnaires had been returned by 90 per cent of Lincoln's active lawyers.

"Our fees offer more sound values than the fees of any other profession," Mr. Tou Velle stated. The chief danger, in his opinion, is that the charges are likely to be too low.

Need $235 A Month.

A young bachelor lawyer, for instance, with the lowest office and living charges must make $235 a month or $1.11 an hour to cover his bare necessities. A married man must make $350 or $1.63 an hour. With extra expenses and depreciation and capital investment counted, the income must be between $3 and $5 a day, 8 hours a day every day, to provide a compensatory income.

After the long list of minimum fee charges had been read, members present were called on for discussion.

John J. Ledwith gave as his opinion that fees cannot be arranged in any cut and dried manner. To build up a clientel, lawyers must do far more free work than such a scale indicates.

Much of the law business, what is more, now falls to real estate offices and trust companies, whose competition Mr. Ledwith regards in these matters as unfair. They advertise, for instance, which for a lawyer is unethical.

Too many lawyers is another source of trouble, said Mr. Ledwith. Lincoln has 200 when 100 could do the work.

Judge Reid of the County court spoke out that he considered $50 the minimum for an estate matter. His hardest job, he added, is fixing fees, for then he is liable to criticism from the lawyer himself as well as the lawyer's client.

Dale P. Stough and Otto ...eier also spoke on the subject.

Two Memorials Adopted.

Two memorials to members who have passed away were read and adopted.

H. H. Wilson presented the following committee report to the memory of Frank M. Hall:

"Frank Monroe Hall was born on January 27, 1852 on a farm in Morgan county, Illinois. At an early date his family moved to Nebraska and settled at Humboldt in Richardson county.

"During the seventies Mr. Hall attended the state normal school at Peru in this state and in the fall of 1876 he entered the Nebraska state university as a student in the university. He registered as a "university student" which means that he was not restricted to any particular course of study as most of the students were, but was allowed to choose those subjects of study which he deemed the best preparation for his professional career that he had already determined should be law. At that early date, Nebraska had no law school and, indeed, at that time there were but few such schools in the country.

Studied in Law Office.

"At the end of two years' study in the university, he had a favorable opportunity to commence the reading of law in the office of Cobb and Marquette, one of the leading law firms of Lincoln at that time. This opportunity was so attractive to Mr. Hall that he left the university to become an office law student. After the usual preparation furnished at that time by law office reading, he was admitted to the bar in 1880. Not long after his admission to the bar, Mr. Cobb became one of the judges of the Supreme court and Mr. Hall was invited to take his place in the firm that later became Marquette, Deweese and Hall.

"On June 22, 1882 he was at Hamburg, Ia., united in marriage to Anna E. Ried who for forty-five years was his inspiring companion, dividing his sorrows and doubling his joys.

"Mr. Hall soon became known as an efficient and successful trial lawyer; he did not limit his legal reading to the preparation for the trial of his own cases. By general reading he acquired a broad knowledge of the whole system of law and became known as a scholarly lawyer. He had a keen and analytical mind that led to an understanding of the broad underlying principles that constitute the philosophy of law.

"His services to his clients often went far beyond the function of the mere lawyer and included advice upon business matters quite outside the profession. No lawyer at the bar ever had the confidence and loyal support of his clients more than Mr. Hall. Some of these clients had the benefit of his services and advice for practically the whole term of his career at the bar.

Active Outside Profession.

"Beside his professional activity, he became well known for his activities outside of the law. At an early date he was attracted to the fine arts and became a connoisseur in judging works of art. He and his wife, not only by wide reading on art subjects, but also by European travel qualified themselves to appreciate the best in that line. They gradually built up in their home a considerable collection of valuable paintings and shared the enjoyment of them with the people of the community.

"It was largely due to the efforts of Mr. Hall that the city now possesses its chief piece of sculpture—the Lincoln monument on the capitol grounds.

"During the many years of his active life, Mr. Hall was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian church of this city. The study of architecture was one of his avocations and it was no doubt one of the greatest pleasures of his life that in his closing years he was privileged to have the oversight of the planning and construction of the monumental home of the church of his faith—the First Presbyterian church of this city.

"Mr. Hall made this community his debtor by several years of faithful and intelligent service as a member of the school board. He was more than a lawyer; he was a broadminded patriotic citizen. In full sympathy with progress, he touched life at many points and never touched it without tending to elevate it.

"Mr. Hall was a marked man in any group of which he formed a part. Strong in his convictions, bold and forceful in the expression of his own opinion, yet he was tolerant of the opinions of others if he felt they were sincerely held and honestly expressed.

Ethics of Highest.

"In the discussion clubs of the city, his contributions were always worthwhile and some of them will long be remembered and preserved. As a lawyer, Mr. Hall stood for the highest standards of ethics in his profession, was honest and fair in his practice, loyal to the courts and strove to inspire a general confidence in the due administration of law.

"His passing has left vacant a place at the bar which it might well be the highest ambition of the younger generation to adequately fill. He was loyal to his country and to its institutions and always sought to promote its best interests as he conceived them to be. In his death this bar has lost a worthy and efficient member, the community an enterprising, influential and upright citizen, and the state and country a patriotic American."

E. P. Brown read a resolution on the death of Hiland Hill Wheeler.

Mr. Wheeler came to Nebraska in the early seventies after he had already won recognition as a scholar and a lawyer, said Mr. Brown. He became deputy clerk of the Supreme court and on his efforts rests the responsibility for much of the state law library's excellence. To him also may be credited the accuracy of reports on early court cases. He compiled the statutes of the state in accurate, brief and convenient form and continued to publish them for many years. Mr. Wheeler spoke the truth, loved honor, was loyal and faithful, concluded Mr. Brown.

CONTINENTAL CO. IN NEW OFFICES

Moves To Quarters On Eighth Floor of the Stuart Building.

The division offices of the Continental Oil Co. will occupy the entire north wing of the eighth floor of the new Stuart building, J. A. Lentz, division manager of the company, announced Saturday afternoon. The offices will be all in a single room, 36 by 107 feet, and comprises slightly less than half the entire floor space of the eighth floor. The transferring was completed Saturday, and Monday will find the offices in their new home.

Lincoln is the divisional headquarters for the company, handling the jobbing, wholesaling and retailing activities throughout the Nebraska and South Dakota territory. Four hundred and eighty-two persons are employed in this territory, over one hundred of wsom are in Lincoln. The company has a $150,000 payroll in Lincoln alone.

Besides the large room which will house and general offices, the new quarters of the company include four large private offices and a display room, located at the west end of the building. The entire eighth floor of the Stuart building is available to the Continental company if future expansion is required, said Mr. Lentz.

BIG ATTENDANCE MASONIC MEETING

Capacity Crowd Friday Evening Reminiscent Of Night William Jennings Bryan Was Raised To Master Mason.

Victor Seymour, secretary of Lancaster Lodge No. 54 said at the conclusion of the work Friday evening that the attendance was the largest he had ever witnessed at Blue lodges with the possible exception of the night William Jennings Bryan was raised. Lancaster Lodge No. 54 wishes publicly to express its regards at not being able to seat all the brethren who came to the banquet. Nevertheless, preparation had been made for considerably more than at any previous meeting this year.

Past Master Alva A. Baer said "The best argument one could produce for a new Masonic temple in Lincoln was witnessed at Lancaster lodge No. 54 Friday evening when the main floor and balcony were taxed almost to the limit."

Many men, some members of Lancaster Lodge No. 54 and visitors sid that the work done by Mizpah Lodge No. 302 was the best they had ever witnessed. This lodge will be remembered many years in this vicinity for the splendid degree work exhibited Friday evening.

Ben Green of the Burlington system who is making plans for railroad night said that one official of the Burlington at Chicago T. E. Pratt, had promised to come to Lincoln for Lancaster Lodge No. 54 Master night on December 28.

Two Master Mason degrees will be conferred Friday evening, November 30. Work begins at 6 p. m. An oyster supper will be served following the work.

Road Conditions

The following report of the condition of Nebraska's highways was issued late Saturday afternoon by the Lincoln Automobile club:

Dirt roads are greatly improved today over the conditions prevailed during the past week. All of the main highways have been maintained. The graveled roads are good although choppy in places on the highways receiving the heaviest traffic. There are but three detours reported in the state.

U. S. No. 38. Lincoln to Omaha, good. Graveled west to this side of Oxford; one detour. Rough stretches fair, passable into Denver, and good in places.

U. S. No. 77. Sioux City to Oakland, good gravel. Dirt rough to Hooper ;good gravel to Fremont and generally good int Lincln, Beatrice, Wymore and to the Kansas line.

U. S. No. 30. Omaha to Fremont, paved. Fair on dirt stretches to Grand Island. Grand Island west to North Platte—rough Gothenburg to Brady Island, and slightly rough for short stretch this side of North Platte. Generally good to Creyenne.

U. S. No. 81. Good.

U. S. No. 75. Omaha to Auburn, graveled. Dirt road to Fairview, then gravel to Topeka.

U. S. No. 73. Graveled to Falls City.

U. S. No. 20. Generally good across northern Nebraska to Valentine, Merriman, Chadron and Crawford.

U. S. No. 26. Ogallala to Scottsbluff, Bridgeport and Torrington, reported good.

U. S. No. 19. Sidney to Alliance and Chadron, good.

Nebraska No. 11. Lincoln to Union, good. Lincoln to Seward, use Nos. 38 and 15. Seward to York, Aurora and Grand Island, good gravel.

Nebraska No. 2. Grand Island to Broken Bow, good gravel.

Nebraska No. 24. Lincoln to Nebraska City, good gravel.

Nebraska No. 3. Across southern Nebraska to Colorado, generally fair to good.

Nebraska No. 15. Good, with one detour.

Nebraska No. 16. Good.

Nebraska No. 5. Omaha north, good.

EIGHT ELECTORS CHOSEN TO CAST NEBRASKA VOTE

Group Picked at Election Although Names Were Not On Ballot.

Formalities Of Law To Be Observed Here January 2.

Eight persons in Nebraska whose names did not appear on the official ballot at the election held November 6, and for whom not a single 'X' was marked on any voter's ticket, were nevertheless elected by the sizable plurality of 147,786 votes, as a result of the G. O. P. landslide, and will receive commissions from the governor showing that fact.

They are the group of presidential electors who will meet in Lincoln on January 2, next and cast the eight votes of Nebraska—being the total number of its representatives and senators in congress—for Hoover and Curtis as the choice of this state for president and vice president of the United States.

The peculiar status of these citizens as delegated trustees to carry out the expressed will of Nebraska's electorate, without having been voted for as such, is due to an enactment of the last legislature, amending section 1,918 of the compiled statutes to read as follows:

"In the year 1928 and every four years thereafter, at the general election held on such day as congress may appoint, each (presidential) elector nominated by any party or group of petitioners shall receive the combined vote of the electors (voters) of the state for the candidates of such party or group of petitioners, and a vote cast for the candidates for president of the United States shall be the vote of the voter for the electors of the respective party or group of petitioners."

Legal Shifting of Votes.

The somewhat awkward language in the preceding paragraph means simply that all ballots marked at the late election for Hoover and Curtis, bracketed together, must be counted for the republican presidential electors; those marked for Smith and Robinson are credited to the democratic electors; and the ones on which voters expressed their preference for Thomas and Mauer go into the socialist electors' column.

This has been done by Secretary of State Marsh in compiling the total vote of the state, with the result that each republican presidential elector is given 345,745 votes, each democratic one 197,959 and each one in the socialist group 3,434.

Expressed in the language of an old-fashioned school arithmetic, the effect is to transfer A's votes (those cast for Hoover and Curtis) to B, C, D, E, F, G, H and I. The reason for this is that under the federal constitution the people cannot vote directly for president and vice president but must choose electors, who subsequently cast the votes alloted to each state in determining the choice of the nation's rulers.

Formerly, the names of all candidates for presidential electors were printed on the ballot, while the presidential and vice presidential nominees did not appear thereon. This had the effect of mixing the voters up badly, and to simplify things the law was changed ten years ago so as to leave off the ballot the names of electors, whom very few people knew, and put on those of the candidates for president and vice president, so that anyone might be able to tell at a glance, how to mark his ticket. It was stipulated in the enactment that the governor, after election, should appoint the electors of the party whose presidential ticket carried the state.

The last legislature, seemingly fearful that some future governor might fail to carry out this requirement, and thereby possibly prevent the election of a president, went a step further by changing the law so as to direct election boards to credit all votes cast for president and vice president to the electors of the same party.

No Trip to Washington.

There is sad news in store for the eight electors thus chosen, in the fact that congress has also been doing some legislating in regard to the manner of casting and counting electoral votes, and in so doing has abolished the old custom of sending an official messenger from each state to Washington, charged with the duty of carrying the official returns and delivering them to the proper governmental functionaries.

Always heretofore, there has been a good deal of rivalry for the honor of being sent as the state's messenger to the national capitol, which carried with it a liberal mileage allowance, paid by the United States treasury, sufficient to meet all expenses of the person taking the trip.

That has all been done away with now. The Nebraska electors will merely meet in Lincoln on January 2, the date fixed by congress in its new enactment, cast their votes separately for president and vice president and forward duplicated certificates of their action by registered mail to the secretary of state and the president of the senate at Washington. After that they will be free to go home.

With the governmental trip and its cash allowance gone, there is little left to the job of being a presidential elector. The only remaining perquisite is a $5 per diem while in Lincoln and 10 cents a mile for travel coming here and going home, which the state pays.

It devolves on Governor McMullen to notify the electors of their election and the time when they are to meet here. The meeting date in Nebraska has been advanced several days from what it used to be. It is now uniform throughout the United States.

Personnel of Group.

The republican electors who will convene in Lincoln on January 2 and go through the prescribed formalities are:

At large—Mrs. Augusta M. Berry, Bellevue, and Harry E. Sackett, Beatrice.

District electors — First, H. A Schneider, Plattsmouth; second, Mrs. Bertha Clark Hughes, South Omaha; third, H. L. Webster, Tekamah; fourth, M. M. Aikin, Fairmont; fifth, J. Warren Keifer, Bostwick; sixth, M. L. Fries, Arcadia.

REBEKAH ELECTION.

RED CLOUD, Neb., Nov. 24—At the regualr meeting of Faith Rebekah lodge held Thursday evening, the following officers were elected: Noble grand, Pearl Hines; vice grand, Emma Bargman; secretary, Myrs Koon; treasurer, Lole Corner.

Irrigation At Pen Success And No Indication Constant Watering Is Injuring Soil

After a two-year trial at the Nebraska penitentiary, irrigation has been pronounced a success in this, the first venture of the kind in Lancaster county.

Crops not only have been made certain, say those in charge, but have been increased one half.

Ten more acres were put under irriagtion this year but no further extensions of the system are now contemplated. An additional "booster" pump had to be added for the 10-acre field, so that electricity is supplied from the new power house to two centrifugal devices.

Profits from the penitentiary plat have not been figured exactly, nor will they be so reckoned, because all expense itself cannot be calculated. Later in the fall, however, a report will be made on the approximate amount and value of all the products.

Does Not Damage Soil.

There has been no indication, says L. L. Lawrence, gardener in charge, that the ground of Salt creek valley will become untillable through continual irrigation. In some localities, land watered season after season becomes dank, mucky and unfit for agriculture. It then has to be rested before tilled again.

Twenty acres planted to potatoes this year made about 225 bushels to the acre. Five or six acres of cabbage were planted. This vegetable profits remarkably from irrigation. The weight of none of the great heads was ascertained definitely, but some of them were very large. Sixty-five barrels of kraut and twenty of pickle lilly were put down for winter use at the prison.

From the five or six acres planted to tomatoes, 2,000 gallons of canned fruit were prepared and 2,000 gallons of preserves put up. The fruit is placed in 5-gallon jars at the slaughter house, used temporarily during the proper season as a canning factory.

10 Acres Garden Truck.

Ten acres of small garden stuff such as carrots, beets, turnips, radishes, lettuce and the like were planted. The early plants are not helped much by irrigation by the main root crops improve greatly under applications of creek water. Seven hundred bushels each of carrots, beets and turnips were stored.

Sweet corn of which there were five acres at the pen, flourished.

The reason ordinary garden irrigation often seems ineffectual, Mr. Lawrence has concluded, is threefold.

First, it often is insufficient; second, the water comes cold from the mains and chills the growing plants; third, it is hard and carries no plant food.

All three of these defects are remedies under the system used at the penitentiary. The creek water is warm, it is put on in sufficient quantities, and is carries vast sediments of valuable fertilizer.

Irrigate at Night.

After 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the heat of the day is gone, the pumps are tsarted. Two men besides Mr. Lawrence work until midnight guiding the water down narrow channels between each row. In exceedingly dry weather, the process is repeated every eight or ten days.

During the last of June and in early July, hot spells that hurt garden stuff seems to occur most frequently.

As many as forty men are employed at one time on the 40 acres. Mr. Lawrence must then be chief guard as well as chief gardener. Regular trusties or relaible men with a short time left to serve are detailed for the job.

Not only do their efforts supply the institution with many of its food requirements, but at the same time the men help themselves. Confined for years in some cases in cells or at indoor labor, they become flabby and quite unable to perform ordinary manual labor. For several days when first set to weeding or other tasks, they often are unable to toil continuously. The outdoor life, however, toughens and enables them at the time of their release to go into the world again and do a man's share.

Boy, 18, and Liquor Car Are Taken

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(I. N. S.)—A giant racketeer organization may be supplying Chicago school children with liquor through "candy stores" and bookstores, federal and city policemen indicated tonight.

Meyer Price, 18, arrested in a car containing a quantity of gin and "moonshine," was released this afternoon on $1,000 bod after arraingment.

The boy was only defiant when arrested, threatening the officer:

"I can get your job: I'm working with a big shot in Evanston."

The arrest of Price indicated, police said, that a syndicate of bootleggers may be operating under cloak of various stores near grade and high schools and using school boy agents for deliveries in the halls of the schools in some cases.

Most of the liquor, according to police, is sold in half-pints, within the reach of student purses, and is little better than poison.

William J. Brogan, superintendant of schools ,called a special meeting of principals today and issued a request that co-operation be extended by all teachers to police cleanup squads.

A vivid picture of a highly organized syndicate debauching school children, with big profits to the syndicate, was the picture drawn tonight by the local and federal officials heading the "cleanup."

The "broadmont" club, raided today, was sold by police to have been one of many organizations catering almost entirely to high school students.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

—a Six in the price range of the four!

The Chevrolet Motor Company announces The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History... a Six in the price range of the four!

Spectacular as Chevrolet's achievements have been in the past . . . notable as its engineering triumphs have proved themselves to be—this remarkable new car dwarfs every previous Chevrolet accomplishment. Not only does it introduce into the low-priced field an entirely new measure of performance, comfort, beauty and style—but it is sold at prices so low as to alter every previous conception of motor car value.

The new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine — developed from more than a hundred motors designed especially for this sensational car—stands out as an engineering masterpiece. With a power increase of approximately 32% over the previous Chevrolet motor, with sensationally greater speed and faster acceleration—it offers a type of performance that is literally astounding . . . even to those who have been driving cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

Throughout the entire speed range, it performs with a smoothness and quietness of operation that have never before been approached in a low-priced automobile. At the slower speeds of city traffic it idles along with wonderful silence and ease. On boulevards and country roads it responds with an eagerness that is a constant delight. It takes the longest and steepest hills with an abundant reserve of power that is a source of pride to the driver. And its economy of operation averages better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

This revolutionary performance has been achieved as a result of the greatest array of engineering advancements that Chevrolet has ever announced. A high compression, non-detonating cylinder head . . . a new heavier crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced . . . automatic lubrication of the entire rocker arm mechanism . . . semi-automatic spark control . . . hot-spot manifold . . . gasoline pump and filter . . . new and larger carburetor, with automatic acceleration pump and improved venturi choke . . . fabric camshaft gear . . . heavier driving gears . . . heavier differential gears . . . improved crankcase breathing system . . . improved lubrication . . . new 4-wheel brakes that are powerful, safe and quiet under all conditions—these indicate the importance of a group of engineering advancements that embrace every major unit of the entire chassis.

In appearance, this Outstanding Chevrolet is destined to become an automotive sensation—so smart, so stylish and so distinctively appointed that it rivals the costliest custom creations. The new Fisher bodies are longer, lower and roomier with adjustable driver's seat in all closed models—and reveal the matchless artistry of Fisher designers. With their modish new colors, their smart dual mouldings and their distinctive concave pillars, they achieve a degree of original beauty that has seldom been equalled in motor car design.

You are cordially invited to visit our showroom and secure complete and detailed information on this sensational new car which will be ready for delivery beginning January 1st.

MANY SHIPS IN DISTRESS

Second Storm To Strike England Within Week Claims Ten. Distress Calls Sent Out And Lifeboat Crews Kept Busy.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Ten persons have been killed, hundreds are injured and many are homeless in the second storm to strike England within a week.

Although the general storm has abated in England, cyclonic winds are reported from the English channel, the Normandy coast and parts of Germany. Many ships are in distress and have sent out distress calls. Lifeboat crews along the south and east coasts are tremendously busy.

Air services to the continent have been suspended and many of the continental routes through the affected areas have been cancelled. Trans-Atlantic liners are reporting severe buffeting in gales at sea.

In the storm which visited England last week nearly 100 persons were killed, but the present storm is considered even more violent.

Communications between London and many parts of England were severed.

Today impaired telegraphic lines brought reports of winds reaching as high as 100 miles an hour. Heavy rains which accompanied the winds caused creeks to swell to small rivers and crops in many places are completely under water.

Ferries Suspend Service.

The lower part of the Port of Glasgow is under six feet of water. River ferries in many sections suspended service.

A weather forecast of the air ministr ytoday predicted that another severe wind and rain storm would reach the British Isles within twenty-four hours.

Several vessels are reported to be in distress in the North sea while many coast steamers have taken refuge in French ports.

Twenty-three members of the crew of the French steamer Emile del Mas were rescued by the life saving crew of New Brighton, off the Mersey Bar lightship. One of the crew was dead when the lifeboat arrived.

From the coast of Holland it was reported that approximately twenty-five members of the crew of the Greek steamer Eugenia still were aboard the vessel, which is lying at a dangerous angle after grounding.

Typhoon Strikes.

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Word was awaited tonight with anxiety from the provinces of Romblon, Mesbate and Sorgoson which were the center of typhoon, described by the weather bureau "as the most intense since 1882."

Communication with the central Phillipines, in which the storm swept provinces are situated, ceased early today and no word has been received of the damage wrought or the casualties, if any.

The storm center was about 150 miles south of Manila and, according to the weather bureau, Manila was in no danger unless the typhoon change its course.

The last word from the typhoon territory came from Legaspi and stated that hundreds of nipa houses had been destroyed. The populace was being sheltered in the strong stone warehouses maintained by hemp companies in that section.

A navy destroyer, with Red Cross doctors and nurses, will leave tomorrow for the typhoon area.

Fragmentary reports from the affected area indicated that the typhoon had covered a wide belt. This indicated that the storm had not been concentrated and belief was expressed by those familiar with the territory that no large number of lives had been lost.

The inter-island steamer Mindanao grounded at Socorro, according to a report reaching here tonight.

The liner President Grant was the only ship entering or leaving Manila bay today. All others tied up at their piers or sought refuge in outside ports.

NOVELIST-WIFE WINS DIVORCE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Louis Untermeyer of New York her poet-husband, "committed assault and battery," on her and then threatened her, in the presence of friends, last Wednesday, Mrs. Virginia Moore Untermeyer, charged in obtaining a divorce here, it was learned tonight.

The young novelist-wife published her first book recently, dedicated to her husband.

Circuit Judge Mulloy granted the divorce, giving Mrs. Untermeyer $3,000 yearly alimony at a hearing yesterday.

The former Virginia Moore, who is now twenty years old, became the second wife of Untermeyer, who is forty, in November, 1926, in Europe.

The divorce petition of Mrs. Untermeyer charged he threatened violence unless she "let him alone," and that he deserted her in London leaving her among strangers, in ill health and with a two-month-old baby.

Audience to Judge Nebraska-Australian Debate

DAVID FELLMAN. EVERT HUNT. GEORGE JOHNSON.

The three University of Nebraska debaters who will compete with the team from the University of Sydney, Australia, at the university coliseum Tuesday evening are shown above. Johnson and Hunt are from Lincoln and Fellman's home is at Omaha.

Audience vote, taken before and after the debate, will decide the winner of the debate between the University of Nebraska and the University of Sydney, Australia, at the university coliseum, Tuesday evening.

Ballots will be given to each person in the audience, who, before the debate, will indicate his opinion on the question: "The parliamentary system of government is superior to the presidential form," whether he is favorable, neutral or opposed. After the debate, he may vote mor favorable than before, favorable, neutral, opposed, or more opposed than before. The shift in opinion shown by the votes will determine the winner of the contest.

When the Australians meet Nebraska, it will be the eighth time they have debated the parliamentary government question in the United States. It was the subject of four debates in Texas, two in Oklahoma and one in Kansas. The Australian team is prepared to debate on eight different questions. The selection of the list of topics was made by the Australians and the American schools chose from that list.

Lieutenant-Governor George A. Williams of Fairmont will preside at the debate Tuesday night. When the Australian team meets Hastings, Monday night, Dr. Samuel Avery, chancellor-emeritus of the University of Nebraska, will preside.

BANK MOVES TO SHARP BUILDING

First State Of Bethany Opens Monday In New Location.

The First State bank of Bethany moved Saturday to quarters on the first floor of the Sharp building at Thirteenth and N streets and will be open for business in its new location Monday.

For some time preparations for the housing of this bank have rapidly progressed and complete equipment is in place ready to care for the needs of the bank's customers.

Henry Heiliger, president, has been in the banking business for nearly a quarter of a century. For fifteen years he was president of the Bank of Plymouth and for eight years president of the First State bank of Bethany. He also served two terms in the Nebraska legislature.

Speaking of this change in location, Mr. Heiliger said:

"The desire to increase the activities in the bank prompts the directors to secure this location in the heart of Lincoln's business district. After long consideration, the Sharp Building was unanimously selected. The recent improvements on Thirteenth street including the Sharp building, Federal Trust building, Cornhusker hotel, Montgomery Ward & Co., General Tire company, indicate the desirability of the location of the location as a business center. Our new home, midway between O street and the new capitol, affords us a most desirable location, convenient to the enlarged business activities in this section and to our friends using our banking facilities."

H. P. Heiliger, vice president, was cashier of the Bank of Plymouth for 15 years and has been vice president of the First State bank for eight years. He was formerly a state bank examiner.

O. F. Heiliger, cashier, was formerly with the State Bank of Jansen, also the First State bank and is well known in banking circles.

Harry Heiliger, assistant cashier, has also been connected with the Bank of Plymouth and with the First State bank for many years.

University Notes

Field trips in agronomy, geology, botany and geography will be offered by the University of Nebraska in the next summer session, it was announced by Director R. D. Moritz. The summer session, which was recently changed from two six-weeks terms to one nine-weeks term, will start June 12 and close August 8, 1929. The agronomy field course will be two weeks in length and will be spent in western and northern Nebraska. Six weeks will be spent in the Black Hills on the geology trip. The six-weeks botany course and the three-weeks geography course will both be spent in Colorado. A two-weeks coaching course, under the entire University of Nebraska coaching staff, will be given during the first two weeks of the summer session.

Several prominent visiting professors have been obtained to teach during the summer session, according to Director Moritz. Dr. Ernest Anderson, head of the department of chemistry at the University of Arizona, will be one of the visiting professors. He is a research worker in the field of carbohydrate chemistry, and was formerly at the University of Chicago, Massachusetts Agricultural college, and the Pretoria university, South Africa.

Dr. Paul R. Mort, of the Teachers College of Columbia university, whose proposals for state support of education have been accepted in three states and are being considered in Pennsylvania, Kansas and Nebraska, is to be one of the visiting professors.

A series of lectures for school superintendents will be given by Dr. Marvin S. Pittman, director of rural education of the State Teachers college, Ypsilanti, Mich. Dr. Pittman is the author of three books on educational problems.

Educational studies in spelling an dreading will be offered by Dr. Ernest Horn, chairman of the department of elementary education and director of the elementary training school of the University of Iowa. Dr. Horn's works in spelling and reading have contributed to the changes in methods and subject matter in those elementary school subjects.

Miss Evalina Harrington, of the University of Texas, will instruct in kindergarten-primary methods of teaching. She is vice-president of the International Kindergarten union.

Prof. Burt Cooper of Missouri State Teachers college, will direct work in vitalized agriculture. Professor Cooper has contributed to stimulating of teachers work in Nebraska rural schools.

West Point military academy maintains one of the most extensive athletic systems to be found in any educational institution in the world.

BOHEMIAN CLUB REJECTION STORY AMUSES ROGERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Will Rogers believes that someone is trying to steal his publicity thunder.

In other words, the comedian regards the story from San Francnsco regarding the reported rejection of his application for membership in the famous Bohemian club of that city as an effort on the part of an uhknown person to obtain free newspaper mention at his expense.

"The story is very amusing," Rogers told members of the cast of "Three Cheers," in which he is co-starring with Dorothy Stone. "I am not interested in the Bohemian club, and have never applied for membership in it. I cannot imagine how the report that my nomination to membership had been tabled originated. Perhaps someone is trying to use me as a publicity foil."

Rogers declined to be officially interviewed on the matter. He explained that it would be making a mountain out of a molehill."

BANK CASHIER WILL BE TRIED

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—"I've been the goat for eleven years, and when the time comes I'm going to do some butting."

In this declaration tonight of John D. Walker, charged with fraud, authorities found an intimation that he may implicate others in the sensational crash of 107 small Georgia banks in 1915.

Walker, one-time political, business and religious leader of South Georgia, was to be returned to Savannah tonight to face trial in Federal court.

Trailed by authorities throughout the United States and Far Eastern countries over a period of eleven years, he was captured as he left his home at Great Neck, L. I.

"For years I have been fleeing justice because I did not have the money to fight my case and be vindicated," Walker said. "I have to win back my good name, at the age of 57, and have no money to help me."

Walker is charged specifically with misappropriation of municipal bonds to his own use after they had been placed in his care as president of the bank of Sparta, parent institution of the chain which he founded. He is also charged with responsibility in the mis-appropriation of $100,000 of the funds of the North Georgia Methodist Conference while he was treasurer.

Eleanor Christian Dies Suddenly At Her Home Saturday

Eleanor Christian, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Christian, died suddenly about 10 o'clock Saturday morning at her home, 2112 Harrison street. Dr. F. B. Johnson, who had been attending Miss Christian during an attack of influenza, believes that death resulted from partial paralysis, brought on by a slight infection of her throat.

Miss Christian, who was a student in the Lincoln high school, became ill several days ago, but was reported to be recovering. She became worse Saturday morning, after the infection had set in, and Doctors John Thompson and O. F. Wilmeth were called into consultation. Miss Christian was seized suddenly with an attack of convulsions and died in spite of the efforts of physicians.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 Tuesday morning at St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Twenty-fourth and Sewell streets, with Rev. W. J. Woon officiating. Interment in Wyuka.

DR. INCHES SHIPWRECKED.

DETROIT, Nov. 24—(INS) — Dr. James W. Inches, former police commissioner, who had been on an African big game hunt since May, was shipwrecked off the western coast of Africa, a cable form him to William E. Metzger stated today.

LONDON, Nov. 24 — (INS) — While no word had been received here tonight concerning the shipwrecking of Dr. James W. Inches, Detroit sportsman, off the African coast, it was made known at Lloyds that the steamer Cariboo was foundered off East London, Africa. No lives were lost, it was stated. It was presumed here that Dr. Inches was among the passengers on the Cariboo.

INJURED IN FALL.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 24 — Anton Policky suffered a fractured left leg, right arm and other bad bruises and cuts when he fell from a windmill tower at Broadwater, striking the ground twenty feet below when his foot slipped.

MILLIONS HONOR THOMAS F. RYAN

Friends Mourn Death Of Self-Made Financial Genius.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Millions of persons paused today to pay tribute to Thomas Fortune Ryan, who rose from poverty and orphan-hood to become one of the wealthiest men of the world.

Ryan died suddenly yesterday after a three-day illness, but his death had been expected for years. He was 77 years old and twenty years ago was advised to quit the active business world.

Wall Street brokers and Catholic dignitaries, leaders in the railway, tobacco and rubber industries, and more humble persons who knew Ryan as a wealthy and kind man, bowed their heads for him today.

Born In Virginia.

Ryan's body lay in state at his Fifth Avenue home and the world from which he retired twenty years ago came for a brief moment to his bier.

Monday high mass will be said for him at the Church of St. Jean Baptiste for the erection of which he gave $,000,000. The body will be placed in a vault at Calvary cemetery after the ceremony to await decision as to place of burial.

Ryan was born in Virginia 77 years ago and orphaned five years later. He began in the drygoods business in Baltimore at the age of 17 and at 23 was able to buy a seat on the New York exchange.

Son Disapproved Second Marriage.

It was the beginning of his financial career, for soon he became known as the organizer of big business.

Among his friends was the late King Leopold II of Belgium, whom he aided in developing grants in what is now the Belgian Congo. He was made a marquis of the papal court in 1907 because of his gifts to charity. His first, wife, the daughter of the man who gave him his start, was made a countess by Pope Pius in 1907.

Mrs. Ryan died in 1917 and Ryan married Mrs. Cornelius C. Cuyler. Alan C. Ryan, one of his three sons, disapproved the marriage and the father and son were never reconciled. Alan was in Europe when Ryan died.

Interested In Politics.

Ryan saved the Equitable Life Insurance Co. from bankruptcy in 1906 by reorganizing it and combining it. He revived the British-America Tobacco, Kentucky and West Virginia.

William Whitney once described him as the most adroit, suave and noiseless man that American finance has ever known.

Ryan also took part in politics and contributed freely to Tammany Hall.

SMITH RESTED AFTER VACATION

Governor Will Visit Mobile and Atlanta Before Returning Home.

EDGEWATER GULF, Miss., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.) — Completely rested from his arduous presidential campaign, Gov. Al Smith wound pp his southern vacation here tonight.

At midnight Governor Smith and his party entrain for Mobile, Ala., where he will stay until Sunday night. Monday will be spent in Atlanta, Ga. From the Georgia metropolis Smith and his party will proceed to New York. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi will leave the party at Atlanta and return to Gulfport.

Tomorrow morning at Mobile Governor Smith will attend mass at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception and spend the afternoon on the links of the Mobile country club.

Governor Smith spent most of his last day at Edgewater Gulf playing golf with the other members of his party.

Horse Show Ends Livestock Pageant

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—The American Royal Stock show ended here tonight and the trek of the cattlemen back to "corral" and the feed lots and the range lands will be under way Sunday. The final horse show brought the livestock pageant to an end tonight and a capacity crowd of 14,000 persons viewed the last of the week's sessions of the show.

Despite the advent of the motor age, the livestock attracted unprecedented attention this year and thousands milled through the American Royal building, inspecting the animals as they promenaded on the walkways, and then went to the arena to view the "million-dollar parades" of livestock and the events of the horse show. Many of the horses and livestock entries will be shipped to the International Livestock show in Chicago.

COOLIDGE BACKS NAVAL MEASURE

Endorses Passage Of Cruiser Bill Over Kellogg's Pact.

International Situation Dominates Conversation At White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—President Coolidge favors passage of the $274,000,000 cruiser bill before ratification of the Kellogg anti-war pact, it was disclosed today.

He is, however, extremely anxious that both measures be approved in the coming short session of congress.

This was revealed today following the first "wheat cake conference," of the congressional season, at which Mr. Coolidge discussed the congressional program with a dozen senators.

International Situation Discussed.

The international situation is known to have dominated most of the conversation at the white house breakfast, with particular emphasis on the naval bill and the anti-war pact.

Among those present were Senator Hale, republican, of Maine, chairman of the naval affairs committee, who will handle the cruiser bill, and Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, which will handle the anti-war pact.

Others present included: Senator Curtis, republican, of Kansas, vice president-elect; Senators Smoot, republican, of Utah; Gillett, republican, of Massachusetts; Sackett, republican, of Kentucky; Shortridge, republican, of California; McNary, republican, or Oregon; Dale, republican, of Vermont; Goff, republican, of West Virginia; Steiwer, republican, of Oregon; Warren, republican, of Wyoming; Waterman, republican, of Colorado; Keyes, republican, of New Hampshire and Senator-elect Glenn, republican, of Illinois.

Farm Relief Untouched.

Senators attending the conference were impressed by Mr. Coolidge's strong desire for success of both the cruiser bill and the anti-war pact, and the conference is said to have obviated any possibility of conflict among administration leaders on the order of consideration.

The Kellogg pact, it is understood, will be sent to congress immediately after it convenes, but while hearings are being held on it, an effort will be mad to pas sthe cruiser bill.

The Boulder Dam bill, Cooper anti-convict labor measure and Jones prohibition bills are ahead of the naval bill. President Coolidge was advised that the Boulder Dam bill could pass without difficulty and there was discussion of the possibility os displacing the other bills, senators said.

Farm relief was not discussed at the conference, it was said.

HUNTER LOSES ARM.

(Special to the Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 24—It was necessary to amputate the left arm of John Bazknaus Saturday as a result of a gunshot wound he received while hunting in Burge district. He was struck by the bullet while stopping to pick up a rabbit. His son fired the shot after accidentally falling from a wagon.

The local negro was hired by the chairman of the democratic national committee after he had demonstrated his efficient caddying on the links here this week.

Raskob took a fancy to the youth and gave him money to bedeck himself in new clothes. The negro's real name is Frank Ivory.

THREE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Pilot, His Wife And a Passenger Die When Craft Hits Tree.

TOLEDO, Nov. 24—(NS) — Two men and a woman were reported killed at Egerton, near here, tonight, when a westbound Cleveland-Chicago passenger airplane in which they were riding crashed into a tree.

Those dead are believed to be Glen Butt, a passenger E. H. Bassett, pilot, and a woman believed to be Bassett's wife.

The plane hopped off here at 4:50 p. m. and is thought to have crashed at Edgerton, fifty miles west. The report of the crash did not reach here until late tonight.

Storm Believed Cause.

Stormy weather is thought to have caused the smashup. Rain and strong winds prevailed in this section tonight.

According to reports reaching here, the bodies of the three persons are being held in an undertaking establishment at Brunersburg, half way between Toledo and Edgerton.

The Bassetts are said to be from Cleveland. Complete identification of the women as Mrs. Bassett has not been established, the reports declared.

Plan Company Investigates.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—(I. N. S.)—W. R. Bliss, Chicago manager of the Universal Air Lines, left tonight by plane for Defiance, O., to investigate the crash of one of the company planes in which three persons were reported fatally injured.

Eddie Bassett, pliot of the plane which fell neaer Edgerton, Pa., was believed to have lost his way in a snowstorm, the plane striking a tree.

Robert Butt, brother of Glen R. Butt of Cleveland, reported instantly killed, said his brother was making the trip from Toledo for the purpose of taking scenic pictures for the airplane company.

Pilot Bassett and his wife were fatally injured and died enroute to a Defiance hospital, according to telephone reports to the Universal company here.

MIL EST CROWN TO COE ELEVEN

BELOIT, Wis., Nov. 24—The Coe college football team earned the title to the midwest conference championshi phere today, swamping Beloit, 68 to 0.

Coe's fast and heavy line tore the Beloit forward wall to bits and opened gaping holes through which the backs dashed time and again for large gains.

Coe ran wild in the final period, scoring 35 points. Ed Barrows, and Frisbee led in the scoring with three and two touchdowns, respectively.

CAPLAIN FILLEY GETS THE PLAY

Reigh Celene Touted As Favorite To Win Coffroth Derby.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—A two year old filly was being touted today to upset all precedent and win the $30,000 coffroth handicayp this coming season.

Reigh Celene, a two year old by Sun Reigh, the sire of America's undisputed champion, Reigh Count, just arrived from Latonia, Ky., is being favored to run away with the first honors in the classic of the winter race meet which opens here on Thanksgiving day.

Reigh Celene will be nominated for both the Coffroth and $35,000 Tijuana derby by Mrs. I. Caplan, her owner. The nearest a filly or mare has ever come to annexing the world's richest stake occurred in the running last year, Handy Mandy, distance horse of the three D. stables was a favorite to win the classic, and showed a remarkable effort. She had advantage in the weights to benefit her.

Combines Best Bloods.

Trainer I. Caplan plans to bend every effort to preparing Reigh Celene for stake engagements. The youngster embodies a strong combination of America's best bloods, Sun Reigh, her sire. Beingby the great Sun Briar. Her dam, Sobranje, is by Polymelus.

Murzim, a clere handicap horse formerly in the stable of James Butler, New York race track owner and sprotsman, was another high class campaigner to arrive with the Caplan string. Bernard C., Commissioner D., Pennsylvania II., High Win, and two unnamed yearlings complete the stable.

In the same car from Latonia came three horses belonging to J. W. Parker, Tangram, Jolly Boy and Betty Bucks were those unloaded.

Scimitar, the $20,000 acquisition of James N. Crofton, San Diego sportsman, took a workout this morning. Trainer Ralph Emerie sent the big hourless gelding for a light breeze of half a mile. Crofton purchased Scimitar to represent him in important stakes, including the Coffroth, here this winter.

The Notre Dame game in Los Angeles called for a two-train expedition from South Bend. Many rooters planned the trip.

Dick Farrell, declared a free agent by Judge Landis, has had several good offers to join big minor league clubs. He was the property of Detroit and had been with Columbus.

Wisconsin-Chicago rivalry now stands: Wisconsin, won 15; Chicago, 13; four games tied. They've played 32 years.

TITLE GAME IN LINCOLN LEAGUE

University Place Meets Havelock In Turkey Day Classic.

University Place will meet the Havelock Engineers for the Greater Lincoln league championship on Ballard field the morning of Thanksgiving day for the third consecutive year.

In the two previous conflicts, the Shoptown crew, under the guidance of Coach Walter Black, managed to beat down a stubborn Jackson hign defense to score victories and win the trophy.

Last year the Engineers took advantage of a fortunate break early in the game and tallied the lone touchdown of a spectacular battle. After converting a fumble into a touchdown, the Havelock eleven resorted to a punting duel and staved off a desperate Scarlet attack. A thrilling but futile aerial attack of the Young Methodists in the final period kept 1,500 fans on edge until the final whistle.

'26 Game a Thriller.

The score in 1926 was 20 to 0 in favor of the Purple and Gold. The encounter was featured by the brilliant work of Glenn Barrett who refused to let a cold drizzle and muddy gridiron interfere with his sensational broken field running and broke away for three touchdowns on jaunts of 90, 48, and 35 yards.

The Havelock flash scored twice in the second period and once in the final stanza. His first touchdown resulted from a 35-yard punt return, and his second counter was even more thrilling. Running from punt formation, he slid off tackle, side stepped the safety, and sprinted 90 yards to the goal line. In the last period he broke away from the entire University Place team and ran 48 yards to the final chalk mark.

Although Uni. Place has won more games than Havelock this season, perhaps their schedule has not been as heavy. The Engineers have met such teams as McCook, Creighton Prep, Crete, and York, while Baller's outfit have only ran up against Fairbury and Crete in the way of much opposition. University Place has shown a good defensive record having had only 39 points scored against them in the eight games they have played. However, they have lost many scoring opportunities and only have 93 points on the credit side of their scoring column.

The Havelock Record.

On the other hand, Havelock's record is nearly opposite. They have three victories, two ties, and three defeats chalked up on the record sheets. They have scored 85 points in comparison to their opponents 75.

Little comparison can be made between the two schools in view of the elevens which they have both met. Havelock opened the season against Wahoo with a 51 to 0 win, and University Place scored three touchdowns on the same team in a sea of mud at Wahoo. Both administered defeats to Cathedral, Havelock triumphing 20 to 7, and Uni. Place winning 32 to 13. The Ballermen dropped their second game in the season to Coach Pop Klein's Crete Cardinals before the eight-semester eligibility rule was abolished. That rule strengthened both squads materially and Havelock met the rejuvenated Crete team. The Cardinals being able to win only on a freakish break although they did decisively out-down and out-yard the Engineers.

Beat Lincoln Reserves.

Havelock wallowed around in the mud on Ballard field to no avail against the Lincoln Reserves and the game ended in a scoreless tie. Baller's gridders met the Red and Black seconds on the same field under favorable weather conditions and gave them a 6 to 0 trouncing. These figures do not offer much in the way of comparison because of the entirely different conditions under which most of the contests were played.

The Uni. Place-Havelock tilt has always been a Greater Lincoln league classic, and, weather permitting, this year's clash should prove no exception when the teams meet Thursday morning. Coach Delaporte has had two weeks for preparation, and he has been working behind closed gates. The Jackson high outfit came out victor over Bethany last Friday and seemed in good physical condition.

Vandy Walks Over Centre Collegians

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Vanderbilt defeated Centre college, 26 to 0, in a colorless game here today. Approximately 6,000 persons witnessed the contest which was played under ideal weather conditions.

Centre never made a serious threat. Vanderbilt made 26 first downs against six for Centre and gained 424 yards from scrimmage as against 148 by Centre.

SOONERS SWAMP OKLAHOMA AGS

Oklahoma Runs Away With Rival Collegians on Stillwater Grid.

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—State supremacy on the football fields of Oklahoma rested tonight with the University of Oklahoma Sooners who downed the much-defeated Oklahoma Aggies here today, 46 to 0.

At no time during a long and dragging game did the Aggies make a gesture that pointed toward a possible score.

Drake Drubs Ames.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 24.—(U. P.)—Another Big Six college eleven fell before a Missouri Valley Conference team today when the Drake university eleven played Iowa State college to win, 18 to 0.

The Bulldogs were in command of the game from start to finish, with Dick Nesbit never failing to gain whenever he carried the ball. Iowa State played a ragged game and had no defense against Drake passes.

Two of Drake's touchdowns were made by Nesbit and his punting kept the ball deep in the Cyclone territory. The third Drake touchdown was made on a pass over the goal line from the 15-yard line, King to Barnes.

In the final period Iowa State made a vain effort to stave off defeat by taking the air.

JACKSON QUINT LISTS SCHEDULE

Cage Outlook Bright In Uni Place Camp This Season.

Basketball practice will get under way at University Place Monday after Thanksgiving when the Greater Lincoln league champs start preparations for the hardest schedule ever faced by the school.

Fourteen games have already been arranged and negotiations with Lincoln and Temple high are pending. Temple is to be played at Temple, but the date is not settled. Besides these games, Coach Baller wishes to arrange for a two-day trip during the second week of Christmas vacation. Any one interested in scheduling the Jackson high quintet should communicate with Coach Stuart Balaler at 2825 North 49 street University Place. There are nine home games on the card and five away from home encounters as the schedule now stands. An interclass tournament will be held December 12 and 13.

Four Veterans Return.

Prospects are pretty bright for another championship aggregation as four lettermen and two Aggie high men are available. Duey, Culwell, Powers and Ackerman are the veterans back, and Gunn and George are the Aggie high stars. Culwell and Duey perform at forwards, Ackerman works at center, and Powers holds down a guard station. George, who was pick as the best man in the Greater Lincoln league last year, plays center. Gunn is a guard. Prospective material includes Amos, Jordan, McDaniels, Stith, Hansen, Bowen, and Winship.

Jackson High State.

Dec. 12-13—Interclass tournament.
Dec. 20—Alumni.
Jan. 10—Havelock at Uni Place.
Jan. 11—Wymore at Uni. Place.
Jan. 17—Beatrice at Uni. Place.
Jan. 18—Geneva at Geneva.
Jan. 19—Hastings at Hastings.
Jan. 23—College View at Uni. Place.
Jan. 25—Grand Island at Uni. Place.
Jan. 29—Cathedral at University Place.
Feb. 1—Bethany at Bethany.
Feb. 7—Crete at Uni. Place.
Feb. 8—Aggies at Aggies.
Feb. 14—Thomas Jefferson at Uni. Place.
Feb. 16—Havelock at Havelock.

PRINCETON BOWS TO NAVY ELEVEN

"Whitey" Lloyd Big Gun In Offense Launched By Middies.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 24 — (I. N. S.) — Whitey Lloyd, halfback of the naval academy football team, wrote his name in bold characters over Navy gridiron history on Franklin field this afternoon, scoring all the points for Navy which ended Princeton's victorious career, 9 to 0.

Lloyd broke loose in the second period and ran seventy-three yards for a touchdown. In the final period Lloyd stood on the twenty-six yard line and kicked a goal from placement.

Tigers Muff Opportunity.

Princeton had no excuse. The Tiger had at least three chances to score but failed to see its openings. A couple of times Navy was fighting its own inside its own 10-yard line and so bravely did it fight that Princeton couldn't put the ball across.

In the third period it looked as if Princeton would come from behind and win. It forced back the Navy but all the ground it gained in midfield it didn't count. At the end Navy was better and stronger conditioned team and won cleanly.

Michigan Aggies Win.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Michigan State college closed its 1928 football season in successful fashion here today defeating North Carolina State 7 to 0.

The teams battled on even terms with the exception of the third period when a concerted state line plunging attack by Fred Danziger, sub fullback, netted a touchdown. Smead place kicked the extra point.

How near the teams were matched is demonstrated by the fact that each eleven made 14 first downs.

OTTAWA SENATORS WIN HOCKEY GAME

DETROIT, Nov. 27—(I. N. S.)—In one of the fastest hockey games ever witnessed here, the Ottawa Senators and Detroit Cougars battled to a 1 to 1 tie tonight. The game was very rough, King Clancy, Ottawa's star defense man, drawing a major penalty of five minutes for slashing. Finnigan scored the firts goal for Ottawa early in the first period and a few minutes later Noble and Hay teamed up in a pretty passing game to tie the count, Hay making the goal.

Oregon Gridsters Romp Over Montana

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Oregon defeated Montana here this afternoon, 31 to 6.

Montana put up a strong battle in the first, third and last periods but Oregon was too strong for the visitors. Oregon scored one touchdown in the first period, added eighteen points in the second period and scored a final touchdown in the final period. Montana's only touchdown came in the final period.

He stated that witnesses of the accident assert that the truck has been parked there for several nights without lights.

Rural Transmission Lines. — Five permits were issued by the state railway commission Saturday to power companies for the construction of rural transmission lines. Four of them were on papiication by the Nebraska Power company. The company will build a line near Brule in Keith county, near Valley in Douglas county, north of Blair in Washington county, and east of Winslow in Dodge county. The Central State Electric company will build a line northeast of Homer in Dakota county.

Barbers' Renewal Fees. — Nearly 4,000 licensed barbers in Nebraska are being notified by Secretary H. J. Walker of the state barber board that their annual renewal fee of $3 each is now due for the ensuing calendar year of 1929. The law provides that unless payment is made by December 31 the holder's license will expire on that date. The barber board's revenue of over $12,000 a year from these and other fees is available to pay its operating expenses, including per diem of its members at $10 a day each and their traveling expenses.

Flowers Still in Bloom.—Because of the continuance of fine fall weather until an unusually late time in the season, broken only by the heavy snowfall of three weeks ago which failed to kill some growing vegetation, a number of Lincoln people still have flowers in bloom outdoors. Pansies, snapdragons, phlox, gillardias, scabiosa, and honeysuckle are among the varieties reported as still showing in isolated spots, while rosebushes and spirea here and there have retained their green foliag up to the present.

The regular meeting of the Farragut Woman's Relief Corps was held at 2 o'clock Saturday at the Elks' hall. In the business session that followed, one candidate was balloted on, two were received by initiation, and two new applications were presented for later consideration. The quarterly birthday party will be held Wednesday, November 28 at the I. O. O. F. hall, starting promptly at 12 o'clock, it was decided. Twelve comrades of the G. A. R. were present at the meeting, over which Emmogene Downey presided.

Mrs. H. E. Sidles is planning to fly to Chicago Sunday to meet her husband who is returning from the Army-Nebraska game at West Point. Mrs. Sidles will fly to Omaha with her son, Harry Sidles, and at Omaha will take an airmail plane to Chicago.

Miss Ethel Pound entertained six girls of the ready-to-wear department of Parke-Brown company Wednesday evening at a 6:30 o'clock dinner. Yellow chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece. The after-dinner hours were spent informally.

U. S. GROWING UP SAYS STEINER

America is Becoming of Age in Cultural Sense He Thinks.

"In a cultural and political sense America is growing of age," said Dr. E. A. Steiner, noted sociologist of Grinnell college in an address before the Lincoln chapter of the Inter-professional Men's institute at the Lincoln hotel Saturday night. The talk followed a dinner attended by about a hundred, including wives of the members.

The earth itself is comparatively young, the speaker said. It never is sure of what it is going to do next, has seasons, never gets settled, and has occasional upstarts, he said.

"In its national vigor, in its history and above all in its biological sense America is still young," he contended. One proof f the youthfulness of the nation is seen in the energy with which it applies itself. Everybody is busy making progress. All are eager and diligent in applying themselves to the tasks at hand.

"In our enthusiasm we fail to realize how thoughtless progress is for everything else and that it is ruthless in its advancement. In our mad rush with progress we are missing something in contact with culture. That has little to do with size, numbers and quantity; it has rather to do with quality. It is our inheritance, political and spritual."

Dr. Steiner is famed internationally for his researches in his line. He is professor at Grinnell college.

Music was furnished by a trio composed of Emmanuel Wishnow, violin; Phil Jorgensen, piano; and Kenneth Loder, cello. Dr. Benjamin F. Bailey presided.

BOYS, GIRLS TO CLUB CONGRESS

Sixty-three County and State Champions to Visit Chicago.

Group Will Be In Charge of University Extention Directors.

Sixty-three county and state champions of boys and girls club work and their local leaders and chaperones will leave Nebraska for the eighth annual Club congress at Chicago, Saturday night, December 1st. This is the largest party Nebraska has ever sent to the Congress.

The group will be in charge of L. I. Frisbie, state club leader, Miss Helen Noyes, his assistant, and Miss Theresa Judge and C. S. Maddox, also of the agricultural college extension service. L. R. Snipes of Cass county will go with the livestock judging team. Mrs. R. E. Norris, also of Cass county, will accompany her state champion demonstration team as will Mrs. Fairfield of Webster county go with their county champions.

Individuals and teams from the state will enter national competition in the health contests, style show, and livestock, foods, and clothing judging contests. Clyde Gadeken of Bushnell and Ruth Long of Cowles are the Nebraska entris in the health contest. Helen Phares of Guide Rock is Nebraska's style show girl. Irvin Nolte of Walton, Harold Wall of Elmwood, and William Brandt of Nehawka are the livestock judges. Ruth Childs and Gwendolyn Ball of Albion will enter the clothing judging and Marguerite Holcomb and Fairy Wooters of Broken Bow will enter the foods judging contest.

Champ's Expenses Paid.

Four state champions of 1928 club work will have all their expenses paid to enjoy themselves. Miss Birdie Erskine of Havelock, home economics champion will be the guest of Montgomery Ward and Co., and Anthony Pokorny of Waverly, pig club champion will be the guest of Wilson and Co. Vincent Arthaud, Cambridge, baby beef club champion, the guest of Armour and Co., Watson Norris of Eagle, the corn club champion, guest of May Seed and Nursery company.

Clifford and Wayne Domingo of Weeping Water are the champion demonstrators who will accompany Mrs. Norris to the Club congress. Money has been raised from various sources to pay their expenses.

Milton Thorsen and Harold Moline of Saunders county will go to the Club congress to demonstrate every afternoon how they tatoo hogs in order to receive a 10 cent bonus for them at the packing house. These boys won the first contest of the kind at the Ak-Sar-Ben show. Their expenses are paid by the Tuberculosis Eradication committee of Chicago.

Other boys and girls in the party are all county champions of club work. Their railway fares are paid by the railroads and these boys and girls pay ther own expenses at the congress. The Northwestern is sending the following fourteen: Marie Keister, Heartwell, Adams county; Howard Pitzer,Neligh, Antelope county; Mable Mattison, Albion, Boone county; Louis Harris, Rising City, Butler county; Harold Rousch, Fairfield, Clay county; Lester Muhle, West Point, Cuming county; Bettie Hawk, Chadron, Dawes county; Francis Westphalin, Scribner, Dodge county; Doris Hafer, Strang, Fillmore county; Faye Sigman, Amelia, Holt county; Carol Gast, Plainview, Knox county; Frederick Rottler, Madison, Madison county; Luther Schulz, Wahoo, Saunders county; Earl Morberg, Beaver Crossing, Seward county.

The Milwaukee and Omaha Railroad the following five: Matilda Anderson, Lyons, Burt county; Lucile Baugous, Dakota City, Dakota county; Burr Ross, Rosalie, Thurston county; Lorin Christensen, Washington, Washington county; Edna Wagner, Winside, Wayne county.

Rock Island railroad gives the following nine trips—Clarence Kitner, Weeping Water, Cass county; Mary McRann, Omaha, Douglas county; Donald Sutherland, Waverly, Lancaster county; Lawrence Paul, Mahaska, Kansas, Thayer county; Christene Dillon, Bostwick, Nuckolls county; Marjorie Mae Jones, Fairbury, Jefferson county; Ruth Carsten, Clatonia, Gage county; Fred Rulla, Lewiston, Pawnee county; Winifred Shallcross, Bellevue, Sarpy county.

Dougas county has a pig champion of its own. Arthur Holst of Waterloo won the honor this year and will go to the congress in December, the guest of the Omaha National bank.

SECOND HAY RATE HEARING MAY BE HELD IN JANUARY

Another hearing in the hay rates investigation will probably be held in Omaha sometime in January, Railway Commissioner John Curtiss said Saturday upon his return from the hearing which was held this week.

The interstate commerce commission examiners heard the testimony of Nebraska growers and jobbers at the Omaha hearing this week, but the state railway commission did not enter its exhibits.

From Omaha, the examiners went to Fort Worth, Texas, to conduct other hearings in the hay rate case. They will also conduct hearings at Seattle, Los Angeles and Phoenix before returning to Nebraska.

Testimony of growers at the Omaha meeting indicated that there has been a depression in the hay industry for the last ten years, and that growers have been barely breaking even. None of them show a profit of more than six per cent.

Jobbers who testified stated that the man who raises the hay has to bear the burden of freight rates. The railroads are asking for increases ranging from 30 to 100 per cent of the present rates.

PREDICT BREAK BETWEEN CRIME AND POLITICS

Conviction Of 15 First Setback To Chicago's Lawless Combine.

Prosecuting Machinery Will Be Continued For Next Two Years.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Law and order appear to be riding toward a bull market in Chicago for the first time in ten years. The merger between criminals and criminals and crooked politicians soon may be dissolved, presaging a rapid decline in the stock of Gangsterism, Incorporated.

Today's trading turned up two significant developments. Gangsters set off their ninety-fifth bomb of 1928. It blew the front out of a south side cigar store and demonstrated that the outlaws have not actually surrendered.

The state retaliated by announcing that the prosecuting machinery would be continued through the next two years.

Swanson Will Take Charge.

The latter announcement is a big help to law and order. It means that the conviction this week of fifteen of the men who turned the April primary into a saturnalia of kidnapings, sluggings and murder is only the first successful move in a campaign to break the political-criminal consolidation.

John H. Swanson, the former Criminal court judge, who defeated State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe for re-nomination in the primary, announced that when he assumes office in two weeks he will take over the full staff of vice and vote fraud investigators now under Special Prosecutor Frank J. Loesch.

"I will invite the entire special staff to join mine," said Swanson. "That will enable prosecution of the election charges to go ahead under direction of the men who know most about it."

Improvements Are Needed.

In taking the office of state's attorney on December 3 Swanson is assuming what is perhaps the biggest law enforcement problem in the country. He believes his main task is to break the political-vice alliance and that under this heading he can strike at racketeering, beer running, and police corruption. Racketeers alone are said to be preying on Chicago to the extent of a million dollars a month in fees coerced from small businessmen.

The determined manner in which Swanson is preparing for his job perhaps would not be sufficient by itself to cause record trading days on the Chicago mart of civic pride. Behind Swanson stands a long list of favorable signs.

The people have twice demonstrated their lack of ocnfidence in the administration of Mayor William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson, once by defeating all of the city and county candidates he supported, and again by rejecting all of the bond issues which "Big Bill" proposed for public improvements. Many voters cvould not deny that Chicago improvements were needed, but they were not willing to let Thompson's administration spend the money.

800 Removed from Payroll.

Another encouraging sign today was the removal from the payroll of the Chicago Sanitary district of the names of 800 men and women who have been drawing comfortable salaries for a minimum of work. Most of them were friends of politicians in control of the district. Already since election day and previous to today's reduction, 1,600 names have been removed from the sanitary district payroll.

So-called "clean-up" campaigns have been started in the past in Chicago, but never before on as impressive a scale as the present one.

CURTIS SOON TO RELINQUISH SEAT

Vice President-Elect Expected Quit Senate Before Christmas.

Reported Desirous Of Having Governor Paulen Name Successor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Vice President-elect Charles E. Curtis probably will resign from the senate before Christmas.

One reason which would be sufficient is that if he does not retire before January 1, his political enemy, Gov.-elect Clyde Reed of Kansas will appoint his successor in the senate, whereas his friend, Governor Paulen of Kansas, will have that task if he retires before the expiration of Paulen's gubernatorial term January 1.

Among other reasons are that Curtis desires to rest up before assuming the vice-presidential office, recuperating his health which was taxed last session in the senate even before his strenuous work during the presidential campaign.

While the vice president-elect has made no official announcement of his intentions about resigning, he has let senators and friends know that he does not intend to continue in office until March 4, when the present congress expires.

This information has precipitated the contest to decide which of the various senate leaders will be his successor as republican floor leader. The candidates include Senator Jones of Washington, Watson of Indiana, Moses of New Hampshire, Fess of Ohio and McNary of Oregon. Jones is the favorite because of the seniority rule of succession. Curtis has expressed no preference.

The vice president-elect is working in his office daily clearing up the mail left over from his campaign. He will take his usual seat as leader when congress meets December 3 and probably will continue to hold the office until the Christmas recess, about December 19.

LINCOLN KIDDIES THRONG THEATER AT 'SPUD PARTY'

The "potato party" given at the Lincoln theater at 10 o'clock Saturday morning was attended by 1,800 Lincoln kiddies, each of whom presented one potato one potato as the price of admission. Twenty-five bushels of potatoes were collected.

The prize for the largest potato was awarded to Santo Arigo and James Yocum was given the prize for the funniest "spud." The next fifteen largest potatoes were brought in by Chester Felber, J. Donald Forester, Helen Dalton, Richard Pierce, Roberta Graham, Joe Arigo, Dorothy Graham, Carrol Martin, Lynn Bishop, Jack Unzicker, Harry Mercer, James Evinger, Stephen Barwock and Madeline Smith. Each of these boys and girls was given a prize.

The potatoes were turned over to Lincoln charitable institutions to be used in Thanksgiving baskets. The party was sponsored by Ben Simon and Sons.

LEGION FAVORS NAVAL PROGRAM

"Plan Is Answer To Failure Of Geneva Conferenc," Says McNutt.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(UP)—The American Legion heartily endorses President Coolidge's naval program, Paul V. McNutt, newly elected national commander, said in an address here tonight.

"It is America's answer to the failure of the Geneva conference," McNutt said. "It is the only answer which the other nations of the world will understand. The entire legion, with three-quarters of a million members, will do its part in educating the public on the necessity for carrying out the naval program.

"I ask every legionnaire to take an active part in this campaign. Time and again the legion's national convention has urged the maintenance of the 5-5-3 ratio agreed upon by the Washington conference.

"The United States, alone, has kept the spirit of that agreement."

ASKS COUNCIL TO HELP ELIMINATE STATIC IN ETHER

A plea for assistance in eliminating radio interference has been made in a communication to the city council by Elmer F. Estes, 1315 E street. For some time, Mr. Estes say, there nas been considerable interference on his radio between 7:45 and 8:25, every evening. He added, "In a rough way it could be said to resemble the noise of a locomotive blowing off steam, mingled with the racket of many coffee mills and similar hissings and grinding."

"I have made inquiry as to what might be the cause," Mr. Estes declares, "but without success.

"If you can and will locate the cause and try to have it stopped, it will be something that will be very much appreciated. If I can aid in any way I shall be glad to do so."

BUICK TO CLOSE ITS OPEN HOUSE

Silver Anniversary Car Exhibiion Ends At 8 O'clock Monday.

The Silver Anniversary Buick mystery car which has been attracting hundreds of people to the local show rooms at Thirteenth and Q street during the open house week will be officially stopped at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

As a special attraction an entertainment has been planned for patrons who wish to be at the building when the mystery car has officially completed its forty-four hours of operation—starting by itself, goes across the show room floor, climbs an incline, applies the four wheel brakes, and stops just before reaching the large plate glass window. Then it backs down the incline and returns to its starting point, stops and repeats this routine. For those who have not seen this mystery car Sunday or Monday, the salesmen on the floor will explain why the car was being demonstrated.

Dr. Bennett Will Give Lecture Here On Nervous Disorders

The lecture on "The Causes and Prevention of Nervousness" will be given by Dr. A. E. Bennett, instructor in nervous and mental diseases at the University of Nebraska medical school, Tuesday evening, at 7:30, in the auditorium of the social science building at the university Rev. Ray E. Hunt will preside.

Dr. Bennett will discuss the historical aspects of attitudes towards mental disease and will discuss various problems, social and professional, which arise from nervous disorders. He will describe some of the more common psychic and nervous disorders and laying particular stress upon things that can be done in early childhood to avoid the onset of mental troubles.

The lecture will be given in popular language and will be of interest to any who have the care and direction of children, to those who are interested in the general mdical and legal aspects of nervous disorders, and to any who feel they are at times troubled with "nerves."

This is the second of a series of lectures dealing with various phases of mental hygiene which is being conducted here this wintre. The first of the series was given a month ago by Dr. Johnson of Denver.

OBJECT TO NEW A. O. U. W. PLAN

Court Action To Stop Change To Old Line System.

Lincoln Men Bring Suit In Hall County Tribunal.

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Nov. 24—In the case brought by George W. Jones and Alexander H. Jones of Lincoln against the grand lodge of Ancient Order of United Workmen, in which the plaintiffs object to having the association change over its fraternal monthly assessment plan of insurance for members to that of "old line," hearing has been postponed until after January 1. District Judge Lewis H. Blackledge of Red Cloud has been called upon by District Judges Paine and Clements of this district to hear the case, inasmuch as the latter both hold memberships and policies in the defendant association.

Hearing had been set for next Monday, but following the visit here Thursday of Attorney Nelson C. Pratt of Omaha, engaged as counsel by the A. O. U. W. for this case, the postponement was secured by stipulation. It is now felt that with another conference or two between the counsel of the contestants, an agreement on facts will be reached. The hearing then would be held early next year. Mr. Pratt is assistant counsel of the Modern Woodmen of America.

More than 5,000 A. O. U. W. members are declared affected by the legal fight. Of this total it is declared all but 730 members, or about 87 per cent of the membership, have already transferred from the fraternal monthly assessment plan to the old line plan. A surplus in excess of a million dollars is said to have accumulated.

Among other contentions of those who are contesting the right of the association to transfer benefits from the monthly fraternal assessment to the old line plan, is that the latter makes membership prohibitive to those who are in advanced years and would be obliged to pay high rates. The prayer of the petition reads as follows:

Prayer of Petition.

"Wherefore, the plaintiffs pray that it be adjudged and decreed, first, that the acts of the defendant association complained of herein in dividing the members into two classes were ultra vires and void; second, that the defendant association be ordered to assess all its members on the basis of their age of admission and according to the amount of their benefit certificates, that the proceeds of such association be kept in one fund for the purpose of paying valid mortuary claims currently arising in the entire membership; third, that the defendant association be required to restore to the beneficiary fund such as it existed prior to September 1, 1928, all funds taken therefrom and wrongfully appropriated to the benefit of members transferring to the American experience division. Plaintiffs pray generally for such other, further and different relief as equity and justice may require."

Two groups have resulted in the ranks. One has held back to retain the fraternal monthly assessment plan, at which is regarded a comparatively low rate, while the other has preferred to change over to the old line insurance policies, at what are regarded as comparatively higher rates. Under the plan of the second group it is further stated, the members have been accredited with benefits which had accrued in the payments under the original plan.

Members of other fraternal organizations in the state are watching the outcome of this case, regarded by jurists as a test, with considerable interest.

GOES TO SOURCE OF STOMACH AND KIDNEY TROUBLE

Prominent Lancaster County, Nebraska Farmer Says New Medicine Ended His Miseries Quickly. Heartily Endorses It.

"I think I am qualified to speak out in favor of a medicine that has done more for me than everything else combined. The fact that it has benefited me beyond all expectations fully convinces me that it is superior to other medicines, and for this good reason I gladly give it my hearty endorsement and strongly recommended it to everyone. I am speaking of Miller's Herb Extract, known as Herb Juice." The above statement was made a few days ago to the special representative of this famous medicine by Mr. Albert J. Peterson, life-long Lancaster county farmer, who resides on his farm at Davey, Neb.

MR. ALBERT J. PETERSON.

"While I heard others praising this Herb medicine," continued Mr. Peterson, "still I didn't know positively what it would do for me until I gave it a thorough trial. But I want to say right here that it proved to be the very medicine for me or my condition, one that actually accomplished results for me that no other medicine would do. I want other sufferers to share the benefits, so I urge them to take a few bottles of this great medicine in a regular way and get rid of their ailments. I have been troubled with chronic constipation for a number of years which seemed to cause my entire system to become clogged and filled with poisons, and for the past three or four years had about quit going on account of a severe case of diabetes and rheumatic pains in my back and limbs, was constipated continuously and suffered a great deal from indigestion and nervousness, losing heavily in both weight and strength. My kidneys gave me a great deal of trouble and was so sore and stiff and full of aches and pains, as all of my friends well know, that I was not only unable to do any work but could hardly get about at all. These ailments kept getting worse instead of better, regardless of the fact that I tried almost every treatment or remedy within my reach. Nothing seemed to give me more than temporary relief until I commenced taking this Herbal tonic-laxative. It seemed to go to the source of my trouble at once. I also wonderfully benefited before I finished the first bottle, and since taking several bottles of this great medicine I am glad to state that I feel 100 per cent better in every way. My kidneys are now in a healthier state than they have been for years, am entirely free from constipation, enjoy free and regular bowel action, also relieved of rheumatic pains; get good restful sleep, enjoy a good appetite and have a greater amount of energy than I have had for many a day. This great herbal remedy has so thoroughly cleansed, purified and regulated my entire system that I do not feel like the same person. Indeed, I want to strongly recommend this wonderful medicine to each and every one who is affected with similar ailments. Hundreds call daily to see the Herb Juice Company's special representative, who has established headquarters at Harley's Drug Store 11th and O Sts., Lincoln. To learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many people in and around Lincoln, by mail, postage prepaid, $1.10 per bottle—at store $1.00—Advertisement.

WILD WEST TIME FOR LEGION POST

(Special to The Star.)

ALBION, Neb., Nov. 25—The Albion Legion post closed a three-day fun fest and carnival Thursday evening. It was called the 49-ers. The Post erected a replica of a wild western town of the '49 period, with bar, gambling rooms, dance hal, etc., which were run as near to old times methods as was compatible with present day ideas and customs. Every device was arranged with the motive of extracting all the loose change in the pockets of the revlers, as the Legion boys need it to apply on the debt they tsill owe on their building. Everybody had a good time and the Legion treasury was rewarded by several hundred dollars.

LOSES HIS LIFE IN CAR ACCIDENT

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24 — Stewart Collins, 40, formerly of Summerfield, Kas., was killed in an auto accident near Munturn, Colo., and his brother, Phil, of Summerfield, who went there to attend the funeral. Collins was returning home from work when his car skidded in the wet snow and went over an embankment, rolling 500 feet down into a canyon. He died two hours after the accident. Two other men riding with him received only minor injuries.

WYMORE YOUTH IS MARYLAND SAILOR

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Nov. 24—A Wymore young man is one of the sailors manning the battleship Maryland, carrying President-elect Hoover to South America. He is Elmo Bebout, second son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Bebout, the father being a conductor on the Wymore division of the Burlington. Young Bebout joined the navy about four years ago and for a time was stationed at Hampton Roads, Va., but recently was transferred to the San Pedro, Calif., navy station, and, according to a letter received by his parents, had been assigned to duty on the Maryland and set out on the southern voyage with the Hoover party.

NEBRASKA CATTLE TOP THE MARKET

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—Joe Krotz, farmer and stock raiser living near Odell, topped the market at St. Joseph this week with a carload of purebred Angus steers. They averaged 1,041 pounds and brought $16.50 a hundred. Included in the load was one heifer weighing 1,530 pounds that sold at $11 a hundred, grossing $158.30. Another outstanding feature of the shipment was the sale of a purebred cow that brought $89.90. The cow in her prime cost the owner $1,135. She had netted him several hundred dollars, her first calf selling for $700.

FUTURE FARMERS HOME.

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—Roland Mudge, Alvin Reimer and Harold von Riesen of Gage county, who represented the local Future Farmers at the American Royal stock show at Kansas City, have returned home. Alvin Reimer was honored by being elected vice president. The boys report a fine trip.

FARMERS TOLD TO HOLD CORN

Speakers At Beatrice Meeting Discuss Price Situation.

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—J. C. Knight of Kansas City, head of the Equity Union farmers organization there, said in his address before a meeting of Gage county farmers and corn growers in the Gilbert theatre here Friday evening that farm projects when ably managed and loyally supported, offer agriculture the same advantages that organization has brought to other industries. But the farmer is like everybody else. In the end he must depend on his own good sense and far sightedness if agriculture is to prosper.

E. Severs, Barneston farmers' elevator manager, who called the meeting and who acted as chairman, urged farmers to hold their corn and in that way the price would soon reach 82 to 95 cents, which price some of the farm organizations are advocating at the present time.

"It is alright to hold your corn," said Mr. Knight, "but if the price goes down somewhat, don't be discouraged. Hold on. And when the price gets up to where you can make a reasonably good profit, sell. Don't hold on for that extra cent or two. Let go when you can get a good profit."

Referring to the election campaign, Mr. Severs spoke of the "promises on both sides," then remarked that it is up to the farmers to continue talking for and working for their own interests, regardless of political promises or possible congressional action.

Closing his brief talk, Mr. Severs said that "we expect to go all over the corn belt, and on Tuesday night between 6 and 7 o'clock we hope to get in touch with a million farmers over the radio station, KFAB."

Marce Witzenburg of Blue Springs, president of the Gage County Farmers union, gave a talk in which he urged the farmers to stand together for their best interests.

It is planned to hold a state meeting at Lincoln soon, at which the proposed corn price raise will be discussed and at which some definite action will be taken.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET, HEBRON

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 24—The father and son banquet held at the new Methodist church at Hebron Thursday night was attended by 273. Special guests were W. H. Leask, Jefferson county Y. M. C. A. secretary, Mrs. Leask and District Judge Moss of Fairbury, and Rev. Thomas A. Maxwell of Lincoln. Rev. Mr. Maxwell was the speaker of the evening and told of his experiences as chaplain of the Nebraska penitentiary. W. H. Leask led the community singing and general pep stunts.

SUGAR SEASON TO BE SHORTER ONE

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., Nov. 24—On account of high efficiency in the six factories in the North Platte valley operated by the Great Western Sugar Co., the sugar making season will close earlier than usual this year, the estimated closing date being about December 20. The acreage of 75,000 this year was a record one, but the yield per acre was a little lower, so that the production of the sugar will be about the same as in former years.

BURIAL AT STELLA.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., Nov. 24—Charles Ciegler of maha will be buried in Prairie Union cemetery at Stella Sunday. Mr. Ciegler died at his home Thursday. Remains will arrive here on the noon train Sunday, and be taken direct to the cemetery. Mr. Ciegler was a pioneer resident of this locality. He moved from here more than forty years ago, and in the meantime he and his family made frequent visits here. William H. Paul and George P. Griffith, farmers near Stella, are his nephews.

WASHBURN FUNERAL.

(Special to The Star.)

AURORA, Neb., Nov. 24—The funeral of George F. Washburn, former county judge of Hamilton county, will take place in Giltner Sunday afternoon. It will be a Masonic service. Judge Washburn was an ardent Mason and had many times delivered the Masonic funeral oration over deceased members of the fraternity. He was found dead Wednesday evening in his garage with the doors closed and the car running.

ARE STILL HUSKING.

(Special to The Star.)

SABETHA, Kas., Nov. 24—A few farmers who run feeder cattle on their fields have finished husking, but the majority of them are still busy in the fields. Fields average from 40 to 60 bushels to the acre.

WIDOWS GIVEN COMPENSATION

Crete Woman to Receive $5,250 For Death Of Husband.

As one of a trio of decisions just entered by State Labor Commissioner Pirie and involving local unistof government in Nebraska, Saline county is required to reimburse Mrs. J. M. Wright of Crete to the extent of $5,250 for the death of her husband which occurred in June, 1927.

His death resulted from an infection developing from a wound he suffered on his little finger while using a wrench on a piece of machinery. The compensation payments are to be made in weekly installments of $15 each. Mrs. Wright was also granted $150 to apply on the cost of burial.

Payment has hitherto been made to Mrs. Wright at the rate of $8.06 per week, on the theory that her husband was in seasonal employment for the county and not one of its regular workmen. That contention is overruled, and she is declared to be entitled to the $15 weekly allotment.

School District Must Pay.

Compensation amounting to $4,480, at the rate of $2.80 per week, is awarded to Mrs. Virginia Haney against the school district of Springfield in an order of the labor department, based upon the accidental death of the claimant's husband, Samuel Clark Haney, from an accidental fall last August while he was engaged in a painting job for the district.

An additional allowance of $150 is made for burial expense, as provided by law.

Music Teacher Compensated.

In a case from Cedar Bluffs involving the amount of compensation due Orval Stephenson, part time music teacher in the public schools, on account of an accidental injury sustained while on duty in that capacity, the instructor is found entitled to the maximum of $15 per week during the period of disability.

The computation was made from the contract between the school district and the music teacher for two days per week at $50 a month. This was held equivalent to 9 days per month, at $5.55 per day; and the district is declared liable for all time lost by the injured person, not only from school duty but other days as well.

In the foregoing instances, Saline county and the Cedar Bluffs school district are protected by liability insurance, but the Springfield district carried its own risk.

THWART ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE FROM MARYSVILLE JAIL

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24—Sheriff Ace Van Nortwick of Marysville, Kas., thwarted an attempt of R. R. Smith and Albert McGuire to escape from the jail at that place when he found them digging a hole in the wall of the south side of the building.

An investigation showed that they had dug a hole about three feet from the floor and about eighteen inches wide, by the use of knives and forks and a pocket knife. They placed in separate cells on the second floor by the sheriff.

Smith and McGuire are from Rossville, Kas., and were recently arrested at Blue Rapids, soon after they are alleged to have loaded over $200 worth of stolen eggs on a truck and were in the act of driving away from a poultry house where the eggs had been taken.

CRETE NOTES

(Special to The Star)

CRETE, Neb., Nov. 24—Frank Nedela, 52, died at his home early Friday after an illness of several months from neuritis. Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Marie, and a son, Karl.

John Kadlec, 72, died Thursday night following a paralytic stroke. His widow, a daughter, Mrs. Frank Krotochvil, and a son, Lambert Kadlec, survive.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Darling, 80, was held at the First Congregational church Thursday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Harold Cooper, intrement being in the family lot at Riverside. Mrs. Darling was a pioneer resident of Crete, having come here with her husband in 1876. She passed away at the home of her son, George, at Harvard, Neb. Three other sons, Arthur of Yankton, S. D., Frank of Norfolk, and Nelson of Spokane, Wash., also survive, all of them being present at the funeral.

National book week was observed here under the direction of the public library board, Mrs. W. H. Pallet, chairman. Programs were given each afternoon after school in the assembly room of the library. The story telling hour was conducted by the senior girls, who are training in this, earning credits for so doing. Following the story hour a treat of ice cream cones was given the children each day by the directors of the library board, Mrs. W. H. Pallet and Mrs. J. J. Elias. Those attending were from the kindergarten age to the seventh grade. The following senior girls took part in the programs: Norma Nohavec, Evelyn Neme, Edith Boden, Helen Klasa and Gertrude Kozlik.

Union Thanksgiving services are to be held Thanksgiving day at the Second Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Schaatz, with Rev. Harold Cooper of the First Congregational and Rev. Richard Gibb of the Methodist church taking part. The men's chorus will sing.

Ernest Fritz received a severe injury to his right eye when a blank cartridge he was examining exploded. He was taken to an Omaha specialist and hope is entertained that the sight of the eye may be saved.

Miss Ruth Ball, daughter of F. W. Ball, former state representative from Saline county, was married to Ernest Schlictemeier on Wednesday at the Kramer church. A wedding dinner and reception followed the ceremony. After a short wedding journey they will reside on a farm near Kramer.

A number of neighbors of Adolph Bohac, who is ill in a hospital at Omaha, went to his farm east of Crete and finished husking his corn.

BAYARD MARKETS CARLOAD TURKEYS

(Special to The Star.)

BAYARD, Neb., Nov. 24—A carload of dressed turkeys, over 2,000 in number, was loaded here for Thanksgiving trade this week. The birds were marketed through the North Platte Valley Co-operative Poultry Marketing association.

SEWARD NOTES

SEWARD, Neb., Nov. 24—Mrs. Walter Cattle entertained fourteen guests at a 6 o'clock dinner Wednesday in honor of Judge and Mrs. T. L. Norval of Los Angeles. Bittersweet was used in decorating.

The annual Y. W. C. A. banquet will be held Tuesday evening, with Miss Jean Jeary, the sponsor, in charge. The banquet was served by the mothers of the cabinet members. Forty-six active members were present, and were seated at three tables decorated in gold and blue, the Y. W. C. A. colors.

Coach and Mrs. Kellner entertained the football team and the men of the high school faculty at dinner Saturday evening, when twenty-one were present. The football idea was carried out throughout the decorations. Coach Kellner introduced each player present, who responded with a short talk.

Ben Harrison circle, Ladies of the G. A. R., held a special meeting Tuesday. The following guests were present: Mrs. Nora R. Kidder, Fremont, department inspector; Mrs. Trixie Prall, Omaha, department secretary, and Mrs. C. Phillips, president of Gresham circle. Mrs. Harry Rigdon was in charge of the committee.

The Seward faculty entertained the board members at dinner at the Methodist church Wednesday. A faculty quartet gave several numbers, and a program of readings and piano numbers was given. Informal games closed the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Curry entertained the Evening Bridge club at dinner Thursday evening. Sixteen guests were present. A motif of yellow and orange was carried out in the floral centerpiece.

Mrs. Carlos Boyes has left for Atlanta, Ga., where she will spend the winter with her son, Don.

L. E. Ost, veteran Burlington agent, is undergoing a series of treatments at the Mayo clinic.

Mrs. Henry Campbell was stricken seriously ill at her home Friday.

The W. R. C. held a kensington in the Legion hall Friday afternoon. Mrs. E. E. Betzer was chairman of the committee in charge. A grab bag was a feature of the afternoon.

The American Legion auxiliary will have a 6:30 o'clock dinner at the hall Monday evening, preceding the regular meeting. Officers will be elected and installed. The United Brethren ladies are serving the dinner.

Mrs. Charles Campbell is recovering from a serious illness of several weeks.

Dan Hildebrand, Paul Bek, and T. H. Wake left Thursday for Washington, D. C., on behalf of the chamber of commerce. They go in the interest of the veterans' hospital. They will be granted a hearing Tuesday morning. They attended the Nebraska-Army game Saturday.

A delegation from the Lincoln Elks lodge was guest at the chamber of commerce dinner Tuesday evening. They furnished a novel program, consisting of musical numbers and a skit by Pete Ruehl and Ralph Sigman. Miss Florence Bennett gave several piano numbers, Miss Jo Smith a dance. Harry Ridgon presided.

Mrs. James Vogeltanz, a pioneer of Nebraska, died at her home at Bee. She was seventy-seven years of age. Funeral services were held at the Catholic Bee with Rev. A. M. Hanum, assisted by Rt. Rev. A. Klein of Brainard, officiating.

Mrs. Gerald McLane of Central City and Miss Eva Crisman of the Edgar school facility visited last weekend at the home of their sister, Mrs. Kenneth Strout, and Mr. Strout.

Mrs. Adolph Vahl entertained at a bridge party Wednesday evening. Six tables were arrahged for cards. Mrs. Herman Otto received high score for ladies, and Herbert Wergin for men.

The Omar club met Monday with Mrs. Fay Martz. The color appointments and decorations were suggestive of Thanksgiving. Mrs. Guy Evans received first prize and Mrs. Adrian Ayers consolation.

The Athena Delphian chapter met with Mrs. Ted Hughes Tuesday. Mrs. Cliff Brockhoff was leader and the subject was Italian opera.

SUIT STARTED BY SURVIVOR OF VESTRIS SINKING

O. S. Stevens, Boston, Asks $50,000 For Death Of Wife.

List Of Official Inquiries Into Sea Disaster Grows.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(U. P.)—The list of the official groups who are trying to find out what made the steamship Vestris sink grew today.

There are at present two federal hearings under way, while announcements today said one law suit had been started as result of that sea disaster and another hearing was planned.

The official groups looking into the matter are:

1—Federal inquiry before United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill.

2—Department of commerce hearing.

3—Lamport & Holt, British owners of the Vestris, announced they would have an investigation.

4—Orrin S. Stevens in Boston filed suit for $50,000 for the death of his wife and a suit for $2,000 for the loss of baggage. The Lamport & Holt lines and the Liverpool, Brazil & River Platte Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., were named as defendants.

Papers in the Stevens suit charged that the Vestris was unseaworthy; various patrs of the hull leaked; that the ship was not properly loaded; that the crew was incompetent; that the Vestris was not supplied with proper lifeboat, and that the apparatus for launching did not function.

Federal District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle asked officials of the Lamport & Holt line, operators of the ship, to question surviving officers as to the probable cause of the disaster and report at his hearing early next week.

Line Will Act.

The request was made to Superintendent Harry Wheeler, when he was on the witness stand yesterday. Wheeler explained he had not questioned the crew sooner because he feared charges of intimidation. He promised to start the investigation.

Four probable causes of the sinking were brought out at Tuttle's investigation by Captain E. P. Jessop, American representative, sitting with Commissioner O'Neill and Capt. Henry McConkey, British representative. They were:

1. Inflow of water through open coal ports.
2. Bursting of water pipes running through coal bunkers.
3. Opening of seams in the ship.
4. Loosening of rivets in the bunkers of the shelter deck.

So far little has been determined definitely regarding the disaster. The most important facts revealed have been:

Important Facts Revealed.

1. That members of the "black gang" mutinied at 10:30 a. m., the day the vessel sank. Chief Engineer James Adams offered this testimony at the commerce department hearing yesterday and said he believed the ship could have been saved if the men had stayed at their posts. He admitted he had a pistol, but said there was no ammunition for it. Members of the "black gang" denied they mutinied.

2. That the ship was listing slightly when it sailed from New York the Saturday before the disaster, and this list increased tseadily Saturday night, Sunday and Monday.

3. That Capt. William Carey of the Vestris was extremely tardy in sending out an S. O. S. Capt. William Bambra, former master of the Vestris, admitted at Tuttle's inquiry that he would have called for help when the 30-degree list was reached and appeared increasing. The Vestris was listing 30 degrees early Monday, it has been testified.

4. That the Vestris failed to report itself in a serious condition when it was in communication with the Voltaire, sister ship, at 4:36 a. m., Monday. Chief Officer Frank Johnson testified Captain Carey told him at 4 a. m., Monday things were "serious."

DEATH AT WYMORE.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Nov. 24—Mrs. Elizabeth Conover, 78 years old, resident of Wymore for many years, died at her home and was buried in the Blue Springs cemetery, services being at the Blue Springs Evangelical church in charge of the Rev. E. E. Powell. She is survived by one son, Guy Conover, of Wymore.

Rush Cron Husking Gage County Farms

Farmers Anxious To Get Crop In Crib Before Bad Weather Makes Work Difficult.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Nov. 24 — The past few days of clear weather has resulted in farmers in all sections of Gage county turning out to resume cornhusking. In order to secure more help some have raised the price of huskers from 6 to 7 cents a bushel and board. In a few localities women are aiding their husbands in gathering the crop in an effort to get it in the crib before winter weather sets in.

In some sections the grain is yielding all the way from 45 to 50 bushels to the acre, while in others it is turning out from 25 to 35 bushels to the acre. Farmers say it is of better quality this year than last. Much of it is being fed to stock at the present time. The total yield over the county, it is believed, will be a little better than a year ago.

Winter wheat in this section looks fine, and because of the late rains will go into the winter in fine condition.

CHARITIES HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

(Special to The Star.)

WYMRE, Nebr., Nov. 24—The following officers have been elected for the Community Charities association: Mrs. R. W. Small, president; Mrs. H. R. Chapman, vice president; Mrs. R. E. Peters, secretary-treasurer. At the meeting fourteen local organizations and lodges were represented and a god donation in pledgs assurs a fund to carry on charity work this winter. A rummage sale will be held on December 1, to help raise funds.

"Service is a much abused word, but it is the only word that will adequately describe a transaction with this institution."

"When you buy your coal from us, you get more than just the fuel. We give you the best coal that it is possible to secure for the money, but we give you more than that.

"In addition to the coal, we give you prompt delivery, and this part of our service is rendered by courteous and efficient employees.

"We give you the benefit of our experience in recommending the type of fuel best suited to your heating plant — a valuable service if you take advantage of it.

"We give you our guarantee of satisfaction with every ton of coal you buy from us.

"In other words, we give you your money's worth—which you have a right to expect. If you are not getting all of this service, we would like to know about it."

CHEVROLET SIX READY JANUARY

Dealers to Have Display Models Soon But Deliveries Later.

More Speed and Power, With Twenty Miles to the Gallon.

Passing on to the motoring public the benefits of economics arising out of tremendous volume production, the Chevrolet Motor Company, today, introduces "the outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet history—a six in the price range of the four."

In making this important announcement, W. S. Knudson, president and general manager, points out that the sensational public reception accorded the car in recent years has enabled Chevrolet at this time to offer the added power, speed and smoothness of six cylinder performance at practically the same prices that contributed so much to the world-wide popularity of the four.

Production of the new car was started last week and the company's fifteen giant factories across the country will be turning out cars to be shipped to dealers by December 15. Deliveries to the public will start January first.

In its new offering Chevrolet has retained the high successful valve-in-head principle. The motor is of the high compression type with a non-detonating head and develops 32 per cent more power than its famous predecessor; its acceleration is measureably greater and its speed has been stepped up to satisfy maximum requirements. The piston displacement is 194 cubic inches.

Despite this greatly improved performance standard, thousands of miles of testing under every road and weather conditions at the General Motors proving ground in addition to many cross country runs, have shown that the new Chevrolet enugine will operate with an economy averaging better than 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline. This is practically the same fuel economy enjoyed by the owners of the previous four cylinder model.

The motor develops 46 horse power at low engine speed and as a result of the automatic lubrication of the valve mechanism the motor is exceptionally quiet throughout the entire speed range.

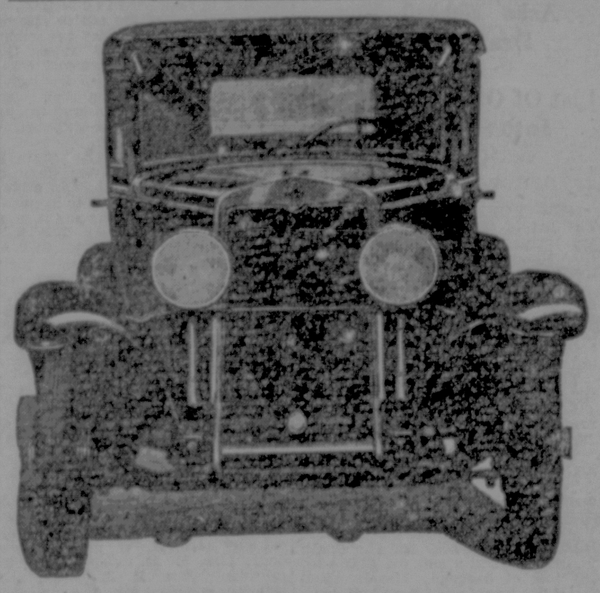
Seven models of passenger cars and three commercial types comprise the line, which according to General Motors officials, embodies the greatest dollar value ever offered in an automobile. Included in the passenger car line are five closed and two open modles. All bodies this year carry the famous Fisher stamp of craftsmanship. The commercial car line embraces a new and larger utility truck of one and one half ton capacity, a new light delivery chassis and the sedan delivery.

From an appearance standpoint as well as from inherent design, the range of attractive colors and fine car is completely new with a wide car appointments formerly found only on the more expensive makes.

Despite the score of advanced features, prices remain practically the same, chiefly as a result of the influence of tremendous volume production. The passenger can range is from $525 to $725, f. o. b. Flint, Mich.

Advance showings of the new Chevrolet line will be held in leading cities strategically located throughout the country begining November 24 and continuing until December 22. First deliveries to purchasers will start January first. No deliveries will be made prior to that time, officials stated.

Front View of New Chevrolet



Chevrolet dealers over the entire country can well afford to be optimistic in the outcome of 1929 with the wonderful new car that will make its appearance next month. Today is the first time that the factory has published officially information regarding this new model, but regardless the public has been seeking further information for the past several months. In Lincoln alone, the Du Teau Chevrolet Company reports over 100 orders at the present time for the new model. Even before it was generally known that a six would be made there were many orders placed for the new car. While the new car will not be in Lincoln until after the middle of December, all those who are interested in getting all information regarding every detail of the new Chevrolet can get it at the Du Teau Chevrolet Company by coming to their show room at any time of the day. The Du Teau Chevrolet show room is equipped with all literature and pictures regarding this new model. It has wonderful new color, beautiful upholstering and all the refinements that you expect to find only on higher priced automobiles. The public will be surprised to learn that this new motor, which is valve-in-the-head, is not a light six. It brings to you the latest modern design and construction. It has a high non-detonating head. It develops unusual power at low speed, and it has a total displacement of 194 inches.

Switching Gas Brands.

When changing brands of gasoline, especially from high to low test, or vice versa, good performance cannot be expected unless the carburetor is made to conform to the difference in the quality of the fuel. This, of course, applies especially in the case of the older type of carbureator, which is not automatically adjusted. Many times the thought that there is little difference in grades of fuel must go back to the carburetor for explanation.

CARBURETER OF IMPROVED TYPE

New Air Cleaner Another Feature of Latest Chrysler "75."

New type carburetor and finer air cleaner are two unusual standard equipment features of Chrysler's new "75."

The company's extensive study and pioneering both into carburetion and varying fuel conditions, taking the entire country into consideration, have resulted in the new carburetor. Its design was worked out by collaboration of Chrysler with Ball and Ball, engineers. Owners of all 1928 Chrysler "72" models models may also have the new carburetor and air cleaner installed at nominal cost at Chrysler service stations.

J. W. Frazer, Chrysler sales manager, points out that the new carburetor embodies not only a new application of the principle of carburetion, but also the means of counter-acting successfully the effects of fuel surging without sacrificing economy or any other of a carburetor's successful attributes. A degree of efficient carburetion has now been attained which surpasses any previous achievement along that line, he says. Its additional advantages he summarizes as:

Greater capacity, which permits added power, acceleration and speed, newly-designed method of adjustment at idling speeds for smoother operation without the usual hissing; more efficient control of the mixture just above the idling range, insuring a smooth transfer from idling to running speed; requirement of one nozzle only for delivery of fuel from both the primary and secondary stages; parallel air intakes for both stages, with intakes one above the other, permitting thorough functioning of the air cleaner on the secondary as well as the primary air intake; new accelerating device which operates at any throttle opening and is adjustable for condition of temperature and altitude.

For use in conjunction with this new carburetor an improved type of air cleaner has been adopted. Chrysler finds it the most efficient of all types for this carburetor in removing dust and dirt from the air supply. Danger from improper operation and back-firing is wholly eliminated.

SPORT ROADSTER ADDED TO DODGE SENIOR SIX LINE

Addition of a sport roadster with rumble seat to the senior six line has been announced by Dodge Brothers, and shipments to dealers are being rushed to insure immediate deliveries. Sport types include as standard equipment two spare wire wheels with tires, mounted in the front fenders, and trunk rack in rear.

All exterior hardware of the roadster including radiator shell, head lamps, bumpers, hub caps, door handles, cowl lamps and moulding and spare tire brackets are chrome plated, attractively setting off the body lacquers and color combinations in which the car is available.

The seat is unusually wide, easily accommodating three passengers, and upholstery is genuine black leather. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and balloon tires properly control the car's roadability. Convenience and beauty are emphasized in the arrangement of the instrument board and driver's cotrols.

Grouped under a frosted silver finished panel are the speedometer, engine temperature indicator, fuel guage, ammeter and oil guage. Carburetor adjuster and manifold heat control are at the drivers right, and ignition switch with theft lock in the left panel. A cigar lighter is in the steering column bracket. Light control levers, and spark and gasoline throttles are mounted on top of the steering wheel. Automatic thermostically controlled radiator shutters afford the greatest year around operating economy. The hand brake at the driver's left and four wheel Lockheed hydraulic service brakes insure braking facilities matching the powerful six cylinder engine especially designed for the senior Six line.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Repairs Costly When Delayed.

Engine repairs or overhauling should be made the minute trouble appears or inefficient operation is noticed. A few dollars spent immediately invariably will save many dollars later on.

Bright Rear Lights Insure Protection.

Keep the rear light bright and clean to avert a rear-end collision. The tail light usually becomes dirty after a run through muddy roads in wet weather and this condition makes its car a dangerous obstacle on the highway.

Before Winter Comes.

A general "going-over" would be very timely to any car, after the rigorous uses during the summer months. Heavy fogs are characteristic of fall evenings and in some of the mountain communities ice may be expected at any time. Windshield wipers should be oiled and adjusted to insure their operation when needed. Brakes, which must measure up to a maximum at all times, will be especially vital to safety while driving is subject to such conditions. From neglect and disuse, the lighting equipment becomes out of adjustment, lenses are cracked, bulb filaments are damaged and the entire unit becomes dust covered. Dust creeps into the tiny crevices and filters inside the lamp so that only a feeble ray reaches the outside if the lamp works at all. Steering in a heavy wind is hard work, but it is positively dangerous if the steering mechanism is not in good condition. See that the chains are in perfect shape for traveling over wet and icy streets.

Attention to Accelerator.

The accelerator should be checked up occasionally to make sure it returns the throttle in the idling position. Sometimes the accelerator spring weakens and allows the throttle to remain partly open when it should be tightly closed.

Proper engine lubrication depends on charging oil every 500 miles and prevention of excess crankcase dilution.

Army Cadets Hang First Defeat on Cornhuskers

Cagle Dazzles In Victory for Army

Backfield Ace of Soldiers Factors In 13-3 Result; Sloan's Kick Gives Huskers 3-0 Lead at Half.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24 — Any ideas or aspirations which Cornhusker football followers may have been nurturing that Nebraska might climax its 1928 season with a formidable bid for highest national honors tonight may be consigned to the ash heap of disappointed hopes. The red-jerseyed Huskers had their chance today on the plains of the West Point Military Academy, stacking up against the future generals of Uncle Sam's army in sixty minutes of frenzied battling, and the final reckoning found the mule hee-hawing over a 13 to 3 triumph.

But Cornhusker football need not inscribe aught of apology in the record of the afternoon's proceedings, for that same record would disclose that the Huskers were making pace, 3 to 0, at half-time and but for the pestiferous activities of one "Red" Cagle and a series of unfortunate breaks in the fates and fortunes of the combat, Nebraska rooters, not the Army mule, might well have done most of the hee-hawing tonight.

Mr. Cagle, serving his fourth season in Soldier moleskin, after a preliminary term of football toil in a college down in Dixie, was the artful gent who did most of the dirt to the Nebraska cause. This red-thatched gladiator has been pretty well ballyhooed this fall as all-American material of super grade, and after several hundred Nebraska supporters had inspected the speed and football wizardry of the Army team's backfield ace, it was quite unanimously agreed in that portion of the stands where the Nebraska folk were gathered that this Cagle fellow needs no horn-blowing in bolstering the claim the carmine-haired youth in Army moleskins is the cock-of-the-walk in American football.

Smothered in First Half.

Cagle however, had all sorts of trouble in setting up the pins to put on his stuff. He started the ball game with a surprise forward pass while the scrimmage line was deep in Army territory and he perpetated considerable running around in circles during a first half. During this period the Cornhuskers were waging a sturdy defense which had the Soldier boys and their stellar performer prett ywell smothered.

But "Red" positively declined to be denied. Early in the third period, when the Army had the ball just across midfield in Nebraska territory, the Soldiers faked a double pass and reverse play around end. That sort of stuff was a clever coverup for the subsequent proceedings as Red suddenly darted out through a quick opening in the right wing of the Husker line and squared away in the direction of the Nebraska goal.

"Red" Breaks Away.

Unfortunately, it happened that "Red" had the ball tucked under one arm and, quite as unfortunately, he was making tracks so rapidly and squirming away from tacklers with such pernicious dexterity that nary a Husker tackler could lay as much as a careless hand on the galloping ghost in Army duds.

The net result was an Army touchdown. Captain Sprague fizzled the attempted kick of the extra point, but the Soldiers were out in front, 6 to 3, and that three-point lead was quite sufficient to stand up for a victory the remainder of the journey.

Game Ends at Twilight.

The Army management, it seems, has strange ideas as to the proper time of day to inaugurate its home football games. The combat did not

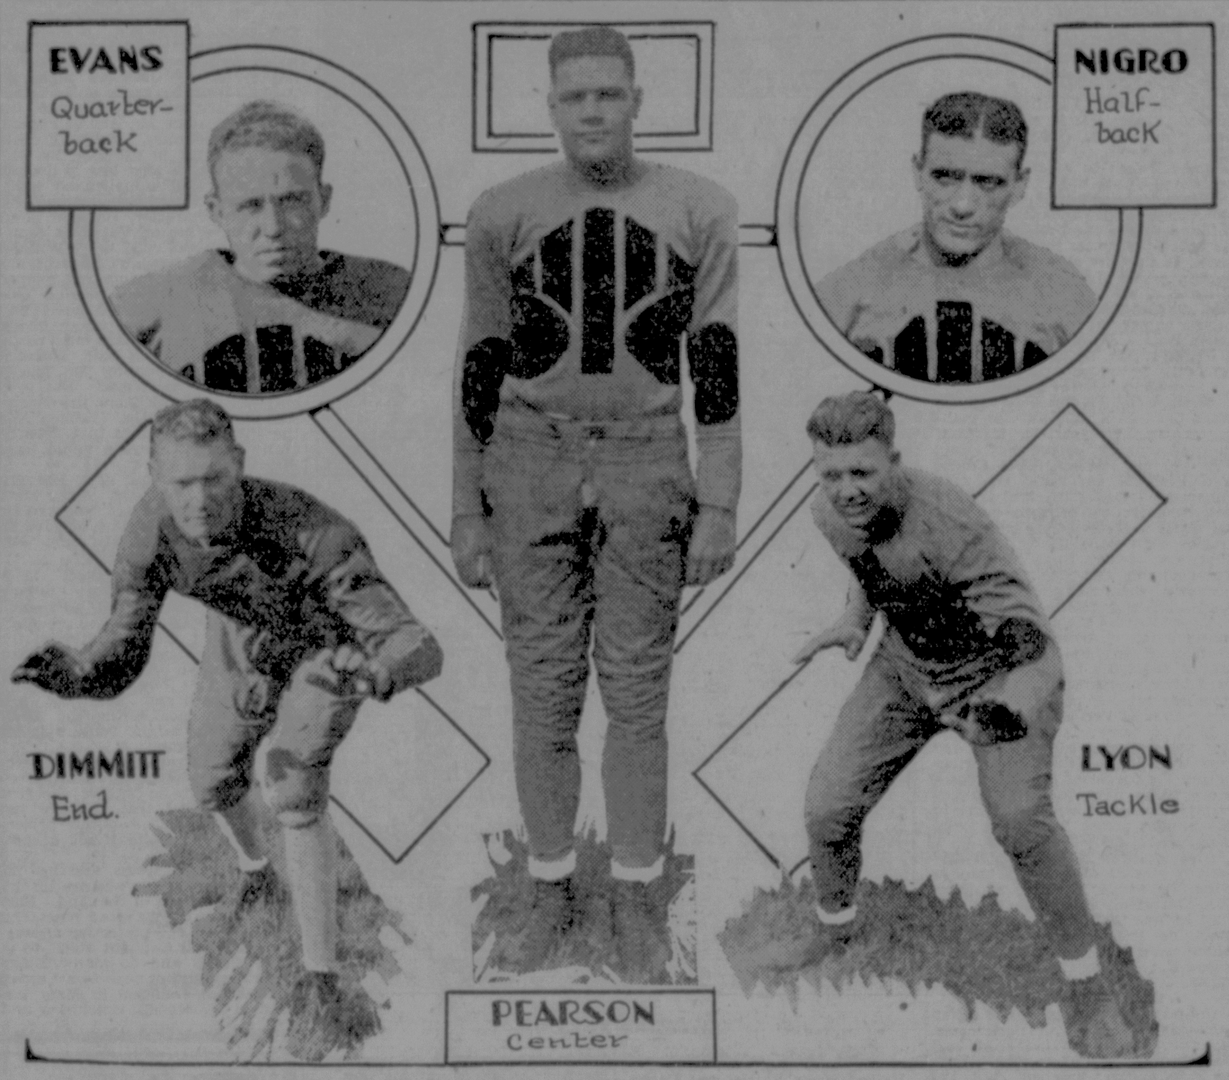
Kansas Aggies Here Thanksg iving Day.



The Kansas Aggies will be the Thanksgiving day opponent of the Nebraska Cornhuskers at the Memorial stadium. It will be the final game of the 1928 schedule and a victory for the Scarlet and Cream would give Nebraska a clear claim to the "Big Six" conference title.

The Wildcats are coached by "Bo" McMillin, former Centre college star, and the Turkey day game is sure to be one of the thrillers on the Cornhusker schedule.

Lincoln Held By Cedar Rapids Hi

Red and Black Battles in Scoreless Tie With Iowa Eleven; Schmitt's Kick For Winning Points Short.

BY JOHN EDWARDS.

Lincoln high school's hitherto untarnished football record of no defeats, no ties, and an uncrossed goal line, was smeared with a dark blotch over one-third of its brilliance Saturday afternoon when an invading Washington high eleven from Cedar Rapids, Ia., deadlocked in a scoreless draw with the Red and Black.

The Cornhusker-Army classic of the east had attracted Lincoln grid fans, who displayed no special desire to witness a high school football game. Consequently, it was a meagre gathering of half-interested spectators that assembled in the capital city oval for the inter-state encounter.

Lincoln appeared to be the stronger eleven of the two and seemed to hold a small but very distinct edge over the Iowans throughout the course of the fray. But appearances must be deceitful for the count in downs and net yardage gained, like the final score, was deadlocked. Both teams claimed four first downs apiece and 59 yards in net gains.

Bauer's Punting Excellent.

Only in the punting department did the Red and Black show a marked superiority. Here the punting of Bauer averaged 44 yards for 12 punts as compared to the 27 yard average in 11 punts of Duncan, Cedar Rapids left tackle. Bauer's kicking work was probably the feature of the game, his last nine boots averaging 52 yards while one was good for nearly 80.

Cedar Rapids exhibited a tough forward wall, too stubborn for the Lincoln backs to penetrate. With two powerful tackles in Captain Hedges and Duncan, the Washington high line staved off all attempts to plunge through their forward wall or circle their ends, and an equally effective anti-air craft defense balked all attempts to travel by the aerial route.

Iowans Start Strong.

Cedar Rapids won the toss and chose to defend the north goal which gave the Brownemen the disadvantage of a stiff wind. All playing was deep in Lincoln territory during the entire opening stanza although the Red and Black held a heavy margin in statistics. Towards the end of the period a McCaffrie-to-Greedy forward pass netted 13 yards for the only first down of the quarter, although not once did the Iowans threaten the Lincoln goal. The period ended with the Red and Black in possession of the ball on their own 21-yard line.

Bauer's punt of 79 yards early in the second quarter carried the pigskin deep into Washington high territory, but here the Iowans made a brilliant stand and registered a little themselves in the form of yardage gained. Bauer's second punt of 52 yards backed the Tiger crew to their six-yard line and a third at the close of the half pushed them back to their eight-yard marker. Once Lincoln held possession of the ball on the Cedar Rapids 20-yard line but lacked the necessary punch to score.

Schmitt's Kick Fails.

Only once during the third period did Washington high hold the ball in the Brownies' territory, and that was when a 15-yard penalty on the Red and Black for roughing gave the Iowans the ball on the Lincoln 37-yard line. The Tigers were held for downs and auer booted a 65-yard punt that crossed the opposing goal.

Cedar Rapids scrimmaged from its 20-yard line and a few moments later Lyman, Lincoln right guard, recovered a fumble on the 25-yard line and set the Brownemen on a drive to the goal that ended near the middle of the fourth period on

BADGER FUMBLE AWAY GRID GAME

Minnesota Crosses Goal For Lone Touchdown; Beat Wisconsin.

Nagurski Dives Across to Give Gophers, 6-0 Grid Victory.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Wisconsin's hopes for a Big Ten championship were dashed today when Minnesota, taking advantage of a Badger fumble in the second quarter, crashed through for the only touchdown of the game and won, 6 to 0.

Dr. Clarence E. Spears' Gophers clearly outplayed the Badgers, and it was only when Wisconsin took to the air that the home team was able to gain.

Minnesota displayed all the power she was credited with having, the powerful Nagurski knocking Wisconsin's line to pieces.

Badgers Drop Passes.

Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite's Badgers let three possible scoring opportunities slip away from them in the third quarter when pass receivers failed to hold onto the ball when wihtin their grasp.

Although the Badgers were outplayed in every way, with the exception of one quarter, it was a bad break that opened the way to Minnesota's touchdown.

The Cardinals, fighting under their own goal posts, called upon Rebholz for a plunge. Rebholz squirmed passed the line of scrimmage and broke loose. A half dozen Gophers rushed him. While one tackled him low, another grabbed his shoulders. His hand knocked the ball from Rebholz. Kakela fell on it and it was Minnesota's ball on Wisconsin's 17 yard line. Fred Hovde shot through left tackle for

Idaho U. Vandals Bother Trojans

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24— (I. N. S.)—After the university southern California Trojans had floundered in a doldrums for two qaurters, Don Williams returned to the line-up and led his undefeated teammates to a 28 to 7 victory over Idaho in their final conference football game here this afternoon.

The victory gave the Trojans no worse than a tie for the coast conference championship, with four victories and one tie game with California.

Williams made an auspicious return to the game after a two weeks' illness rolling up two touchdowns in short order at the start of the third period.

The first score came after Saunders had paved the way with a 35 yard jaunt through tackle, and the second came after a steady march down the field.

Jess Hill, coming in for Saunders late in the period, dashed twenty-nine yards for a touchdown, for a third score.

Hill contributed a fourth touchdown in the fourth period, after two brilliant dashes down the field. Just previous to this, Norton, a Trojan sub-back, had paved the way by returning Idaho's kick off 44 yards. Kemp converted.

Meehan Gridders Overwhelm Tech

Title Hopes of Carnegie Tech Crushed By Ken Strong and Brilliant Band Of New York U. Violets.

FORBES FIELD, PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—New York university reached for the football heights here this afternoon.

While a capacity crowd of 40,000 people looked on in amazement and wonder, "Chick" Meehan's Violet eleven, playing with the precision and smoothness of a well oiled machine, overwhelmed the powerful and hitherto unbeaten Carnegie Tech eleven by a score of 27 to 13.

Ken Strong, the ace of the Violet ball carriers chose this day to give the greatest exhibition of his sensational career. Carnegie could not stop him. Around the end, off the tackles, and through the line he carried the ball for consistent and off-times sensational gains. Time after time he carried the ball upwards of fifteen yards, the top mark being a dash of forty-one yards for the third New York touchdown.

Two of the New York touchdowns are credited to him and in addition he kicked three goals after touchdown. He was the all-American half back this afternoon.

Tech Clearly Outclassed.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Carnegie Tech saw its hopes of a football championship dimmed today when the Violet clad eleven from New York university drove through to a 27 to 13 victory.

The New York eleven, gathering tremendous power as the game progressed, charged through, over and above the line to mar Carnegie Tech's hitherto undefeated slate and prevent the Tartans from completing their first undefeated season in history.

It was the first time the two schools had met in football, and the third time Tech had fallen before Coach Chick Meehan's men. It wa sa sad finish to one of the best seasons Carnegie Tech has ever enjoyed, but it was a bright finish to a similar season for New York university. Only a defeat at the hands of Georgetown university marred the season's record of the Violet squad.

Even in defeat Carnegie Tech backers admired and revelled in the stellar playing of Ed Hill and Ken-

HUSKER SQUAD TO VISIT RBOADWAY

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24—The Cornhusker party pulled out of West Point tonight and will see the sights on New York's Broadway and take in a theater performance. A sight-seeing drive is on the program for Sunday morning and the Nebraska special will head away from Weehawken, N. J., Sunday afternoon arriving in Lincoln Tuesday morning in time for classes.

PLENTY UPSETS IN GRID REALM

Football World Is Given Some Good Jolts Saturday.

The decisive defeat of Carnegie Tech, Illinois' triumph in the western conference; Harvard's first victory over Yale since 1922; Princeton's upset at the hands of the Navy and the tie played by Stanford and California, featured the Saturday football program in the United States.

Carnegie Tech, having defeated Notre Dame and all other teams it met this year, was prepared to claim a national championship if successful against New York university at Pittsburgh. The final hurdle was a trifle too high for the Skibos to clear and New York triumphed, 27 to 13.

Upsets in "Big Ten."

In the middle-west, Illinois dropped Ohio State, 8 to 0, while Minnesota was trouncing Wisconsin, 6 to 0. The latter defeat ousted Wisconsin from the top rung of the Big Ten and enabled the Illini to claim a clean cut championship. Both teams have lost one game but Wisconsin has a tie to mar its record.

Harvard literally ran wild against Yale at New Haven and the 17 to 0 victory achieved was the first the Crimson has celebrated in five years. In 1925 the teams played to a tie, but Yale won the other four contests.

Princeton was an almost universal favorite over the Navy when the teams took the field at Philadelphia. The Tigers were not prepared, however, for the vicious attack, the middies produced, and lost, 9 to 0. A 77 yard run by Lloyd featured the contest.

Army Spills Nebraska.

Army was host to an unbeaten Nebraska eleven and the Cornhuskers gave the cadets a very busy afternoon at West Point. Army's defense held the invaders to a lone field goal, however, while the offense was sufficient to account for two touchdowns, an extra point and a 13 to 3 decision.

Ann Arbor was the scene of probably the greatest surprise in the

MIZZOU ROMPS OVER JAYHAWKS

Tigers Make Long Jaunts Good For Scores Against K. U.

Missouri Bests Kansas by 25-6 Score Before 25,000 Crowd.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 24—(U.P.)—Old Mizzou found its ancient rival, Kansas, wasn't the potent team it was supposed to be and Missouri romped over the Jayhawkers before a crowd of 25,000 homecomers today, 25 to 6.

Brilliant end runs of Missouri and an accurate passing game of Kansas provided a thriller of a battle that had its climax in the final period with Dills making the fourth Missouri touchdown.

The Missouri back took the ball on his goal line on the kick-off after the Kansas touchdown. Perfect interference provided him the shelter to race straight down the field with not a tackler touching him.

Long Runs Score.

Held scoreless for a time, the Tiger machine started its scoring orgy in the second period with Waldorf, quarter, going over twice in that period. Long end runs made the first touchdown possible and a 28-yard pass, Brown to Hursley, brought the ball near the goal for the second marker.

The third touchdown came in the third period after Lawrence got off a bad punt for the Kansans. Mehrle went over for the score. In the fourth session, Kansas passed to the 7-yard line and then Lyman bucked over for the touchdown.

Georgtown Passes Help Beat Fordham

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—A splendid forward passing attack was flashed by Georgetown university here this afternoon in its anham university eleven, and the nual football clash with the Ford-Maroon, contributed enough fumbles on its ow naccount to enable the hilltoppers to win, 27 to 7.

Fordham surprised the visitors with the staunch resistance they offered and the play was by no means as one sided as the score indicates. In the second period the Maroon outplayed the Blue and Grey by a wide margin and they also had the edge in the third quarter.

California-Stanford Finish 13-13 After Thrilling Game

MEMORIAL STADIUM, BERKELEY, NOV. 24—(INS)—California 13; Stanford 13.

Thus ended the most thrilling battle of the Pacific coast football season today played before the largest crowd of the year, approximately 100,000 souls.

California led at the half 13 to 0, the result of one touchdown scored by Bancroft on a 76 yard run after an intercepted pass and one scored by Avery who counted on a 20 yard forward pass on the last play of the half.

Cardinals To Rescue

Stanford scored its first touchdown of the game in the third period on a concerted drive from the California 29-yard line, Fentrup counting on a line plunge. The tying count came with dramatic suddeness with less than a minute to play when Stanford made desperate by the trend of events, launched a persistent passing attack. The play that counted was a 35 yard pass from Simpkin to Fentrup, the latter caught the ball a scant foot from the end zone.

California missed the first try forpoint and kicked the second. Stanford kicked the first and missed the second when a goal kick would have given a one point victory.

Statistics of the game shows how even it was. In the first half each team made two first downs, Stanford made 50 yards on running plays to California's 41 and gained 16 yards on passes to California's 41 The Bears intercepted four forward passes, one counting for a touchdown after a 76 yard run.

Light Backs Score.

When "Pop" Warner put in his light backs in the second half it was vastly different. Stanford registered 84 yards from running plays and 108 from passes. California made 29 yards on runningplays and completed one pass for 19 yards.

By Day and By Night, Cadets Held Edge Says U. P. Writer

BY FRANK GETTY.

(United Press Sports Editor.)

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 24—First by day and then by night, the Army proved Nebraska's master, defeating the hitherto unbeaten Cornhuskers in convincing fashion, 1 3to 3, before 25,000 spectators in West Point's picturesque new stadium on the hilltops above the Hudson.

While it was light, Chris Cagle broke loose and ran 37 yards for a touchdown. After darkness fell, and the players were indistinguishable on the trampled gridiron, Hutchinson threw a long forward pass to Allen for a second Army score.

The Gornhuskers, who have swept undefeated across the football fields of the middlewest, came to the plains of West Point in anticipation of a pleasant husking bee, but Cagle grabbed the red ear and then enjoyment was all the Army's.

Victory Well Earned.

The triumph of the Cadets was well earned, for they outplayed their heavier opponents in every period except the second, in which Clair Sloan booted over a 30-yard placement kick for Nebraska's only score. This field goal in the second quarter followed two great defensive efforts by the Cadets inside their 10-yard line. Chris Cagle was badly hurt in tackling Rowley and was replaced by Hutchinson, who had to punt from behind his own goal. The ball went out at Army's 35-yard line and the Cornhuskers opened up a fast running attack. Sloan and Howell advancing the ball to the Cadet's 10-yard line, where the defense again stiffened. On the fourth down, Howell and Sloan dropped back and the Nebraska fullback held the ball for his versatile teammate, who booted over a perfect placement.

The Cadets had romped unchecked across the chalk marks in the first period until they reached Nebraska's 20-yard line. Three times in that neighborhood the brawny Cornhuskers' line held for downs.

Sloan the Dazzler.

In the second period, the Nebraskans' only aggressive effort, forward passes and long dashes by Sloan, the individual star of the game and one of the best backs seen on the gridiron this year, forced the Army on to the defensive, where they remained throughout the quarter.

Coming out for the second half, however, the Cadet eleven showed that it had just begun to fight. Chris Cagle, playing the game of his career, began those devastating dashes off tackle and around end which have been the terror of the Army's opponents this season.

Standing on his own 35-yard line, the Cadet star flung a long pass to Messinger, Army end, who ran to Nebraska's 37-yard line. From that vantage point, after a delayed pass behind the line, Cagle suddenly sprinted through the Cornhuskers' secondary defense and was off on one of his twisting runs, which did not end until he was hugging the ball to his muddied jersey safely behind the Nebraska goal line.

Captain Sprague missed the try for goal, and the Army went out to hold its advantage.

Attack Lacked Versatility.

Sloan's dashes for sizeable gains were offset by a lack of versatility in the Nebraska attack, and the stout defense against the drives of "Blue" Howell, visiting fullback.

Cagle was twice badly hurt in making brilliant and timely tackles and finally was replaced by Hutchinson. So desperate were the Nebraskans as the game drew to a close and darkness closed in upon the hilltop stadium that Sloan tried a 56-yard drop-kick, which, needless to say, fell short.

The final period was played in

Tex Rickard On His Job of Blowing Fight Horn

Famed Promoter Hops In With Declaration New Champ Soon Here

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Tex Rickard, ever serious and dignified and solemn, as well as taciturn, has suddenly taken to clowning.

Tex fairly snorts at all the experts, synthetic or otherwise, who say the fight racket is skidding and that the present crop of heavies are but palooka debutantes. And in the same stogie-scented breath he wishes one and all to understand that the boys who are to star in his 1928-1929 edition of "Rickard's Heavyweight Follies" are likely to make everybody forget that there was ever a bird like Sullivan, another like Dempsey and likewise one named Tunney.

Tex Knows His Ballyhoos.

The smart Tex knows that ballyhoo is needed for fistic success. This season the newspaper lads seem to have mislaid their pally horns and their hoo trumpets. Inasmuch as they won't operate in his behalf and write nice pieces about how great are the woodchoppers, sailors, baker boys, acrobats and such—those he has corraled for this season's musicless comedy — Tex has turned author.

In an article under his own signature in the November issue of the "Ring Magazine," Rickard grabs himself a flute, three piccolos and several trombones and toots those words:

Wherein He Tells Why!

"Gene Tunney has retired. Jack Dempsey has announced that he will not come back and the boxing critics of the country are busy now mourning over the heavyweight situation.

"We are told that the heavyweight crop which now stands out is as expert and as promising as the peach crop in Alaska. All along the line there is a moaning and a groaning all because the critics have got it into their heads that the passing of Dempsey and Tunney means the practical death of heavyweight boxing.

Whole World Hollered.

"To one who has seen them come and go, this really is a dandy joke. When John L. Sullivan was dethroned by Jim Corbett, the boxing world hollered that the game had gone to the dogs.

"When Jim Jeffries went into retirement and began to hand the title around to Root and the rest, the situation really was bad. But what happened? A negro by the name of Jack Johnson, who had been a roustabout down at Galveston, Texas, came along, dragged Jeffries out of retirement, became the champion, and started a grand revival of interest which burst out in the 'white hope' epidemic.

Another Crop of Groans.

"When Jess Willard stopped Jack Johnson at Havana there was a new crop of groans. Willard, we were told, was a 'big cheese,' and the heavyweight game was going very rapidly to the bow wows!

"What happened? Out west a kid by the name of Jack Dempsey went smashing along and finally laid Willard low in that hot ring in Toledo.

"When Dempsey began to fall off, Gene Tunney came along to inject new interest into the situation. And that's how boxing goes. The old champion hits the toboggan, a new one, often a better one, takes his place.

Plenty Big Ones.

"Some of the writers have suggested that in view of the conditions among heavyweights, the promoter of the country let the big boys alone for some time and concentrate on rebuilding the middleweight, lightweight and other divisions.

"Why, there are enough big men in New York alone to give the proper impetus to the heavyweight situation. If one great fighter comes out of this group—why, that's all we want."

This Way for Tickets.

Step this way for tickets, ladies and gents. Buy as many as you want for the "Rickard Heavyweight Follies." If you keep crowding into Madison Square Garden often enough, why, who knows but what you'll see another Sullivan, another Dempsey or another Tunnney—somewhere along in 1935 or 1940 or 1948!

MIDGET FIELDER SWINGS BAD BAT

"Little Johnny' Tavener of Detroit Club Busy Mauler of Triples.

BY CAMPAIGNER.

His nicknames are "Firpo" and "Power House." Who? Johnny Tavener, the little 136-pound shortstop of the Detroit Tigers. Why? Because he hits the ball further than any other big league ball player of his size.

Tavener never has been a .300 hitter in any league and yet opposing pitchers rate him as a dangerous batsman, for the little fellow comes through in a lot of pinches with extra-base hits.

When a major league scout visits the sticks to give some well touted minor league slugger the once over, he takes the fences into consideration. If they are close in, he easily perceives that the homers that Jim Clouter drives over the barriers or the doubles he hits against them might be easy outs in a big league park. But, if Jim Clouter is hitting a lot of triples, he knows that Jim is worth trying out.

Strong for His Triples.

Well, little Johnny Tavener always has had a penchant for making triples. This year, for instance, he gathered 14, Gehringer, Sam Rice, Heinie Manush, Earl Combs and Emil Barnes being the only American leaguers to excel him in the manufacture of three-sackers. In fact, Johnny made six more triples than Babe Ruth, one more than Lou Gehrig, three more than Leon Goslin and five more than either Al Simmons or Harry Heilmann, all long distance drivers.

"How does he hit a ball so far?" many a fan or newspaperman has exclaimed when the 136-pound Detroiter swatted a ball to deep right or center for three bases. "Where does he get his power?"

Case of Perfect Timing.

It is not power. It is perfect timing and opposing pitchers will tell you that Johnny times his drives better than most of his rival batsmen. If he were 20 or 30 pounds heavier and could add the power to his timing ability, he would be a consistent .300 hitter.

And to think the peppery lightweight started out as a catcher when he was a semi-pro in Dayton, Ohio. But, when some one told him he was too small to be a backstop, he shifted to the infield. Along came Zinn Beck, then managing the Columbia, S. C., team and signed him.

Grew Up In Texas.

Johnny did not take the offer seriously, figuring that Beck could not be much of a judge of ball players if he wanted to give a trial to a boy who weighed but 125 pounds, as Johnny did then. But he devoted himself to adding avoirdupois and actually weighed 133 when he reported, and when the season opened he tipped the scales at 140 pounds. Then did so well that Detroit bought him and sent him to Forth Worth to grow up. Johnny, however, never did get any heavier and his playing weight during the last season was 136 pounds.

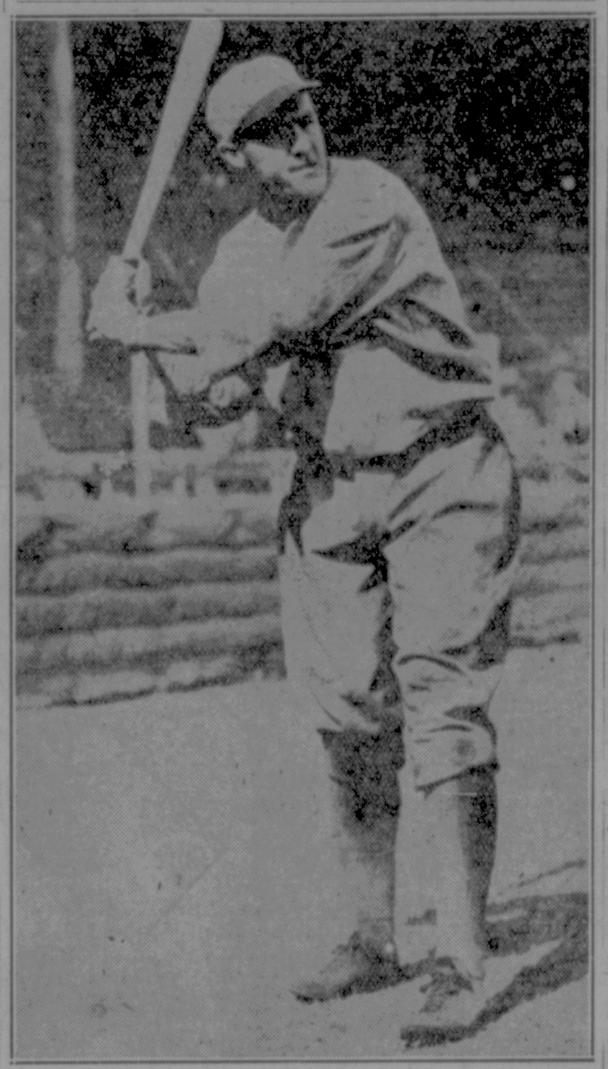
"Power House" also is somewhat of a base runner. He was thirteenth in stolen bases during the season of '28 and seventh in 1927.

Learned to Run Bases.

"Never knew much about base running, though," says Johnny, "until George Moriarty coached me. George showed me how to study the pitchers and get my lead off the base. And he also told me it was suicide to try to steal onGeorge Uhle, Ted Lyons and Herb Pennock."

Next year, Tavener must battle for his shortstop berth with Henry Schuble, former Cardinal, who was purchased from Houston. If Tavener hits as well as he did in '27, his chances for retaining the place are excellent. And, with a battle on his hands, the little fellow probably will make a better showing with the stick than in '28.

Chicago Sox Rookie Has Ear Marks of Greatness



CARL REYNOLDS.

By JACK BOLTON.

He hails from Rattlesnake Ranch, does Carl N. Reynolds, White Sox outfielder, who, Chicago fans claim, is the fastest thing in spiked shoes in the American league. Boston rooters declare that Jack Rothrock, the Red Sox utility player, is faster. Not much choice between them. Perhaps a race will be arranged for them next season.

Anyway, Reynolds calls Rattlesnake Ranch his home, the ranch acquiring its name because it also is the residence of sundry thousands of rattlers. Perhaps, if Carl had gone in for high or broad jumping at college, he would have won national honors, as he has had plenty of practice in dodging that particular brand of snakes which have a sportsmanslike system of telling you when they are going to strike.

Way Down in Texas.

Rattlesnake ranch is 62 miles out from Del Rio, Texas, the nearest town, and Del Rio is 200 miles from San Antonio, so now you know just how far out in the country Carl resides. Said ranch, by the way, is given over to sheep, Carl and his father having about 3,000 on their range now, about half as many as they used to run.

The wild western stories tell you that the average plainsman is bowlegged from riding horseback, but after you take one look at Carl, who has been riding for the last 15 years, you know you cannot believe all you read.

Guns for Snakes Only.

"Suppose you carry two guns when down home on the ranch?" Carl was asked.

"Only to kill snakes," was the reply. "And, I'm not as good with the six gun as with the rifle. Went down in old Mexico hunting, three years ago and some Mexican rurales decided we were bandits or something else. Anyway, they took a few shots at us and we re-crossed the Rio Grande in nothing flat."

It was when Reynolds was winning letters in four sports at Southwestern university that a White Sox scout lamped him in 1927 and placed him with the Palestine club of the Long Star league.

Led League in Batting.

All Carl did was to lead the league in batting with a mark of .336 and in base running with 32 stolen sacks. Might have done better, but played only 124 games. Then, he came up to Chicago and played in the first big league game he ever saw. Batted only .214 in his 14 games with the Sox in '27, but he displayed so much rough talent that Charles Comiskey and his lieutenants just about decided he would be a regular this year and he was, although being kept out of about 60 games by injuries.

Topped Some Real Hitters.

At that, he batted .332, topping such redoubtable batsmen as Harry Heilmann, Bing Miller, Sam Rice, Joe Sewell, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Earl Combs. In fact, there were only five American league regulars who batted better. What a sensation he should be in 1929 with his tremendous power as a batsman and his terrific speed on the paths.

SPORT BRIEFS.

Niemic, Chevigny, Collins and Carredeo, one of the Notre Dame backfield combinations, represents, in its ancestry, four nationalities.

The Baltimore Association of ommerce has taken up the matter of getting football games for the big municipal stadium. Navy recently announced it would play no more games there.

Michigan lost 18 letter men from the 1927 team which was part of the cause of the poor early season showing of the Wolverines.

YALE FLOPS IN HARVARD CLASH

French Runs Wild As Harvard Rolls Up 17-0 Victory.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

YALE BOWL, New Haven, Conn., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Ladies, if any, gentlemen, if possible. It gives me great pleasure—and I'm a terrible fellow to please—to place in nomination for the 1928 All American football team the name of that sterling citizen and apostle of the righteous, young Mr. Arthur French, of the Winchester, Mass., French. words fail me in extolling his virtues; oratory is at a loss to do him the justice that is inalienably his.

Suffice it to say that, without this estimable character, Harvard never would have beaten Yale this afternoon by a score of 17 to 0. Without him, Harvard wouldn't have been a team of inspired zealots that romped all over the premises, making Yale look the part of a beaten outfit from the moment the boys began to get personal and familiar out there. Without French, as said, Harvard wouldn't have won by two touchdowns and a field goal. But it is only fair to the ticknors, the Clarks, the Guarnaccias, the Trainors and the Putnams to state that, French or no French, Harvard would have won this ball game.

It was that kind of a Harvard team. Yale was the other kind. The only thing tough about Yale today was its battle song, concluding with the rather fatuous line: "For Yay-Yale will win."

Yale Attack Fizzles.

They undoubtedly were talking about the Lacrosse team. Yale could not have beaten Harvard in football today if they had allowed the Bulldog to go in there with paving blocks in each hand. It was in the script for Yale to go nowhere at very reckless speed and Yale did just that. Not once during the affair did the Yale attack venture inside the 40-yard line.

It was Harvard's fourteenth victory of the series to twenty-seven for Yale. It also marked the first time since 1922 that Harvard has had anything but a purely protective instinct toward a set of goal posts.

Goal posts, it seems, are the inevitable prey of all winners in this benighted section of the land. Harvard's rush at the goal posts this time had all the protective appearance of a bull elephant about to go many places and do many things. Forty thousand of that 80,000 crowd had its last tradition to carry forward to a successful conclusion and, while it was about the matter, it carried forward and off just about everything that wasn't riveted dowff.

French The Big Noise.

Just why it didn't concentrate its attention on something really important and proceed to carry off young Mr. French is something a little beyond Mrs. Walsh's bright boy. If ever a man deserved a hand and about anything else available that the Harvard cheering section didn't happen to need it was French.

Yale simply couldn't do anything about him all day long. When he wasn't flashing off tackle, he was taking lateral passes from Guarnaccia to sweep wide around for significant gains. When he wasn't punting, with a great deal of direction and good sense, he was intercepting Yale's passes and running them back through the Blues startled ranks. French was just about everything a back should be today. In total yardage alone, he gained 137 yards, personally outscoring the efforts of an entire Yale team.

French and his arch-collaborator, Guarnaccia, took charge of the situation at an early moment. Yale had reeled off a first down near midfield early in the game and then lost the ball on a lateral pass which went astray. Needing no further encouragement, French produced a series of runs carried the ball inside the 10-yard line and a few moments later Guarnaccia was over the goal line with the only touchdown that mattered.

Harper Runs 52 Yards.

Harvard quickly indicated that this initial success was to be far from an impermanent one when Harper ran the following kickoff back 52 yards. From that moment until the end of the half Harvard was always in a forcing position and thanks to Guarnaccia's 23-yard run around Qalker, was well down in Yale territory all the way.

Harvard's second touchdown was the result of a continuous march of approximately sixty yards, French and Guarnaccia leading the way. Yale could do nothing with the lateral passing of this pair even though it learned a lesson in the first half and covered French avidly. It was one thing however to get your hands on this young man and it was quite another to hold him. Anyhow Yale couldn't.

In desperation the Blue began casting passes to the four winds late in the game. All this got Yale was nothing except the worst of it. French being on the spot to clutch most of these as though they were intended for him. In consequence Harvard was knocking at the portals of another touchdown late in the game and just to add emphasis to the thrills of the day Putnam kicked a field goal from the 17-yard line for 3 extra points.

Schuyler Wins Easily.

SCHUYLER, Neb., Nov. 24—Coach Frank Gradoville's Schuyler high grid outfit journeyed to Wahoo Friday afternoon and outclassed the Wahoo aggregation to cop a 46-0 victory. Stillinger, Schuyler's scoring ace, was the star of the game, netting six touchdowns to run his individual scoring record up to 89 points.

Schuyler has won five games this year, tied two and lost one to Stanton. The team has registered a total of 89 points as compared to opponents 37. The season will wind-up Thanksgiving Day with David City, an annual classic. A real battle is in store as the two teams appear to be evenly matched.

Gothenburg Drubs Kearney.

GOTHENBURG, Neb., Nov. 24—Gothenburg high school humbled a heavier Kearney high eleven here Friday afternoon by a count of 19-0, the mid-way city lads failing to register a first down during the entire fray. Barnes, fullback, netted two of the "Swedes" touchdowns in displaying a high caliber brand of ball. Jenkins, quarterback ran back a punt for 65 yards for the third tally. Worley performed in the stellar role for Kearney.

Wymore Loses To Crete.

WYMORE, Neb., Nov. 24—Coach "Pop" Klein's Crete "Huskies" defeated the Gembler Wymore tribe here Friday afternoon by a count of 8-0 braking into the scoring column after three scoreless periods. Harris, star backfield ace, was on the injured list and Bryson acted as captain in his place. Quarterback Jessup of the Crete team was a former Wymore high school student.

Bridgeport Trounces Kimball.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Nov. 24—When Corbett, fast halfback on the Bridgeport high eleven, returned the opening kickoffs in the first and third periods for touchdowns against Kimball, it not only established a record in western Nebraska but also provided the fireworks for a game unusually replete with straight football. The final score was 37-0 with Bridgeport registering all its points by plugging the line or circling the ends. Kimball attempted several forward passes while Bridgeport never tossed the ball once during the game. Bridgeport engages Chadron in its Turkey Day encounter.

Scottsbluff Beats Alliance.

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Nov. 24—Scottsbluff swamped Alliance Friday afternoon on the latters gridiron by a count of 31-0, the local team outplaying Alliance in every department of the game. Humphrey, local speedster, opened scoring on the second play after Scottsbluff gained the ball with a 70-yard jaunt for a touchdown. He scored again later in the period. Skinner, halfback, contributed with a 70 yard run in the second period and another in the third, while Wingett, sub half, chalked up a tally in the third. Alliance never threatened to score.

York Grabs Another Game.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Nov. 24—With Captain Wendell of York in the stellar role, York high captured a 26-0 victory over Central City here, Friday afternoon. Wendell netted all four York touchdowns, scoring first in the opening period on a plunge through the line, and then running back the ensuing kick-off for 90 yards and second tally. He intercepted a Central City forward pass and ran 60 yards for the third score and in the closing period caught a pass from Price for another. In first downs York had 11 and Central City seven. The local team displayed its best brand of ball in the second half.

LEXINGTON EASY WINNER.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Nov. 24—Lexington' Minute Men steam-rollered the North Platte Bulldogs here Friday, 46 to 0. The Platters made one first down and the Minute Men had to punt only twice. Coach Harrell used 26 men in the Lexington lineup.

HASTINGS BEATS FAIRBURY.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Nov. 24—With a heavier and more experienced team, Hastings beat Fairbury here yesterday in a fast game. Hastings scored twice in the first period, on a long pass to Kockrow, and a line plunge by Johnson which followed a muffed punt by Fairbury. Krebsbach scored another counter for the visitors in the second stanza, and Marthis made the lone Fairbury touchdown on a line play after two long passes to Jackson had gained 50 yards.

The second half was evenly fought, Kockrow again scoring for Hastings on a pass. Both teams were using the pass frequently with good effect. The ability of the Hastings backs to gain outside of tackle and around the ends spelled defeat for the locals.

Hastings outyarded the Jeffersons, making 12 first downs to Fairbury's eight.

ORLEANS WINS ANOTHER.

RED CLOUD, Neb., Nov. 24—The Red Cloud high school football team was defeated on the local field Friday afternoon by the Orleans high school team by a score of 31 to 0, both teams playing clean hard football throughout the game.

Two touchdowns were made by the visitors during the first quarter after which Red Cloud tightened up and succeeded in keeping them from crossing their goal line until about 10 minutes before the final whistle, when seven more points were earned by Orleans by a successful forward pass. Orleans has not been scored against this season.

HASTINGS DRUBS CENTRAL

HASTINGS, Nebr., Nov. 24—The Hastings Broncbos continued their winning streak by swamping Central, 64 to 0, here Friday. The Bronchos played a slow game during the first half, scoring but one touchdown. The light Central line fought a good battle in this period.

In the second half, however, Hastings showed its old spirit and made two touchdowns in the third quarter and seven in the fourth.

Lindell, Young, Stuckey and Kemp each made one touchdown. L. Owen made two while C. Owen was responsible for four of the counters.

TABLE ROCK, Neb., Nov. 24 — Table Rock defeated Sterling high here Friday afternoon by a count of 13 to 7, exhibiting a forward passing attack that proved very effective against the Johnson county eleven. The defensive work of Captain Shepherd, Jass, Boyles and Hubka stood out for the locals while Beetam and Caley proved shining lights for the visitors. Table Rock acts host to Odell next Friday in the wind-up contest of the season. The season record, which includes but one defeat:

Table Rock, 45; Shubert, 0.
Table Rock, 59; Liberty, 0.
Table Rock, 9; Adams, 0.
Table Rock, 6; Humboldt, 19.
Table Rock, 2; Verdon, 0.
Table Rock, 13; Brock, 6.
Table Rock, 12; Sterling, 7.
Totals .... 146 Opponents 32.

ALBION-COLUMBUS IN TIE.

ALBION, Neb., Nov. 24 Albion and Columbus played to a scoreless tie here yesterday. Triba and O'Callaghan for Columbus and Loken and Beck featured the Albion play.

SPORT BRIEFS.

Inside Stuff On Thwarting Bully

A rather frail fellow met up with Jack Dempsey a short while ago and asked Dempsey if he couldn't accord him a bit of time teaching him how to punch.

"What's the idea? Why do you want to learn socking?" countered Dempsey.

"Well I find that very often I get into little spuabbles with bullies and if I had a punch I could use it instead of retreating in dishonor," was the answer.

"I'm too busy to take up the job of teaching you," said the ex-champion. "Futhermore, it does't seem to me that you are built in such a way that you ever could punch with 10 years teaching. But if you get in trouble with roughnecks, I'll tell you what to do that will prove more effective than all the left hooks and the right crosses in the world.

"Aim carefully, fire accurately—and kick the other guy in the shins. Nothing, absolutely nothing, will take the kittenish spirits out of a bully quite as rapidly and effectively as a well placed kick on the shinbones."

Illinois Captures Grid Laurels In "Big Ten"

Zuppke Pupils Finish In Front Ohio While Other Leaders Tumble

BY LEO FISCHER.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 24—Hail to the champions—Illinois!

Thanks to the assistance of Minnesota and Michigan, and their own splendid 8 to 0 victory over Ohio, Coach Bob Zuppke's battling Illini won their second consecutive Big Ten title here this afternoon in the concluding game of the season.

When the final gun ended the battle, the standings of the leading conference elevens looked like this: Illinois, won 4, lost 1, percentage .800.

Wisconsin, won 3, lost 1, tied 1, percentage .750.

Ohio and Iowa, won 5, lost 2, percentage .600.

Thriller All The Way.

It was a thrilling fight here today from start to finish and the second half was made even more so by the knowledge that the title hinged on the result. Illinois, however, had the advantage of getting off to an early lead, and had as the Buckeyes fought the Indians fought back harder. Their eight points, scored in the first half, were enough to win, as a result.

Today's contest marked the concluding appearance of "Doc" Wilce, Ohio's coach, as a big ten mentor. He has resigned to enter active medical practice, and the windup of the contest saw the finish of his 16-year career with the Buckeyes.

A fast finish and an even faster start in the first half tells practically the entire story of the Illini victory.

In the first minute they scored a safety and in the last a touchdown. Between these two scores there were thrills galore, just as in the second half, but neither team could come close to marking up a tally.

Illini Plays Well.

It would be hard to pick an outstanding player on the two-time championship. Frosty Peter's kicking and his passing were remarkable, but so were the line-up uniting of Fritz Hummert and the running of Mills, Walker and Hill and the play of Illinois' line couldn't be overlooked, either, for the men in the forward wall made it possible to stop Ohio's offensive and open holes for those galloping Illini backs to dash through.

Ohio played well, too, as the players did their best to write Wilce's valedictory with a championship. But it wasn't enough to match the inspired fight of those pennant-bound Illini, and the curtain dropped on the 1928 campaign with the championship still theirs.

PLAN CAMPAIGN IN "Y" CIRCLE

City and Church Loops Will Organize At Monday Meet.

Final plans for the organization of the Y. M. C. A. basketball leagues will be made at a meeting of managers and team sponsors to be held at the Lincoln Y. M. C. A., Monday evening. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock, according to O. B. Anderson, physical director.

The leagues will swing into action the second week of December. The Commercial Industrial league is composed of men working in plants and firms which they renresent. This league has been responsible for the promotion of a high type of basketball among the different firms of Lincoln and has given the young fellow who has completed his school work, an opportunity to continue to play basketball.

The following firms have registered teams: Piggly Wiggly, Western Auto Supply Co., Evans Laundry, Central Cafe, Lincoln Telephones, First National Bank, Nebraska State Bank.

Some New Teams.

The new firms represented in the league are Piggly Wiggly, Western Auto Supply Co., and the First National Bank. There is still room for one more team in this league. Last year the Telephone Co., won the Industrial league championship.

The City league is composed of men who are members of the Y. M. C. A., and is sponsored by local firms or organizations. Last year Gooch's Best won the city championship and the state championship.

BADGER FUMBLE AWAY GRID GAME

nine yards and with only eight to go, the show was turned over to Bronko Nagurski. He dived head first over the pile-up and the goal line on his third plunge.

Nagurski Dives Across.

The Badgers could have stopped him only before he dived, and they could not get through the Minnesota line fast enough. Brockmeyer missed the attempt for extra point with a place kick.

There were two distinct reversals of form during the game. First the thundering herd had all the advantage, their plunging Nagurski ripping the Badgers line to shreds.

Early in the game Lusby, by holding his own against Brockmeyer and Pharmer on the punts, prevented Minnesota from scoring. Through the first quarter and most of the second, the ball was in Wisconsin's territory. The Cadrinals could not gain through the bulky, speedy, driving gopher line. They dared not pass near their own goal. The game was all Minnesota's except for Lusby holding his own on punts.

RIVALS BATTLE ON TURKEY DAY

Season to Close With Important Games In All Sections.

Tech and Lincoln Tops Football Card In High Schools.

By GREGG McBRIDE.

Football fires smouldering all season will burst out in Nebraska high school camps this week for one final flare before the season ends. With the exception of a few games, the curtain will roll down Thanksgiving day and the finale will be the signal for games between rivals in every section of the state.

The feature game of the week's card is the Saturday argument between Lincoln and Omaha Tech. The capital city and Maroons each will go into the game undefeated so far as Nebraska competition is concerned and defeat will eliminate one of the pair from consideration in any mythical title awards which may be passed around at the close of the season.

Tech Shows Strength.

A month ago the Red and Black would have been accorded the favorite seat in preference to the Tech eleven, but in view of the recent Lincoln showing at Grand Island, the Saturday battle looks like the well-known toss-up. Comparative scores via Grand Island point to a Tech victory, but the fact Lincoln is playing at home should go a long way toward whittling down the odds

Lexington, one of the strongest teams out in the state, has a tough foe in Gothenburg. The odds appear all with the Minute Men but the dope counts for little in this classic where the boys pay off on touchdowns and not yards gained from scrimmage.

Orleans has a stiff hurdle in Alma, a team which has lost but one game this season. Imperial should have little trouble with Wauneta.

Gering Plays Crawford.

Gering and Chadron, leaders in the western circle, each have hard assignments. The Gering Bulldogs will travel to Crawford to meet Coach Wayne Binfield's northwestern aggregation, which has lost two games to date but is all primed for the Turkey day test.

Chadron, all-victorious and already in with the northwest Nebraska title, will appear at Bridgeport and the game looks like one of the best in the western section.

Mid-State league honors will be decided when Grand Island plays at York. The Third City eleven has had the tougher schedule and will give the York eleven its hardest battle of the year. York is undefeated while Grand Island has bowed only to Omaha Tech and Lincoln.

Pawnee at Tecumseh.

Tecumseh, another undefeated outfit, entertains Pawnee City and is doped to finish a second all-victorious season. A win for the Indians would be an upset, although the Johnson county eleven has floundered a bit in its late starts.

Broken Bow meets Ansley in the Custer county classic of the season. The game will not be a walkaway for the Bow as in the past few seasons. Coach Don Lindell has an improved squad at Ansley this season and his proteges have been doing some "pointing" during the past few weeks.

Coach Dutch Welch and his Nelson high team will lock horns with Edgar in a game which will give the Nelson team an opportunity to rivet down the Southern conference title.

Uni. Place at Havelock.

Other leading games which will bring together Minden at Holdrege, Curtis Aggies at North Platte, Wahoo at Ashland, David City at Schuyler, Fairbury at Hebron and Blair at Tekamah.

Greater Lincoln honors will be at stake when University Place meets Havelock at Ballard field. This is the annual classic of the capital city and it will be played Thursday morning. Havelock has held the upper hand the past few seasons, but the young Methodists are intent on cutting in on the Engineers' winnings this year.

Games this week include:

Wednesday, Nov. 28.

Bayard at Minatare.

Thursday, Nov. 28.

Edgar at Nelson.
Farnam at Cozad.
David City at Schuyler.
Talmage at Shubert.
Wilber at Crete.

Bradshaw Hi Cagers Open With Victory

BRADSHAW, Neb., Nov. 24—Bradshaw high cagers opened the 1928-1929 season with a 23-9 victory at Utica last night. Mason led the scoring with 10 points. The guarding of Captain Goodridge of Bradshaw featured. The Utica reserves beat the Bradshaw reserves, 10-3.

California voted full support to the Olympic games program in 1932. The big event will be amply financed.

FRIEND HI TEAM HAS BIG SEASON

FRIEND, Neb., Nov. 24—By defeating Hebron 13-0 Friday afternoon on the Hebron gridiron, Friend high school closed its 1928 football season with a clean slate, having counted a total of 128 points as compared to the opponents' seven.

The Hebron game was the toughest mix of the season for the local warriors, as the two were evenly matched, according to pre-game superiority in the last period and the final count in downs read six to five and in yardage 116 to 98 yards.

Kuskie, Friend left halfback, played a good game for the victors, running back punts for substantial gains and intercepting two forward passes, one of them resulting in a touchdown. He played but a short time, being removed from the game in the second period when injured. Bauer and Swanson did most of the Friend ball-lugging, the former breaking away for a 25-yard run which set up the pins for the second tally. Hebron threatened late in the second period, but the half-time gun stopped their march to the Friend goal on the 25-yard line. Green at right tackle performed in the stellar role on the line while Houts, Cloyd and Baum were the outstanding members of the Hebron team.

By Day And By Night Cadets Held Edge Says U. P. Writer

twilight, dusk, semi-darkness and finally complete darkness, which obliterated the playing field as far as the spectators and most of the players were concerned.

By the November Moon.

Through the night, with the Cornhuskers bewilderedly trying to follow the trend of the Army offensive, Hutchinson shot a pass to Charley Allan. By the gleam of a pale November moon, Allan spotted the flight of the ball, which was like that of a mallard over a night marsh. The Army halfback plucked the ball from the darkness and stumbled over the Nebraska line for a touchdown.

Then came the big chance of Jimmy Grier, who hadn't seen action as a first string Cadet this season. The youngster, a guard, was sent in to convert the touchdown and did so with a neat placement kick, aiming by flares from the adjacent hillside.

After that it was just naturally too dark for anything that concerned football, but even then the Army moved better in the dark than the crestfallen Nebraskans. Ernie Bearg, Cornhusker coach, yanked his backfield stars, Sloan and Howell, and sent in fresh men with miners' lamps affixed to their headgears, but the ruse failed and the game came to an end with the joyful Cadets corps telling the visiting throng the sad bedtime story of Nebraska's first defeat.

Army Uncorks Passes.

While it still was light enough for football, the Army earned its triumph by the most brilliant passing attack it has displayed this year, coupled with the devastating dashes of Chris Cagle, who now may be safely rated as All-American timber.

All told, the Army's forward passing attack proved a net gain of 233 yards, or quite enough to defeat the Cornhuskers even if Cagle had not been ever-ready to add his fleetness of foot to the irresistible Cadet advance. Nebraska, on the other hand, completed only six passes, for a total of 49 yards.

Out-rushed and outpassed, the visitors excelled only at kicking. Claude Rowley outkicked Cagle and Murrell, while he was in the game, and Sloan held his own in this department.

LINCOLN HELD BY CEDAR RAPIDS HI

the Tiger four-yard line. Held at this point to three downs, Captain Schmitt attempted to place kick the goal, but his work failed and Cedar Rapids took the pigskin on its 20-yard line.

Aided by Bauer's 60-yard punt, Lincoln began a last frantic drive to the Cedar Rapids goal. Pass after pass was attempted, all unsuccessfully, although Captain Schmitt muffed a long toss standing on the Red and Black goal. The last play of the game brought the only completed Lincoln pass of the day when Joy nabbed Bauer's throw for a gain of 20 yards that brought the oval to the 15-yard line.

Plenty of Tie Games.

It must fall in the lot of Washington high to play tie games this season for of eight games played, this is the fifth deadlocked affair. But in seven years as head coach for the capital city high school, Coach W. H. Browne's teams have never been tied and only three times have been sent down to defeat. The tie contest with Grand Island and the one with York during the 1921 season mark the last deadlocks on one of the most outstanding records in the country.

Coach Bill Kelley brought a Tiger aggregation of 22 players to Lincoln for the game. Browne is contracted to play a return contest on Iowa soil in 1929.

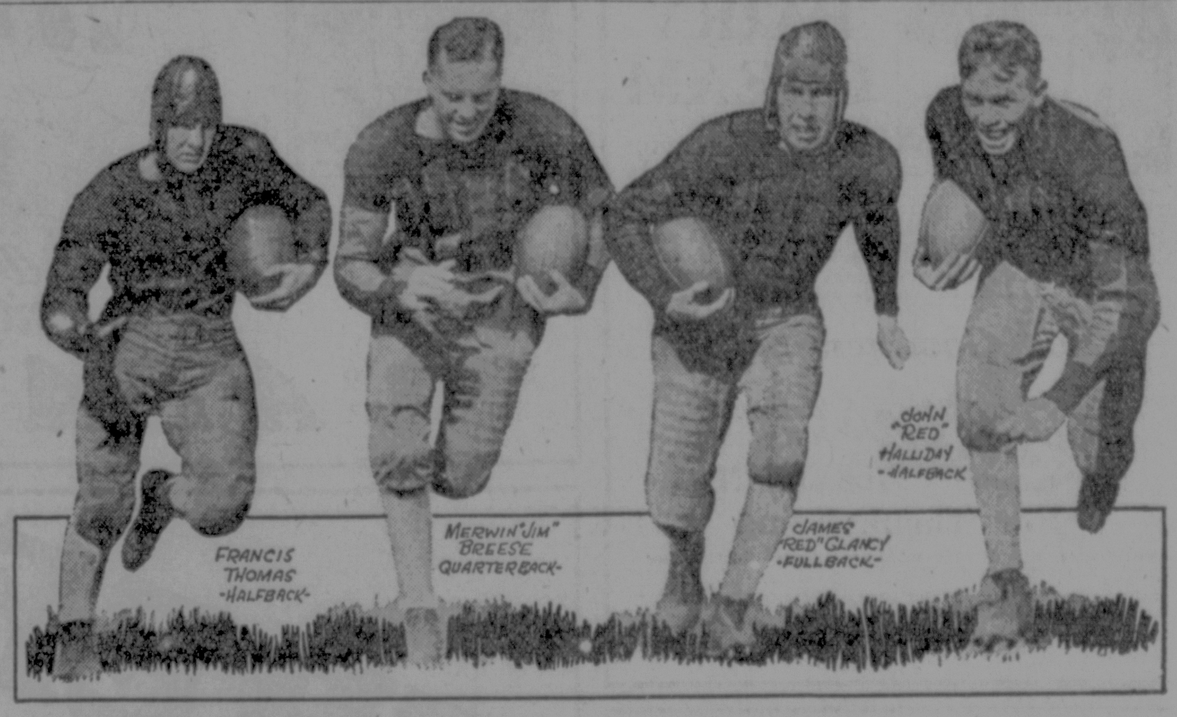
Ohio Wesleyan's "Galloping Bishops."



DELAFARE, Ohio, Nov. 24—Notre Dame has had its "Four Horsemen" but this year Ohio Wesleyan has its "Four Galloping Bishops" comprising the backfield of the undefeated Ohio Wesleyan eleven, known as "The Battling Bishops," who have beaten Michigan and Syracuse and advanced the ball more than two and one-fourth miles in winning the seven games they have played.

Known for years as a good small college team, Ohio Wesleyan has stepped ahead of its class this season and swept everything before it with these four backfield thunderbolts, playing brilliant football behind what Ohio sports writers have named "the Iron Chain Line."

These "Galloping Bishops" have advanced the ball 3,967 yards, to be exact, while their opponents have carried it but 1,255 yards against them. They have galloped for a total of 29 touchdowns and scored 195 points to their opponents' 13.

Ohio Wesleyan has defeated Michigan, 17 to 7; Syracuse, 6 to 0; Cincinnati, 71 to 0; Miami, 12 to 0, Marietta, 33 to 0, Denison, 11 to 0, and Wooster 45 to 6.

Although the bishops have made the greater part of their yardage on straight football, their forward passing also has been phenomenal They have completed 63 of 129 passes attempted for a total gain of 881 yards. Every man in the "Bishops backfield is adept at hurling passes. Only 29 passes have been completed against the Bishops in seven games.

James "Red" Glancy, fullback, and John "Red" Halliday, halfback, have led in scoring this year among the "Galloping Bishops" and look so much alike that they often pass for twins when dressed for the gridiron.

HUSKERS THIRD IN ANNUAL RUN

Frazier Leads Jayhawks To Win in Big Six Harrier Meet.

HOW THEY FINISHED.

Kansas	51
Iowa State	89
Nebraska	79
Oklahoma	85
Kansas Aggies	86
Missouri	131

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 24—University of Kansas won the first annual "Big Six" conference cross country run here today. "Poco" Frazier, set the pace with a time mark of 25 minutes 44 3-5 seconds. The first twelve runners to finish were:

Frazier, Kansas, first; Putnam, Iowa State, second; Miller, Kansas Aggies, third; Hoak, Iowa State, fourth; Christensen, Iowa State, fifth; Griffin, Nebraska, sixth; Springer, Kansas, seventh; Herman, Oklahoma, eighth; Carson, Oklahoma, ninth; Batie, Nebraska, tenth; McComb, Kansas, eleventh; Fortune, Kansas, twelfth.

Hoosiers Win Title.

MADISON, Nov. 24—Indiana won the annual western conference cross-country championship here today by placing three runners among the first ten for a total of 71 points. Ohio State, with 78 points was second, and Wisconsin, failing in its attempt to win a fifth consecutive title, third, with 110.

Captain David Abbott of Illinois was he first runner to cross the finish line. His time was 26 minutes and 42 secgnds.

MEEHAN GRIDDERS OVERWHELM TECH.

neth Strong, of New York university's backfield.

The 40,000 fans saw Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech captain, inaugurate his assault in the opening period which led to the first Carnegie Tech touchdown. He intercepted two forward passes at dangerous times and held back the Violet attack. The intercepting of the second pass paved the way for the touchdown which was made by Tony Sweet, right end, after he had caught apass from Harpster on the 16-yard line. Cyril Letzelter, halfback, kicked the seventh point for Tech.

Skibo Line Weakens.

Then came the rapid changing of the game's fortunes as Strong and Hill began to pound at the Skibo line which yielded for a tied score bfore the half had ended. Passing, line charging and end runs were mixed with perfect effect in the second period to put Robert Barrabee, right end, over for New York's touchdown. Strong tied the score with his placement kick.

Striking hard in the third period, the force of the Violet backfield combination of Strong and Hill drove over for two touchdowns, one by Strong and the other by Barrabee.

Tech Passes Futile.

With visions of a lost battle Harpster attempted a forward passing game which put Karcis across the line for Tech's second touchdown. But the visitors had another marker in store.

Strong made a long run to the 11-yard line near the end of the period and on the next two plays weaved his way through to the last touchdown of the game.

LASSMAN VICTIM FRACTURED SKULL

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Albert Lassman, New York university's football captain, suffered a fractured skull in the game here today with Carnegie Tech. He was taken to a hospital where it was said his condition was serious.

Lassman was injured in the last period of the game when Kenneth Strong, New York university halfback, was tackled by Howard Eyth, Carnegie Tech halfback. He was carried from the field.

Lassman is one of the outstanding amateur heavyweight boxers of the country and he has been mentioned as a possible contender for the heavyweight crown.

A leg injury last year prevented him from gaining recognition as an all-American tackle.

Physicians who examined the player at the hospital said it was possible he may have been injured internally.

Chesty Joie Hangs Up World's Record

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Running a magnificently timed race, "Chesty" Joie Ray, America's leading distance runner, ran El Ouafi into the boards at the new Boston Garden to establish a new world's record for professionals over the full marathon distance of 26 miles and 385 yards.

Ray's time for the distance was 2 hours 34 minutes 54 seconds. The old record of 2 hours 44 minutes 55 2-5 seconds was established by Ouafi in the Madison Square Garden, New York City, Oct. 21.

Joie began his winning surge of breaking world's records at the start of the fourth mile. From there he was never headed. At one time Ray held a lead of four and three quarters laps over the Algerian winner of the Olympic marathon.

Norman Scribner, preaching tackle of Ohio Wesleyan, stands six feet two and weighs 240 pounds.

DARTMOUTH EASY FOR WESTERNERS

Northwestern Romps Over Eastern Eleven For Decisive Win.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Northwestern's purple wave rolled right over and deluged the green of Dartmouth, 27 to 6 in a little kick ball game here this afternoon in which Dick Hanleys warriors were supreme from the start. The local eleven had the upper hand and turned in its fanciest ball game of the season.

The purple slashed and passed the boys from the Hanover hills to a clean cut defeat. They rolled up first down after first down and cut the Hawley line to ribbons.

A brilliant young sophomore, Hank Bruder, who had been nursing his wounded bones on the bench most of the season, took a heavy hand in Northwestern's most impressive win of the year.

Purple Runs Wild.

Of course there was Holmer with his line hammering and passes, Levison with his slices off tackle and Calderwood with some nifty running, but it was Bruder who was knifing the tackles for yardage and snaring Holmer's slick passes to the great chagrin of Dartmouth.

Holmer in his last game on Northwestern likewise was a wizard, he cracked the line for one touchdown and scooted 75 yards after recovering a Dartmouth fumble for another. A drive of 80 yards with Bruder going over the line brought the first purple touchdown but Holmer missed the goal. Bruder produced the next touchdown in the third period when he slanted off tackle for 8 yards. Holmer this time place kicked the point.

Dartmouth came to life early in the fourth period and scored on a 47-yard forward pass Marters to Booma. The try at goal was missed.

Homer, Bruder and Levison then teamed up for great slabs of yardage immediately after and Holmer slid over for the third purple touchdown. Holmer closed his career by racing 75 yards for the touchdown after scooping up a Green fumble.

Indiana Humbles Purdue.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—The historical old oaken bucket, the prize trophy of the annual Indiana gridiron classic will remain in the trophy room at Purdue university for another year as a result of the Boilermakers well earned victory of 14 to 0 over the Crimson hoard from Indiana this afternoon.

Incidentally another gold "P" will be added to the chain attached to the bail of the bucket denoting the third victory of the old gold and black gladiators over their time honored rivals.

The game was devoid of spectacular play except in the first period when Welch, the Texas tornado, intercepted an Indiana pass on the Purdue 35 yard line and raced 65 yards for the first touchdown. Both teams played hard and consistent line plunging ball from then until the end of the second period.

Hoosiers' Lone Threat.

It was in the second period that Indiana made its big threat at scoring by line plays, end runs and two short passes the Crimson warriors carried the ball to the Purdue two yard line. Here the Boilermakers line held like the Rock of Gibraltar and had carried to near midfield when the second period ended.

As the third period opened, Purdue started with a rush for the second and last touchdown of the game. Welch, Harmeson, Guthrie and Caraway tore holes through the Crimson line and carried the ball to the five yard line. Welch then drove his way through for the touchdown, Caraway adding the extra point from placement.

TULANE CRUSHES LOUISIANA STATE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 24—(U. P.)—Tulane crushed Louisiana College, 47 to 7, this afternoon in a one-sided game. Bill Banker, high-point scoring ace and All-Southern candidate of the Greenies, added 23 points to his total by scoring three touchdowns and kicking five goals after touchdowns.

Bobcats Crush Omaha U. Under Avalanche of Scores, 37-0.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 24—With Paul "Swede" Hertz rolling ponderously over the line, flattening the Omaha forwards and averaging ten yards every time he carried the ball, the Peru Bobcats won the championship of the N. I. A. A. today at Tech Field here by crushing Omaha university, 37 to 0.

When Coach Lon Graf's mammountain wasn't gouging the center of the line, big Joe Krejci was shooting bullet-like passes everywhere on the lot, one went for 44 yards and the first touchdown by Young.

Hertz made the second touchdown, and three others. Pike caught Krejci's pass on the third period for the other. Krejci failing to pass, ran over the goal line for two of the tries after touchdown. End Roberts was the one sole bright star for the Cards. The lineups:

CAGLE DAZZLES IN VICTORY FOR ARMY

get under way until nearly 2:30 and when the fourth period came bowling along, which apparently is the habit of fourth periods, the gloomy mantle of night had all but blanketed the scene. The darkness, in perfect truth, was quite thick enough to permit cutting with a cheese knife.

While this sort of thing was going on, the Cornhuskers proved their utter inability to qualify as nocturnal prowlers. In all events, the Soldier lads had the gall to attempt a forward pass play when not a soul in the audience of thirty thousand could have located the pigskin without the aid of a searchlight.

Just a Pass in the Dark.

Believe it or not Mr. Hutchinson, subbing for Mr. Cagle in the backfield, hurled the ball high into the gloom and, by some strange demonstration of the art of hocus-pocus the ball descended into the arms of an Army player.

Lynx-eyed occupants of the press box who claimed a light acquaintance with every performer in Army moleskins were unable to agree as to the definite identity of the clever youth who plucked that Hutchinson pass from out of the midst of the dusk. Some of the experts averred it was Crabb, at end, while others stoutly insisted it was Allen, a backfield man, who snagged the ball.

Be that as it may, the receiver was standing on the goal line when he perpetrated his startling feat, and six points thereby were added to the Army total. Fullback Murrell added the extra point, boosting the Army total to 13 points and the jig was up with the Cornhuskers.

Fumbles Halt Nebraska.

Nebraska's scoring achievement punctuated the second period. Messrs. Howell, Rowley and Sloan had just concluded the business of digging of considerable soil in the general direction of the Army goal, but the fumbling jinx horned in when the Huskers had penetrated to within ten yards of the final stripe and apparently were on their way to a touchdown.

Set back by the fumble, but still retaining possession of the ball, the Nebraska signal called for Halfback Clair Sloan to use his educated toe toward the achievement of a goal from the field. The youth from Verdon was fully equal to all requirements of the occasion and his kick sent the ball hurtling over the cross-bar and between the uprights for as nifty a field goal as ever was executed in the annals of the favorite college pastime.

Breaks of the Game.

The breaks of the game served to confuse and confound the Huskers during the same second period. On two distinct occasions Rowley flipped perfect passes to Sloan who snagged the ball while cruising at full speed. Sloan had a clear field to a touchdown on both plays, but the cleats of his shoes cut the sod from under his feet and he tumbled to the turf, an easy prey for Army tacklers.

Efforts of the press box pests, the writer included, to compile statistics of the battle were hopelessly futile. Twelve hundred military cadets were grouped in the stands directly in front of the press box and exuberant youth insisted on having its fling, meaning that after every exciting moment the cadets would stand enmasse, completely obstructing the view of the press box occupants.

The Cadets and Darkness.

During the final ten minutes of the combat the scribes were utterly ignorant of what was transpiring on the field. Only the bare outlines of the Cornhuskers white helmets could be seen from the press coop.

Compilation of statistics, therefore, was a hopeless task.

Despite the lack of definite figures, it is unquestioned that the Soldiers both out-yarded and outdowned the invading gridders from the middle west. Nevertheless, the Huskers made it a ball game for sixty minutes and but for the irrepressible Mr. Cagle might well have plucked the laurels.

Unfortunately for the Cornhusker cause, Mr. Cagle is a considerable football team all by himself and the Army need nothing more than a Cagle team to appropriate the spoils.

Phillies Poison To Chicago Cubs

Those awful Phillies, who lost 109 out of 152 games, in 1928, mean nothing in the lives of anyone but the Chicago Cubs. But to the Cubs they meant disaster, ruin, despair agony, terrific suffering and the loss of a pennant.

The Cards "murdered" the Phillies; the Giants did almost ditto. Yet whenever the Phillies found themselves opposed by the Cubs the very sight of a Chicago uniform inspired them to mighty endeavors. Take a look at the conduct of the Phillies against the Cards, Giants and Cubs:

Phillies Versus

	Won	Lost
Cardinals	2	20
Giants	5	17
Cubs	9	13

The Cards, as can be noted, scored 18 net victories over the Phillies, the Giants scored 12 and the Cubs could garner only four, showing that the St. Louis crowd outscored the Cubs by 14 games in play against the Phillies.

Inasmuch as the Cubs were beaten only four games for the pennant the fact is established that the Phillies in their comparative play against St. Louis and Chicago were the deciding factors.

Luke Urban and Tony Comerford, Boston college's greatest ends of all time, both are coaching—Urban at Canisius (Buffalo) and Comerford at Loyola (Baltimore).

PLACEKICK WINS FOR MICHIGAN U.

Iowa Hawkeyes On Short End 10-7 Score at Ann Arbor.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—In as bitter a struggle as ever was witnessed in this fair college town, Michigan, the underdog, rose to supreme heights to vanquish Coach Burt Ingwerson's Iowa eleven in the new stadium this afternoon, 10 to 7. It was one of those encounters in which the outcome was in doubt until the closing gun, the Hawkeyes especially threatening in the waning moments of play with a barrage of passes out to no avail.

With the defeat went all Hawkeye hopes of a share in the conference title. If Coach Ingwerson's boys had scored a victory, a share of the big ten championship would have been theirs. But Michigan was not to be denied, and climaxed a rather disastrous season with its crowning achievement.

Glasgow Breaks Loose.

The Wolverines looked due for their fifth defeat of the season at the end of the first quarter. Willis Glasgow, one of the fleetest half backs ever to invade Ann Arbor, tore off a brilliant 55 yard run in the first quarter, giving the Hawkeyes a 7 point margin when he booted the kick for the extra point.

Not to be outdone, Michigan took the offensive at the start of the second quarter, and reeled off several first downs in a row, to get the oval on the Hawkeye's 17 yard stripe. Standing on the, 28 yard line, Gembis; "Dynamite Joe," as he is known hereabouts, placed one of his kicks squarely between the uprights; and the score was 7 to 3.

At half time, the ball was in midfield when the Hawks gained on a series of punt exchanges.

Launching another drive, the maize and blue ball runners reeled off five first downs in a row, and on a clever lateral pass from Truskowski to Dahlem, scored the winning points. Gembis again goaled, and Michigan was ahead 10 to 7.

LINCOLN STAR

Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads offered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisement.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

The individual advertisements under the following classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick references.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions: Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents. Cash rate per line per day:

RECORD SALES OF DE SOTO SIX

Distribution Is Without Parallel Declares C. W. Matheson.

Over 9,500 Machines Are Marketed in Month Of October .

In the first three months of its existence the Chrysler-built new DeSoto six has reached a production and distribution volume unparalleled by any other car during the same period in the entire history of the automobile industry, according to figures released at Detroit yesterday.

In October better than 9500 DeSoto sixes were produced and distributed. The figures for the three months since the car was announced last August, and for nine days production in July, are as follows:

July (last nine days)... 744 cars
August .....5055 cars
September .....7836 cars
October .....9562 cars

"No new car in the whole industry ever attained a production and sales volume equal to that of the DeSota six during the three months period immediately following its announcement," said C. W. Matheson, DeSota vice-president in charge of sales, commenting on the record of the newest Chrysler-built car.

"The rapid expansion of DeSoto six production and sales is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that not only is the DeSoto six an entirely new car, but the dealer organization which markets it is also entirely new. These two facts coupled with its tremendous success make the DeSoto six, without exaggeration, the sensation of the automobile world.

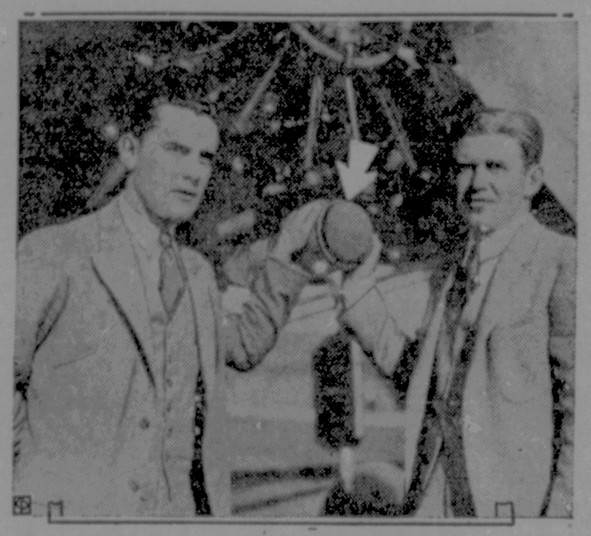
"The ever-increasing production volume of the DeSoto six has been gained by utilizing every recognized means to speed up production without sacrificing the high standards of manufacturing practice upon which the success of Chrysler-built automobiles is founded.

"Factory expansion has been under way ever since the announcement of the DeSoto six in order to provide for the tremendous demand for the car, a demand which we confidently foretold months ago. Millions of dollars have been expended on factory expansion during the past three months and still further expansion is now in progress.

'Nothing save widespread and outspoken public approval could elevate a motor car to the commanding position which the DeSoto six has attained in three months. Merit alone could have won such unparalleled popularity. The DeSoto six has set a record for all time and as it enters the fourth month of production it is supported by a host of owners who rate it supreme in motor car value."

Do not attempt any difficult feats in traffic if there is an excess of play in the steering wheel. The "fine"points of guiding the care are then almost impossible.

Navy Perfects Seaplanes.



Lee Schoenhair and John Guglimenti with their plane. Arrow points to carburetor funnel.

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—Now Uncle Sam's sturdy seaplanes can operate in the roughest water and in the heaviest weather.

A little "gadget" makes this possible.

The "gadget," invention of Commander Carl Smith, engineering officer at the naval air station here, is a booster cleaner. It removes dirt and throws it clear out of the engine.

And—it removes water completely from the air stream entering the carburetor.

In the past seaplanes, especially those on pontoons (as distinguished from the flying boats) have had great difficulty in getting off the water because of the heavy spray thrown against the carburetor and intake.

Now their troubles are solved.

Commander Smith's invention is a peculiar funnel which fits on the carburetor. Its mouth faces the propeller beneath the engine. The funnel contains a spiral rotary inductor, a pitot static eliminator and scavenger, and arresting features.

While it frees the engine of dirt and water ,it also saves about 8 per cent on fuel consumption and increases power at takeoff.

Navy officers here hail the invention as a boon to sea flying, especially for service planes that have to take off in all weather.

Lee Schoenhair, former army flier, and John Guglimenti, night airmail pilot, have been using one of the funnels on an Albatross monoplane in which they have planned an attempt at the world's endurance record.

Auto Notes

Easy on the Battery.

A conservation of battery power is made if the clutch pedal is pushed down to the floor when starting the engine. This relieves the starter and battery from the task of cranking against the clutch and gears in the transmission.

Tight Connections Save Anti-Freeze Solution.

Have every connection of the cooling system thoroughly tight when adding glycerine to the water as an anti-freeze agent in the radiator. New hose connections between the engine block and radiator are advised solution, this special loss of the solution, this special treatment is necessary.

An engine operates most efficiently when hot.

The air pressure of tires decreases when there is a drop in the temperature of the weather.

Always apply power and brakes gradually to avoid useless spinning or locking of wheels.

Sit low in the seat when driving over rough roads. This will prevent striking the top of the car.

When starting up a hill, it is a good plan to always notice which side of the road is the high side.

Always sound the horn twice at each dangerous intersection. The second signal is to make sure some other driver did not give a warning simultaneously with the first toot.

In cold weather a gasoline engine must be run slowly until it warms up to its normal temperature before it can develop its maximum efficiency.

SAME BUT DIFFERENT.

The Chicago White Sox have been using the same set of signs for the past 15 seasons, but they mean different things in different innings.

Georges Carpentier may not defend his French heavyweight title, which he has held since 1923 without a single title fight.

BOXING BACK ON SOUND FOOTING

That Is Scheme Proposed By Promoter Harmon of Windy City.

His Plan Is Found School For Development of Youngsters.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—Something must be done if boxing is to be perpetuated as an individual sport, not a crude imitation of wrestling, la savate and calf roping. Here in Chicago there's a man who is proceeding bravely as a rescue squad.

He is Paddy Harmon, chieftain of the Chicago Coliseum, who, becoming disgusted with the pathetic lack of boxing knowledge shown by the newcomers, has opened a school where old masters of ringdom will teach the fledglings how to shoot and, likewise, how to escape having their brains scrambled in every fistic outing.

Chain of Schools.

For many years it has been evident that what ringdom needs is a chain of schools where youngsters can be taught the technique of the game and who can be held in tow as scholars until such time as they no longer run the risk of being rendered punch drunk in their first few battles.

But Harmon is the pioneer in the establishment of a real school, with real teachers, where pupils will remain pupils and not run amuck in "pro" rings until they are fully schooled and officially graduated.

Boxing Stands Still.

"Boxing has not advanced with other sports in the last 20 years," stated Harmon, in an interview with Ed Geiger, Chicago sports editor. "Rather, it really has degenerated from what it was 20 years ago, because then the boxers never became 'pros' until they had been schooled, whereas, in the last generation, boys who hardly know how to hold up their hands have become what is called 'fighters.'

"Most of the boys in the ring today have never been taught the fundamentals of boxing. They go into a gym and see men slugging at each other, then they put on the gloves and the next week they are fighting. Knowing nothing else, they just take swings on the hit-or-miss principle and, having no defense, they are almost annihilated by the wild swings they run into.

Wind Up as "Cuckoos."

"The only result is that before they have really started on a career they have had their faces battered out of shape and generally they ned up as 'cuckoos.'

"You see mighty few good left-hand jabbers or punchers today and still fewer feinters. It's hit or miss and clinch nowadays. The passing of Benny Leonard saw the last of the old school of fighters.

"Stance, or how to stand, is another important factor to successful boxing. The average boy stands with his toes turned in instead of straight out and because of this he has a hook swing and cannot strike straight.

"In the old days a fighter stood firm on his left foot and on his toes on the right. He was able to sway his body with the punch or away from the punch. If hitting, the force of the body went with the wallops.

Little Variety Now.

"There is too much sameness in the ring today. You look at 10 bouts and all 10 are the same; no variety. In the old days if there were four bouts, the styles in all four varied. Today there is no rolling of the head to avoid a punch, no ducking, no slipping the face out of the way so if the blow must land instead of hitting the face it hits the side of the head. Men like Griffo, Abe Attell, Harry Forbes, Johnny Coulon, Packey McFarland, Eddie Santry and that grand old fighter, Harry Gilmore, knew their stuff.

"The boys of today start wrong and they never are corrected. They do not use their brains and eyes.

Hitters and Boxers.

"In the old days there were two kinds of fighters and only two. There were the hitters and the clever boxers. The boys of today do not get any encouragement. I mean the boys that are starting. They do not see the boxer with the type of the old school and naturally they cannot learn. Tommy White, who will be my boss teacher, is going to bring back the old style, the Jem Mace style, the style that was so prominent in the original Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe, Young Griffo, Joe Gans and the present Jack Dempsey, to say nothing of hundreds of others.

In Good Old Days.

"In the old days a fighter had to be drilled six months and then given the O. K. before he could step into a ring. In other words, he had to be 'there.' Today a week's work and they claim to be fighters. Boxing is a big institution and if it is to live, if we are to go ahead, we must develop the boys along correct lines.

"In taking boys for instruction we do not want the lad who has had years of experience. He is set in his ways, and you cannot change him. He got off to a wrong start, and the minute he gets stung by a punch he goes back to the wrong style.

"What we want is the youngster, the strong, intelligent and willing boy, not the boy to stand up and take punishment, for that is not the manly art of self defense, but the boy who will learn to protect himself from the attack and beat the other fellow. We are going to build scientific fighters—the boys of the old school."

Hit Pair Homers In Single Inning

In all baseball history only eight men were able to smack out two homers in one inning.

And the oddity is that five of them turned the trick in the third inning.

Of the eight men to achieve such fame, five are ancients and three are modern athletes, proving that the old-timers were pretty fair at walloping, even though they didn't have the "lively ball" of today to smile at. The records follow:

1880—Charles Jones (Braves vs. Buffalo,) eighth inning.
1890—Louis Bierbauer (Dodgers vs. Buffalo), third inning.
1890—Ed Cartwright (St. Louis A. A. vs. Philadelphia), third inning.
1894—Bob Lowe (Braves vs. Reds) third inning.
1894—Jake Stenzel (Pirates vs. Braves), third inning.
1922—Ken Williams (Browns vs. Senators), sixth inning.
1525—Hack Wilson (Giants vs. Phillies), third inning.
1928—Bill Regan (Red Sox vs. White Sox), fourth inning.

Lincoln People Plan Thanksgiving Dinners

Larger Affairs and No-Host Parties Will Be at Country Club and University Club, While Great Majority of Family Gatherings Are to Be After the Game Home Groups.

AND here we have another Thanksgiving day, the one day that gives November a look in so far as popularity is concerned. And what a day it bids fair to be, with any number of affairs scheduled at the Country clubs, and about two hundred reservations at the University club, to say nothing of those hundreds of persons who will dine at home.

The larger groups at the clubs are no-host affairs, and many of them are family parties, with guests from out of town scattered here and there, in this group and that.

This year, Mr. and Mrs. I. G. Chapin and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Talbot are joining in a Thanksgiving dinner at the club. Included in the list of guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Irving Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Talbot and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Kinder and family, Misses Anne and Melinda Stuart, Miss M. B. Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kimball, Mrs. W. R. Kimball and Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Rector of Omaha.

Family Group at Club.

With Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tilton at the club will be the family group including Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Seacrest, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seacrest and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Seacrest and family, and Mrs. Emma Seacrest.

At another no host table will be Mrs. W. A. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Woodward and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. George Burgert and family, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Jones and family, and Dr. and Mrs. Gibbons of Kearney.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollin H. George will have sixteen guests including Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith, Miss Elsie Hoppe, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Underhill, Prof. and Mrs. Paul Grummann, Miss Katherine Grummann, Burton Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnson and Augustus I. Hasskarl.

Many No-Host Groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whitten, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Whitten, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Varney, sr., and Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Varney, jr., of Broken Bow will be included in a no-host group.

Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall Miles Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rogers, and Mr. and Mrs. Burnworth Minnick will dine together at the club following the game.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Aitken and family, have reservations at the club with Mr. and Mrs. O. Fee and family, for dinner following the game.

A no host group of sixteen will include Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Tupper, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Maly, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wishart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hellmers, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Straub, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McKelvie, Mr. and Mrs. John Strayer.

A foursome at the club will include Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grainger and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Chenoweth.

Many Dinners at Homes.

The dinners at home are equally large as those at the club. Mrs. E. L. Thornton, for instance, is having as her guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fawell, George Fawell, sr., Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Fawell and son from Hastings, and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Lyman and son, Edward.

Dining with Mr. and Mrs. Homer Honeywell following the game will be Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lau, and Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Honeywell.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Branch will entertain the members of their family at a dinner Thanksgiving day, including Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Branch, Mrs. M. Olive Watson, Frank Watson and Mrs. Sarah Latta.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Flansburg and son, Charles, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Westervelt, are dining with Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Westervelt on Thanksgiving.

Mrs. T. J. Doyle will entertain at her home, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Doyle and son, Kathleen Doyle Halligan and daughter, Nancy, Mrs. Mary

Three Lincoln Couples Observing Wedding Days Together for 25th Time

Today marks the forty-fifth wedding anniversary for Judge and Mrs. W. E. Stewart, the fortieth anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Selleck and the thirtieth for Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Barkley.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. and Mrs. Selleck invited Mr. and Mrs. Barkley and Judge and Mrs. Stewart to celebrate with them their fifteenth anniversary. At the dinner it was discovered that the wedding anniversary of all three couples came in Thanksgiving week, so for the last twenty-five years these three families have celebrated together at a family dinner. In years past, the children and grand children have been present.

Today the three couples are together for their twenty-fifth dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Selleck. None of the children or grandchildren is in Lincoln today. This marks the ending of these anniversary dinners. All feel that an unbroken record of twenty-five years had best be closed before a break comes, so while the families will probably meet together often, the anniversary dinner will not be continued.

Mrs. W. A. Selleck returned Saturday morning from a month's visit at Washington, D. C. where she visited her daughter, Mrs. George E. Clark.

Former Lincoln Woman Writes of Interesting Experiences In China

Mrs. Joel Pomerene, formerly Miss Agnes Bartlett, daughter of Mrs. Paul Bartlett of Lincoln, has been spending the past few years in China, where Lieutenant Pomerene is stationed. The forepart of October Mrs. Pomerene was the guest of Mrs. Newell, wife of Colonel Newell, who is in charge of American troops in Tientsin. In a very interesting letter to her mother, she describes her experience:

"Have been having a heavenly time doing Peking with Mrs. Newell—am staying in her Chinese house, and its court yards, surrounding one tremendous tree which is seven hundred years old, are alone worth the trip.

"These Chinese houses are most unique with their continuous links of rooms, each room facing one or several gardens. All real Chinese houses are one story high, and have paper windows (of course in the summer time one doesn't need glass in the windows, and in the winter, paper is warm, or at least adequate to keep in the heat). Mrs. Newell has modernized this "Humble Abode," by putting in five bath rooms and some extra fire places. One can't describe this court, it has to be felt and seen together.

An International Group.

"First! Suppose I should tell you about our party, starting from Tientsun. Mrs. Newell sent us up in her car, a large limousine. The group included Mrs. Calhoun, wife of the ex-United States minister to China; Adrian Davies, British vice president of the Chartered bank of India, Charlmagne La Conut, French army officer, one Chinese boy, and one negro chauffeur. Now don't you think I was in an international group? We joked enroute as to which consul would protect us if we met any Chinese troops—but all went well.

"We went out to the western hills yesterday afternoon, climbed to Tiger Head to see the sun set, and then came down and stayed all night in a real Chinese temple that had two lovely shrines, and was attended by a priest who burns Joss and Kotons. Last night it was mournful to hear the temple bells tolling. We were in sight of the Marco Polo's bridge in the distance. So few people have access to these temples. Minister McGury was in the one below us, and in the one above, we had dinner with an American artist, Charles Child.

"We have been thrilled by the forbidden city (all of it, the Jade Buddha, the summer palace and so forth, in fact we did all of the regular sight seeing acts, but it has been wonderful to have Mrs. Newell with all of her China experience and enthusiasm to direct and inform us.

Visited British Legation.

"We went up on the wall to get a view of the city, and it is a superb sight to see the golden symmetrical roofs dotted here and there by a tomb, and the blue hills in the background.

"We went to the British legation

Many Groups Plan Turkey Day Dinners

The fatted turkey is fast losing any prospect for liberty and life with the busy planning of big dinners both before and after the football game in Lincoln on Thanksgiving day. The bigger and better turkeys are beginning to shiver in their feathered boots and their gobbling is becoming more clamorous concerning their chances of being "picked." "It pays to be thin" is the realization of every healthy turkey who has neglected to count his calories every day. This Thanksgiving day promises to be better than all others. Friends, kin, a football game and a banquet spread. What sounds more jolly?

Entertaining at dinner following the game will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spangler who will entertain Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Searle, sr., and daughter, Helen of Council Bluffs, also Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Spangler and little son, Searle, of Lincoln, and Joe Spangler.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Troup are planning a family dinner after the game. Those to be in the party will be Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Graves, Dr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Welch, Jane, John, Josephine and Jimmie Welch, Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Hanson and daughter, Mary Adelaide.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Leverton will entertain with dinner at their home, 211 South Twenty-eighth street, for Mr. and Mrs. George Baggaley and son, Thad, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and son, Lloyd, of Deadwood and Miss Ruth Leverton of Scotia who is teaching there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hefty of 1641 Q street plan a dinner party after the game for Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Nichols of Detroit, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Hefty of Omaha and Harris Lilga of Kearney. Mr. Nichols of Detroit is general agent for the foreign freight department of the Canadian Pacific aRilway.

Lincoln A. A. U. W. Forms Six Round Table Groups

Members of University Women's Association Organized for Study of Short Story, International Relations and the Elementary and Pre-School Child.

The A. A. U. W. round tables which have been getting under way during the last week have been the center of considerable interest. They have been organized under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Forsyth, and include approximately one hundred association members. Aside from the six Lincoln groups—two on the short story, two on international relations, one on the elementary and one on the pre-school child, an additional round table has been organized at Crete, under the leadership of Miss Bernadine Donaldson, dean of women at Doane college, for the study of international relations.

The orgaization of these groups received particular emphasis at the last monthly meeting of the association, when the subject was introduced by Mrs. Vance Traphagen, president, and Mrs. Forsyth, who has had complete charge of the arrangements.

Perhaps the largest of the groups are the two literaure round tables, both of which are studying the short story under the leadership of Miss Thelma Sealock. She plans

Upper picture, left to right: Maude Harriet Weaver, Margaret Ames, and Dorothy Weaver. Center: Potato race, one of the events in the riding tournament. Lower: Group of Nebraska co-eds ready for a riding lesson.

They're in the movies now. And, as Merely Marjorie would say, the co-eds on the Nebraska campus will be all of a doo-dah some of these days before long when they see some of their sorority sisters and classmates performing on the screen in the Pathe news reels.

The Pathe movie man took pictures of the girls who are competing in the intramural activities at the university, and have entered in the horseback riding group.

This group held a riding tournament last Wednesday evening at the coliseum, and the winners in the events were as follows:

Musical chair, Martha Brinkerhoff, first; Blanche Farrens, second.

Potato race, Brinkerhoff and Farrens, first; White and Beaumont second.

Relay races, Dorothy Weaver and Margaret Ames, first; Blanche Farrens, and Frances Cottnon, second.

The girls who are entered in the horseriding group include:

From the Pi Beta Phi sorority, Mildred Richardson, Frances Cottnon, Dorothy Weaver, Maude Harriet Weaver, Bunny Norris, Kathleen Troop, Blanche Farrens, and Margaret Ames.

Kappa Kappa Gamma: Marjorie Davis, Dorothy Graham, Edith White, Jane Beaumont, and Mary Elizabeth Long.

Delta Gamma. Dorine Treat, Mary Jane Lemere, Marcille Matthews, and Martha Brinkerhoff.

Delta Delta Delta: M. H. McGinley, H. Patterson, Jane Cleveland, and Gretchen Fee.

Alpha Delta Theta: H. Williams, and H. Henderson.

Delta Zeta: Louise Weaver, and F. Babcock.

Alpha Xi Delta: Harriett Horton, and Melva Dickenson.

Kappa Alpha Theta: Katherine Clapp, Beatrice Powell, and Dorothy Silvis.

Alpha Phi: Virginia Faulkner.

Two Co-eds Are Honored

Two home economics students of the University of Nebraska, Miss Julia Allam of Del Norte, Colo. and Miss Anna Smrha of Milligan, Neb., have been chosen to attend the Merrill-Palmer child training school at Detroit next semester. Only fifty selected home economics students from the entire country are allowed to take the courses at the Merrill-Palmer school which is the foremost of its kind. Miss Allam is a senior in agricultural college and Miss Smrha is a graduate student. Both girls are members of Phi Upsilon Omicron, the home economics honorary sorority.

Out-of-Town Guests Feted At Dinners

Lila Perry Announces Engagement When Mothers Entertain Thirty-Six Thursday.

Mrs. J. G. Ray of Rock Island, Ill., who came Thursday morning has been a feted guest during her short visit. Saturday evening, Mrs. W. S. Cohcrane entertained at a family dinner at her home, 2801 Van Dorn street, with Mr. and Mrs. Ray as honor guests. Mrs. Ray was honoree Saturday at luncheon at Hotel Cornhusker, for which Mrs. R. H. George was hostess. A mound of roses centered the table. The afternoon hours were passed informally. Mrs. Reuben Walt was Mrs. Ray's hostess Friday for luncheon at the University club. Mr. and Mrs. Ray and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blanchard are spending Sunday in Geneva, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Britton. The guests return to their home in Rock Island this evening.

Thirty-Six at Dinner.

Mrs. E. B. Perry entertained thirty-six guests at dinner Thursday evening, honoring her daughter, Lila Fowler Perry, whose engagement to Wilson M. Watkins of Wichita, Kas., was announced. The tables were arranged in the form of a T, with baskets of red and white roses at the ends. The table was centered with a miniature truck, driven by a small groom, and filled with red and white mints. Tiny trucks served as place cards. A bank of smilax, with red and white ribbons running to each cover, concealed little blue birds, which carried the announcement. Following the dinner, Miss Perry particularly to emphasize the various types of present day short stories, through the study of current magazines and standards collections. As a background for this, she is first presenting a brief outline of the development of the short story, together with group discussion of outstanding examples of different types of narrative in various periods, with especial emphasis on structure and technique.

Mrs. Aldrich To Talk.

The morning literature group, of which Mrs. H. W. Orr is vice-chairman, will meet next Tuesday morning with Mrs. Will French, 3050 Puritan street. This meeting will be of particular interest, since Mrs. Bess Streeter Aldrich, well-known author, will address the members explaining the suggestions which have led to the development of her plots.

The evening group, of which Miss Bess Bowen is vicechairman, held its second meeting at the home of Miss Gladys Dana, 1955 Washington street Thursday evening. It will meet again December 6, at the home of Miss Marjorie Barstow. Miss Sealock, the leader of both of these groups, has recently had an unusual distinction, in that her story, "Requittal," appears in the well-known O'Brien collection of the best short stories of the year, which has just appeared.

The international relations groups are following out a theme which has already received considerable emphasis in the general meetings of the A. A. U. W. this year. The morning group, under the leadership of Mrs. E. L. Hinman, is following the general outline sent out by the national association, taking as a main topic, "Danger Spots in Europe." It will next meet at the home of Mrs. M. J. Carns, 1734 South Seventeenth street, Friday, November 30, at 10 o'clock.

Dr. Pfeiffer Is Leader.

The evening group will make an intensive study of the multilateral treaties. Its members are considering both the preliminary steps leading up to the recent peace pact, and the pact itself. Dr. Laura Pfeiffer, the leader of this group, is a professor of history at the University of Nebraska, and has studied extensively in this country and in Europe. The next meeting of this group will be Monday, December 3, at the home of Mrs. Maurice Deutsch, 2717 Stratford street.

Miss Clara Slade has charge of the two education groups, one of which studies the pre-school child, the other the elementary school child. The former is beginning with a discussion of heredity and environment. The meetings are to be held every other Friday, the next ttobe November 30, at 3:30 at the home of Mrs. Everett Angle, 2022 South Twenty-third. The latter group is following the national A. A. U. W. outline on the elementary school child. It was organized Friday at the home of Mrs. I. M. Raymond, 2720 South Twenty-fourth street.

Many Dances Are Held By Fraternities

Theta Chi and Sigma Chi Hosts Past Week-end At Fall Parties.

Unusually "peppy" fraternity parties this week-end give a hint of the celebrating which will enliven the next few days, for Nebraska co-eds and new students.

About a hundred couples danced at the Sigma Chi fall party Friday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Blue and gold decorations made a lovely background for the merrymakers. Chaperones were Mrs. Frank Hawley, the Sigma Chi house mother, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Fee, Colonel and Mrs. F. F. Jewett, and Captain and Mrs. H. Y. Lyons. Punch and wafers were served during the evening.

THETA CHI PARTY

Amid a riot of red and white balloons Theta Chi fraternity entertained two hundred couples at a fall party Saturday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Colonel and Mrs. C. J. Frankforter, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Decker, and Mrs. Emma Knapp, house mother, were chaperones for the affair.

ACACIA PARTY SATURDAY

Acacia fraternity members were hosts Saturday evening for twenty-six couples at a dance at the chapter house. After an evening of dancing they went to a down town restaurant for refreshments. Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wilcox and Mrs. W. A. Brown, the house mother.

FARM HOUSE DANCE

Orange, yellow and red crepe paper made a snappy fall background for the Farm House dance at the chater house Saturday evening. Thirty-eight couples attended he party which was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Kern and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Frerichs. Punch was served to the dancers during the evening.

PALLADIANS HOLD BANQUET

"Voyage of the Good Ship Palladian" was the theme of the toast program at the Palladian dinner Friday evening in the Garden room of the Lincoln hotel. T. F. A. Williams was the pilot who introduced the speakers. Those giving toasts were: Captain—"What Makes a Successful Voyage" by Dale Weese; First Mate—"Preparations for the Voyage" by Vearle Russnogle; Second Mate — "Cooperation Working Together" by Merrill Flood; Steward—"Fellowship, Playing Together" by Mary Kinney; Navigator—"Following the Traditions of Pal" by Katherine Kile; Deck Hand—

Parties Held on Birthdays

Left: Olive Ione Helm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Helm, 1616 South Twelfth street, celebrated her ninth birthday November 19. Nine little friends were invited to a surprise party, and the time was spent with games after which refreshments were served.

Right: Jean Ellen Wochner was 7 years old yesterday, and celebrated her birthday with a party at her home. Included in the guest list were the children in her class at Yankee Hill school.

Flood Tells Women of Cycling Across Desert

Mrs. H. H. Wheeler Explains Conditions in Europe Following War and Says Multi-lateral Pact One of Greatest Forward Steps for Peace; Axis Club Has Large Number of Guests.

The regular meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club was held at the club rooms with Miss Florence Hamm in charge, assisted by Miss Mae Malsbury, Miss Gertrude Auman, and Dr. Ruth A. Warner. Miss Ella Hans, assisted by Miss Alvina Maahs, Mrs. Laura Bridenthal and Miss Josephine Gaede, superintended decorations and service. Large yellow "mums" supporting yellow tapers lighted the tables. An electric fruit basket, bridge and floor lamps were scattered about the rooms.

A group of violin numbers were given by Bertram Ellsworth, accompanied on the piano by Miss Kent, and responded to an encore with "Aloha."

Francis Flood Speaker.

Francis Flood, who with James Wilson made a trip around the world on a motorcycle during the past year, gave a description of their journey, illustrated with slides made from pictures of their own taking. He described their start from University Place, with a one-gallon gasoline can as a suit case and their only bagage shaving utensils, fishing tackle, and other small necessities. Thus they reached New York, where they took passage on a small freighter bound for the west coast of Africa. Their first stop was at the Azores, where they were advised by English army officers not to attempt to cross the desert and jungle, where thousands of miles have never been traversed by any white man, nor any wheeled vehicle, and beyond the border of which the land will probably never be penetrated, the swamp and jungle and bush being almost impenetrable. However, they purchased two motorcycles, which they named "Routh" and "Tumble," and after learning to ride, crossed Africa to the Dead Sea, then crossed the Sahara desert, and traversed the Nile valley. Here, Mr. Flood said, all freight traffic goes on the head and all passenger traffic on the hoof.

Describes Camel.

The cycles at times were carted on the backs of camels. After riding a camel for three days, they visited Kartoum, where is the most perfect irrigation system in the world. The motorcycles were sold when they came into Italy. The found India the most beautiful country in the world, with its forty-six million people living in filth, misery and ignorance, with little prospect of improvement. In Calcutta one-fifth of the entire population is beggars. They spent last Christmas eve in Zinder. They floated down the Ganges river 150 miles, visited northern India, Siam, Burmah and toog a Norwegian freight boat to Hongkong, where Wilson was stricken with malaria and sailed for Seattle and home

Japanese Postage Stamp.

Mrs. Flood joined her husband in Honolulu, where they spent a month as their wedding anniversary celebration. Mr. Flood reached Honolulu with a lone Japanese postage stamp, and a debt of $30, liquidated when he met his wife. Another similar trip, Mr. Flood said, would not be taken on motorcycles. They loved "not home less, but romance more," but had had enough.

The Near East relief luncheon at the chamber of commerce was attended by Mrs. Margaret Carns, Miss Lulu Horne, Miss Narcissa Snell, Mrs. A. F. Berggren and Miss Frances Drake, members of the Business and Professional Women's club.

The Business and Professional Women's club at Beatrice invited the Lincoln club to attend a musical comedy given at Beatrice by members of the club on Thursday evening.

The Lincoln club held a successful benefit bridge at the Cornhusker hotel Friday evening. A prize was given at each table, and a door prize in addition.

Mrs. Wheeler Speaks.

Axis club met at the Y. W. C. A. club rooms Tuesday for evening dinner. Mrs. H. H. Wheeler, honorary member of Axis, talked on international affairs. She used a large wall map, pointing out the changes in the boundary lines of Europe since the war ,and told of the financial situation in connection with reparations. She explained the attitude of European countries toward the prosperity of the United States. Mrs. Wheeler said that the Kellog peace pact and the recent conferences on the cause and cure of war, could not help but be the largest factors the world has ever known toward the prevention of war.

Harold Hollingsworth gave several songs, "The Blind Ploughman" and "Of Thee I'm Thinking, Marguarita," followed by an Irish song as an encore.

Miss Leona McCallum, legislative chairman, reported that the recent check up on votes cast by club members showed that nearly every member had voted November 6.

Guests introduced were Misses Viola Swanson and Minne Chrestensen, with Miss Eva Pierce. Mrs. Ruth Hester presented Mrs. Helen Weider and Miss Genevieve Cook. Miss Geneva Wheeler's guest was Miss Gladys Lux, and Miss Nellie Dickman presented Miss Ida Wilson, president of the Flagstaff, Ariz., Business and Professional Women's club. Miss Wilson told the club of the activities at Flagstff, and recalled that the president's special train went through to the Oakland, Cal. convention a year ago, the Flagstaff members dressed up in true western style and boarded the train at 4 a. m. to greet the visitors. Several Axis members were aboard the train and remembered the thrill of an early morning hold-up.

Forty-Niners Celebrate.

Miss Wilson also told of an interesting occasion when the Flagstaff club participated in an 1849 celebration. The men were required to grow beards from May 1st to the Fourth of July so as to look like Forty-Niners, and the business women, to portray the occupations of women of that day, marched in the parade pushing baby carts. Miss Wilson is city librarian at Flagstaff, and is in Lincoln attending the university taking special library work. After the meeting the club adjourned to the gymnasium where dancing was enjoyed under the leadership of Miss Mildred Bryan.

Miss Antonia Stara, a former Axis member and a former teacher in the Lincoln schools, is now connected with the public schools of Chicago.

A group of Axis members attended the bridge part yat the Cornhusker Friday night given by the Business and Professional Women's club.

Miss Ida Hanson, president of the Business and Professional Women's club of Osceola, came to Lincoln Saturday, and accompanied Miss Grace Trott to Omaha, where tney attended the state board meeting. Miss Fay Sherwin, president of Axis club and Miss Merle Lawder, chairman of the magazine committee of the Nebraska Federation, also attended.

Havelock Notes.

Helen Lindekin, former Havelock girl, appeared last week at the Lincoln theatre with the Rainbow Revelries.

Mrs. Mary Conway and Mrs. N. Zarvis spent Wednesday in Council Bluffs with Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, former Havelock girl.

Frank Pickard went to Kansas City Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Marshall spent the weekend in Fremont.

Mrs. N. F. Chancy of Falls City spent the week-end here with her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Hulbert.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cox Saturday night at the Lincoln general hospital.

Let's Lose 20 lbs. Apiece

Excess fat is a blight to men as well as women. It means more than loss of youth and beauty. It means less health and vigor. So men who like slender women should keep normal figures themselves.

The way is easy. Starvation and over-exertion are not advised today. Science has found a great cause of excess fat in a deficient gland. The modern method, used by physicians the world over, is to combat that cause.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, perfected by a famous medical laboratory. People have used them for over 20 years—millions of boxes of them. The results are seen in every circle. Slender figures now prevail. Mothers look like daughters.

Users of Marmola told others the results—the loss in weight, the gain in health and vigor. Thus the use has spread, until these tablets have become the greatest factor used in fighting fat.

Don't stay over-fat, when so many people all about you know a way to end it. The way is easy and pleasant. The results are delightful. Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reason for each good effect. You will know exactly why the weight comes down and the health improves.

Don't delay. Excess fat is a blight you must correct to live life to the full. Start now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

News of the Clubs

A group of state and local officers of the Parent-Teach er association, who reside in Lincoln.

Child's Greatest Need Unity of Home, School

Nebraska P. T. A. Makes Rapid Growth In Development of Partnership Between Parent, Teacher and Community for Benefit of Pupils. Welfare Work Is Feature of Educational Program.

Before 1922 there were many Mothers' clubs and Patrons' associations in Nebraska but no central organization until the spring of 1922 when Mrs. F. W. Carberry, field secretary of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association, spent several months in the state. Her visit resulted in the state Parent-Teacher association with Mrs. George H. Wentz, president.

A state convention was held in May and an annual meeting has been held every year since.

Mrs. Wentz was a loyal worker and local units were formed rapidly. Meetings of health and welfare workers in rural and urban districts were the order. In fact all sorts of training classes met regularly for study and discussion.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Wentz, the State Bulletin became a reality in 1924 and is still functioning with Mrs. R. A. Harrison as editor.

The publicity department was born in January, 1925, with Mrs. Mark Pierce, chairman. Mrs. Pierce is still at the helm, as January 1929 draws near.

Mrs. Say President.

Mrs. Wentz was followed by Mrs. W. W. Day as president in 1926. She was reelected for 1928-1929.

Nebraska congress has been fortunate in choosing leaders, as its presidents have been women of exceptional ability and because of their fine leadership the workers have all been the best.

The Lincoln council, of which Mrs. C. M. Duff is president, is composed of adelegate from each building and as many more as care to attend. At the meeting in November, sixty were present.

The recreation work in Lincoln has speeded up because of the arduous work by Mrs. Fred Easterday, P. T. A. chairman, in cooperation with the schools. Mrs. Day and all others connected with the work were pleased with the round-up in the state last summer. The parents responded in a fine way and many children were examined .As a result parents are beginning to see the worth of the clinics and endeavor to follow the recommendations of the examiners. They save many children from long suffering. Mrs. George H. Buer was in charge of the work.

Study Program Making.

This year a school for studying the best ways of preparing programs has been added. Texts and leaflets have been sent to the city council and at each meeting these may be studied for an hour. Seventy-five attended the first meeting. In the early spring a regular school will be in session for three days to study the work from the National congress down to the individual.

A Founders' Day also will be an event of the springtime; Mrs Wentz will have charge.

The district chairmen met in convention at the same time as the educational districts and the state convention will be held in Hastings next October.

Some one has written: "If you want a child to be successful in life, give him splendid he lth, sanity of vision, capacity for work,

Children's Greatest Need

"You've all heard of the wonderful one hoss shay,
That was built in such a logical way,
It ran for a hundred years to a day,
And then, of a sudden, it—ah, but stay—"
"I'll tell you a tale of the P. T. A.
"And the work it's been doing for many a day.
"Helping the children on every hand,
Training the parents to understand.
"Have you ever heard of that, I say?
"Now the women who founded this P. T. A.
"With a vision that reached to a far distant day,
"Built it stronger still than the one hoss shay,
It could go on forever—the Congress way.
"For each year as it comes, brings us parents new,
And that means thousands of children, too;
But training a child today you know,
Is not what it was in the long ago,
So, parents and teachers need more education,
To keep them abreast of this new generation.
"Nineteen twenty-five, and the P. T. A.
Was strong and sound in every way;
New members were coming in each day;
That was the year we all went down
For the big celebration in Omaha town.
"Past presidents came from far and near,
And each told of the work of a former year;
"How the home and school needed cooperation,
How parents lacked interest in school education;
How teachers wree doubtful, the plan wasn't clear,
And they wondered if parents would interfere.
"But now, what a difference, for most of them say
That a school's out of date where there's no P. T. A.
"But what was the fate of the one hoss shay?
"You've forgotten to tell us that, you say.
Well, it jogged along, year after year,
Without ever adding a modern idea;
Colts became horses, heads turned gray,
Children and grandchildren passed away,
But nothing changed in the one hoss shay.
"Then exactly a hundred years to a day,
It went to pieces, and there it lay.
"The poor old shay, in a heap or a mound,
As if it had been to the mill and ground
You see of course, if you're not a dunce,
Why it went to pieces, all at once,
All at once, and nothing first,
Just as bubbles do, when they burst."
"Twenty-six, seven, eight, and Convention day,
"All's well with our special, the P. T. A.
"For many years it has gone on it's way,
Without even a flavor of mild decay.
"There couldn't be, for the Congress art,
Has made it so strong in every part,
There wasn't a chance for such things to start,
For every year, some new interest is found,
And that keeps the Congress wheels turning around;
The home and the school have a closer relation,
New parents and children bring new inspiration.
"Now, is you've had fears, let this put them to rout—
It cannot break down, and it will not wear out.
"End of the tale of the one hoss shay—
But for us, just the close of a glorious day,
For in sunshine or shadow, at work or at play
Your love and your loyalty brighten the way.
"And, life has been fuller, and vision more true
Because we have travelled this highway with you.
"Then, here's to each member, forever and aye
Love bless you, fov crown you, long live P. T. A."

Club Women Departments In Meetings

Bible Group Hears Lecture, and Plans Completed for Bazaar by Physical Education Section. College View School Children Give Program at Orthopedic Hospital.

Forty-five attended the meeting of the Bible department of the Woman's club at the Y. W. C. A., Tuesday. Preceding the lecture Mrs. C. DeVriendt told of the bazaar plans.

The lecture by Prof. E. R. Lewis was on the teaching of Jesus and the training of the twelve. He showed how Jesus made use of brief, pithy sayings similar in form to the wisdom literature of the Old Testament. "He had great earnestness, idealism and spiritualism in his teaching, the Sermon on the Mount being a fine example of this," he said.

"The Year of Opposition" will be the lecture topic for the next Tuesday.

Attendants Appointed.

The physical education department of the Woman's club met Thursday morn ing at the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium. Plans were completed for the all-club bazaar, in December and the following committees for decorations, flowers and booth attendants were appointed:

Mrs. O. H. Perrin, Chairman pro. com. | Mrs. C. E. Abbott, member pro. com. | Mrs. George Coryell, Pres. Hall in the Grove | Mrs. C. O. Morgan, Sec. Hall in the Grove

A few of the officers and committee members of Hall In The Grove.

Modern Methods Step In for Hall In the Grove

One of Earliest Cultural Societies Comes to Parting of Ways and Old Methods of Study Dropped for the New Order. Change Is Made With Accompanying Growth in Membership.

Apparently, Hall In the Grove has come to the parting of the ways. In the years that have come and gone since the founding of the organization almost continuously a studied sameness has prevailed in the programs. Culture and uplift, as at present, has always prevailed. Now, however, the old order passeth and the new steps in, the majority of the membership preferring the more modern methods and programs, ways of handling the lessons. It fits in better with the present day, it is believed.

The new way is hailed with enthusiasm; it is accepted, encouraged and used, though it is with a feeling of regret that the old is laid aside, even if the new is preferred. As the little girl clings to her first rag doll, no matter if there is a beautiful bisque baby to take the place of the soiled, dilapidated old one, so does Hall in the Grove long for the old while accepting the new. But it must change to keep abreast of the times.

Reorganize Lessons.

Following this line of thought the program committee reorganized the lessons and now the members meet once a month or once in two months. The programs are both enlightening and cultural, with one topic instead of many for discussion. The work is thoroughly done and the preparation is not exacting.

The meeting opens with luncheon where good fellowship reigns, and joy and gladness are supreme. The problem to be discussed may be knotty but none are abashed; laughter and toasting are heard before attacking the brainy part of the day's business.

One evening, back in the fall of 1888, nearly 125 men and women, among them some of the most prominent people of the city, met at the old Commercial hotel. These folks had been meeting four years studying the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific reading course of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific society, headed by Dr. Vincent.

On the Charter List.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Imhoff were the host and hostess at the meeting. Beside these two the company included Mrs. Eva Calvert, Mrs. E. P. Rollins, Miss Phoebe Elliott, Mrs. Thomas Sewell, Mrs. Isaac Johnson, Mrs. M. D. Welch, Mrs. G. B. Chapman, Mrs. H. M. Bushnell, Mrs. W. J. Bryan, Mrs. M. H. Garten, Mrs. C. L. Hall, Mrs. Mary Marley, Mrs. A. M. Davis, Miss Mary Stevens, Mrs. T. H. Leavitt, Mrs. D. L. Anderson, Theodore Stevens, W. E. Hardy, H. M. Bushnell, W. J. Bryan, Judge C. L. Hall, Dr. F. S. Stein, A. L. Metcalf, Frank Smith, James Aitken.

The previous summer these people had received their diplomas as graduates of the C. L. S. C. and now they are gathered to complete the organization which Dr. Vincent planned as a graduate course to the other, to be called Hall In The Grove. The Lincoln Chautauqua circle had graduated twenty-five members to the circle, making that number of charter members.

Officers were elected and Mrs. M. H. Garten, who is still active in the organization, was chosen secretary. Meetings were held in the state capitol and some of the addresses by Mr. Bryan are still frequently recalled. Oftentimes the capacity of the room was taxed to accommodate the attendance.

In 1900 the circle started meeting in the afternoon and the men withdrew.

Bishop Vincent said the Hall In The Grove was commissioned to keep the Chautauqua spirt and associations alive and greet new members each year, "Not for self but for all."

For many years there was but one Chautauqua circle in Lincoln but as time went on the organization grew, and others took up the work. At the present time the Hellenic, Vincent, Victorian and Columbian are graduate circles; the Alexandrian, Emerson, Alethean and Philomethean are still regular circles.

They Are the Same.

The graduate circles are, in reality, the same as the Hall in the Grove, meeting less often than the others and having no fixed study schedule. They admit only members who are graduates of the C. L. S. C.

This last summer Hellenic circle was organized for beginners.

The present officers are:

Mrs. George Coryell, president.

Mrs. M. H. Garten, first vice president.

Mrs. R. J. Slater, second vice president.

Mrs. C. O. Morgan, secretary.

Mrs. A. B. Cole, treasurer.

Program committee, Mrs. Otto K.

Visual Education Discussed.

"Visual Education" was the subject on which superintendent M. C. Lefler addressed the Clinton Parent-Teacher association at the meeting Thursday evening at the school. Preceding this talk an informal reception for teachers was held in the kindergarten.

Miss Edna Koontz sang "When Daylight Goes." She was accompanied by Mrs. T. A. McClary. There was community singing led by Dr. G. H. Ball. Later in the evening a refreshment committee composed of Mrs. A. L. Koons, Mrs. T. A. McClary, and Miss Anna Smrha served a luncheon.

and a wholesome attitude toward life. Such work is true education —a joint partnership of the home, school, and community—a training not of the mind alone, but of every activity of the child. To realize this ideal we have found that the school cannot operate alone, unrelated to th home from which th child comes, or the community into which the child must fit himself in later life. WILL GLADLY ANSWER LETTERS FROM WOMEN

Asking for Information About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. GLADYS ROGERS
Route 5, Grand Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl about 14 years old, when I was just entering womanhood. Then after I married, I took more of it. During the time before my baby was born this medicine gave me splendid results. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation also and recommend these medicines to my friends and will answer letters asking about them."—Mrs. Gladys Rogers, Route 5, Grand Avenue, Atlanta, Georgia.

A Lot Better By Taking It

Trafford, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I could not eat a thing. I had no appetite whatever and never felt good. I was talking to my friend one day and she passed the remark of how thin I was getting since I got married and I told her my trouble and she advised me to take the Vegetable Compound. I feel a lot better now since I have been taking it regularly and I can eat most anything. I recommend your medicine to anyone who tells me of troubles like my own, for I know what it has done for me. I have also used your Sanative Wash. I am willing to answer women if they ask about the medicine."—Mrs. E. Gelatic, Box 502, Trafford, Pa

Better Homes Chairman

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., Nov. 24—Mrs. B. G. Miller of Crete has again been appointed local chairman for Better Homes in America for 1929. Mrs. Miller was very active in her work last year, the Crete exhibit of Better Homes being the foremost one in the state. It called forth much favorable comment from the thousands of people visiting the state fair. Miss Mary Ellen Brown, state chairman for Better Homes, complimented Mrs. Miller very highly for what she had accomplished in her one year of work.

Ball Opens Season At University

Affair Will Be Military But Is to Have a Feminine Background.

It is to be a military ball, but it is to have its feminine background. All the coeds in the halls of learning are a-flutter and a-gog over this brilliant event, which formally opens the social season at the university, because they are to stand shoulder to shoulder—sixteen of them that is—with the stalwart captains and care not if their period frocks are mixed with a shining sword or two.

The sponsors for the 1928 Military ball are Misses Gretchen Fee, Lincoln, Delta Delta Delta; Betty Campbell, Corning, Ia., Kappa Kappa Gamma; Ruth E. Beck, Broken Bow, Kappa Alpha Theta; Pauline Bilon, Columbus, Alpha Phi; Mary Dolan, Lincoln, Catherine Clapp, Lincoln, Kappa Alpha Theta; Thyra Johnson, Lincoln, Betty Thornton, Lincoln, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Lorraine Gamble, Knoxville, Ia., Delta Gamma; Eunice F. Gaskill, Nebraska City, Alpha Omicron Pi; Frances Farrens, Lincoln, Pi Beta Phi; Faye Williams, Omaha, Alpha Omicron Pi, Charlotte Joyce, Weeping Water, Mary Beard, Lincoln, Gamma Phi Beta; Hazel Carper, Nehawka, Chi Omega; Mary Corcoran, Los Angeles, Cal., Alpha Delta Pi.

Few Parties Planned By Fraternities

Alpha Tau Omega Fall Dance Will Be Held Wednesday.

With sorority and fraternity members hurrying home for holiday dinners there are few Lincoln parties on their calendars for this week. Those which are being held however, promise to be quite diverting.

* * *

A. T. O. Fall Party.

Alpha Tau Omega fraternity is planning a fall pary for two hundred couples Wednesday evening in the ballroom of the Lincoln hotel. Guests from out of town for the dance will be: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kincaid of Cheyenne, Wyo., Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Owen of Denver, Colo. and Richard Newman of Eugene, Ore. Chaperones for the affair will be Mr. and Mrs. Victor Z. Brink, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Snay, and Captain and Mrs. H. Y. Lyons.

Thanksgiving Party.

Elaborate decorations are being planned by Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity for its fall party Thursday evening at the Lincoln hotel. One hundred and seventy-five couples are expected to attend this dance. Couples who will chaperone this party are Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Dool, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Grone, and Mr. and Mrs Victor Z. Brink.

Plan House Party.

Zeta Beta Tau fraternity will entertain thirty couples at a dance at the chapter house Wednesday evening. Chaperones will be Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Katskee, and Dr. and Mrs. Aaron S. Speier.

Havelock Notes.

H. N. Densmore has been transferred from here to Gibbon, where he will be storekeeper for the Burlington. He will move his family there next week.

The W. B. A.'s met Wednesday afternoon at the Odd Fellows' hall. Mrs. Hal Smith was hostess.

Rev. E. B. Price and Mrs. Price of Republican City, were guests of Mrs. S. D. Smith and family Monday evening.

Miss Edna Frick returned from Denver Saturday and will spent the winter here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Frick.

Mrs. W. M. Rogers, of Casper, Wyo., is here with her daughter, Mrs. Louise Kreiger. She accompanied the body of her husband, which was brought here for interment. Mr. and Mrs. Kreiger were former Havelock residents.

Mrs. T. D. Condon entertained the Idle Hour bridge club Thursday afternoon at her home, 116 J street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ashman had as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hannah and Mrs. Tom Ashman of Des Moines.

Mrs. Frank Boehme left Tuesday for Campbell, Calif., where she will spend the winter with her daughter.

Miss Laverne Morgan entertained the Tri Merry Makers Thursday evening at her home, 1316 L street. A two-course luncheon was served after an evening of bridge.

Gay Parties Planned By Four Clubs

Mafa, Comus, Cotillion and Tuesday Night Groups To Give Dances.

Crowded into a week of festivities, dancing club parties are by no means unimportant and plans for them promise unusually gay affairs.

Cornstalks in the center of the floor, pumpkins, squashes, and turkeys will give a real Thanksgiving air to the Mafa club party Monday evening at the Rosewilde party house. Gobblers patterned in ice cream will be served for refreshments.

Fifty-five couples are expected to attend this dance. There will be three favor numbers. Those in charge of the party are: Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Krause, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Luedke, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wadlow, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Teal, Mr. and Mrs. L C Hanson, Mr and Mrs. M. A. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Easton, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beck, and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Titler.

COMUS DANCE WEDNESDAY

Thanksgiving in tone will be the dance of the Comus club Wednesday evening at the Lincoln hotel. After the dancing which will include two favor dances a lunch will be served. Thirty-five couples are planning to attend the party. Those who will be hosts and hostesses are. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sick, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hickman, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Burke.

PLAN COTILLION PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred DuTeau will lead the Cotillion party Wednesday evening at the Country club. The dance will be in the nature of a Thanksgiving party.

DINNER DANCE PLANNED

An interesting dinner dance is being planned for Tuesday evening by members of the Tuesday Night club at the Lincoln hotel. The decorations which wil be quite elaborate are being kept secret. Fifty-five members will attend the party which will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Couples who have planned the affair are: Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McGinnisi, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. John Burke, and Mr. C. L. Dort.

Programs of Social Clubs Diversified

Hostess at One Party Pours Tea; Luncheons Are Popular and Bridge and Theater Favored.

Over in Russia people who would a-teaing-go, would consume from ten to eighteen glasses, not dainty little thimblesful that are served at American teas, but tall plump glasses. Visitors in Russia say people there would simply pine away if their tea were taken away from them. They kee ptheir Russian samovars burning all day long, in or outside the house, and when they get thirsty they trip over to the samovar and pour themselves a cup of tea. When their friends come in about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon they must be sociable and offer them at least six or seven glasses of tea and before it is all over with the average individual may have accepted ten to eighteen glasses. Every Russian family, poor or rich, has its samovar and they are not used for decorative purposes either. But probably American women enjoy their tea just as much in their own way even though a hostess doesn't have to buy it wholesale if she plans a party. Tea time in England is a habit but in our country it is a novelty and a pleasure that we like now and then.

Mrs. D. A. Worcester entertained at tea at her home, 801 South Thirty-second street, Friday afternoon for the Teachers College Women's club. About twenty-five called during the afternoon which was enjoyed socially. Lavender and gold chrysanthemums graced the tea table and there were lavender tapers lighted. Mrs. Charles Fordyce poured. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. E. W. Lantz, Mrs. Claude Minteer and Mrs. Letta Clark. Mrs. A. A. Reed will entertain at her home, 1257 South Twenty-seventh street, Dec. 28.

Bide-A-Wee at Dinner.

Mrs. Pearl Brown entertained the Bide-A-Wee kensington members at her home, 502 North Twenty-sixth street, with a 6:30 o'clock dinner Friday. Covers for ten were placed at one table which was apopinted with yellow and white chrysanthemums in a large crystal basket. Mrs. Nelle Ewing will entertain the club at her home in Emerald the evening on Dec. 21.

Theater After Luncheon.

Mrs. Nick Paper was hostess to the J. O. C. club with a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Woodburn Saturday. The one table was placed for fourteen including the guests, Mrs. John Rosenstock and Mrs. Cam Fountain. Two bowls of pink roses, and candelabra with pink and purple candles, graced the table. A theater party was enjoyed by the guests after luncheon.

Hold Business Meeting.

The Lincoln Heights club met Wednesday for a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert Chase, 1219 Garver street. The hostess served a luncheon during the social hour which followed the business meeting. December 19, Mrs. F. W. Leavitt will entertain at her home, 1306 Butler avenue.

Happy Hollow Luncheon.

Mrs. William F. Splain, 1340 Plum street, entertained the Happy Hollow club Tuesday at her home. There were twelve present including as guests Mrs. Otto Stein and Mrs. P. James Cosgrave. Luncheon was served and yellow chrysanthemums appointed the single table.

Luncheon and Bridge.

The Hy-Lo bridge club members held a 1 o'clock luncheon Saturday at the Hotel Cornhusker. The one table was arranged for twelve. Garden flowers formed decorations and bridge was played.

PERSONALS

Jean Ellen Wochner celebrated her seventh birthday and was honor guest at a party given at her home at the state hospital Saturday. She invited as her guests the children in her class room from Yankee Hill school. They spent the afternoon in games.

Betrothals Three Girls Announced

Two Brides-elect Will Be Married Within Week and Third In December.

A most interesting trio of engagements intrigues the attention of society folk in this Thanksgiving week. Within seven days, platinum circlets and Lohengrin are to form a happy background for a couple of the brides-elect, and the third will vie for attention with the crimson holly berries and the frosted white of mistletoe.

Miss Mildred Wright, whose engagement is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wright of Washington, Kas., is to become the bride of M. F. Mullowney of Minneapolis, Monday in Lincoln. Miss Wright is a member of Alpha Delta Pi at Kansas Agricultural college. Mr. Mullowney will take his bride to Duluth to reside.

Quaint St. Anne's church of Annapolis will provide a lovely atmosphere for the marriage of Miss Anna Wright Ridgely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald H. Ridgely of Annapolis, and Frank H. Wirsig. The lines will be read at 6 o'clock on December 1. Mr. Wirsig, who is a graduate of the university, is a member of Alpha Tau Omega, and of Innocents. He was famed as a pole vaulter.

Judge and Mrs. E. B. Perry are today announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lila Fowler Perry, to Wilson M. Watkins, son of Frank Watkins of Lincoln. The wedding is to be a social event of late December. Miss Perry attended the University of Nebraska and is a graduate of the School of Domestic Arts and Sciences in Chicago. She is a member of Chapter K. P. E. O. Mr. Watkins, who also attended the university, is in the advertising department of the International Harvester company in Wichita, Kas.

Four Much Favored In Club Names

Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving Motif Prominent In Appointments At Tables of Groups That Met Past Week.

Black cats crossing one's path, and walking under ladders, spilling salt, and number thirteen will be avoided by woman, and man, as long as they see a star fall or a white horse down the street, or find four leaf clovers and pins, and beam when they draw a number seven. What superstititon one doesn't inherit is often acquired by hearing some one tell of theirs.

Perhaps the four leaf clover is the cause of it all, but the word four is a favorite in the names of social clubs.

The Triple Four club met Tuesday with Mrs. A. O. Mumma, 1805 Pawnee street, for 1 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. O. A. Hochreiter made high score at bridge. There were five guests: Mrs. W. P. Johnston, M. E. Hurbert, Mrs. R. O. Kindy, Mrs. L. E. Davis and Mrs. Kathryn Moore. Mrs. Roy Cleveland will entertain the club at her home, 856 South Thirty-sixth street, Dec. 4, in the afternoon.

Mrs. Mohrman to Entertain.

Mrs. Sherman Smith entertained with a 1 o'clock luncheon Thursday at her home, 1245 Garfield street, for the Four E's club. At bridge Mrs. Charles Mohrman made high score, and Mrs. A. H. Youman, consolation. Mrs. Mohrman will entertain the club at her home, 745 Marshall avenue, Dec. 4, in the afternoon.

To Give Tuesday Luncheon.

Mrs. Charles Helm entertained for the Two Fours club with a luncheon Tuesday at her home, 1984 Harwood street. The table had a mound of fruit for the centerpiece. The nutcups were miniature pumpkins at each cover, and tallies and luncheon appointments further emphasized the Thanksgiving idea. At bridge high score was made by Mrs. Harry Harris, and Mrs. C. H. Colonel Lindbergh has been friendly to both Elizabeth and her younger sister Anne.

Expression Regard for Mrs. Hall

Woman's Forum Approves Appreciation Declaring Deceased Member Tireless Worker for Organization.

The Lincoln Woman's Forum, meeting in the Y. W. C. A., approved the following appreciation and regard for Mrs. Hall, Friday: "We, the members of the Lincoln Woman's Forum deeply regret the passing of our member and friend, Mrs. Annie Reid Hall, the widow of the late Frank M. Hall.

The members of the Lincoln Woman's club can testify to the efficiency of Mrs. Hall and to her loyalty to and support of every good work of our community. She organized the music and dramatic departments of the Lincoln Woman's club during her second administration as president and has the distinction of being the only woman who was elected to the presidency of the club for two administrations.

Mrs. Annie Reid Hall was a resourceful, energetic and loyal worker, for bettering the interests of the University of Nebraska, the City Mission, the First Presbyterian church and institutions of the city. She will be missed by a host of friends.

Clubs Hope for Growth Aid Funds

Engage In Project to Project Natural Beauty and Give Greater Assistance To Girls In School.

The general Federation of Womens' clubs has for some years been active in a project for preserving beauty along the highways. Mrs. W. L. Lawton, chairman of the committee, was a recent speaker at the New York Conservation society, talking on the "Conservation of Rural Beauty."

Use Budget System.

The Business affairs of the Federation are conducted on a strictly business basis. Probably no organization trancasts as much business with as little capital. The budget system is used in apportioning convention expenses and other outputs.

The federation collects a fund of fifty cents per capita from approximately 15,000 members and collects interest on a time deposit of several hundred dollars. The organization also receives money from an endowment fund, created a number of years ago by the effort of Mrs. F. A. Long of Madison, chairman of the scholarship loan fund committee.

The state treasurer of the federation, Mrs. D. S. Hills of Aurora, keeps two accounts in the name of the federation, a general fund and a Nebraska Club Woman fund.

Endowment Fund.

The $10,000 permanent endowment fund of the Federation is invested in Liberty Argentine and Belgian bonds, with a small sum in the bank on interest. Previous to this year the entire sum was invested in Liberty bonds. As these bonds matured the money was reinvested.

The trustees paid the state treasurer $449.93, the largest sum ever received from this source.

Besides this there is an accumulating funds created from money raised above the $10,000 endowment.

This has been invested and allowed to accumulate, now amounting to $1,998.79. It is the plan to allow this to increase to $3,000 and then add it to the permanent fund.

The scholarship fund is used in aiding worthy young people in securing an education. In no case has the federation lost by default.

Jack LeMoyne Suhr, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Suhr was 2 years old Thursday, November 22. In honor of the event, he entertained seven little guests at a birthday party at his home, 2847 T street. A birthday cake with two candles, centered the luncheon table.

Chinese Party Is Novelty

Hostess Shows Originality By Declining to Use Thanksgiving Motif.

There is nothing quite so original as having a Chinese party for one's friends when all the rest of the world is having Thanksgiving parties by the score. When one expects the rooms to be smothered with pumpkins and cornstalks it is quite delightful to find instead a Chinese interior with gay colored lanterns giving the rooms a festive appearance.

Mrs. Clarence Penton entertained members of the Tuesday Luncheon bridge club with an informal luncheon at her home, 5211 Cleveland Avenue, Tuesday. The luncheon table was attractive with a centerpiece composed of tiny lanterns and place cards in Chinese motifs at each cover. The living rooms were appointed with huge clusters of 'mums in rose shades. Bridge tallies also carried out the Chinese idea. The hostess served a luncheon consisting of Chinese foods. There were eight guests who enjoyed the afternoon with bridge, Mrs. M. J. Blish making high score. Mrs. Blish was the only guest. December 4 Mrs. George Wood will entertain at her home, 1724 South Twenty-second street, with a 1 o'clock luncheon.

P. T. A. Will Give Novel Size Social

A "Size Social" is the novel event planned by the Pleasant View Parent-Teacher association of district No. 76 for Wednesday evening.

Children's reading was discussed at the regular meeting of the Pleasant View Parent-Teacher association Friday evening at the school. After the talks, arrangements were made for placing a traveling library in the school room.

Community singing, games, and refreshments completed themeeting.

Recreation Discussed.

"Recreation for Children's was the subject of a talk given at the West Lincoln Parent-Teacher association meeting Friday evening in the school. After the business session, there was a dialogue by the seventh and eighth grades, a recitation by the pupils of the primary grades, a song by Ruth Monasmith, a dancing contest by June Gray and Evelyn Wilson, and reading by Verna Umberger.

A mandolin orchestra furnished music. Later there was community singing. Refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. J. L. Witmer and Mrs. A. J. Witmer.

Officers Essential To Clubs

Social Groups All Find Set Officials Needed; Sojourners Elect.

If one would a-clubbing go, one must a-voting go. For if one has a club, one must have a president, and a treasurer and a patoent secretary to arrange meetings, programs, assess and then collect the dues. A social club in this modern red-tape era without officers is about as efficient as a department store without an office force.

The Sojourners club at its Monday afternoon meeting held with Mrs. Elizabeth McLeod at her home, 1700 Washington street, elected Miss Clara Snyder, president; Sadie Dean, treasurer; and Ada Tucker, secretary. Following the business meeting the hostess served refreshments at small tables. A variety of chrysanthemum blooms decorated the rooms. The remainder of the afternoon was enjoyed with seweing for the bazaar to be held the first week in December. The next regular meeting will be with Miss Blanche Brungard, 1401 South Twelfth street, December 17.

Theta Rho Entertained.

Miss Evelyn Soukup entertained at her home, 2612 Lafayette avenue, Monday evening at 8 o'clock for members of Theta Rho. There were thirty-five present including as guests Mrs. H. C. Saunders and daughter, Lucille, and Paul Grant. Evening hours were devoted to games after which refreshments were enjoyed. Yellow carnations centered the tables and other appointments were in Thanksgiving ideas.

Mrs. Cox Is Hostess.

Mrs. Frank Cox presided at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Lincoln hotel Monday for members of the Monday Bridge club. Twelve guests were at one table made attractive with gold and bronze pompoms in a large silver basket and with bronze tapers in silver holders at either end. Nutcups were in bronze shades. The after-luncheon hours were spent with bridge. December 3 Mrs. Will Daily will be hostess at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Lincoln hotel.

Two Parties For Club.

The Happy Hollow bridge club members were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Al Busch at their home, 1403 North Twenty-seventh street Wednesday evening of last week. There were three tables of bridge, Mr. and Mrs. Saunder Snyder making high score and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Betz low score. Luncheon was served at a late hour. Six couples attended the party. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Heffley entertained club members with a Thanksgiving party November 20 at their home, 2811 South Eleventh street. Twelve guests attended and spent the evening with bridge. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders Schneider making high scores and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Betz the low. The hostess served a two-course luncheon at small tables which were brightened with vases of dark red roses. On December 4 in the evening Mr. and Mrs. John Hoehne will entertain at their home, 3011 Ryons street.

Dinner Held By Church Club.

"Ambassador's March," played by the school orchestra opened the assembly at Irving junior high school Wednesday morning. This was followed by a group of games played by the ninth grade girls directed by Miss Mildred Ryan.

Household arts classes gave original songs and verses pertaining to clothing and foods. Eight girls gave a Highland Scotch folk dance which was followed by a group of tumbling acts by one of the gym classes.

The orchestra played "The Dancing Doll," and Zella Owens recited "L'Envoi." "Artograms," a play was given under the direction of Miss Laura Harris. Parts were played by Madeline Hagerty, Flora Albin, Patricia McGeer, Douglas Dort and Harold Bookstrom.

Bethany Club Has Program Negro Music

The music department of the Bethany Woman's club met Tuesday in Bates hall. Mrs. E. R. Priel had charge of the program. A paper on current events was read by Mrs. Roy Kohler and the study of negro music was given by Mrs. Ruth Van Derzee McWilliams who presented a paper the reading of which was interspersed with groups of spirituals and jubilee songs by a quartet composed of Harrison Miller, tenor; Mrs. Pearl Crisman, soprano; Mrs. Jean Edwards, contralto; J. W. Bedell, bass.

Mrs. McWilliams gave two piano selections, by Coleridge Taylor. "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child," and "Bamboula, African Dance."

The songs used were "Steal Away" "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've seen." "Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," by the quartet.

Tenor solo, "Deep River," Mr. Miller.

"Its Me, Its Me, Its Me, O Lord," "Listen to de Lambs," "Somebody's Knocking at Yo' Door." "Every Time I Feel De Spirit." by quartet.

Brides-to-be Inspiration for Parties

Although Thanksgiving affairs are paramount this week, December brides are holding their own and several attractive affairs are being given to honor them.

Miss Lila Perry whose engagement to Wilson M. Watkins was announced last week will be entertained at a shower Tuesday evening by Miss Evangeline Fleetwood at her home, 2005 Ryons. Sixteen guests have been invited for the evening which will be spent playing bridge. The nature of the shower is to be a surprise.

Another bride-to-be who is the inspiration for social affairs is Miss Leona Heidtbrink whose engagement to Joe Johnson was announced recently. On Sunday Miss Laura Wang of Malcolm was hostess at a family dinner at her home to honor Miss Heidtbrink and Mr. Johnson. There were six guests.

Miss Heidtbrink's sister, Mrs. Clarence Garber of Malcolm, is planning a dinner for Thanksgiving day to honor Miss Heidtbrink.

Mrs. Harold Hutchinson, before her recent marriage in Chicago, was Miss Antoinette Beall of Omaha. She attended the University of Nebraska and was a member of Delta Delta Delta.

A holiday guest in Lincoln is Mrs. Monroe Davis Gleason of Evanston, Ill. She is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Raymond.

Mrs. Charles Malamuth, more familiarly known as Miss Joan London, was a guest in the city during the last week. She spoke at a meeting of the Thursday Morning Lecture circle.

Heard a Lady Say

"THE Pictures I had taken of the baby at Hauck's studio are the best I've ever seen." You'll say that too if you're wise and have your Christmas photos taken there.

Gifts From Every Corner of the Globe

ARE assembled on the main floor of Gold's. Although the Keynote of these varied things is the popular price, still you'll note the individuality of each clever piece of bric-a-brac. Colored earthen pitchers and cookie jars artistically decorated in bright painted hollyhocks would be a nice suggestion for some housewife. Novelty cigaret containers and ash-trays of bronze and brass make ideal inexpensive gifts for men; Gay bridge accessories and table numbers make charming tokens for the busy hostess. There is no age or taste that cannot be supplied with unusual gifts in this huge department where tables and tables have been devoted to the showing of these and especially you'll enjoy the extremely convenient place to shop as well as the nice prices.

Lee Todd

LINCOLN'S well known haircutter is now located in the beauty shop at Ben Simons and Sons., and you'll be interested in knowing the extremely low prices they're offering, ladies hair-cut and ends of hair curled for fifty cents. Children's hair cut thirty-five cents; with curl sixty cents. Phone them for appointments.

The Real Secret

OF BODILY beauty is a well-groomed figure. There is a certain magnetic power and appeal that charms the personality of a well groomed figure. A well groomed figure is richly beautiful, is socially esteemed; is teeming with vigorous health and personality. Women are entitled to a well-groomed figure, but they can't get it without following a scientific system created by experts in figure-grooming. That is what the Champe's system of body culture guarantees. One months course only $15.00. We are reducing and building up others, why not you? Free demonstration without obligation. These Next Three Days

BEFORE Thanksgiving will be spent assembling smart togs to wear to the Thanksgiving game. How nice that these should be the days chosen for the big hat sale at the Famous. Lovely soliel, velvets, felts, velours, and metalics are included at prices of $1.65 to $5.65. These hats were formerly selling from three to fifteen dollars.

DON'T mind asking my help on your Christmas shopping worries, that's my job and I like to do it. My services are absolutely free and it takes only a small amount of my time and might save you hours of worry. Write me telling me in detail just what you want and send checque if you have no charge account.

MODERN EVE.

Because You Love Nice Things

AND are not fond of spending a lot of money to obtain them let me direct you to Harris-Goars where quality and low price are combined to make shopping in this store an especial pleasure. An unusually large space has been given over to the jewelry section where beautiful hand tooled leather bags, diamonds, watches, men's cameos, and tiger-eye stone rings are selling now for Christmas gift giving. By buying now I mean selecting now and making the payments at your own convenience, for this is the store popular for the slogan "credit with a smile." It's a fine way for wives with limited Christmas allowances to stretch the payments until after Christmas.

The Gift for Hubby

HAS long been a source of worry to many wives. My suggestion is a nice tailor-made shirt. The Nelson Shirt Co. make shirts to their exact measure. There is nothing so annoying to the fastidious male as an illfitting shirt and you might as well give him nothing as to give him one that does not fit. That is the beauty of the Nelson made shirts. They fit to a T. Have hubby go in and let their experts get his measure, for it is almost impossible to do that correctly yourself. Prices from $3.50 up.

In a group of fabric slippers, crepe de Chine assumes considerable importance. In addition to white-to-be-dyed to match the costume, it attracts interest in printed versions.

Ensemble Promoted in Prints

SHOES of these types will be matched by handbags, promoting the ensemble idea that a number of manufacturers promise to exploit in two to four matching accessories. Other interesting crepe de Chine slippers include embroidered models, and those decorated by hand with oils in swirling multicolored designs.

Orkins Is the Place

TO SHOP for your Christmas lingerie. Take a look at the exquisite types shown in the new case just outside of the door, look closely at the gorgeous materials used, then step inside and get their extremely low prices on each. I was amazed when I discovered shimmering crepe satin teddies selling for as low as three dollars. Divine cup-shaped brassieres with shorties to match the pastel shades and fashioned with fine laces. Then there are nighties and step-ins too. Their Christmas stock of blue-moon hose almost took my breath away. You know there are two hundred boxes of these awaiting Christmas selection. They don't buy these hose by the pair, but by the box.

Mrs. Champe Says:

THE Ridnour Beauty Shop is giving re-waves of guaranteed beauty and lustre-with perfect results every time. No need to wait for the old wave to grow out. No need to have it cut off. With the new Frederic's combination heaters we can rewave your hair any time —at any stage of your permanent. The price for the complete permanent is always $5.00. Expert operators. All work personally supervised by Mrs. Champe. Ridnour's Beauty Shop, 10th and O Streets, Phone B6871.

Red and Blue for Evening

INCRUSTATION of lace motifs into chiffon is another fabric novelty.

For evening, light dresses of georgette are shown in clear red or one of the richer medium blues such as sapphire, made with scarf treatments, with fulness inserted by incrustations and with an occasional motif of jewelry to hold a scarf or other drapery.

A few dresses of black satin are shown. This is a fabric which is much in use for afternoon. Still other evening frocks are composed of black chiffon and black lace, the chiffon worked with fine tuckings in lingerie fashion.

Champe Says:

THERE are only two methods of permanent waving, we use them both in our shop. But it is not the method nor the machine used, nor the price you pay that assures you a beautiful and lasting permanent, but rather the skill and knowledge of your operator. Today there is no reason for paying more than $5.00 for your permanent. The material used in giving you a permanent wave does not cost more if you pay $5.00 or $25.00 for it.

The cost today of all permanent waves is labor, overhead expense and a fair profit. Champe believes in a small profit and large volume rather than large profit and small volume. 300,000 women in the middle west testify, Champes do better permanent waving yet charge you less—satisfied customers have made this large volume possible—Listen in over WAAW, Omaha each Tuesday and Friday at 2 p. m., and learn how you may receive a Free permanent wave. Champe's Beauty Shop, 1229 N Street, (upstairs).

Now Is the Time

TO GO ahead and have that favorite chair of mother's or dad's re-upholstered for Christmas, especially since georgeous pieces of fine damask, chintzes and tapestries of sample length go on sale at Vance and Holm's tomorrow and lasts all week. There is from forty to fifty per cent saving on each piece and remember, each piece is of a nice useable length. Many Christmas pillows and exquisite table covers will be made from these. A good idea would be to select your piece at this sale and then have Vance and Holm do the making for you.

Select Your Evening Slippers at Magees

AND have all your evenings a howling success. There's nothing like beautiful foot-wear to give one the comforting assurance of being well-dressed in every detail. I was especially impressed with the silver and gold brocaded models. Then there are those of gold and silver kid as well as black satin and white satin for dyeing the shade of your dress. The price range on these are from ten fifty to sixteen fifty.

Lou Holden's Russian Dressing

IS FINE for fish and game as well as in salads. Order your Thanksgiving supply now from your grocer.

* * *

FROM now on you can save your mind the grief of trying to think up unique presents. This department will confine its chat to the needs of the season—gifts of all kinds — artistic gifts, capably described, and yet with an underlying vein of interest for the economical buyer and the bargain seeker.

The merchants who give you their message here are daily combing wholesale markets for new articles to intrigue you.

MODERN EVE.

Evening frocks are again given to the irregular hemline.

* * *

The most arresting silhouette for evening appears in the type with sheathlike front, with fulness introduced at the back, placed low.

* * *

Princess lines are in good standing.

* * *

Bead embroideries are mentioned, more frequently than strass.

* * *

The ensemble ranks important, but the showing of dresses separately chiefly of the afternoon type in georgette or chiffon, is significant.

* * *

Low-placed fulness is the distinguishing feature of the new silhouette. In soft dress types, godets or circular cuts achieve this effect, while in sportswear, pleats that are released to within about a foot above the hemline create the same silhouette.

* * *

Back fulness is aproved, both for day and evening

* * *

Loose panels contribute in the development of the animated skirt, which is otherwise a matter of marked circular cut.

* * *

The waistline is established at the top of the hips, or even above.

Hobby of Lincoln Woman Is Raising Rare Specimens of Fish Brought From Tropics

Raising rare tropical fish in Nebraska is a hobby!

It is the unique hobby of Mrs. H. A. Fortney, who raises imported fish that are natives of tropical waters, at her home, 3644 A street. Not only has she the largest collection of imported fish in Nebraska but she also has many different kinds of snails and aquarium plants. Her collection is housed in forty-seven separate aquariums containing more than a thousand living specimens.

"Most interesting among the fish is the Paradise, a native of India," Mrs. Fortney told an inquiring reporter. She continued they grow to be nearly three inches long, and during the mating season takes on an iridescent and apparently ever changing coat of bluish green with very distinct markings of red, orange, gray and black. Just as the bird of Paradise is the most beautiful of all birds, this fish is the king of all fish.

Nest Made of Bubbles.

"The Paradise fish's manner of keeping house, is an unusual source of interest," Mrs. Fortney says. "In the spring and summer it builds a nest of small bubbles, often covering a fourth of the aquarium surface. After the nest is finished, which some times takes several days, the male will drive the female under the nest and force her to deposit her eggs in it. I then have to remove the mother and leave the daddy in charge of the babies. If I did not, the mother would fail to recognize her young and eat them." Mrs. Fortney has raised over one hundred and fifty of these fish during the summer.

"My fish may be grouped into classes.' Mrs. Fortney said, "those that lay eggs and those that are live-bearing which are the more unusual." In her collections she has a dozen or more different kinds of live-bearing fish which give birth to young the year around. In this category is the mosquito fish—the smallest live-bearing fish in the world.

The most fascinating fish in the group are the Mexican sword tails. They are the size of the average goldfish and have a sword-like tail one-third the length of its body. A red stripe from the eye to the base of the tail, which is orange trimmed in black, makes this fish one of the most exquisite and flashy colored in the aquarium.

Require Too Much Water.

When asked why she did not include the common goldfish in her collection Mrs. Fortney said: "They require too much care and you cannot have a water garden in a goldfish aquarium. Goldfish need more water per inch of fish and will not live in crowded places. I have over a hundred fish in one aquarium holding only twenty-five gallons of water." This is also true of the fish native to Nebraska waters.

There are about four hundred different kinds of tropical fish commonly kept in aquariums by American aquarits. Mrs. Fortney is constantly adding new specimens to her collection which is now considered the largest in the state, and many Lincoln nature lovers have become interested in her hobby. In the east, aquarium lovers have formed societies and are importing fish from foreign waters. Fish bobbies have not, as yet, become the vogue in the middle west, although water gardens and pools are rapidly becomnig popular.

One aquarium in particular attracts the attention of the many visitors to this private fishery. It is a tweny-five gallon affair and contains about two hundred specimens living happily together. The bottom is covered with gravel which gives it a rustic appearance much as one would expect to see on the ocean floor. This aquarium might be thought of as a world within a world. There are just enough water animals to furnish the proper amount of carbon dioxide for the plants and a sufficient number of plants to furnish the needed amount of oxygen for the animals. A relationship such as this in an aquarium is called balance—a condition much sought after by amateur aquarits as the water never need be changed, according to Mrs. Fortney.

Snails Keep House Clean.

Snails, acting as scavengers, do there part to keep the aquarium in order. "Snails in themselves, are a hobby," Mrs. Fortney says. "No two of the seven different kinds I have are alike in their habits. Some lay there eggs on the glass sides of the aquarium or on the plants, and some on the plants growing up and out of the water. Then, there are some that do not lay eggs at all but give birth to living young."

Children as well as many grown-ups are well aquainted with Mrs. Fortney and delight in having her tell about her fish and the queer things they do. Her large pool and propagation tanks in the yard also interest visitors during the summer months. When asked if she enjoyed having the visitors and telling them of her fish she replied that they were always welcome.

New Chapter D. A. R.

In Franklin, Neb., Friday, Nov. 16 Mrs. York A. Hinman of North Platte, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, met with Franklin County ladies interested in organizing a D. A. R. chapter.

The meeting was at the home of Mrs. D. C. Benedict and instruction was given bf Mrs. Hinman.

After luncheon at the Lincoln hotel the afternoon was spent in the informal organization. The gavel used was given to Mrs. Hinman at Fairmont just before coming to Franklin. It was presented to the Nebraska society by Lewis H. Badger of Fairmont. The gavel was made from cotton wood bark from the largest tree in Nebraska, on the farm of L. H. Badger in Fillmore county. The circumference of the tree is more than 19 feet, five feet above the ground.

The twelve forming the chapter were: Mrs. Mae Benedict, Mrs. Marjorie Clopine, Mrs. Namie Humphreys, Mrs. Mary Porter, Miss Annie Porter, Mrs. Ella Sprout, Mrs. Jennie Whitmore, Miss Inez Kent, Boise, Ida.; Mrs. Gladys Walker, Lincoln, Neb.; Miss Virginia Caldwell, Guide Rock; Mrs. Mary Patterson, Bloomington, Neb.; Miss Suth Douglas.

The organizing members were: Mrs. Mary Patterson, Mrs. Mary Porter, Mrs. Mamie Humphreys, Mrs. Marjorie Clopine, Mrs. Jennie Whitmore, Mrs. Mae Benedict, Miss Annie Porter.

Those bringing transfers from other chapters: Mrs. Carrie Hevner, Franklin, Neb.; Mrs. Ruth Wilmet, Naponee, Neb.; Mrs. Mattie Shepherdson, Riverton, Neb.

The officers elected and installed: Regent, Mrs. Mary Patterson; first vice regent, Mrs. Mary Porter; second vice regent, Mrs. Ella Sprout; recording secretary, Miss Annie Porter; treasurer, Mrs. Jennie Whitmore; registrar, Mrs. Mae Benedict; historian, Mrs. Marjorie Clopine; chaplain, Mrs. Mamie Humphreys.

Chapter Guest Day.

The annual guest day of the Elijah Gove chapter D. A. R. at Stromsburg, was held Tuesday evening and each member was privileged to bring a friend. The meeting was well attended.

Mrs. York Hinman of North Platte, state regent, was present and talked on D. A. R. activities. She was followed by Mrs. Adam McMullen of Lincoln, vice state regent and the wife of the governor.

Mrs. C. S. Paine of Lincoln, vice president general for Nebraska, also spoke, and there was a dinner and music. Mrs. J. C. Malster, regent of Elijah Gove chapter, presided. The Lincoln and David City ladies were guests of Mrs. J. A. Westenius.

Doane College Notes

A number of representatives of the college were out in the churches Sunday, November 18, conducting Doane day programs. Mr. Korab accompanied by Miss Dorothy Mansfield, and Ruth and Millard Taylor, were with the church at Arlington for the morning service; President Dean, with Mr. Kettering and the Misses Marie Grosshans and Kathryn Palmer, were at Blair; and Mr. Taylor gave the special address in the church at David City. Mr. Burlingame conducted the morning services at the church in Liberty.

The following changes of address of Doane alumni will be of interest to some: Lieut. S. L. Mains, jr., '22, Fort Robinson, Neb.; Miss Alice Anderson, 500 Delaware S. E., Riverview, apartment No. 106, Minneappolis, Minn., and Miss Aletha Jean Daniels, '25, Blue Hill, Neb.

The chapel address Wednesday morning, November 21, was by Mr. H. S. Thorpe of Lincoln, a member of the state board of control. Mr. Thorpe described his experiences as an apprentice in a two-year sea voyage in an old fashioned sailing vessel.

Skating Party Is Planned

Variety Girls Planning Novel Entertainment at Next Gathering.

It is not every dignified social club and kensington that goes in for such strenuous activities as roller skating. An afternoon of cards often seems a big day's work for women who play their bridge or five hundred with that seriousness and science that keep more casual and happy-go-lucky players on their toes the whole afternoon. But to go a-roller-kating is almost as exciting as for the Prince of Wales to a-riding-go.

The Variety Girls are ever faithful to their name and have planned a roller skating party to be held soon. They met Monday evening for their regular semi-monthly meeting at the home of Miss Dorothy Dillon, 828 South Thirthieth street. It was in the nature of a business meeting. Refreshments were served at the close. Miss Dorothy Feather will entertain at her home, 2100 Calvert street., at the next meeting. During the past week the club held a theater party in honor of the birthday of Miss Irene Stickles.

Laf-A-Lot Club Meets.

Miss Cecile Shephard entertained Laf-A-Lot club members Wednesday evening at her home 654 North Twenty-fourth street. There were four tables of bridge and Miss Alma Wagner received the first prize. Miss Amy Soderberg received the guest prize and Miss Marian Kirshner received the low score prize. A one-course luncheon was served at small tables. Garden chrysanthemums in a variety of colors formed decorations. Miss Ruby Loper will entertain the evening of December 5 at her home, 332 Floral court.

Mrs. Allen Entertains.

The Lennox club met with Mrs. George Allen at her home, 4219 Lennox street, Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of fourteen. Mrs. Frank Eddy was a guest. The hours were pleasantly spent with Thanksgiving games an dcontests in which Mrs. G. M. Clark won the first prize, Mrs. E. T. Lintt the consolation and Mrs. Eddy the guest prize. The hostess served a buffet luncheon. Mrs. James Edwards will entertain at her home, 4312 M street, December 19 in the afternoon.

Iversons Are Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Iverson entertained the Imperial Bridge club members at their home, 857 South Thirty-fifth street, Wednesday evening. There were five tables of bridge at which W. O. Villott and Mrs C. W. Hoke made high scores. Luncheon was served the guests during the evening.

Thanksgiving Decorations.

Shades of orange and Thanksgiving motifs made attractive the informal afternoon party Wednesday for the Octavia bridge club at which Mrs. William Vidlock presided as hostess at her home, 714 Elmwood avenue. Mrs. W. H. Pfeiff and Mrs. Arthur J. Anderson were the only guests. High scores were made by Mrs. George Vlasnik and Mrs. George Saville. The hostess served a two-course luncheon and decorated the table with orange tapers in crystal holders and all other table and bridge appointments carried out the Thanksgiving idea. Mrs. J. B. Cloyd will entertain the afternoon of December 5 at her home, 2656 South Thirteenth street.

Guests of Mrs. Worrest.

The Silver Crescent club members were guests of Mrs. C. S. Worrest at her home, 1235 South Twenty-sixth street, Wednesday. The time was devoted to games, Mrs. Ray Pauley and Mrs. W. A. Clark winning the prizes. Mrs. T. H. Cromwell was a guest. Seven members were present. The hostess used turkey silhouettes on the walls of the rooms and other similar Thanksgiving motifs in luncheon appointments. Mrs. Robert Kennedy will entertain the club December 5 at her home, 2101 N street in Havelock.

Havelock Notes.

The Central Lancaster County Farmers club held its monthly meeting Wednesday at the Methodist church. The November group entertained with Howard Jameson in charge. A short program followed a dinner. Frank Feddalar sang a number of solos and Richard O. Johnson spoke on the value of co-operation between the farmers and townspeople. Miss Eleanor Lee of New York sang several solos. New members of the club are Roy Headrick, Volney Headrick, J. L. Wilks, R. Mitchell, Frank Golden and Minta Schmidt.

Miss Charlotte Sich of the high school history department won first prize for the best book week display consisted of American and European history relics.

The general P. T. A. meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium. The topic to be discussed will be "Obedience." The phase of the discussion will be, "Need of Obedience in Our Modern Complex Society," led by Superintendent Flory. The meeting will be open for general discussion.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

The Mother Who Bores Her Friends with Constant Conversations About the Wonders of Her Children Is An "Unloader" — A Mothers' Club Sometimes Effects a Cure—A Man's Dinner and the Atmosphere Thereof Is of Prime Importance In His Life.

One-Way Conversation.

"Unloaders" is the delicious name which H. A. Overstreet, a most discerning psychologist, gives the type of person described in the following letter. These "unloaders" come in many varieties. There is the middle-aged lady who recites an interminable legend about her own ailments and the man who insists one telling you how he broke ninety at golf. In the letter below, the type of "unloader" considered is the elder who is determined to unload stories of her children to the exclusion of everything else.

Dear Minerva: I have a very dearly beloved sister who is married and has two lovely children. They are lovely children, I grant that, with enthusiasm. But Minerva, my sister makes a bore of herself, tires all her friends and relatives almost to the point of violence with her constant relating of the cunningness of those children.

We belong to the same bridge club. The rest of the girls have children but they are not such perfect idiots over them. The girls don't say much before me, but I know they complain about her and I see them exchange glances when she gets off on the children which is every time she opens her mouth. They try to shoo her off on some other subject, but no use. It is a positive mania with her. We have talked it over at home, but we are stumped. We don't know what to do with her. Have you any suggestions.

She is an adorable girl, has a good mind, and used to be so entertaining and witty. But now days all she has to say is along the line of, "Junior said the cutest thing this morning," or "you should have seen Dorothy go after that cake of soap this morning," meanwhile interrupting some attempt at worthwhile conversation or trumping her partner's trick.

This may sound trivial to you, but to me it's a form of going to seed and a mighty annoying one and I'd like to do something about it, if possible. Mary.

A. This fond mother is the type of person that all of us sorrowfully recognize, the type of person who insists on doing all the talking and that about but one subject. For such mothers, conversation is like a narrow side street; one-way traffic exits only.

For some reason all types of the so-called "unloaders" assume the other person will be overwhelmingly absorbed in what they are saying. They never bother to find out whether he is or not. That's the unloader's technique. Their entire concern is solely with their subject in hand—in the case of your sister, with her children. They never regard conversation as an occasion for exchanging ideas of interest. To them it's merely a golden opportunity to inflict upon another hapless victim the supposedly brilliant exploits of their own hopefuls.

The best place for your unloading sister is a mother's study club. If you can get her into some such club, she can work a lot of that out of her system. The Child Welfare Magazine (the national Parent-Teacher association house organ) devotes several pages each month to "Parental Education Courses," and suggests how mothers can unload their troubles and joys systematically, how those who have nothing to unload because they are not tongue-gifted or afflicted, can learn of the problems of other mothers, and how both groups can help one another.

A Slacker.

Dear Minerva: I am a married man; have been married about four years and I have reached the end of my patience and am coming to you for advice. My wife is as pretty and coy as you could imagine, but we simply do not get along together. Before we were married and even for a long time afterward I tried to do everything in my power to please her and to make her happy. At night when I come home from work and am tired and hungry she says that she has been too busy to plan supper and asks me what I want to eat. Sometimes I suggest something and she goes to the neighborhood grocery and buys a few cans of food and heats them up on the stove. But frankly, Minerva, I get very tired of coming home every night and suggesting things for supper. What I seem to crave is to come home and find supper cooked and ready to eat.

Now I may be in the wrong, but it seems that my wife is shirking her duty. I work hard all day and of course she has the house to keep up and all that; but it is my opinion that a wife should plan the meals and cook them. If I were a rich man I would be glad to hire servants and all that, but I am not a rich man and my wife knew that when we were married.

She goes to a picture show nearly every afternoon and seldom gets home before I do, that is, only a few minutes before I do. We have no children and I honestly don't think she has to work very hard to keep house for just the two of us. Now, Minerva, please tell me what you think I should do. As I said before, she is very pretty and sometimes is awfully sweet to me, but never the less, I do not think she is treating me right.—Troubled Husband.

A. Your wife isn't doing her part. That is certain. Have you tried explaining the situation to her, reasonably and carefully, as you have explained it to me? If she doesn't react to that, you might try going back down town for your dinners on such nights that she made no preparations for you, with no excuse greater than late attendance at a moving picture show. I haven't much patience with cheaters and I think the wife a cheat who plays all day and fails to provide a comfortable atmosphere and attractive meal for the husband who has been working hard for her all day. She is doubtless just thoughtless. But a jolt as I suggest might cause her to ponder. And change her ways.

Friendship or Pride.

Dear Minerva: My cousin and I chum together. We have little quarrels, but always make up. She seems to think she should always have her own way and I can't agree with that. She is the sweetest girl if she wants to be, but she can be awfully mean.

We are angry now because I wouldn't let her have her way. I always have made up before, so should I do it again? Girl of Twelve.

A. I live the idea of making up with people if you value their friendship more than you do your pride. But there comes a time when friendship's traffic officer must hold up a sign and say "Stop." Your friend must proceed with extreme caution, otherwise friendship's road will be closed.

Causes of Truancy.

Dear Minerva: How can you account for an otherwie tractaoe child playing truant from school. My boy is the fourth grade in school and ever since he started to school he has had spells of playing truant. M. L.

A. There are many causes for truancy. Discouragement over school work, Parental indifference. Failure of parents to co-operate with school and to check up on the child's school work. Feeling on the part of the child that the teacher is down on him. Wanderlust. The failure of the teacher or the school or both to attract the child.

I would judge that wanderlust—a natural wandering spirit—is at fault with your youngster, since it is a chronic or periodic state with him. Perhaps you can counteract it through giving him the privilege of little adventure expeditions by himself on vacation days.

The Employer's Right.

Dear Minerva: There is a group of girls back of this letter who wish your advice. Our employer does not allow any personal calls, coming in or going out, believing we are too young to have any relations with persons of the opposite sex. We have a half-hour lunch period, during which business is not rushing, and as we have several phones and maintain a switchboard we do not interfere with business. What is your opinion.

A. It is your parents' business and not your employers' whether or not you are too young for boy friends. However it is his business that you are helping manage and not your own affairs during office hours. It is privilege to prevent personal calls. During your lunch hour, go outside, spend your nickels and make your dates, if it is with the consent of your parents.

Land Barons Caused War, Says Wesleyan Professor, Ex-Consul At Strassburg

BY LULU MAE COE.

"Who won the war?" is still a question for lively debate.

"Who started the war?" is generally agreed upon with remarkable unanimity.

Prof. L. W. McDrmott, head of the business administration and economics department of Nebraska Wesleyan for the last two years, disagrees with the popular theory. He spent a couple of years as American consul in Strassburg, Alsace-Lorraine, just previous to the war, and thinks the kaiser overrated as the person causing the world's great war.

In Mr., McDermott's estimation Prussian land barons, the old guard, were the actuating force of the march into Belgium and the cataclysmic events of the following four years. The very small, but very powerful, inner circle of that most powerful and populous state of the German federation, Prussia in its greed for wealth and power was responsible for a war involving most of the world.

Nine Land Barons.

Nine land barons of Prussia held among them 25,000,000 acres of land, about one-quarter of the empire. Their land holdings and their power were too limited to satisfy insatiable ambition, and the loss of a million lives, millions in property, irreplaceable age-old beauty and art, international trust, and honor meant nothing could the country and they gain greater holdings and prestige.

The greatest land holders of the Fatherland, they wanted more lands. Larger territory meant a greater variety of products of the ships of the companies in which they were large share holders, increased tonnage for those ships, larger revenues, other and newer countries turning to Germany for commerce by sea and by land.

The kaiser was not opposed to the idea. Egotistical, the tales of broader and richer empires under his control were not unsavory to his ears. As the old guard gained in wealth, he gained in power, and the plan was pleasing.

No one in Germany believed the ex-kaiser the man responsible for the war. The Prussian land barons were strong enough to dictate the policies of the throne. While not averse to the idea of a bigger and better Germany, even though he probably knew something of the cost, it was the nine men behind the throne who directed the man who sat there and who were the real causes of the World war.

Talked With Kaiser.

To enter the consular service before the war, Mr. McDermott was obliged to take an examination. At the present time, consuls are endorsed by their congressmen, with the award made on merit.

While in Alsace, the kaiser came to Strassburg, when the governor of the province held a reception in his honor. The consulate officials were presented to him and he greeted each one in excellent English. The conversation was naturally limited, but in a social way he appeared a friendly individual. The egotism of his character, for which he was known, did not appear in casual remarks.

At that time, he was on his way to his summer home at Hoekernigberg, a moated castle, which had every appearance of being a relic of feudal days. It was said that the $30,000,000 from the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, was kept at the castle. The money was found to be but a meager payment of the war for which it was preserved.

While in the consulate, the Germans of the territory thought Mr. McDermott and the secretaries spies. Germany had its spies in this country, and it seemed incredible that the consulate was not being used to forward inside plans of the empire to the federal government. However, Mr. McDermott was never asked to act as spy in any matters during more than two years he remained in Strassburg.

Consul Kept Busy.

The life of a consul is a busy life. Among other things, he is obliged to institute search for persons of his own country who may have disappeared while on a grand tour of Europe, to notify the department of justice of any fugitives from home, who may be wanted, or to try to find those in whom the department is interested, and the issuing of passports.

In his district were about 400 old pensioners of the United States gocvernment, men who had come here in the '50s and '60s and had entered service with the Union forces in the Civil war. At the close of hostilities, many of them had returned to the old country, but were still receiving pensions from the government. As they died, Mr. McDermott served as administrator of their estates.

He was obliged to look up the credit rating of some individual in whom an American was interested commercially. One American woman wished to have him give a banquet, so that she might meet persons of title in the country. In one month, thirty American beggars visited the consulate. Where the need seemed to be actual and the funds not idly dissipated, Mr. McDermott helped the destitute one to get to a seaport. The government has an arrangement whereby needy Americans can work their passage, and the government pays the difference but there is no means of getting these persons to a seaport.

Involved In Dispute.

An American woman motoring through the district was struck in the eye by a stone thrown by a child, losing the sight of the eye. Because a consul cares for his countrymen in trouble, he was forced to watch her case, when she tried to secure $25,000 from the father of the child. She only received $300, however.

The consuls must make reports on matters affecting commercial, industrial, financial and agricultural pursuits. In addition to his consular duties, Mr. McDermott visited starving Italians, investigated Belgian factories, reported on infectious disease, and described new processes in any industry.

He was forever getting Americans, former residents of the district who had left without doing military service out of jail. Whenever they returned, they were liable for service, and were placed in confinement until their case was investigated. The government was always just in this work, and the consulate was generally able to get homesick Alsatians who had returned for a visit out within a week. Because this country had no treaty with the province, even American citizens of Alsatian birth were liable to military service.

The consuls had to certify to the contents of any shipment of goods, so that duty could be levied. One copy was sent to the shipper, one to New York, if that were the port of entrance, and another to an interior customs port, if the shipment went that far, and one was retained at the consulate.

There was only one thing a consul can't do. He can't marry people. The United States government won't let him.

University Notes

Prof. J. P. Guilford of the psychology department, is the author of an article in the November issue of the Psychological Review entitled "The Method of Paired Comparisons as a Psychometric Method." He also is credited with two book reviews in the current number of the American Journal of Psychology, and is author of the index of that magazine for the year 1928.

Prof. F. M. Fling of the history department will talk at the World Forum meeting, sponsored by the university Y. W. C. A., next Wednesday on the topic of "The Kellogg Pact."

Hanna Fam, an Egyptian now studying in Chicago, will be on the Universitv of Nebraska campus December 11-16, at which time he will explain at several meetings the work done by the Y. M. C. A. in Egypt. He is going to return to Egypt after his schooling as a representative of the Y. M. C. A. in that country. His early training in Y. M. C. A. work was under C. Steele Holcombe, University of Nebraska graduate of 1916, who was at Cairo, Egypt, but has been transferred to Assuit, Egypt, to enlarge and extend the work there.

At the request of Chancellor E. A. Burnett, Chancellor-emeritus Samuel Avery will preside at the debate between Hastings college and the University of Sydney, Australia, at Hastings, Monday evening.

Dr. Avery was installed Wednesday evening as chairman of the Nebraska section of the American Chemical society. At the meeting Dr. George Clark of the University of Illinois, talked on "What a Chemist Can do with X-Ray."

"Carbon and Hydrogen Determinations Using a Metal Tube," is the subject of a research paper by Dr. Samuel Avery published in the magazine, Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. This is his third research paper since resuming studies in the chemistry department a year ago.

The November issue of the Nebraska Alumnus was mailed out during the week. The feature article of this issue was devoted to homecoming day.

The first meeting of the course in making of musical instruments, under Dr. C. C. Weidemann, will be held from 7 to 8 o'clock Monday evening, November 26, in room 21, Teachers college. A special edition of Dr. Weidemann's work on "How to Make Musical Instruments" will be available through the extension division.

Chadron Normal

President Robert I. Elliott attended a meeting of the Nebraska state board of education at Wayne, Monday, November 19. H. E. Reische, secretary of the board, accompanied him on his return.

Frederick Songer, a Civil war veteran, aged parent of Miss Myrtle Songer, who was taking advanced work toward a degree at the State Teachers college, Greeley, Colo., was instantly killed in an interurban car accident at Denver, Monday, November 12.

The art section of the Chadron Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. Clayton B. Snow; nee Merian E. Smith. Monday evening, November 19. Mrs. Snow last year was president of the Alumni association.

The Alpha Phi Pi sorority furnished the program at a special volly assembly of faculty and students, Thursday, November 15.

Misses Susie E. Boyer, Edna E. Work, Sophia M. Uhlken, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Buckingham, Coach Arthur R. Stark, Assistant Coach Ray D. Hahn, Harold Sprague, Mabel Power, George Winston, and Luella Reder witnessed the football game between the college team and the University of Wyoming team at Laramie, Saturday, November 17. Chadron won, 31 to 0.

The alumni association of the college at a recent business meeting elected new officers for the year as follows: Orin Weymouth, A. B. '25, president; Welmar Bostder, A. B. '27, vice-president; and Mrs. Pearle Summers, '16, secretary-treasurer.

The first regular business meeting of the Kappa Theta Sigma sorority since the initiation of new members was held at the house, Monday evening, November 19. At the close of the session games were played. Refreshments consisted of fruit cake and cider.

Mrs. Bess Gearhart Morrison of Lincoln appeared at the Pace theater in a reading entitled, "The Woman Haters," Tuesday evening, November 20, under the auspices of the music and drama department of the Chadron Woman's club for the benefit of the city hospital fund. A violin quartet, composed of Evelyn Wilson, Lucile Beamer, Winifred Cook, and Elenor Nylen, students of Mr. Roy A. Peterson, furnished the following numbers on the program: "Air Melodieux" by Jaccb Dont and "Gavotte and Musette," and old French dance, by Nicolai von Wilm.

The all-school banquet annually sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. took place in the college gymnasium, Friday evening, November 23. This was featured as an Indian powwow. The table decorations consisted of small Indian figures, totem poles, tents, and Indian vases filled with bittersweet berries, while menu books were in the form of wigwams. Colored quills marked with the name of the college comprised the favors. The Girl Reserves from the normal training high school served as waitresses. The theme of the toast list was "Evening in the Lodge," and Marjorie Rouse, Chadron, president of the Y. W. C. A. and "Big Chief" of the occasion, presided as toastmaster. The toasts were as follows: Freshmen, Hope Roe, Mitchell, "Totem Pole"; sophomores—Geraldine Trachta, Galesburg, Ill., "The Peace Pipe"; juniors—Elinor Johnston, Hay Springs, "The Happy Hunting Grounds"; seniors—Evelyn Currie, Chadron, "The Council Fire"; the faculty—Mrs. Robert I. Elliott, "Strongheart." Stunts were provided by the faculty and each class, respectively, one of which was "Hiawatha" in pantomime, the participants wearing full Indian costume including feathered headbands. The "Indian Love Song" was sung by Ruth Rigdon, Omaha, who appeared in Indian dress.

Bridge occupied the evening at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Alpha Phi Pi members in their sorority house, Monday evening, November 19. First prize was won by Julialyn Ford, Marsland, and Ethel Littlejohn, Mitchell, was awarded second. The hostesses were Luella Reder, Hot Springs, S. D., Marjorie Gerlach, Harrison, Ella Loewenthal, Chadron, and Wilma McLaughlin, Gordon. Ruth Johnson, Moorrill, was a guest. Light refreshments were served.

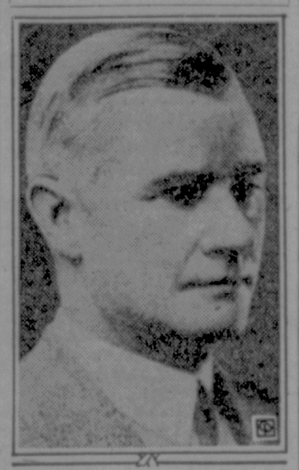
"The Youngest," a modern comedy of American family life by Philip Barry, was presented as the annual freshman class play in the Pace theater, Thursday evening, November 22. Burton Beamer, Chadron, leading man, and Neva Hartwell, Crawford, leading woman, were supported by a cast composed of Frances Kelly, Bassett; William Hartman, Bayard; Harold Thompson, Chadron; Beulah Funk, Atkinson; Albert Reed, Chadron; Mildred Hubbard, Rapid City, S. D.; and Ilda Wilcox, Oelrichs, S. D. Miss Florence M. Henderson, instructor of speech, directed the production. Music was furnished by the college orchestra.

A 5 o'clock supper was served by the seventh grade girls of the training school with their mothers as guests, in the domestic science dining room, Monday, November 19. Gertie May Burke, Chadron, a practice teacher in home economics, supervised those in charge.

McCook Junior Notes

The American history class, under the direction of Miss Helen Shurtleff, is doing some interesting work in the investigation of local history. They have been interviewing local pioneers and writing up their biographies. They are also looking up a certain Dr. Carver who is reputed to be the original "Diamond Dick" This work is a continuation of the work that the American history class of last year begun.

Re-elected Governor

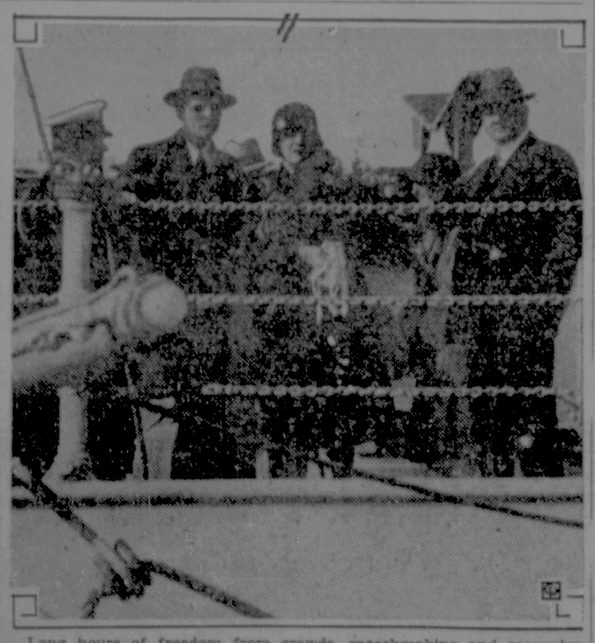


Among the governors re-elected to office is Richard C. Dillon, of New Mexico.

First Bath of the Rainy Season.

With flood waters swirling around front porches, and paved streets buried in more than a foot of mud and sand, Southern California has taken its first bath of the rainy season. Photo shows boulders being hurled along by the flood waters near Burbank, Cal.

Hoovers Reunion on Maryland



Long hours of freedom from crowds, speechmaking and campaign duties have given President-elect Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Hoover and their son, Alan, an opportunity to spend a good deal of time together—a privilege which has been almost wholly denied them during the past seven years. Alan Hoover has been at school in California and his parents have had little opportunity to leave Washington. Above, a glimpse of the Hoovers on the U. S. S. Maryland, goodwill ship.

GAS TAX YIELDS $140,635,398 IN FIRST HALF 1928

Nebraska Ranks Sixth In Consumption Gain Over Year Ago.

TOTAL SALES OVER BILLION GALLONS

Average Tax 3.02 Cents Is Greater Than During 1927.

For the first six months of 1928, forty-six states and the district of Columbia, report a total sale of 4,652,393,535 gallons of gasoline which is a gain of 680,970,224 gallons over the same period of 1927, according to information on gasoline taxation collected by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture.

No tax was levied in Massachusetts and New York and a tax was in force for only one month in Illinois.

The revenue collected amounted to $140,635,398 which is $39,384,557 more than collected on the 3,971,423,311 gallons sold in the first six months of 1927.

Nearly every state showed a gain in consumption. California heads the list with a gain of over 39,000,000 gallons and with an increase of one cent a gallon in the tax. Texas is second, with a gain of 38,900,000 gallons. Ohio is third with a gain of over 36,000,000 gallons and at an increase of one cent a gallon in the tax. Pennsylvania is fourth, with a gain of over 31,000,000 gallons and at an increase in tax of one cent a gallon. Kansas ranks fifth with a gain of over 28,000,000 gallons. Montana, with 29,678,808 gallons, more than doubled her 1927 sales of 14,278,756 gallons.

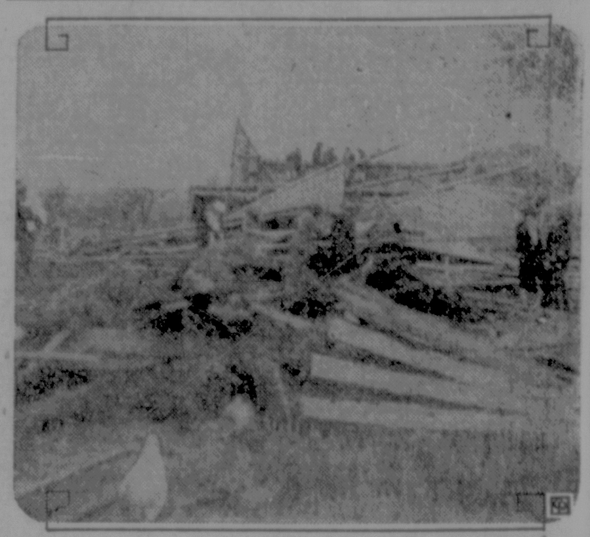
In addition to the six states above mentioned, eleven others showed gains in sales ranging from 10,000,000 to 19,000,000 gallons, as follows:

Alabama more than 11,000,000 gallons.
Arkansas more than 10,000,000 gallons.
Connecticut more than 10,000,000 gallons.
Indiana more than 15,000,000 gallons.
Minnesota more than 12,000,000 gallons.
Missouri more than 15,000,000 gallons.
Nebraska more than 19,000,000 gallons.
North Carolina more than 14,000,000 gallons.
Oklahoma more than 17,000,000 gallons.
Washington more than 14,000,000 gallons.
Wisconsin more than 15,000,000 gallons.

The average gasoline tax per gallon for the six month period of 1928 was 3.02 cents as compared to the average of 2.55 cents for the same period of last year. Of the total revenue collected $95,849,113 will be used by the state highway departments in construction and maintenance of state roads; $29,557,416 will be used in construction and maintenance of local roads, and $5,630,668 will be applied to the interest and premium payments of state and county road bonds.

In general the states showing the greatest gains in gasoline consumption are those which have improved a large mileage of highways during the last three or four years.

Tornado Hits Oklahoma Town



A tornado which swept Orlando, Okla., killing three persons, accomplished the devastation shown above. The storm preceded the disastrous flood which inundated parts of Kansas.

Seventh Annual Congress of 4-H Club Members in Chicago Means Nebraska Champions Have Opportunity To Compete for a Number of National Honors

BY LULU MAE COE.

The boys and girls who carried off the high awards and the blue ribbons at the Nebraska State fair are to have a second reward this week.

The seventh National Boys and Girls 4-H Club congress and the tenth annual reunion of the 4-H family will be held in Chicago, beginning Friday and continuing through December 7. Nebraska champions of club work will be among the attendants at the congress, at which the outstanding club members of many states are present.

Dorothy Donaldson, whose costume placed first at the state fair is sending her frock and accessories as an entry in the clothing exhibit as a complete outfit for a 4-H club girl. Dorothy is a member of the J. E. Donaldson family at Albion, which has been actively interested in club work for some time.

As a rosy-cheeked sixteen-year-old girl, five feet one inch tall, weighing 111 pounds, Dorothy chose green flannel for her dress. She might have chosen an outfit for a party, sports, or home ywear, but she chose one suitable to wear to the Albion high school, where she is a student. The outfit is the major project of her clothing club, of which she has been a member for three years.

The total cost of Dorothy's outfit is $19.29. The costs are divided as follows: Green flannel dress, $7.29; pongee underwear, $2.60; hose, $1.50; black oxfords, $4.95; green felt hat, $2.95.

Other Honors.

Dorothy is a member of the Busy Needle Workers, of which her sister, Ella, is leader. It has a membership of fourteen, and Ruth Childs, Gwendolyn Ball, and Mabel Mattison, placed first, second, and third, respectively, in the clothing judging contest at the 1928 state fair.

This club has an interesting history, due entirely to Miss Ella Donaldson. The club members of that section were interested only in live stock projects, and Miss Donaldson herself was a member of live stock clubs until almost too old for club work. Becoming convinced that the girls needed domestic projects, she gave up her own club work, and began the study of clothing and food. It was most difficult to get the girls interested in this new club, but Miss Donaldson's perservence won out.

Not so spectacular as champion beeves, clothing clubs have been rather overlooked in 4-H club work, but about one-third of the total membership of the clubs is registered for clothing projects. The 3,000 members have a three-year course, with simple stitches the first year, and the project for clothes pin bags or dress protectors, the second year, embroidery, with very plain clothes, and the third, a complete costume.

Any clothing club member may enter the state fair style show, provided she is a neat, competent stitcher, and this entitles her to a possible championship. Her second goal is the entry of a complete costume, which can not be done until the end of her three years of club work. If successful, another first place is hers, and the entry of the outfit in the Chicago congress, as Dorothy is doing.

Teach Selection.

The aim of the clothing course is to encourage selection as well as the making. The girls are taught to study their types, so that they may dress themselves appropriately and attractively, and at the same time within their means. Emphasis is placed on the cost of an outfit, but the leader also demonstrates that a simple, inexpensive frock, with correct hat and shoes, may be as attractive as a more costly one, if the girl understands the art of dress.

For about six years, the congress has had exhibits of complete outfits, shoes, hose, hat, and frock. Marjorie Joyce of Weeping Water placed second in the national competition in 1925 and first in 1926.

Helen Phares of Guide Rock was the best dressed girl in the annual style show at the Nebraska state fair. Because she was, she is to enter the national club girl's style revue in Chicago.

Helen is 14 years old and has finished her second year of clothing work. For the largest and best style show ever held at the fair, the Webster county girl modeled a street costume, costing $22.97. The material for her dress cost $6.47, her shoes $7, hose $1, hat $3.75, and other accessories $4.75. While her costume was rather more expensive than others, the judges found that she had spent her money wisely, and complimented her on her taste and selection.

As members of the Nebraska clothing judging team, Ruth Childs and Gwendolyn Ball will go to Chicago for national honors. Both are members of the Busy Needle Workers at Albion. Ruth, who placed first in the clothing judging contest at the fair, goes as its entry, and Gwendolyn is being sent from the town where she attends school in Illinois to Chicago.

New Projects.

Among the projects added to the club congress this year is a new division added to the home economics judging contest—that by home furnishings. Nebraska girls registered under this division belong to the girls' room improvement clubs. As members, they study simple room decoration, the decorating of walls, refinishing of furniture, curtains, shades, pleasing color schemes, the relation of one group to another.

Nebraska is to be represented in Chicago by Ruth Long of Cowles, who is also the health champion, and Birdie Erskine of Havelock, as the home furnishings team. Unusual interest is attached to this event, because of its novelty.

Birdie Erskine, who placed second in the last style show, enters the Chicago contest also as the champion home ec girl from Nebraska. She is outstanding among the state club girls, for her activity in the clubs, for the work she has produced, for her leadership of younger girls, and for her part on various demonstration and judging teams.

This marks Birdie's third year in a clothing club, and she has been a local leader as well as a member. In her club, she has gathered together the younger sisters of the members of her club, and has organized them into a clothing club. She has also been engaged in projects in three other clubs, hot lunch, keep well, and rope.

Deserves Trip.

During her years as a club girl, Birdie has been a member of two judging and one demonstration teams, all of which were Lancaster county champions. She also won the news writing contest of one of the state daily papers, and has contributed to its columns from time to time. For her success in these various activities, Birdie Erskine goes to Chicago as the champion home ec girl.

Vincent Arthaud of Cambridge exhibited the champion baby beef at the state fair. He is one of the outstanding club boys of his section, and has been president and vice president of a district organization of club workers formed in the southwest part of the state. He is a leader among the boys, and can always be depended upon to maintain their interest and to help them. His grand champion was a Shorthorn calf.

At the last state fair, Anthony Pokorny of Waverly walked off with three distinct honors. He placed as pig club champion with his Spotted Polands, and placed first in the showman's contest, where he won on his manner of handling his entries, and first in the weed identification contest.

Saved Money.

This is Anthony's fourth year in pig club work, and he has accumu-

TO STUDY ATOM DURING ECLIPSE

Scientists Think Its Possibilities Are Only Scratched.

Laboratory Will Be In Jungle of the Malay Peninsula.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—A new attempt to solve the secret of the atom during a feverish five minutes while the sun is in a total eclipse is to be made by four British scientists in the jungle of the Malay peninsula next spring.

All preparations have already been made for the expedition, which is to start in February. The eclipse is due to occur on May 9, and in order to be fully prepared for the investigations which are to be made during the brief period of totality, scientific instruments of every description are being taken on the long journey.

The four scientists, who have been appointed by the joint permanent committee of the Royal society and the Royal Astronomical society, are Dr. J. Jackson and P. J. Mellotte of Greenwich, and Col. F. J. M. Straton and Dr. E. Carroll of Cambridge university.

Uppermost Thought.

One thought is uppermost in the minds of all scientists today, as the eagerly awaited period draws nearer. Will the secret of the atom, which has baffled scientists for centuries, and whose possibilities are believed only to have been partially scratched by the discoveries of recent years, be solved during the five minutes during which the light of the sun is to be eclipsed entirely?

It is hoped that at least a clue may be obtained, for while living the life of bushmen in the Malay jungles, the scientists intend to attempt to measure the temperatures and pressures of the gases around the sun, which cannot be reproduced in a laboratory.

Dr. Jackson and Dr. Carroll, who are connected with the solar physics laboratory of Cambridge, will make their headquarters at Alor Star, in the Malay state of Kedah, on the western side of the peninsula. Colonel Stratton and Mellotte will camp near Patani, in Siam. Dr. Carroll and Colonel Stratton will carry out the spectroscopic observations which it is hoped may assist scientists to understand something of the constitution of the atom. Dr. Jackson and Mellotte will concentrate on attempting to reaffirm Einstein's theory of relativity by what is known as the astronomical test.

"Professor Einsten," Mellott said in explaining the expedition, "formulated three tests by which human beings could affirm his theory of a fourth dimension.

"The first test was to prove that a ray of light would be diverted from its course if it passed close to the sun.

Photograph Stars.

"Therefore, while the eclipse is in progress we shall take a photograph of the field of stars behind the sun, and immediately afterwards take another exposure on the same plate of a field of stars some distance away. This will give us a scale to work by.

"Three months later, when the sun is out of the way, we shall take two more exposures. A comparison of the two plates will prove to us the exact position of the stars in relation to light which appears to be the stars."

Greenwich Observatory is buzzing with excitement in preparation for the expedition. The gigantic 21 foot telescope which is to be used will occupy the entire time of two carpenters for two months in packing. Wooden sheds are being taken in sections to Malay.

The astronomers will have a tremendous advantage over the last period of eclipse, when the sun was obscured for only 24 seconds at the depth of the belt of totality. This time the eclipse will last for a full five minutes, and the scientists are working out abstruse calculations.

The belt of totality—the band of earth along which the full eclipse will be visible—will stretch across the north of Sumatra, the Malay Peninsula, the southern portion of Indo-China and the Phillipine Islands to end in the Pacific.

BRITISH DRINKS COST A BILLION

Yet England Consumes Less Alcohol Than Before the War.

LONDON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Although Great Britain in the past ten years has spent at least $10,000,000,000 on drink, she is casually drinking less alcoholic liquor than before the world war.

This fact is gleaned from statistics presented in the seventy-sixth annual report of the United Kingdom Alliance, one of the country's oldest established temperance reform guilds.

It is pointed out that this sum was two and a half times as much as the total outlay over the same period on national health insurance, old age pensions, poor relief and unemployment insurance.

"It is freely suggested by the liquor trade," comments the report, "that the increasing sobriety of the people renders further remedial measures unnecessary. But while many persons are drinking less liquor it must be remembered that at least $1,500,000,000 was actually spent last year.

"Public drunkenness still abounds though the cases before the courts have diminished. Last year about 100,000 men and women were dealt with by the police in Great Britain, but these were only a fraction of the total cases of drunkenness which occurred."

The report notes with gratitude that there has been no revival of last year's demand that saloons be permitted to keep open later.

"The present closing hours have apparently been accepted with equanimity by the mass of the population, who find they can have plenty to drink between the time of opening and closing."

The Alliance, early net year, will commence another campaign to increase temperance in England, H. Cecil Heath, General Secretary, told International News Service. The forthcoming campaign, will be the biggest yet attempted, and it is hoped to win many converts.

Classes In Ponca School First In State To Build Own Vocation Farm Shops

The new vocational farm shop of the Ponca high school built by two classes of boys in vocational agriculture provides a properly equipped building for the students to build apparatus necessary to a farm. The builders, with the instructor, Harold F. Vance, are shown in front of the shop.

PONCA, Neb., Nov. 24—The distinction of being the first class of any high school in Nebraska to construct their own vocational farm shop probably goes to the vocational agricultural classes of Ponca high school.

Two classes numbering 27 boys did all the work under the instruction of Harold F. Vance, teacher of vocational agriculture in Ponca high school. The building was started early in September and was completed six weeks later. It is 24 by 40 feet, of frame construction and bungalow type. The floor consists of two sections, the first being concrete 24 by 16 feet, and the other maple, 24 by 24 feet. A power mixer was used for all the concrete work.

The Shop Floors.

The concrete floor is called the mechanical floor and supports two forges, a soldering bench and a stove. The tool cabinet, twelve wooden work benches, saws and other equipment are on the wooden floor. Instead of lath and plaster the building is lined with a composition.

The building will be used entirely for farm shop practice and the boys will build wagon boxes, hay racks, hog houses, self feeders, brooder houses and the like. Instruction will be given in forge work and soldering and in repairing farm machinery. The boys will be taught mechanics in automobiles, tractors and trucks, under the Smith-Hughes plan. The project has received the heartily support of R. H. Fletcher, superintendent of Ponca public schools.

Constructing a building of this kind gave the boys considerable practical experience in squaring corners, fitting doors and windows, building doors, laying floors, cutting rafters, shingling and putting on siding.

Those In Picture.

Lost Algonquin Tribe Still In Dread of Fiery Iroquois Found Roaming Baffin Land

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Up on the roof of the world in Baffin land and northern Labrador remnants of the old Algonquin tribe of Indians, chased north about the time of the Revolutionary war, still live in fear and trembling that the warring Iroquois will follow them north and drive them still further into the recesses of the frozen north.

Dr. William Duncan Strong of the Field Museum of Natural History, told of finding the "lost tribe" when he returned to Chicago after spending fifteen months as anthropolgist with an expedition.

Have Old Legends.

"The tribes still have legends and myths that prove beyond all doubt that they are the old Algonquins," Dr. Strong declared.

"They are nomadic and live almost entirely as hunters o fcaribou. They use modern rifles, furnished by the Hudson Bay company, but the guns are only a bit of modern equipment they possess.

"The word 'Shekokive,' which is pronounced almost as is Chicago, means in language 'skunk' and lends color to thier Algonquin origin as Chicago, in the old Indian tongue of the Illinois valley meant "land of the skunks."

"From close observation of the northern Indian tribes it would seem that the Indian and the Eskimos both came originally from Mongolia by way of the Aleutian islands and thence through north America.

Are Dying Out.

"Temperatures range about 40 degrees below zero but that cold temperature seems hardly colder than in New York, Chicago and other cities. The women, when they acquire a new outfit of clothing put it on over their old clothes so that a waddling figure may mean an indication of great relative wealth.

"No whiskey or other alcoholic drink is sold to the Indians or Eskimos but they take one part of molasses to nine parts of water and a cake of yeast and boil up a mixture that is extremely potent and almost as vile in taste as our own moonshine.

"The Indians are dying out rapidly. The 1918 influenza epidemic cut the tribe in half. Within 150 years they will be a vanished race.

Blame Boyish Ways Of Parisien Girls As Lads Misbehave

PARIS, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Boyish-mannered mademoiselles are making monsieurs misbehave.

Once a lily-white hand was gracefully kissed. Now it is just smacked.

This is the conclusion of M. Andre de Fouquieres, accepted judge of elegant manners and masculine styles who has decreed what is "comme il fault" for many years.

"Look at those boys, they will meet a girl in the street and kiss her hand—a courtesy reserved for the drawing room or boudoir," complained M. de Fouquieres.

"And how they kiss them! Instead of bending over a woman's finger tips they jerk them up to their lips.

And that isn't all, I have actually seen a man raise a feminine hand to kiss it while keeping his left hand in his coat pocket.

"Other times the gesture was reserved for married women. Now a boarding school girl can expect it.

"Show me a man who asks a woman for permission to smoke. He lights up when he pleases. Is the woman offended? Not at all. She probabl yasks him for a cigarette.

"Right there is the explanation. Our young folk are reared well, but the girls have that post war negligence. They refuse to draw a line on manners, so the boys go the limit."

HELEN ASPIRES BECOME ARTIST

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Now that Helen Wills has annexed all the tennis titles in sight, at home and abroad, she is going after another and more difficult title: "Artists."

Miss Wills might admit that she is the best woman tennis player in the world today but she would never admit that she has earned the right to call herself an artist.

That, next ot retaining her tennis rank, is what she most wants.

On the other hand she is producing drawings so good that they are published in leading magazines of this and foreign countries.

Every morning at her home here where she has a studio, she sits down at her drawing board. She works until noon. She permits nothing to disturb her, for this business of becoming an artist is work.

"Some times I wonder," she laughed, laying aside her pencil, "whether I shall ever succeed. But I do love it and that is compensation."

As Miss Wills spoke her eyes sparkled. They are blue eyes and sometimes they can be cold. Newspaermen in the past have seen them that way. But they changed as she talked.

WAR IS ART, SAYS FOCH IN HIS BOOK

PARIS, No. 24—(I. N. S.)—War is an art, according to Marshal Foch generalissimo of the allied armies.

Pertinent utterances and writings of the great chieftain have been put in book form and entitled: "Word of a Soldier."

"A war is well conducted according to whether there is continuity in the ideas, methods and adaption of the rules of the art," he explains.

"Ancient warfare was sparing of the use of armed force, preferring ruses, menaces, negotiations, manoeuvres, skirmishes, occupation of territory and the capturing of isolated positions.

"Modern warfare, since Napoleon employs every means available for it knows but one argument — a strong blow.

"It is only crushing the enemy in battle and routing him that there is time for discussion.

"Before strategy can be put into execution preparations must be made to launch an offensive under the best possible conditions; then, the battle won, a new strategical stroke can be planned but always withthe same end in view—another battle."

CLEMENCEAU IN PARIS CINEMA

ARIS, Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—Monsieur George Clemenceau, France's 'Grand Old Man' turned moviet artist for a few days last summer when taking his usual vacation at his summer home in the Vendee region. Now, tthe Paris cinemas are showing a series of simple scenes in the life of the lively French statesman, 87 years young.

One wonders what words of persuasian must have been used to induce the man who has always fought so shy of publicity to submit to the wiles of the cameraman. The pictures show him passing his days in quiet among the flowers in his garden and with his pet dog; taking tea with friends and strolling down by the sea which roars up to his very front door.

Endurance Record For German Actor

BERLIN, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Fred Elmenberger, a German actor, is the world's champion endurance speaker.

He talked for 120 hours in succession, sleeping only eight hours in between. When he finished, he wasn't even hoarse.

The speech was an exhibition speech, to be judged by its length and not by its contents. But the audience was scarce and the exhibition was not a financial success.

TALKIES REVIVE OLD FAVORITES

Hollywood is Bringing Former Stars To Fore Again.

Varied Languages Make Showings in Europe Difficult.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—In social affairs a sneeze was considered somewhat of a faux pas. In making talking pictures a sneeze is little less than a calamity.

Lionel Barrymore, famous actor who has 'clicked' in the 'talkies,' has learned that an actor can do anythink in talking pictures that he can do on the stage—except sneeze.

The sneeze does not record as a sneeze but as some violent disturbance. It might be called talky static.

"The sound of a sneeze," Barrymore explains, "sets up a peculiar vibration that distorts the sound track for a considerable distance. It gives back a noise like a phonograph needle that has slipped out of its groove and sputters across the entire record."

Because of this unexpected condition actors suffering from colds will not be allowed to work because of the danger of a sneeze. A villain, it has been pointed out, by scattering a spoonful of snuff could wreck a super-production.

The 'talkies,' however, are expected to result in the revival of many old favorite films that will be revamped with sound. A number of once popular films already have been brought again to public attention with the addition of sound and production companies in Hollywood are busy taking from their files former big box office productions and working them over with sound effects. Sounds! Zounds!

More "Talkie" Trouble.

"Here's more talkie' trouble. The Universal, pioneer Hollywood producing company, is trying to work out a plan to make their speaking pictures popular in Europe. The perplexing job had been handed to Jay Marchant, veteran director.

"It's just too bad that movie fans in Greece, Roumania and other nations, don't know English," explained Marchant. "Our biggest market is in Europe and it's a pipe we can't sell these 'talkies.'" The difficulty is that in making 'talkies' the films are slowed up. The popularity of American films is their speed. We'll have to work out a scheme to make the 'talkies' faster so that the black and white films can continue to get across 'over there.'

On Potato Diet.

Hollywood has suddenly gone on a potato diet. Following the announcement of a famous dietician that the chief fod value of the spud is in the peel, slim screen sirens find a new zest in the democratic tuber served with the jackets.

"If I thought I could put on weight," sighed Colleen Moore, "I woud eat potatoes three times a day." She admitted being partial to escalloped potatoes with cream cheese and butter. Other cinema celebrities wooing the flesh via th humble potato are Sally O'Neil, Garry Cooper, Betty Brent, Norma Talmadge, Dolores Costello, Claire Windsor, Mary Duncan, June Collyer and William Blackwell.

Irene Rich always includes potatoes on her menu. Florence Vidor likes them baked. Boiled potatoes and buttermilk appeals to Russel Gleason. Mary Astor, Constance Talmadge and Lila Lee eat everything on the bill of fare, including potatoes, and still remain slender. The shell of the baked potato, decorated with paprika, is the favorite dish of Dorothy Dwan. There is no waste to the potato in Hollywood because stars are no longer worried about their waistline.

PROF. MILLIKAN DESCRIBES HUGE NEW TELESCOPE

BY ROBERT A. MILLIKAN.
(Executive President, California Institute of Technology)

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 24—(INS)—The i nternational educational board has made an apropriation to the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena for the construction of an astro-physical observatory to be equipped with a 200-inch reflecting telescope and many auxiliary instruments. A prime purpose of the gift is to assure the new observatory the advantage and experience of the strong group of investigators in the research laboratories of the institute and in the neighboring Mount Wilson observatory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington

The terms of the gift are so board as to offer a unique opportunity for securing scientific results of the greatest interest. This can be seen from the nature of the equipment, the problems to be solved, and the group of men assembled to attack them.

The new observatory which will be designed to upplement, not duplicate the Mount Wilson observatory, will comprise two main parts. One of them will be the 200 inch telescope with its buildings, dome and auxiliary equipment, to be erected on the most favorable mountain sites that can be found within effective working distance of associated groups of investigators and their extensive scientific equipment. The other will be an astro-physical laboratory on the campus of the California Institute in Pasadena.

What may be hope to learn with the new telescopes and its auxiliary instruments? It should render possible the exploration of many "island universes" beyond the Milky Way, the nearest two or three of which ar now but slightly known. It should tell us something about the evolution of these spiral nebulae, millions of light years distant, and much about the development of the stars of our own galactic systems one of which is the sun with its encircling planets.

It should solve many of the probems of physics or chemistry that depend upon the enormous masses or temperatures, or upon the immense density of extermeity tenuity, exhibited by celestial bodies in which titanic expeiments exceeding the capacity of any terrestrial laboratory are constantly in progress.

Incidentally, it should reveal hundreds of millions of stars and hundreds of thousands of nebulae beyond the range of existing telescopes.

WAR THREATENS BALKAN STATES

Depredations Of Revolutionaries May Necessitate Intervention.

VIENNA, Nov. 24—(INS)— The Balkans, long known as the "cockpit of Europe," again lies under the ominous threat of warfare and possible intervention by the big powers tonight.

This latest menace to Balkan peace lies in Bulgaria and arises from the warlike depredations of the Cacedonian revolutionaries (comitadjis) under Ivan Mihailoff.

Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, is described as an armed camp with soldiers guarding the palace and the public buildings to prevent a coup by the Macedonian rebels.

Bulgarian Army on March.

A Bulgarian army is on the march against the Macedonians massed at Petriz, their stronghold.

According to Belgrade advices, Foreign Minister Burow of Bulgaria, told the Bulgarian parliamentary committee that England and France have been asked to intervene to aid the Bulgarian government in preventing warfare.

Greece and Jugloslavia have already protested to Bulgaria against the activities of the Macedonians, who are threatening the peace along the Greek and Jugoslav frontiers.

Population Panic Stricken.

Fighting between Bulgarian regulars and the Comitadjis is threatened at Petriz.

The population of the Petriz district is panic stricken. Hundreds are in flight towards Sofia or across the borders into Greece and Jugloslavia. Mihailoff is defying the Sofia government and announced his intention of fighting against forces sent against him.

Two Bulgarian army officers were assassinated at Haskow following an army council which adopted a resolution calling upon King Boris' government to adopt strong measures to put down the Macedonian movement.

Martial law may be proclaimed over the disturbed area.

Dissensions in the Bulgarian cabinet were reported in dispatches from the frontier.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 24—(I.N.S.)—Friends of Miss Frances Snook, formerly of Flint, Mich., today anticipated her early marriage to Lieut. Henry H. Ogden, who was a member of the army's round-the-world aerial expedition in 1924. Their engagement has been announced. Miss Snook, who is living here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George James Snook, was at one time a prominent member of the younger social set of Flint.

ADMITS KILLING WIFE.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, 53, yesterday, was cleared here tonight when her husband, George Davis, 33, confessed to police that he strangled her during an argument at their home.

A Cincinnati physician had pronounced her death to have been caused by heart disease when he examined the body late yesterday afternoon.

Cabinet Possibility

Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis, former congressman, has been mentioned as a possible member of Hoover's cabinet. Newton is a close friend and political associate of the president elect.

GERMAN DECLARES WRONG WAR VIEW IN SCHOOL BOOKS

BERLIN, Nov. 24—(INS)—American school history books are under fire by Dr. Otto Karstaedt, who was guest professor at the Peabody college at Nashville, Tenn., last winter.

In an article in the periodical "The Way to Fredom," Dr. Karstaedt points out that most American school histories still represent Germany as the only nation guilty of starting the world war.

"All of them show at first glance," Dr. Karstaedt says, "that they are either unable to view the war objectively, or clothe the scientific objectively which thy would like to affect in opinions born during the war."

Dr. Karstaedt attaks especially Edward R. Turners' "Europe Since 1789," which, he says, "shames America and is destructive for the restoration of understanding between the two nations."

Cotner Notes

Prof. J. K. Snellenberger, dean of men, spoke at the bi-weekly meeting of the Aylsworth club Monday evening. His subject was "The Characteristics of the Successful Preacher."

The Y. W. C. A. held its annual recognition service Monday evening. This ceremony follows the membership campaign each year.

Cotner college invited the entire student body and faculty of Doane college to spend Friday, Nov. 23 as guests of the college. A joint chapel service was held at 11 a. m. Lunch was served to all at Bates hall. The feature of the afternoon was the football game between the two schools. A dinner in the gymnasium closed the day's program.

Miss Ruth Laird, '29, Lincoln, has been made a member of the Matinee Musicale, a Lincoln musical society.

The girl's octette, which has been in existence for several years, has ordered pins in the form of an eight, set with pearls, with a gold note for a guard.

The general, home economics and music departments of the Bethany Women's club meet monthly at Bates hall. Prof. Grace E. Young is superintendent of the literature department and Prof. Josie Y. Osterhout is instructor.

WATERWAY PLAN CHANGE IS SEEN

Minneapolis - St. Paul Group Expected To Demand 9 Foot Channel.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 24—(UP)—Drastic changes of the inland waterways program, calling for uniform nine-foot river channels in both the upper Mississippi and Missouri rivers, are expected to be proposed at the tenth meeting of the Mississippi Valley association, in session here, Monday and Tuesday.

It is understood the Minneapolis-St. Paul group will be organized at the association meeting to demand that a nine-foot channel program be adopted for the upper Mississippi. This group has already launched a movement for appropriations from congress for a deeper channel.

Cleveland A. Newton, vice president and general counsel of the association, is said to favor the uniform program. His advocacy of the plan brings him into prominence as a candidate to succeed James E. Smith, retiring president.

If the proposal is made in the form of a recommendation it will be one of the most important matters before the association, it was said.

Gen. Jacques Dead

BRUSSELS, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Gen. Baron Jacques, Belgian hero of the World war, died today at his home here of pneumonia. He was 68.

The general, who was a personal friend of King Albert, won international fame by his brilliant defense of Mismude during the German drive to capture the channel ports. Jacques' resistance at Dixmude was responsible for the failure of the Germans to capture Calais.

HERE AND THERE

Man and Machine.

(The Omaha World-Herald.)

William H. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is quoted as having said that the organization will fight to the last ditch the displacement of labor by machinery.

If the organization wastes its splendid energies in that kind of fight, then the last ditch is precisely where it will ultimately have to do its fighting. It might as well try to hold back the tides or check the flight of the earth in its orbit as to resist growth of the use of time and labor saving machinery in industry. And if it could stop the march of progress by junking the machinery of production and replacing it with man power it would find itself right back where it started. For what of comfort, what of leisure, labor has won for itself in the past half century it is indebted not alone to its splendid, winning, organized fight for these things, but in part at least to the fact that machines have given them an existence to be won.

"Our philosophy and objective throughout the world," says Mr. Green, "is human betterment and it is our aim always to protect humans before machinery."

Human betterment is a magnificent ideal and no one will deny that the labor movement in general and the American Federation of Labor and its subsidiary unions in particular have achieved great results in fighting for that ideal. Its further progress is not to be helped by resisting machinery which releases more of time and energy to be used in non-productive pursuits. It is rather to be made in fighting for a fairer, more equitable distribution of its benefits.

It is true that in the process of replacement of man power by machine power violent upsets are temporarily occasioned in particular fields of labor. When a machine is introduced into industry which does the work of ten men those ten men, thrown out of work, are momentarily in distress. But as soon as the industrial adjustments are made everybody is better off than before, including the ten displaced men, provided the adjustment permits them to share in the benefits of the leisure thus created. It is a part of the mission of the labor movement to see that it does.

Old time newspaper men can remember how the old printer at the cases opposed the coming of the typesetting machine. Now the typesetting machine and other mechanical aids to the publishing industry have made possible a progress which makes employment for an army of men. It is something that never could have been attained had the old conditions remained stabilized. It has meant bigger and better newspapers and magazines and books and better conditions for those employed in the industry.

Sometimes we compare our mechanical civilization with the golden age of Pericles. We mourn for the loss of the simplicity and the culture of Athens in her days of glory. But we forget that this Athenian culture with the richness of its intellectual achievements rested upon the backs of a submerged, oppressed class of helots, the hewers of wood and carriers of water. It was they who made the leisure possible that flowered in Athenian culture.

There are, it is true, some consequences of the mechanization of industry which there is reason to deplore, but these are not the mere replacement of men by machinery. It is that in so many industries the laborers are made mere machine tenders where those engaged in the same industry in the old hand working days were artisans if not artists. But what the old artisan has lost in the satisfaction of craftsmanship the new machine tender has gained in increased leisure. The net gain or loss to him all depends upon how well or ill he uses the time thus placed at his disposal.

SWING SATISFIED BILL WILL PASS

Co-Author Boulder Dam Measure Confident It Will Go Through.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(I. N. S.)—Representative Swing, republican of California, co-author of the Boulder Canyon dam bill, predicted the passage of the measure at the coming session of congress, following a conference with Persident Coolidge today.

He said the report of the special board of engineers, expected about November 30, will meet all of the objections raised against the physical features of the measure last winter.

Swing refused to admit he had seen the report, but said a digest of it as reported to him indicated the engineers had decided the construction of a high dam in Boulder Canyon was not only feasible, but safe. He recalled the talk at the last session of possible seismic disturbances in that vicinity which might render the site impracticable.

"I am satisfied with the report," he said as he left the White House.

"You mean you will be satisfied?" he was asked.

"Yes, that's right," he replied laughingly.

Eternal Triangle Blamed For Double Shooting By Wife

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 25—(INS)—The eternal triangle was blamed here tonight for the death of Fred Perlingo, 23, and the serious wounding of Josephine Munzella, 18, by Mrs. Fanny Perlingo, 21, police declared.

The young wife, police said, after she had given herself up, stated that her husband and Miss Munzella had been in the "habit of going out together," and that "she had warned them."

The shooting took place in the garage of the Perlingo home at Lowellville, near here, the reports said. Mrs. Perlingo was said to have waited for the couple in the garage and shot them as they came in.

Plump Figure, Out of Style For Ages, Replaces Slimness

CHICAGO, Nov. 24— (U. P.) — Women's figures were discussed at length tonight before the Associated Apparel Industries at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Styles in feminine bodies, it was said, have changed only three times in the history of the world. In the beginning, forms were plump and fat—a nice padding of flesh over the framework of bones.

Then, about 4,000 years ago, according to statistics presented to the convention by Kathryn Cunningham, American designer of foundation garments, the vogue for slimness set in.

Plump Girls Popular.

The art of appearing slim, said Miss Cunningham ,which goes back some hundreds of years, was perfected and enabled fat women to appear slender.

"This is the beginning of the second cycle in 2,700 years," she said. "History is repeating itself now. We are on the outcurve of plumpness.

"Of course, there have been the pet curves of each generation, the wasp waist and the curving thigh of the Floradora Girl. But in general, slimness has been the idea of the white races for ages.

"This season's curves of fashionable figures show a swing back to the type of plump girl that was stylish back in the first era of

Engineers Club To Hear Coff Talk On Illinois Project

The work of constructing the Starved Rock lock and dam for the Illinois waterways department at Ottawa, Ill., will be described by C. M. Coff, Monday evening at the November meeting of the Lincoln Engineers club at the Grand hotel. The dinner will be served at 6:15.

Mr. Coff's talk will be illustrated with slides and moving pictures The project about which he will talk involved the placing of 110,000 cubic yards of concrete and 500,000 cubic yards of rock and dirt excavation.

A business meeting will precede the talk.

Midland Notes

Four members of the college dramatic club under the direction of Edith Wilson, Madison, will present a one act play, "Apartments to Let," in the college auditorium Tuesday evening. The cast will include Margaret Koolen, Lincoln; Helen Ahlemeier, Fremont; Pearl Heidenreich, Leigh, and Willis Brazda, Fremont.

H. Howard Rabe, former Midland student will address members of the Science club Tuesday evening. Newly elected officers of the Science club are: President, Charles Bower, Davenport; vice president, Dale Ghormley, and secretary-treasurer, Clara Smith, York.

The Midland Players presented their first major production of the year, "Laff That Off," before 400 persons in the college auditorium Tuesday evening. Members of the cast were William Sudman, Sarben; Louise Hiksabeck Loup City; Ruth Livers, Hooper; Gwendolyn Widman, and Samuel Berek, both of Fremont; George Whittecar, Peabody, Kas., and Eugene Harrison Atchison, Kas. Members of the production staff were Paul Lewis Fremont; Walter Petersen, Grand Island; Gwendolyn Widman, Fremont; Roland Renkel, Pueblo, Col. and Donald Wilson, San Aiego Cal., Miss Winifred Lorimor acted as coach.

The Wynn Literary society gained possession of the Glenn Fennel trophy for the first time in three years when members of its team won the inter-society debate from the Kalophroneans, two to one, Monday evening. Members of the Wynn team, which took the negative of the question, "Resolved, that the present jury system of the United States should be abolished," were Harry Coder, North Platte; Eugene Tanner, and Lindsay Search, Hutchinson Kas. The Kal speakers were Marjorie Petersen, and Carl Barz, both of Fremont, and Leo Nielsen, Craig.

Members of the Forum, college forensic society, at their meeting Monday afternoon heard reviews of the lives of five prominent American orators. The reviews were given by Gifford Mullins, Fremont, on James Otis; Josephine Miller, Fremont, on Daniel Webster; Werner Jessen, Omaha, on Henry Clay; Ralph Rasmussen, Fremont, on William Jennings Bryan, and Paul Wiegman, Hastings on Patrick Henry.

Radio Digest

Short Circuits Checked by Insulated Leads.

In constructing a set where shielding is used, care must be taken in preventing a short circuit. In most cases the shield is connected to the "A" negative through the condensers. All leads passing through the metal should have sufficient inculation so that rubbing against the "can" will not cause a short.

Reactivating Tubes.

Tubes cannot always be reactivated. Flashing should last from 10 to 20 seconds, and cooking for about half an hour. The '99 and '20 types are flashed at twelve volts and cooked with four volts. The '01-A type is flashed with 18 volts and cooked with seven volts. Those are maximum voltages; lower one are permissible. There should be no "B" voltage connected to the tube while ti is being reactivated.

Wiring the Receiver.

To keep the resistance of the set as low as possible and to make the wiring self-supporting and permanent, use a rather large wire for the connections. No. 14 soft copper wire will be satisfactory. No. 14 hard drawn or copper clad wire, such as is used in the construction of an antenna, should not be used on account of its hardness, making it stiff to work. This type of wire is also brittle and a bend or kink cannot be straightened out without danger of breaking the wire. Acid soldering flux should never be used with copper wire as it will cause corrosion later on.

Building Loop Antenna.

The loop antenna is constructed on a wooden frame, built of two cross pieces, each one-half inch square and 29 inches long. Cut nine slots in each end of the cross pieces. Make these cuts with a hack saw, about one-quarter of an inch deep and one-half inch apart. In the exact center of each cross piece cut a slot one-half inch wide and one-quarter of an inch deep for the joint of the two pieces. Fasten the two cross pieces together with five small wood screws. On the bottom end of the upright piece fit an ordinary telephone plug. Use copper braid one-quarter of an inch in width and approximately one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness, commencing at the inside row of slots. Press the braid into the slots making the winding in a circular form, connecting the two ends of the winding to the two terminals of the telephone plug.

Good Ground Connections.

A great many grounds for receiving sets are secured on water or gas pipes. Those are usually satisfactory grounds, but sometimes they make a very poor ground and are responsible for the poor operation of the set, which is blamed elsewhere. The reason for this is that a good many pipes have the threaded joints cemented with white lead or paint to make them air or water tight. This is a high resisance and cuts down the efficiency of the set very materially. The ground clamp is the best method to secure a good ground. Remember, the surface of the pipe where it is to be attached should be scraped or filed clean and bright, as the clamp will not make a proper connection when used over paint or other protecive covering the pipe. Cold water systems are to be preferred to those of the heating system so as to avoid the expansion and contraction of the metal which will make a loose connection in time. To make certain that the ground is satisfactory, combine grounds secured in several places and run them all to the ground binding post on the set.

For the Notebook.

Old dry-battery terminals can be used for binding posts.

A ground connection to a cold-water pipe is much better than one to a radiator.

A dynamic speaker will improve the quality of the reproduction of an inferior receiver, but it will not make a good set out of a poor one.

Keep the set clean, both inside and outside. Dust accumulation soon gives rise to current leakage, which reduces the efficiency and introduces noises blamed on static.

Distorted tones coming from the receiver are sometimes due to a defective loud-speaker, and not to the set itself. The best way to conduct a test is to borrow a neighbor's speaker and try it on the circuit.

Continuous vibration of a receiver sometimes causes the elements of the tubes to become loosened so that they become quite microphonic after a while, and also to loosen certain connections in the set.

Radiograms.

Approximately 90 per cent of the communication of the United States navy is now carried on through radio.

Russia now has 67 broadcasting stations. The estimated number of receiving sets in use is only 250,000, or fewer than 4,000 to each transmitting station.

The Radio club of Princeton university has so organized its members and its station, 3DH, as to be able to send free of charge messages to practically any part of the world at any time for undergraduates of the university. The club recently announced that Christmas greetings will be sent anywhere for members of the university, "whether they be addressed to Camden, N. J., or Canton, China."

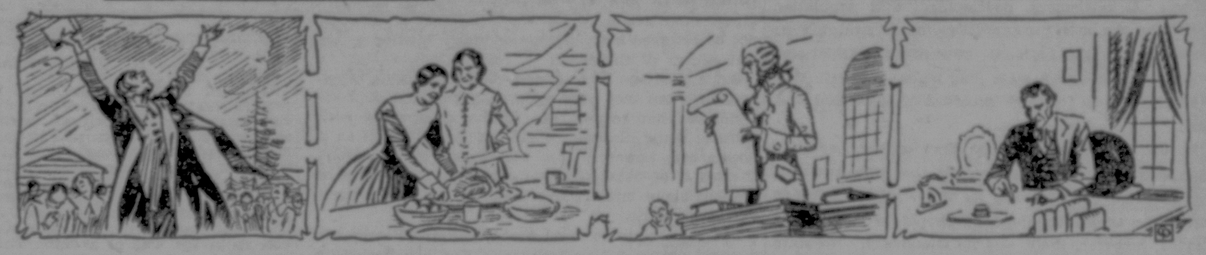
The History of Thanksgiving Day

The First Thanksgiving—1621

From the painting by J. L. G. Ferris.



In 1623, a day of feasting and prayer in the midst of drough. was changed into Thanksgiving by the coming of rain.

Gradually the New England colonial governors established the custom of Thanksgiving by designating a day each year after harvest.

During the Revolution a day of national Thanksgiving was annually recommended in congress.

In 1864, President Lincoln appointed a day of Thanksgiving and since then the presidents have issued a Thanksgiving proclamation annually.

THE "OLD WEST" IS NOT SO OLD

Vivid memories of the "Old West" were reawakened last Friday with the brief announcement that the state of Oklahoma was celebrating its twenty-first birthday. That is the age when a man comes into his legal rights.

For many years, however, before its admission to statehood, Oklahoma had attained its physical growth If settlement, development and population had been the sole considerations in determining its relations with the national government, Oklahoma would have become a state long before the date that recognition was formally accorded it—November 16, 1907.

It was in the late eighties that settlers began to drift into Oklahoma territory. At that time the plan was to make two states of its 70,057 square miles of territory. Once the flood of people to its borders started, however, there was no abatement. No state in the union ever gained more rapidly in population. The census of 1890 gave it 258,657 citizens. Ten years later, in 1900, or seven years before it became a state, there were 790,391 while in 1910, or but three years after statehood, its population was 1,657,155. The last census showed Oklahoma had 2,028,283 people, or three-quarters of a million more than our own native state of Nebraska.

And yet no portion of the "Old West" was more picturesque or colorful than this commonwealth which has just "come of age."

Its trails echoed to the hoofbeats of long lines of cattle slowly working their way northward from the Texas Panhandle. There were bold and daring bands of violent men who sought to lose themselves from the relentless pursuit of officers of the law, seeking to bring them to justice. There was the open-hearted hospitality, the ready generosity, the quick comradeship of people facing common dangers and common hardships. Then oil was discovered in the soil which had been the despair and the joy of those who tried to till it.

With its discovery, the pageant of the "Old West" was re-enacted. It brought hundreds of thousands of eager settlers, bent upon making a "strike" which would enable them to live in comfort and in riches. Towns became roaring cities, wealth poured out in streams, great industries were established, and towering skyscrapers lifted their roofs to the heavens. It gave Oklahoma its "Deadwood" and its "Cripple Creek." It brought its gunmen and its gamblers, its bandits and its highwaymen but they were only a sprinkling of the multitude of sober, industrious, thrifty men and women who drifted into this more remarkable region.

One historic event stands out in the story of the settlement of Oklahoma. That was the method of parcelling out 160-acre claims which opened up a vast 100-mile strip of country to homesteaders. "Run" is the only word which describes it, for thousands lined up on foot, with teams and wagons, and on horseback on the starting line to stake up a claim somewhere in the unsettled expanse. It had a duplicate later when the same system was employed to parcel out lots in Oklahoma City.

* * *

Oklahoma's sister states will join in felicitating her upon the amazing progress which has characterized her admission to statehood. She is a rich and powerful commonwealth. She boasts of two large cities—Tulsa and Oklahoma City—and scores of others while not so large in population fill with complete satisfaction that human hunger for "Home." She has balanced educational progress with material advance. Her state university is one of the finest in the country, and her other colleges take high rank. Her public school system is adequate for all needs. Her spiritual life is matured in magnificent church buildings, her parks and her roads bespeak a strong civic spirit.

In a measure Oklahoma is symbolical of all of the western country.

Men of middle age may recall that when they attended public school, the territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington were still indicated upon the geography of the United States. That is all the more amazing when it is recalled that New Mexico, with the first known settlement in 1537, and Arizona, in 1580, were the far-flung outposts of the Mexican empire. From Dakota, two states were carved—North and South Dakota each taking their place in the union on November 2, 1889. Little less than a year before, Washington territory had been officially recognized on November 11, 1888. Six days after the Dakotas attained statehood, Montana, with her 46,997 square miles of territory, came into the union. On July 11, 1889, Wyoming was granted admission, and just a year later, lacking eight days, Idaho took her place.

Think what a remarkable acquisition in territory, in material resources, and in population that period of history represented. Here are the states and their area; with the date of admission:

State	Admission	Area
Washington	Nov. 11, 1888	69,127 square miles.
North Dakota	Nov. 2, 1889	70,837 " "
South Dakota	Nov. 2, 1889	77,615 " "
Montana	Nov. 8, 1889	146,997 " "
Idaho	July 3, 1890	83,880 " "
Wyoming	July 11, 1889	97,914 " "

More than a half a million square miles of territory boasting of hidden stores of priceless minerals, great forests of fabulous wealth, and millions of acres of land upon which cattle might graze and crops might be produced ushered into the crowning glory of statehood in the brief span of a decade.

One other great period followed on its heels, with Oklahoma, admitted in 1905 and New Mexico and Arizona coming in seven years later or on January 6, 1912 and February 14, 1912 respectively. New Mexico's physical area was 122,634 square miles, Arizona's 113,956, and Oklahoma's 70,057. That is another 400,000 square miles of territory. Thus in the short period of twenty-five years, the American nation was enlarged by the addition of more than a million square miles of land, divided among nine sovereign states. And it was not so long ago, either. They have made their contribution to the national wealth and happiness.

REMEMBER THE POSTMAN.

Approach of the holiday season again furnishes the American people with an opportunity to show their consideration for others. For the postman and for scores of employes in mercantile establishments, Christmas is a reason of increased labors. Hence at this time the postal authorities are resurrecting the slogan of shop early and mail early.

Most of us are guilty of procrastination, particularly so when it comes to the problem of selecting Christmas gifts. Naturally we desire to put some thought and care into their choice but unfortunately when we delay our shopping the opportunities for it are lost. Each year after a frenzied last minute rush we form the splendid resolution to do our shopping early and then too many of us forget it for eleven months and twenty-three days.

In his communication to the public, Postmaster Trev Gillaspie calls attention to the fact there are just twenty-four shopping days before Christmas. Now is the time to find stocks fresh and complete and to make selections free from the inconveniences of hustling crowds. Mail for distant points should be in the postoffice not later than December 15, and for nearby points by December 18, in order to insure delivery before Christmas day.

PORTO RICO AND STATEHOOD.

The people of Porto Rico want state government and the majority party is to bend all its efforts in that direction, according to late news dispatches from the island. To that end they have prepared and will have introduced in the congress of the United States a bill providing for a constitutional amendment allowing overseas states. Under this amendment the representatives in congress from such states would be permitted to vote only on such legislation as might effect those states, while other national laws would not be enforced in insular states unless ratified by the legislatures of the same.

Some time ago Porto Ricans were demanding independence, but they have apparently changed their attitude in that respect, the futility of pressing such demand being obvious. State government such as is now asked, however, does not appear to be beyond the realm of possibility, and should it eventually be brought about might prove to be for the best interest of all concerned.

It should be understood that the Porto Ricans are a proud people, with a rich country, which has made remarkable progress since coming under the rule of the United States thirty years before. That it did not make greater progress prior to that time was in large measure due to the repressive colonial policy of Spain. The people of the island appreciate what has been done for them by the United States, but they are of a different race, with different traditions and inclinations from those of the governing country; and they desire to govern themselves to as great an extent as is possible, while still retaining allegiance to America.

To what end does the United States hold Porto Rico? Principally that it may not fall into the hands of any other nation, thus becoming a menace to us, and that it may be available to us for military or naval purposes should it become necessary. It has always been denied that there was anything imperialistic in our taking the island from Spain; we have not been actuated by lust of power nor desire to exploit the people of Porto Rico for our own material gain. Why then, should not the people of Porto Rico be allowed to govern themselves, even as are the people of the sovereign states of this union?

Porto Ricans believe that they should be allowed this privilege and they propose to lay the matter before the people of the United States for their decision.

AN ESTABLISHED INDUSTRY.

Five years ago when severe depression in agriculture necessitated sharp readjusment in Nebraska, the Dairy association began its campaign to improve the dairy herds on the farms in this state. The fact that butter production has been increased from 65,000,000 pounds to 120,000,000 is ample evidence of the effectiveness of its efforts. But that does not tell the entire story. In the same period of time Nebraska has built up a stable cheese industry which is adding materially to the wealth of the farmers of this region.

There were grave misgivings when it was first suggested Nebraska should attempt to fit her rapidly-growing dairy industry into cheese-making. It was said that climatic conditions were unsuitable to the successful operation of cheese factories. Wisconsin, the leading dairy state of the union, was blessed with a cool climate during the summer months. During a considerable portion of the summer in Nebraska, it was claimed operation was impossible. Then again the doubters insisted milk production in the state had not been built up to a point where a cheese factory could depend upon the regular supplies necessary for economical production.

In the North Platte valley seven cheese factories have been built in the last five years and have enjoyed a profitable existence. Announcement Thursday that another factory was to be constructed at Bayard is an indication of the success which has greeted the efforts to establish the cheese industry. There are now more than twenty plants in the state, most of them small to be sure, producing 750,000 pounds of cheese yearly. That record of production has given Nebraska important ranking in the nation. In the face of the earlier failure in this state, the present expansion of an industry which was tried and abandoned thirty years ago, only to be revived and carried through successfully, furnishes every reason for encouragement and pride.

PRESIDENTIAL RECREATION.

President-elect Herbert Hoover takes his place alongside the imposing list of American presidents who can handle the rod and reel with more than average skill. On his good-will tour to South America, Mr. Hoover gave a demonstration of his ability by catching two splendid specimens of deep sea fish which are noted for their gameness. He did such a thoroughly workmanlike job of it that even those who were bold enough to claim a reputation as a disciple of Izaak Walton were impressed.

Mr. Hoover will go into the white house with a formidable record as an angler. In that respect he has the advantage of Calvin Coolidge who did not discover the joy of fishing until three years after he assumed the heavy responsibilities of his office. But Mr. Coolidge has more than made good for lost time in seeking the out-of-doors in the last three years. He has been an inveterate fisherman during his summer vacations for the last three years and in Wisconsin discovered he was a fairly good shot. Consequently he is going into Virginia during the Thanksgiving holidays to try his hand at wild turkey hunting.

Woodrow Wilson never indulged in fishing or hunting but before him the portly and genial "Bill" Taft found recreation and pleasure in fishing although the golf links claimed him oftener. Colonel Roosevelt, who preceded Taft in the white house, was the greatest sportsman of all the American presidents. He was a remarkable fisherman and equally expert with the gun. His nearest rival since the Civil war was Grover Cleveland, who also fished in tropical waters.

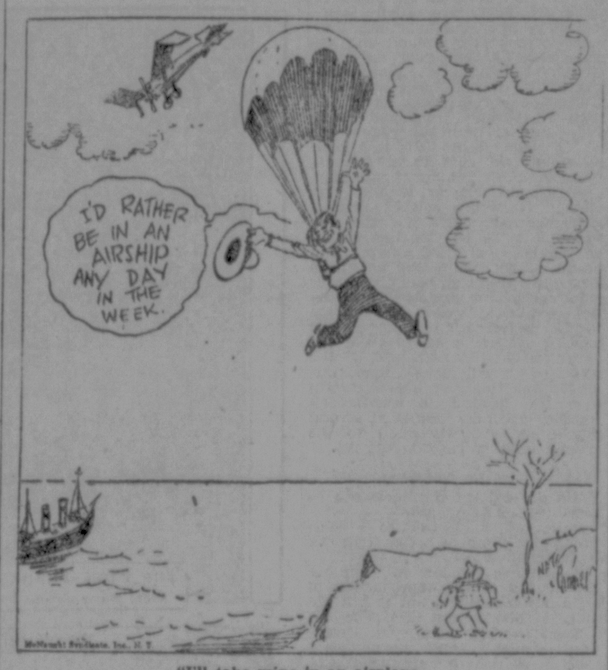
A Virginia judge ruled that the death of a young man from drinking poisoned liquor was accidental. Such is the reputation of Southern hospitality.

A Connecticut dealer held a canary up to the phone and it sold itself. That's a mark for some "birds" we have heard through the receiver.

Looks like a surplus of presidents.

Disaster by Sea and Land

By WILL ROGERS



"I'll take mine in an airplane."

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers. This sea tragedy has just been about all we could see for the last 10 days, and it was awful hard to get your mind off it. Talk about stage plays and dramas, don't they fade into nothing when a thing like this comes along! And the great part about it is nobody knows where, or who will bob up in the way of a hero. The old ordinary that looks like a mere matter of fact, even weakling, might be the big thing in an emergency.

I will never forget when Canada entered the war and their first (and for that matter all their troops) had made such a brave fight. I think their first big hero was not some rugged Northwest Mounted Police, or some nervy westerner, it was a little enemic cigarette smoking piano player in a cheap movie house. He was the first to do something away beyond the demand in bravery.

Just think of that radio operator on that boat! Has to be sacrificed because he had to wait for orders from somebody that was thinking about his company instead of the lives of his people. You know those old fellows have just gone through so many things that it never strikes them that there will be any come up that they can't get through. I tell you I will take mine in an aeroplane and stay off those boats. In those things when you leave, if they are listing and not going so good you turn around and go back, or come down and land and fix it. They don't try to bull their way through. Expense to the owners means nothing to a good pilot in comparison to the safety of his passengers.

And say the old aeroplane thing is going along good. This commercial thing is developing fine, especially for mail and express. Passenger thing is not making headway as it should, for we are in too big a hurry in this country to even save time. We would rather talk about how big a hurry we are in than to do the hurrying.

New York Wiser.

Well I guess you all outside of the old "burg" wonder how she took the election. Well, it started out with what looked like was going to be an awful noisy night. But when those first returns commenced percolating in why it was just like rain on a country picnic. Horns that were meant to be blown might just as well have been meant for a decoration. They never uttered a blast. It was just a show that was billed but never come off. In the theaters the folks was pretty late coming in. They had stayed out purposely to see what would happen and when they saw they come in. I took my last straw vote of the audience that night. I had taken it at every performance since we opened, and I also took it all last year in almost every state in the Union, even before the nominations and am not boasting, but I think I had as good an idea as the Literary Digest. Hoover run away with the vote on election night, the same as he had run a way with it in every town I had played all year.

New York took it pretty game though. They had a game loser to set the pattern for them. Smith never let out a squawk, and the statement that he issued over the radio a few days after made him a lot of friends.

'Course New York at heart felt mighty bad because they felt that the rest of the country had not stood by them. Having a big city man for the first time they felt you all would help them out. In fact they did have a little of the New York conceit, and this has brought them to realize that there is a terrible lot of you boys that don't get your mail up and down one of these gullys here.

I kept trying to tell 'em you fellows had been doing a little thinking for yourselves and dident need any outside advice when it come to voting, but they still thought they could swing you over.

But now its all blowed over and you could hold a Klan Klam Blake in the center of Broadway and not have anyone hiss you. They just don't care now. Everybodys got their minds on something else.

Al left us and went down to play golf with Pat Harrison, the biggest surprise about that was to know that Pat Harrison could play golf. They will get a great welcome down there in Mississippi, thats the state that passed a resolution since the election to have Jefferson's and Lee's body moved from Virginia since it went Republican. They wanted em moved to Mississippi. They better been doing like North Carolina, and Texas, they better been passing some resolutions to get some factories down there. Thats what is making those two states step so fast, they are not looking for any historical prestige. This is an age of business, not tradition. Mississippi needent worry about Virginia. Virginia will run out of republicans like they run out of presidents.

Cooled Off Quick.

But take it all around the folks got over it all over the country mighty well. Everybody was awful het up, but they cooled off mighty quick. Both sides was haywire most all summer.

I personally believe that Al will make the race again. They aint nobody else that can hold that many votes. This fellow Roosevelt if he gets away good here in New York as governor is the only one I know of outside Al that could carry his own precinct. Well, yes they have got another awful good man, thats this Owen Young, head of the General Electric. He is the fellow that should have been chairman this year. He packs an awful lot of respect and ability. But I doubt if he has any idea of committing suicide So it looks like Al. He will remedy a many a mistake that was made in his name last time, and with four more years of dissatisfaction over this liquor he may round up the other five million.

Discussing the Campaign.

HAVELOCK, Neb., Nov. 22.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: So many have been expressing their opinions regarding the democratic defeat in the past campaign that I would like to say a few words to those democrats who seem to be down-hearted. I cannot consider it a defeat for true principles when fifteen and a half sovereign voters supported those principles. What I mean by sovereign voters are those who cannot be coerced for fear of losing their jobs, but who will stand by their principles no matter what the price.

In my time I have voted for president for only three men who I believed could not be controlled, and they were Blaine, Bryan, and Smith. The republican leaders knew that if Smith were elected, they could not swerve him from his sworn oath to enforce the laws and also to advise them what he believed was for the best interests for every man, woman, and child in our country.

Now Mr. Davis seems to think that all those men who have been in this fight should be replaced and I will agree with him if he is able to produce men capable of replacing them. How many young men in this last campaign came out to the front? Very few, he must admit. With a few men like Blaine or Bryan to help, we would have won.

The republican preachers claimed that if Bryan had lived he would have fought against Smith. I deny that charge. I get my authority from his book entitled, "The First Battle." The preachers in that campaign did everything they could to defeat him. Why?

And another thing, did any of those who were talking about how corrupt Tammany was tell of one corrupt act in the last fifty years? No. Now if they could not show any corruption in fifty years, how could any man be corrupt even though he affiliated with Tammany?

Bryan fought the gold standard and the republican leaders fought him and misled people in 1896. Those of us who have read his work

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright, 1928, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

What is religion coming to when religious conviction and conversion can be accomplished merely by a half hour conversation with hurrying laymen acting as deacons, which results in the signing of a card and the selection of the most convenient day for joining whatever church is near by?

If that is the religion Jesus Christ founded, mine must be a bootleg Bible. Business men and the psychologist have apparently joined forces to convince us that, after all, it is not converts that churches need, but customers.

This is a caricature rather than a description of conversion, and also one exhibiting ecclesiastical animus. Why not read as a corrective the accounts of conversion given by typical Protestants? The spiritual experiences related by men and women of transformed and serviceable lives are worthy of your serious attention and should be consulted before you further discuss the matter in hand.

Any process of regenerating grace, whether sacramentarian or evangelical, can be similarly misrepresented by ill disposed persons. What matters it how a soul's access to its redeeming God is obtained, provided He is made manifest to that soul?

I have known members of all churches whose witness to the reality of fellowship with Christ is one and the same. Yet in some instances they received it at the mass, in others at the penitent form, in still others by educational means. Neither is there need to drag in your version of the Bible, since all versions practically agree on the basic teaching of Israel and of Christianity.

Your allusion to converts versus customers is equally infelicitous. Prophets and apostles rank far higher in biblical doctrines than business men and psychologists. Consult St. Paul on conversion and you will not have to reduce its divine power to the level of the market place or the vagaries of psychology.

Will you please state again what, upon careful review, are the merits of Swedenborg, and gratify many of your readers.

I have read with interest the able letter which accompanies this question. From what it relates and all I can gather elsewhere Swedenborg seems to have believed that the truth as he saw and proclaimed it would spread itself and prevail. If this was his epectation it has not been fulfilled.

In his famous essay on the prophet, Emerson advertised the gist of his teachings. Yet has he ever had a great expositor? In my college days Prof. R. L. Tafel and Dr. Garth Wilkinson were his able advocates. But surely Swedenborg is worthy of the study of a first-class interpreter who will do for him what Huxley did for Darwin and the theory of evolution. His scattered principles, buried in numerous volumes and expressed in a prolix style, should be resolved into a coherent system.

It will not be an easy task, and the scholar who undertakes it must be prepared to spend laborious days and nights upon it. Yet until it is accomplished we shall not know Swedenborg as he deserves to be known, and consequently his following will be limited.

I wonder if his development is not paralleled by that of Tolstoy. The careers of both celebrities were sharply divided into two parts. The Russian was first a novelist and then a seer. Swedenborg was first a scientist and then a seer. As a scientist his standing is good. As a seer it is even better. Yet he never seems to have acquired the range of influence exercised by Plotinus and the later mystics. This can only be the fault of presentation, for in intellect, knowledge, sincerity and practical endeavor Swedenborg was the superior of the majority of mystics. As I have said in previous answers, he molded the spiritual thinking of not a few leading men and women. Had he written more simply and directly it is a fair inference that his light would have shone more clearly for the multitude.

Which do you consider the best histories of a great war and the best biography of a great soldier?

I presume Caesar's Commentaries take classic rank, but William Napier, who was brought up on them and on Plutarch's "Lives," wrote a "History of the Peninsular War" which is one of my favorite works.

There are many crudities and mistakes in Napier's account of the prolonged struggle in Spain and Portugal that ended in Wellington driving every marshal of France opposed to him over the Pyrenees and across the plains of France. But the literary genius of the book is marvelous and its knowledge is not less comprehensive than its emotional appeal is powerful.

For the best biography of a great soldier I select Colonel Henderson's "Life of Stonewall Jackson," who showed that men and not mountains, quick daring balanced by intimacy with the territory and not numbers, decide the fate of battle.

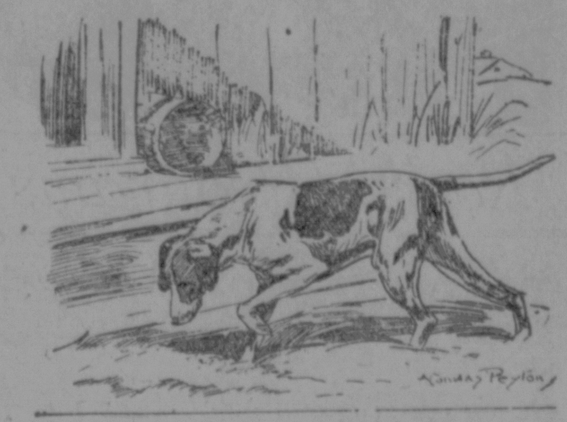
Famous Pets Of Famous People

GAUTIER'S DOG LUTHER, WHICH KEPT WATCH ON HIM AFTER HE LEFT HOME AND MOTHER.



"So Luther gave himself up to chasing rats."

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

Theophile Gautier, the celebrated French writer, had a great deal of fondness for both cats and dogs, though his partiality seems to have extended more to cats than to dogs.

He pleaded in extenuation that there was in his liking for canines "a strong admixture of fear" because "these animals, excellent, and faithful, devoted as they are, may at any moment run mad."

Gautier whimsically writes: "But, apart from this, dogs somehow produce a disquieting effect upon us. Their eyes are so deep, so intense; they place themselves before us with such an interrogative air that it is embarrassing. Goethe did not like, any more than ourselves, this gaze which seems to assimilate a man's most secret thoughts. He would drive the poor animals away and say to them, 'You have done your best; you shall not devour my identity.'"

One of the earliest dogs to claim the affections of Gautier was a handsome red and white pointer, with brown ears, called Luther.

Luther had lost his original master and finally adopted the Gautiers and their home, which was then at Passy. He was a hunting dog, but the Gautiers were not hunters, so Luther gave himself up to chasing rats, and the author says he became as proficient at this sport as a fox terrier. However, he had greater gifts than this.

Soon after the pointer had become a part of the household at Passy, Theophile Gautier took his "final flight from the family nest," establishing himself in bohemian quarters with artist and literary friends in a quarter of Paris near the Louvre. From then on, Luther took upon himself the duty of making Gautier a daily visit.

He left Passy each morning at an early hour, followed the Quai de Bolly and the Cours-la-Reine, and arrived at Mr. Theophile's apartment about eight o'clock, just as he was waking up.

Invariably he followed the same procedure. Scratching at the door, which was speedily opened for him, he threw himself upon Gautier with joyous yelping, put his forepaws upon the young man's knees, received a few caresses, got down and made a rapid inspection of the room, and then set out on his homeward journey.

Arrived at Passy, he ran at once to Gautier's mother, wagged his tail, and barked, saying as plainly as word's, according to the writer, "Do not be anxious. I have seen the young master and he is well."

Having delivered himself of his message, he would lap a bowl of water, eat his porridge, stretch himself near the easy chair of Madame Gautier, whom he particularly loved, and nap an hour or two to refresh himself from the labor of his self-imposed journey.

Commenting on Luther's assumption of this daily duty, which had not been suggested to him in any way, Gautier says:

"Those who hold that animals do not think and are incapable of putting two ideas together, may explain as best they can this daily visit which kept up the family relations, and gave to the old birds in the nest regular news of their recently escaped fledgling."

Luther had a sad end. He became silent and morose. Eventually from bits of news received here and there, the Gautiers reached the conclusion, with good reason, that he had been killed as a mad dog. They believed he had fled from home so that he might not be led to bite his master.

Here and There

The French Giant.

(The Grand Rapids Herald.)

France has turned once more to Raymond Poincare as the pilot of the ship of state. When radical members of his ministry retired out of lack of sympathy with current measures, the last Poincare government crashed. The premier resigned along with his aids. But, after more than a week of surveying the other potential leaders of government, President Doumergue again has given authority to Poincare. France has no man who is his equal; and, for that matter, where is there another of like stature in all of Europe? He has been the key statesman of France for nearly 20 years. Since he first assumed the premiership in 1912, he has been, except for brief intervals, either at the tiller of the ship or on the presidential bridge constantly. Since 1912 England has intrusted her government to Asquith, Lloyd George, MacDonald, etc. The men who were high in the councils of government during the war seldom now are heard of in England. But Poincare, who once was feared by the world at large as unstable, continues to dominate France. During the war as president he was the man who dared to call the redoutable Clemenceau, hitherto feared as a superradical, to the headship of government. Since the war it has been Poincare as premier who has formulated the financial policies which gradually are extricating France from the post-bellum fiscal slough. Gladstone figured in the government of England for 62 years first entering parliament in 1832 and retiring for the last time from the premier's post in 1892. Poincare does not approach that record. But he has been for 41 years active in the government of France, first entering the chamber of deputies in 1887. It was 16 years ago that he formed his first government as premier. He has weathered the storms of France's greatest menace, and has survived, lacking some of the fire of war time, but still at 68 a virile figure. France is not lacking in other leadership. Briand for example, is a brilliant diplomat and student of foreign affairs. But France knows her leaders; and with eloquent constancy she turns to Poincare for safe guidance. Americans cannot sympathize wholly with him in his attempts to balance an unwieldly budget, so long as the

Three Governors Appear In This Old Photo of Former University of Nebraska Students

Standing: Horace Whitmore, Ernest Gerard, Eugene W. Brown, Billy Wilson, William Johnston.
Seated: George Dern, Ed Strode, James Johnston, Arthur Weaver, Adam McMullen.

Were they collegiate—and how! Back in the days of '94, long before the hatless era had struck the campus of Nebraska university, when only Eskimos appeared in raccoon coats, and when ankle socks were still to be thought of, three men who have been prominent politically, in this state and others as well, were students at the University of Nebraska, and were charter members of Beta Tau chapter, Delta Tau Delta.

These men were Adam McMullen, present governor of Nebraska, Arthur Weaver, governor-elect, and George Dern, governor of Utah, who was re-elected to his second term this fall, and about the only survivor of the republican landslide in his state.

Surely there is never a boy who does not dream of being a conquering hero, but only too often is he content with dreams. However, Adam McMullen, Arthur Weaver and George Dern were spurred on to bigger and better things through various influences.

In case no one would recognize him, Governor-elect Weaver is the rather poetic looking person who is reclining gracefully on the arm of the chair occupied by the man seated in the center. His Delt pin is on the right lapel of his coat, and we can't help but wonder why.

Governor McMullen is seated in the front row at the right, looking very much as though he knew what it were all about. In the front row on the left is none other than Gov. George Dern.

Governor Dern, by the way, had a very clever campaign slogan this year which, no doubt, won him many votes. His opponent's name was Maybe, and so, the slogan read like this: "We want a Dern good governor and we don't mean Maybe." Judging from his appearance he must have been as popular in school as the other two governors.

In the same group with the three governors, were other Delts who also made worthwhile progress in their varied lines. Ed Strode, for instance, was considered one of Nebraska's foremost attorneys, and the two Johnston brothers, William and James, have also won enviable places in the legal world, so it is said. Wilmer W. Wilson is now a member of the supreme court commission.

Recently Mr. Weaver, Governor Dern and Governor McMullen spent a short time together at the executive mansion, when Governor and Mrs. Dern were guests at the McMullen home last week end. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver came from Falls City and the three charter members of Delta Tau Delta talked over old times, and plans for future activities.

Names of Lincoln People Trace Far Back to Ancient Woods, Valleys, and Even Land

"In the New York city directory the fourth most common name is Murphy, and the fifth is Meyer. These names rank fifty-seventh and forty-first respectively for frequency in Lincoln. The first three names in New York for popularity are Smith, Brown and Miller, and these rank first, sixth and third in Lincoln, where Johnson is second.

"Miller is second in Philadelphia, thirtieth in Boston, and fourth in Baltimore. Jones is second in England and Wales, twenty-third in New York, and seventh in Lincoln. The names which rank eighth and ninth in America's largest city are Cohen and Levy. There are but thirteen Cohens in Lincoln, two Levys. Levi appears four times. Robinson is twelfth in England, thirty-ninth in New York, and twenty-third locally. In Chicago Johnson is first and Anderson third. The latter is fourth in Lincoln.

33 Myers In Lincoln.

"Olson ranks forty-third in Lincoln, Meyer forty-first, and Schmidt thirty-ninth. Hansen is nineteenth and Taylor, fourteenth. In Chicago these four names are all ahead of Taylor. In that same city Hoffman and Becker are ahead of Ward. Hoffman is found just twenty-seven times in Lincoln, Becker forty-eight and Ward, which ranks fifty-sixth, occurs fifty-three times. There are thirty-three Myers in Lincoln, but in Philadelphia this name ranks just below Robinson."

With that introduction, Miss Pearl Joan Cosgrave begins an interesting survey of "Surnames of Greatest Frequency in Lincoln." It is a study made recently at the University of Nebraska.

Continuing her investigation, Miss Cosgrave says there are more Smiths in the United States than Johnsons, and more Johnsons than Browns, according to one authority. The Browns are third in this list of the ten names of greatest total national usage. Of the surnames in the Lincoln city directory for 1926-27, Smith is first with 414. Schmidt appears 64 times, Schmitt 17, Schmitte once, Smyth, Smitz and Smitty, each once. There are four Schmitzes. Smith with its variants total 504. The United States has 1,304,300 Smiths.

Appear Most Often.

The 10 names of greatest national frequency are Smith, Johnson, Brown, Williams, Jones, Miller, Davis, Anderson, Wilson and Moore, in the order named. In Lincoln, the order follows Smith, Johnson, Miller, Anderson, Wilson, Brown, Jones, Davis, Thompson, and Nelson.

Of the 1,024,320 Johnsons in the country, 387 live in Lincoln. Five Johannes, 18 Johns, one Johnes, 2 Johansens bring the total to 413. Johnston appears 57 times and Johnstone once.

Three hundred Millers reside in Lincoln, according to Miss Cosgrave. Milner, the oldest form of the name is used three times, the Scotch Millar once and Mueller 13 times. Muller appears three times, the Scandinavian Moller two, Moeller 12, and Mohler four, with a total of 338.

Lincoln has 260 Andersons, one Andreson, eight Andersons, or a total of 269. Wilson is numbered 212 times, Wills 3, Willson three, and Wilsen one, bringing the number to 219. Brown, nationally third, appears 205 times in the city, Browne five times, and Braun seven. Jones appears 170 times here, Jonas twice, and Joneson once. Davis is used 168 times in Lincoln, Davies 14 times and Davison the same. Williams has 135 persons, Williamson 15 times and Wilhelm 17. Moore is found locally 113 times, Mohr 17, Moor once and Muir—the Scotch form, according to Miss Cosgrave — three times.

139 Thompson Names.

Thompson appears 139 times in the directory, with Thompsen adding five, Thomsen one, Thomson two, Tompson two, Tompkins three, Thoms four, Tomson three, Thomas 94, and Thomason three. Nelson, the tenth in popularity locally, is listed 138 times, Neilson 6 times, Neilson twice, Neilsen once, Nielsen nine and Nielson once.

Williams ranks eleventh in Lincoln, followed by Clark with 132, with seven Clarkes and one Clarkson. Peterson, thirteenth in rank, has 123 listings, Pedersen five, Pederson three, Peter four, Peters 32, and Petersen 29.

Taylor holds fourteenth place with 122, Campbell, with 115, fifteenth and Moore, tenth nationally, is sixteenth here. Becker appears 105 times, Martin 104, Hansen 96, Hanson 32, Scott 95, Wright and Robinson, each 89, White, Young and Hall each 83, Lewis 82, and Allen 81, with Allan twice, and Allyn three times.

Graham is listed 80 times, Grahm twice, Adams 76, Cook 75, Koch 28, Harris 74, Wood 73, Woods 52, Walker 73, Green and King 72, Hill 70, Roberts 64, Robertson 46, Robinson 89, Pierce 63, Meyer 62, Jackson 61, and Olson 60. In the Lincoln list of names, Meyer appears 62 times, Meyers 49, Myers 53, Meier 13, and Myer once. Jackson 61, Olson 60 and Olsen 11; Schneider 59, Bauer 58, Stewart 58, Phillips 56, Fisher and Marshall 56, Weber, Mills, Bailey 55, Long 54, Morris, Reed, Murphy 53, Lee 52, Ward, Evans 53, Sullivan 52, and Carter 51.

Brehm In First Place.

Of the surnames in the local directory between thirty and fifty times Brehm is first with 49. Others include Becker, Kelly, Gardner, Mason, Hunt, Erickson, Bennett, Cox 48, Larson and Elliott, 47, Butler and Jenkins 46, Turner, Perry, Dean and Bell 45, Wolfe, Wells, Sherman and Foster 44, Stevens and Jensen 43, George, Craig and Carlson 42, Watson 41, Swanson 40. In the thirties are Hudson and Wagner each numbering 39, Reynolds, Chapman, Mitchell and Carr 38, Stone, Cunningham and Rogers 37, McCoy 36 Richards, Homes, Abbott and Morgan 35, Armstrong, Porter, Ferguson, and Schwartz 34. Little 33, Austin, Palmer, Edwards, Wheeler, Howard, McDonald, James, Welch, Hamilton, Andrews, Warner and Coleman 32. Names appearing 31 times are Ray, Amend, Stroh, Zimmerman and Parker. Sharp, Loos, Griffin, Arnold, Black, Collins, Rice, Gibson, Schultz, and Roth are listed 30 times each.

Miss Cosgrave has found that the most popular patronymic surname locally is Johnson. Variants are Johannes, Johns, Johnes, and Johansen, meaning the son of John, as do Jones and Jennings. "Because of the lack of fixed spelling at the period when surnames were adopted, many Johnsons, today, are cognate in name with Johnstone," Miss Cosgrave writes. Jonas, Joneson, Jensen, Jenson, Janssen and Janson are also patronymics. The second most popular patronymic surname in Lincoln is Anderson. The Johnsons and Andersons are followed by Wilson, Jones, Davis, Thompson, Nelson, Williams, Peterson and Hansen.

Has Many Variations.

Variants of Anderson are found in Andrews, Andersen, Andreas, Andros, Andrus and Andreson. Wills, Willson and Wilsen are all varients of Wilson, the patronymic form of William, or Will, Wills having dropped the "son" of Davison, and Davidson is a patronymic of David. Nelsen, Nielsen, Nielson are variants of Nelson. Neil is from Nigel and gives the patronymics Neilson and Neilsen. Hudson and Hutson were sons of Hud, a very common medieval name, Miss Cosgrave found. Watson was the son of Wat, or Walter, regularly pronounced Water at an earlier date. Millson and Mills are the sons of Miles, though some forms of Miles, Mill and Miller have become confused. Alexander has given us Sanders, Saunders and Sanderson as patronymic forms.

The patronymic prefix Fitz claims Fitzgerald with eleven, Fitzpatrick with seven, Fitzsimmons with three, Fitz with two, and Fitzer, Fitzsim, and Fitzsimons with one each. The O's have O'Connor noted seventeen times, with 26 other O's in varying numbers, and Mc, a patronymic prefix, appears 275 times, with McCoy leading with 36.

Martin Most Common.

Of baptismal names used unaltered as surnames, according to the writer, the most common in Lincoln is Martin, appearing 104 times. Marten is perhaps from the animal. Thomas comes second with 94 and Lewis third with 82. Harris, Harriss, and Hawkins are from Henry. Henry turned to Harry except in Scotland and the English kings of that name were always called Harry by their subjects. Mason is derived from Matthew, and Thomas but Mason is usually from Thomas, and Abbott is a diminutive of Ab, which stands for Abel, or Abraham.

The most ppoular surname derived fro ma place, in Lincoln, is Moore, Scott, Hall, Wood, Green, Hills, Lees and Woods follow in the order given. Marsh occurs 23 times, and the Scandinavian forms for marshy land, Kerr and Carr, are found 9 and 38 times, respectively. There are 15 Heaths and Whitmarsh is also listed.

Continuing the survey of Lincoln names, Miss Cosgrave makes a study of Wood. "If it is a small wood, it is called Strode, or Straud. It may be a Redwood. People living about the region may be given such names as Atwood, Woodside, Underwood, Dubois and Underdown. The Forester, who loked after the forest, was called the Woodward. Woodworth, or Foster. Graves and Grove we find as well as Groves, and Grover. Graves is sometimes official however.

Peculiar Derivations.

"In northern England Shaw was almost as common a word as wood itself, and Holt was popular in the east and south. Broad-shaw has given Bradshaw, and also find Belshaw. A Slade was an opening in the wood, and glade or valley in the wood was called a Dean. This sometimes becomes Deahn, and included Dryden, Bradden, Snowden, Denner and Denman. A triagular piece of land was a Gore, and we also find Gordon. Hedge, and Hedges, have given us Hayes, Hays, Haynes, Haw, Hawes, Hay, Hayden and Haydon. Cowden and Borden also appear locally.

"Going from Wood and Field, we find it may be a Brownfield, a Whitfield, or a Greenfield. If it is well taken care of it is a Beauchamp or Fairfield, perhaps. The Fielder may have several Fields, under his care, and in the course of time may cal lhis Field a Champ, Champe, Shamp or Schamp. A hollow in the hills was called a Combe, sometimes Comb, Combs, Duncombe or Whitcomb."

Aces Club Is of Special Service to Young Man In His Years of Adjustment

Aces Club of the Young Men's Division of the Y. M. C. A.
Upper row—J. C. Hollingworth, Cliff Carter, Myron Busch, Henry Baker, L. E. Dade, W. A. Brokaw.
The following were members, who were not in the picture: Roy B. Hackman, Richard Hufnagle, R. V. Matthews, C. C. Robinson, Lloyd Walter, Wendell Woods.

The Lincoln Young Men's Christian association recognized the importance of working with young men of 18 to 24 and organized its program with their development in mind. In this period, that between leaving the parental home and establishing one's own home, arise such problems as vocational choice, adjustment, selection of a life partner, range of religious, social and physical affiliations, and in fact the whole of life's philosophy.

Two years ago eight young men organized what is now known as the Aces club. The letter of the name "aces" make up the first letters of the words, athletics, Christianity, education and sociability. Their purpose is to promote the mental, social, religious, and physical development of its members.

Sponsor Week-end Camps.

During the two years fifty-six young men have been identified with the club. At present the the original eight are still members of the club. They are Raymond Abernethy, Paul Caulk, Dick Hufnagle, and Rex Matthews. This club has been very active in promoting club basketball, inter-club swimming.

A membership campaign was held last spring. The club has been the back-bone of the camping program for young men, having sponsored a total of six week-end camps during the past two years. The club members have affiliated and co-operated with the Y. W. C. A. in social programs during the summer and winter seasons.

The Aces club is now under the leadership of Merle Wissler, who was recently elected president to launch forth on a program of activities for the winter season which is in keeping with the boys character development and program carried on in the association for young men. Through this club they have developed initiative leadership ability determining their own program and are rendering valuable service to the Y. M. C. A.

NEBRASKA BOYS AND GIRLS ENTER NATIONAL CONTEST

lated a fine herd and a satisfactory bank account. Borrowing $30 to buy his first pig, he has since then bought all his feed and sows with his own money, besides saving money. Anthony has practically become a local leader, as well as a club member. He is a firm believer in starting with the best stock, and as proof he offers that he sold one pig for twice the amount his original sow cost.

One of the prominent club boys is Watson Norris of Eagle, a member of the Eagle Blue Ribbon corn club, which has gained its own fame in the state. Watson is one of its strongest members and a leader among the others. A corn club member for four years, he this year was adjudged corn club champion.

He helped with the county exhibit which placed first and displayed the contrast between the amount of water required by sunflowers and corn. It emphasized the importance of clean cultivation.

Marguerite Holcomb of Broken Bow, Nebraska's champion 4-H food judge, and Fairy Wooters of Broken Bow are to represent the state as its food team. Marguerite placed first in food judging at the fair and Fairy third, and together they form the champion team. These girls are likewise the members of the champion home ec judging team.

Health Champions.

Nebraska's healthiest boy and girl are Clyde Gadekin of Kimball and Ruth Long of Cowles. In the annual contest at the state fair, Ruth scored 97.6 and Clyde 95.45. They will compete with other healthy youngsters from all parts of the country when in Chicago.

The members of the 4-H livestock judging team do their work previous to the arrival of some of thecontestants of the congress, but they are a vital part of the meeting. Irvin Nolte of Eagle, William of Nebraska, and Harold Wahl of Eagle are the three members. Clyde Walker, former Smith-Hughes instructor at Eagle, has removed to Oregon, and the boys are being taken by L. R. Snipes, county agent, and C. S. Maddox, state agent in charge of livestock at the college of agriculture.

Harold Moline and Milton Thorson, both of Mead, are going to Chicago to demonstrate the tattoing of hogs every afternoon at the international Live Stock exposition, Union stock yards, held at the same time as the club congress. Boys from three Nebraska and six Iowa counties entered teams in the recent Ak-Sar-Ben live stock show in Omaha and the Mead youngsters placed first. They are given their expenses by the Tuberculosis Eradication committee of the Live Stock Exchange.

The state champion team in farm demonstration will also attend the congress. Clifford and Wayne Domingo are the members.

These champion boys and girls are to attend a conference, where they will gain inspiration from other young people interested in the same projects, and will receive a number of intangible benefits. The congress establishes ideals and standards for club work by giving opportunity for competitive exhibits, demonstrations and judging ability, furnishes the visitors an educational program with tours about the city, contributing to their education, and extends the 4-H club movement so that it may reach additional thousands of rural youths.

Martel District No. 22 First In State To Meet Requirements Needed to Qualify As A Superior Standard Rural School

District No. 22, Martel school, Lancaster county, has been designated as the first Superior Standard Rural school in Nebraska. It scored niney-six points.

This school has an up-to-date, attractive brick school building with a good-sized porch with roof. In addition to the class rooms there are two cloakrooms, a library room, and a full sized basement. In addition to meeting the requirements for a Standard school, this school has a well sodded lawn, neatly fenced with Spanish barberry hedge of 320 plants, planted with twenty-five growing trees, twelve tamarack bushes and 126 small lilac bushes.

This school has a basement which serves as a work and play room, as well as a community room, cloak rooms, and library room, and is lighted by electricity. The library contains 105 juvenile books with not less than ten suitable for each grade a good school encyclopedia, large unabridged dictionary and thirteen desk dictionaries, and United States and university extension bulletins.

P. T. A. Assisted.

A progressive Parent-Teacher association is co-operating with the school. The teacher has complied with the standards for better rural school teaching. The school is well equipped with pictures: Monarch of Glen, Can't You Talk, Lincoln, Hoovver, and Old Ironsides. The Parent-Teacher association and the school recently purchased a piano for the school.

Miss Louise Hornung is the teacher and the members of the board are: Mr. Ernest Freye, director, Mr. John Brandt, and Mr. Carl Brandt, Martel.

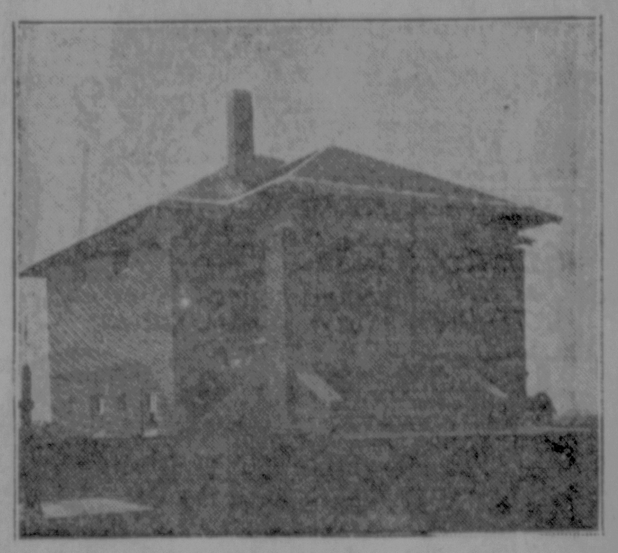
There are at this time 361 standard schools in Nebraska.

In order to be a standard school a school must score 75 points of a possible 100 points and meet the following minimum requirements:

1. The school term must be at least nine months in length.
2. The teacher must have one year of experience or the equivalent in training.
3. School grounds must be adequate, well-drained, and kept clean. One or more acres of ground is also recommended.
4. There shall be a good well on the grounds or nearby and sanitary methods for the use of water must be provided.
5. The school must provide single desks of suitable size adjusted to the needs of the children, and the room must contain at least fifteen square feet of floor space to each child.

Abundant Light and Air.

6. The school room must be lighted from the left or the left and rear with the window area equivalent to one-fifth of the floor space.
7. Heating must be of approved type and the room must contain 200 cubic feet of air space for each child.
8. The school must be equipped with teacher's desk and chair, dictionary, globe, maps, blackboards and up-to-date textbooks.
9. Sanitary methods of cleaning must be employed.
10. Outbuildings must be placed as far apart as possible, and kept clean and free from marks. In front of each there should be a board shield screening the entrance.



The first superior standard rural school of the state is located in District No. 22 at Martel, and has been so adjudged because the building is well equipped, the teacher has proper training, the surroundings are sanitary and well kept, the patrons co-operate with the board and the teacher, and the course of study is well covered by the pupils. W. H. H. Moore erected the school and presented it to the district a year ago.

Superior" Requirements.

In order to be a superior school, the school must meet the following requirements in addition to meeting the requirements for a standard school:

1. There must be at least one acre of school yard, neatly fenced, covered with a good sod and planted with trees, shrubs and flowers, and concrete or cinder walks to the entrance and to outbuildings.
2. There must be a well equipped with sanitary drinking fountain within doors.
3. Besides the schoolroom, there should be a basement, work and play room, cloak room, and a library room.
4. The library shall contain at least eighty juvenile books, ten suitable for each grade, a standard school encyclopedia, suitable dictionaries, and a supply of the bulletins published by the United States government and the University of Nebraska, useful in the school and in the community.
5. There must be in operation a Parent-Teacher association which secures the hearty co-operation of the parents with the school.

Need Re-inspecting.

6. When the teacher, under whose administration the school is recognized as "superior," ceases to teach school, it must be re-inspected to remain so recognized. The teacher should meet the requirements of the "Standards for Better Rural School Teaching." The teacher shall hold not less than a first grade elementary certificate. The school must score 95 per cent.
7. In conclusion, before a school can be recognized as "superior," the teaching and the schoolhouse must in every respect be suitable to the best work; it must be equipped with everything necessary; it must be taught by a teacher of superior qualifications and skill; the course of study must be well covered by the pupils; the people of the district must co-operate to make the school "superior" in every respect. The work of the teacher, the pupils, and the patrons, is of first importance.

Before asking for inspection with a view to being recognized as a "suerior" school, the school should be thoroughly inspected by the county superintendent to make sure that all the requirements have been met. If, in his or her judgment, the school is up to the requirements he should arrange for inspection of the school by a representative of the state department at the time that the high schools of the county are being inspected.

W. W. H. Moore who erected this modern school and presented it to the district gives all the credit o the Parent-Teacher association, the community, and County Superintendent Charlotte Alexander. He said, "You should have seen the army of men laying the sod and working for the school. The credit belongs to the community. All the efforts have been made for the the little folks."

McCook Junior Notes

Convocation on Tuesday was given over to a program of student talent. Miss Eleanor Suess, Miss Estelle Zink, and Miss Elizabeth Manley gave a number of violin, flute, and piano trios. Miss Zink is not a student of tht college, but his played with Miss Suess and Miss Manley a number of times. The trios were followed by two humorous readings given by Miss Mildred Meyers. The program was completed with two piano solos played by Russell Whitaker.

The W. S. G. A. gave a luncheon to the women of the college and the women faculty members on Thursday noon. Miss Eleanor Suess was in charge of the program. She had secured Mrs. M. T. Boulware to give her reminisences of a Paderewski recital.

The W. S. G. A. board met on Thursday afternoon. They completed plans for a Christmas festival to be sponsored by them and planned a series of convocations for women.

Miss Gladys Tipton, director of music for the college, led the Friday afternoon session of the music section of the McCook Women's club.

Miss Helen Shurtleff and Miss Gertrude Clark entertained at bridge on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. A. N. Lineburg. Mrs. J. A. True won high honors.

The third episode of the history film, "The Pilgrim," was shown on Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium.

The cast for the operetta to be put on soon by the college glee clubs was announced on Tuesday. Those having principal parts are the Misses Mabel Warner, Margaret Finn, Mildred Meyers, and Martha Jones and the Messer. Charles McCarl, Russell Whitaker, Frank Uridil, Hervon Snider, Harold Kleckner and Thomas Egan.

AFTER ALL, Christmas shopping is merely shopping, and shopping is seeking the best assortments, service and values the shops afford. In order to secure the best results, shopping should be done leisurely, thoughtfully; with the best arranged, most extensive and comprehensive displays from which to choose; with the best attention and assistance the sales-person can accord. Such shopping advantages can only be assured to the Christmas shopper who shops early. It pays—it pleases.

The Lincoln Star

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I've noticed considerable talk about a picture to be filmed called "Noah's Ark." Has it been made yet, and if so by whom and who are the players? Or is it going to be made, or is it just a legitimate show that is making a hit?

How old is George K. Arthur? Is he married? How tall is he? He looks so short on the screen beside big, tall Karl Dane. I like him immensely.

How tall is Monty Banks? He is another small looking man on the screen.

I was sorry to learn of Larry Semon's death. He was always one of my favorites in comedies. I didn't like his conception of "The Wizard of Oz," but that's neither here nor there, now. How old was Larry Semon and was he married?

Many thanks for answering my questions. AN INQUISITIVE FAN.

"Noah's Ark" is a new Warner Brothers Vitaphone production. It is said to represent an outlay of $2,000,000 so it's quite some feature, you see, and was worthy of presentation at the Grauman's Chinese Theatre where it is now being shown. As you may surmise, it is founded on the Biblical story. Dolores Costello, George O'Brien, Noah Beery and Louise Fazenda head an all-star cast.

Mr. Arthur admits that he was born in 1899 and has a wife and baby. He's not so tall, only five feet six, but at that he can top Monty Banks by an inch.

Mr. Semon was married to Dorothy Dwan, who appeared with him in several of his comedies. He was 39.

Dear Movie Editor—I'm wondering why more of the fans don't admire Norma Shearer. I think she's one of the sweetest, most charming players we have. She takes so many different kinds of roles, and always plays each of them so well. I saw her first in "A Tower of Lies" several years ago and immediately fell in love with her. Is she married and if so to whom? What is her home address?

Who played with John Barrymore in "Beau Brummel?"

Is George O'Brien a brother to Eugene O'Brien?? Are either of them married and if so to whom?

I'm glad that Lila Lee and James Kirkwood have separated. I always did think he was too old for her. A man that's that old has no business marrying a girl young enough to be his daughter.

I think Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque are just an ideal match. I hope they continue to be happy together. I like them both as players, too. I'd like to see them together in a picture once.

Richard Dix is my screen hero. I just adore his looks, and he is a wonderful actor, too. I never miss a picture in which he appears. I can hardly wait until I see him in "Redskin," as I noticed by your columns that some of the picture will be in colors, and I'm so anxious to see how he really looks.

Guess I'd better step aside now so the "waiting list" will not have too long a wait. Faithfully, PANSY.

Miss Shearer fails to divulge the home address, but if you write her at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio, Culver City, Calif., she might accidentally send you a photograph for those words of commendation.

Irving Thalberg, one of the M-G-M executives, is her husband.

Mary Astor was the beautiful and interesting heroine of "Beau Brummel."

Eugene and George are related in no way whatsoever, except professionally and matrimonially. Both are single.

I'm surprised at you, Pansy, rejoicing over the severing of "those whom God hath joined together."

It may be possible to see Rod and Vilma together on the screen at some later date. Hollywood is a city of magic, and it wouldn't require much art to feature Rod opposite Vilma in a picture. Just a suggestion from Mr. Goldwyn, and Rod's name on the dotted line.

You will see Mr. Dix as an Indian, and not "as is" in "Redskin." Don't see how he ever stayed single so long with his vast appeal to the fair sex.

Dear Movie Editor—I saw "Wings" and of course I did my share of weeping over it. I'll confess, however, that I didn't enjoy it quite as much as I would have had I seen it six months ago, because all of my friends have seen it in other cities, and save written me or told me all and have written me or told me all about it. Of course that always spoils a picture for me but nevertheless it was a noteworthy production.

Clara Bow was adorable as always. I just love her. She is my favorite actress. I don't see any comparison between her and Alice White. I think Clara has it "all over" Alice any day.

I saw Richard Arlen in "She's a Sheik" with Bebe Daniels, and was surprised to see him again in "Wings." He reminds me a great deal of Richard Dix, or rather what Richard might have been ten years ago, because I judge Richard Arlen is much younger than Richard Dix.

I thought they showed too many air fights in "Wings," for one thing, since I must criticize. It became monotonous after the first few, and lost its thrill. I think about half of them would have been plenty. And I did enjoy the race between Charles Rogers and his friend. They both did some clever work in those scenes.

Well, I wouldn't be a fan if I couldn't criticize a little. I haven't any questions to ask this time so I'll give the space to some other anxious fan. Thank you, K. K. K.

Dear Movie Editor—Here we are, clad in armour, so the eggs and bricks thrown from the pens of the Clara Bow lovers will just slide off and do no harm.

Can't tell me that the majority of fans are simple minded enough to enjoy such flapper stuff forever. I'll wager every one of the defenders are weakening a little by now and maybe turning over to Alice White. It's first one favorite and then another with the movie going public. They are all like a bunch of sheep, have to follow the leader. I believe in having a mind of your own and expressing your opinions.

But I did cause much agitation when I expressed my views of Clara, didn't I? That's the reason I've been dodging for so long. I thought I'd just let the excitement die down a little.

But why did they cast her in "Wings?" I wanted to see the picture, because I had heard so much about it, and here I had to sit through several thousand feet of Clara again, I'm still of the same opinion, too. I can't hand her a thing. She's too frivolous, light, empty, just a glorified flapper, with no talent in dramatic lines.

But here I am, causing more torment among her followers. Dear me, I must learn to keep my comments concerning the young lady to myself. But why did they cast her in "Wings?" CRITIC.

You take your life in your hands when you step out before Clara' fans with more comment concerning her. You are a brave, venturesome person.

Dear Movie Editor—I certainly do miss seeing Bill Hart and his Pinto in pictures. I always loved them so. And Tom Mix and Tony seem to have deserted us also, at least I haven't seen them for a long time. I am very fond of animals, particularly horses. Do you happen to have any information on hand that you could give me concerning Pinto and Tony. I appreciate your kindness. A HORSE LOVER.

There's an old saying that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," but in the case of Tom and Bill it's through their horses. Mr. Hart is so fond of Pinto that he has written books concerning him, and you have doubtless seen the picture that Tom filmed in which he "took a back seat" for Tony.

And Tony has a double, too. Mr. Mix has groomed Buster to perform the dangerous stunts in his pictures. Buster played most of the difficult scenes in the picture in which Tony was supposed to be the star.

Tony was a small colt running behind his mother with a vegetable vender's wagon on Western avenue, when Mr. Mix noticed him and purchased him for $12.50. Needless to say it was one of the best investments Mr. Mix ever made. He trained Tony, himself, to do the tricks that have made him famous. And Tony is capable of doing everything for which he uses a double.

Pinto is a direct descendant of Red Top, a pure blooded Arabian sent to General Grant by some European admirer at the close of the war. General Grant had no place for Red Top in Washington, so he sent him to a friend in Nevada, where he ran loose on the plains. Pinto came from the same neighborhood and so much resembled Red Top that Mr. Hart believes there is no doubt but that he is one of the descendants. Pinto served Mr. Hart well for about twelve years on the screen and is now enjoying a rest.

Dear Movie Editor—I think it's just awful the way people impose upon your good nature by asking you impossible questions, but here am I doing the same thing.

Several years ago I saw Ramon Novarro in a picture that made a big impression on me, in fact, I doubt if he has ever done such wonderful work since. I just can't recall the title, but perhaps if I give you some of the details you may be able to tell me what it was, and that is what I wish to know.

Alice Terry played with him, I am sure. It was a costume picture, and seems to me that the story dealt with the French Revolution, because I have a distinct recollection of some of the characters, such as Danton, Robespierre and Marie Antoinette. There were many mob scenes as I recall, and quite a thrilling love episode. Lewis Stone, by the way, had a prominent part in the picture. It must have been about five years ago that I saw it. I don't know whether this description will mean anything to you or not, but if you can supply me with the title, I shall be everlastingly grateful to you. Sincerely ALMA L.

No imposition at all, I assure you. I'm only happy to be of service to you and the rest of the fans with any information that I may be able to give. Your picture, I should say, is "Scaramouche." It's been so long since I saw it that I am a little hazy as to the context, but Alice Terry, Ramon Novarro and Lewis Stone all did some unusually capable work in the feature. Rex Ingram, as you perhaps recall, directed the production and it was released as a super-feature.

Dear Movie Editor—May I come in for a short visit with you today? I enjoy reading your "answers to the fans" in the Sunday paper, and find most of my questions answered before I get around to write in concerning them.

Corinne Griffith is my favorite star, but I don't very often see anything about her in your columns. I think she is an aristocrat in every sense of the word. She is beautiful, and graceful and wears her clothes with distinction. I never miss her pictures if it's at all possible to see them.

I noticed that she is making "The Divine Lady." I am so glad because I happened to read the book and I couldn't help thinking of her as the heroine all the time I was reading it, so you can imagine how delighted I was when I learned that she was going to play in it. Do you happen to know what picture she is working on now? Is she married and if so to whom? Has she any children? How long has she been in pictures and what was her occupation before she became a motion picture player? Also, how old is she?

Isn't Pauline Frederick making pictures now? I always liked her, too. I wish we could have a return of some of the old favorites. We have so many new ones bobbing up that I don't enjoy pictures as much as I used to when I could go and visit Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Pauline Frederick, and other old-timers.

Hoping I have not taken up too much of your time, I am

AN OLD TIMER.

Corinne accepts your praise with her most gracious bow. Fan letters are the only means the film players have of hearing their applause. Miss Griffith has been a general favorite over so many years that there is little left to be told about her. That is why she seldom appears on this page. It has been at least fourteen years since she made her first screen appearance.

She was a professional dancer and a beauty contest winner before she made her film debut. She started out as an extra and soon became a featured player for Vitagraph productions.

After several years as a Vitagraph player she went over to First National, where she starred in "Black Oxen." Later she decided to produce her own pictures, but was wise enough to return to First National when she discovered the grief connected with the production end of the picture industry.

"The Divine Lady" is Miss Griffith's first production under her new First National contract. She is about to start work on "Saturday's Children."

Your favorite is included among the six most successful beautiful screen stars, and she is also rated for her talent as well as her beauty. Nothing "beautiful but dumb" about Corinne.

In private life she is Mrs. Walter Morosco, and she has no children. Oh, yes, her age! I'll have to whisper it because she's just reached thirty. No more birthdays for Corinne.

You will have the pleasure of hearing Miss Frederick, as well as seeing her again because she has a contract with Warner Brothers to be featured in Vitaphone productions. She has played in pictures late years occasionally, but has spent most of her time on the stage.

You will feel more at home now at picture shows, because many of the older players are returning with the sound pictures. However, Norma, Mary and Gloria have been with us all the time. They have become so "ritzy" that they only make one or two pictures a year, which accounts for their sparse appearance.

Dear Movie Editor—Have you a place in your department for another new fan? I read your page every Sunday and often wish I could see my letter there, but I just couldn't get the nerve to write until now.

I've been having some trouble in convincing my friend that Alice White is a blond. She insists that she has heard Alice has brown hair, but wears a blond wig. I'm sure if you told us which is right, that would settle the argument for good and all.

And who was the boy that played the part of "Harold" in "Harold Teen." He certainly was a scream.

Who was "Bob" and who was "Marcella" in "Tracked by the Police." Rin-tin-tin played in the picture.

Please give me the cast for "Seventh Heaven" and I won't bother you any more this time. Many thanks.

A BLUE EYED FAN.

Move over fans, and make a place for this bashful young lady. We hope she will feel at home with us so she won't have to worry about writing her next letter.

I'll hold the stakes for you, but neither of you are right about Alice's hair. She does wear a blond wig, once in a while, but her real hair is neither blond nor brown. It is reddish gold.

Arthur Lake was the clever "Harold."

Jason Robards and Virginia Browne Faire were the pincipal human characters in "Tracked by the Police." Rinty was the star. He has his picture along with those of Irene Rich, May McAvoy, Conrad Nagel and others of importance at the Warner Brothers Studio. Done in oils, too. Nothing slow about that dog.

The cast for "Seventh Heaven" is: "Diane," Janet Gaynor; "Chico," Charles Farrell; "Brissac," Ben Bard; "Papa Boul," Albert Gran; "Gobin," David Butler; "Madame Gobin," Marie Mosquini; "Nana," Gladys Brockwell; "Herre Chezillon," Emile Chautard; "The Rat," George Stone; "Uncle Georges Vulnar," Brandon Hurst; "Aunt Veltine Vulnar," Jessie Haslett.

Screen Siftings

His First Talkie—"Hunted" the vivid story of twenty-four hours elapsing after a prison escape, will be Willard Mack's first contribution to the talking screen. Mr. Mack will direct the play for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer from his own original dialogue story. Robert Ames, Duane Thompson and Mary Doran are prominent in the cast. They are all former stage players.

Ready For Work—Colleen Moore has returned to the First National Studio after a week's rest at Palm Springs and has plunged into the business of dancing lesson, screen tests, costume fittings, etc.—the preliminary steps for her new production, "That's a Bad Girl." Neil Hamilton will be her leading man, and William Seiter will direct the action.

Loans Fighters—The War Department at Washington has consented to loan some of its fighting equipment to John Boyce-Smith, vice-president of Inspiration Pictures, for some of the important sequences in "She Goes to War." The picture is coming to the screen under Henry King's direction from the story by Rupert Hughes. Eleanor Boardman, Edmund Burns, Al St. John, Alma Rubens, Margaret Seddon, John Holland and Eulalie Jensen are featured in the story.

Like Tall Ones—Leading men are gradually "getting altitude" in motion pictures. The heroes of a few years ago were all fairly short,—that is under six feet in heighth,—but the present day matinee idol rises six feet and over. On the Paramount lot, sixteen of the twenty-one male players under contract are six feet tall or over. Gary Cooper, Lane Chandler, John Loder and Robert Castle tower two inches over the six foot mark.

Sign Whiteman—Paul Whiteman, nationally known orchestra leader and song writer, has been signed by Universal to be starred in a super-sound production. Mr. Whiteman will start work on the feature shortly after the holidays, and in the meantime is originating several new tunes to introduce to the public in the picture.

Want Meighan—Talking pictures will give film fans an opportunity to hear Thomas Meighan on the screen. He is a veteran of the legitimate theater, and Warner Brothers were eager to sign him up as soon as his contract with Caddo productions was completed. No picture has been announced for Mr. Meighan but he expects to start work on his new contract after the first of the year. "The Racket" is Mr. Meighan's current release.

Lead For Nora Lane—As soon as Nora Lane completes her part opposite Adolphe Menjou in "Marquis Preferred," she will pack her make-up kit and take the train for Arizona where "Sunset Pass" is taking screen form. Miss Lane will play the leading role opposite Jack Holt in this new Zane Grey story. She is familiar with westerns, having made her "break" opposite Fred Thomson in his western pictures.

Back From Abroad—Dolores Del Rio has returned to Hollywood from her trip abroad and as soon as she rests up will start work on "Evangeline." The screen version of the Longfellow poem will be filmed by Edwin Carewe as a talking feature.

New Lon Chaney Song—Gus Edwards, famous for his "School Days" and other popular songs, has composed a new one which will be heard in his next Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer song revue. It is dedicated to Lon Chaney and titled, "Lon Chaney's Gonna Get You If You Don't Watch Out." The picture will not only be synchronized with sound, but will be filmed with natural color photography.

Select Title—Bebe Daniels new Paramount picture in which she takes the role of a newspaper reporter has finally been titled, "What a Night."

Chauffeur Again—Jack Mulhall just can't get away from chauffeur roles, and no wonder when the uniform is so becoming. His last chauffeur role was in "Man Crazy" with Dorothy Mackaill, and now he is co-featured with her again in "Children of the Ritz."

Want Man With "It"—It appears that leading men as well as leading ladies must have "It." First National is seeking a man to play opposite Alice White in "Hot Stuff." It's a jazzy tale of modern youth which Mervyn Le Roy will direct. Twenty-two probable "It" men have already been given film tests, but no hero has as yet been selected.

Work Rewarded—Joseph Schildkraut's work in "Show Boat," in which he played the part of Ravenal, was so commendable that he has been signed to a long-term contract by Universal. His first production under the new contract will be "The Bargain in the Kremlin." Work will start on the picture under Edward Sloman's direction shortly after the New Year. The picture will be made with sound and dialogue.

A Bit Particular—While Myrtle Stedman's face is not seen on the screen as frequently as in former years, she appears in an occasional picture when the role happens to be one that appeals to her. At present she is playing an important part in Fox's "The Great White North," which features Nancy Carroll and John Boles.

Work for Laura—Immediately upon her return from a shopping trip to New York, Laura La Plante will start work on the screen version of Adela Rogers St. John's story, "The Haunted Lady." Ian Keith, noted stage and screen actor, will play an important role opposite Miss La Plante.

University Notes

Prof. Clark E. Mickey, chairman of the civil engineering department, is in Kansas City, Mo., conferring with the United States army engineers in regard to flood control. He will return Monday.

Work on the directory of alumni of the college of engineering is expected to be completed by the first of the week. It will be published in the next issue of the Nebraska Blue Print, university engineering magazine.

This is the first presentation in Lincoln of the Nutcracker suite arranged for voices. Bess Agate Phillips is general chairman and Sarh Apperson, Alice Hussong and Hazel Harrison are on the program committee. Irene Lewis Barber was chairman of the committee on decoration and refreshments.

Lincoln Symphony Orchestra Notes

Following is the financial statement of the Lincoln Symphony orchestra as presented to the board of directors by Knox Burnett, business manager.

As a municipal affair, it is felt that the public is entitled to know the orchestra's financial condition. Attention is particularly called to the amount of cancellations and tickets still unpaid for. It is hoped that most of the outstanding subscriptions will be collected, but alarm is felt at the cancellations.

The directors feel that this situation shows a lack of civic spirit in Lincoln. It is also pointed out that it places the orchestra management in a serious predicament, since the city ordinance stipulates that rehearsals may not be started until ticket sales are sufficient to meet the budget.

A great deal of hard work was done to sell sufficient tickets to meet the requirement, and for that reason the cancellations are especially discouraging.

The Schubert Centenary was celebrated by the music pupils of Mrs. Edward S. Luce in a studio recital Friday evening. Part one was devoted to relating interesting details of the masters life and composition. Those taking part in this division were Bobbie Maxwell, Margaret Lindstedt, Mae Spader, Lucille May and Dorothy Maxwell, Helen Ewing, Ruth May Shoemaker, Betty Jane Lindholm, Mary Tree, Hervey Ewing, Margaret Fultin, Dorothy Kepner.

Part two consisted of musical numbers presented by Thelma Barrett, Delbert Pinkerton, Mae Spader, Frank Fedallar, Dorothy Kepner, Helen Ewing, Dorothy Maxwell, Ramah and Beulah Stickler. In part three the instructor gave the second of a series of California travelogues dealing with the musical events; the two weeks of Grand opera at the Shrine theater and the Symphony concerts in Hollywood bowl. Mrs. Luce illustrated the travelogue with mounted pictures. She said that Los Angeles was one of four cities in the United States to have its own grand opera association, using in their season local orchestra, dancers and directors. In the presentation of Carmen the huge stage one hundred feet wide was large enough to permit the appearance of 250 performers.

In telling of the Hollywood bowl she said it was the largest amphitheater in the world, and was a mecca for tourists from all parts of the world. Mrs. Luce heard the Pacific coast premier of Strivinsky's "Rite of Soring" by the Philharmonic Symphony orcehstra of one hundred pieces with Eugene Goossens as guest conductor.

The Doane string quartet of the department of music of Doane college, comprised of C. Burdette Wolfe, first violin, Muriel E. Schools & Colleges

Wesleyan Notes

The sophomore and freshman debate teams were the victors in the class debate tournament held November 15. Members of the sophomore team are: Warren Guthrie of Syracuse, Thelma James of Bloomington, and Charles Wingett of Scottsbluff. Eleroy Stromberg of Oakland, Edwin Frohardt of Omaha, Harold Ried of Kearney, and Gerald Thompson of Gothenburg made up the freshman team.

Arthur J. M. Johnson, '24, is to read a paper on "X-ray Spectroscopy" at the meeting of the American Physical society at Minneapolis November 30.

The Physics club held a business meeting Monday, November 19. Maynard Welsh of Westerville was elected president and Rolland Zabel of Western secretary. November 22 the club will hold a joint meeting with the Geography club. Moving pictures, illustrating the sources of power in the United States and the operation of the power plants, will be shown.

Ten children from the Mothers' Jewels orphan home at York, gave a program in Y. W. C. A. chapel November 19. Msr. Calvert, head of the home, gave a short talk on the new nursery.

Dr. M. E. Gilbert spoke in the Methodist church at Fairbury Sunday, November 18. He remained in Fairbury over Sunday, working in the interests of Wesleyan university.

The senior breakfast was given Friday at the University club. Besides the ninety members of the senior class, the deans of the colleges and Chancellor Schreckenast were present. The toasts were: "Our Men" by Lionel Loder of Waverly, "Our Women" by Irma Nelson of Beatrice, and "Our School" by Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast.

The program for senior recognition day, November 23, consisted of music by the mixed quartet, invocation by the chaplain, reading of the class roll, presentation of the class to the chancellor by the class president, recognition of the class by the chancellor, class oration, evening, November 18. Next week Dean Gossard will go to Auburn, where he will speak at the sectional Hi-Y conference to be held there December 1 and 2.

Dean B. E. McProud of the teachers' colege, who is chairman of the state board of examiners for colleges, went to Omaha Thursday, where he visited four colleges: Creighton, the University of Omaha, Mt. St. Mary's Seminary, and Duschesne.

The play, "The Patsy," was given at Edgar November 19.

Oscar Bennett, instructor in voice, will sing the baritone role in "Elijah" at McCook December 14, and at Hastings December 19.

Doane College Notes

Miss Louise Triplett, '26, who received her master's degree in religious education at Yale last commencement, has a position in the Franklin Street Congregational church of Manchester, N. H., as director of religious education. Miss Triplett's address is 11 Walnut street Manchester, N. H.

Reed Higby, '15, of Encampment, Wyo., has presented a mounted deer head to the museum to be hung in the entrance hall of the Carnegie Science building. Mr. Higby, a forest ranger, found a dead deer on Deer mountain in the Estes park region. It had been recently killed by a mountain lion. Tracks in the snow and small pieces broken from the horns gave evidence that a fierce struggle had taken place.

A box of zoological specimens was received from Miss Florence Folda, '27, recently. The specimens included a couple of Pacific starfishes, a large sand worm and several tubes of smaller marine animals. Miss Folda received her A. M. degree from Washington university last spring and was called back as technician in the zoology department.

Mr. Higby and Miss Folda are both former biology students in Doane.

The regular work of the college was suspended after the second period Friday morning, November 23, in order that the entire group might accept the invitation of Cotner college to spend the day as guests from 11 o'clock in the morning until the close of the banquet in the evening. Besides the football game two joint programs were presented in which representatives of both institutions took part.

The foods class in the home economics department took a trip through a creamery plant, November 19, under the guidance of the teacher, Miss Ruth Schrader.

Babes In Kindergarten Take Rest

Too tired—too tired to braid another mat or string another bright paper chain, and the youngsters of the Prescott school kindergarten take their little rugs, spread them neatly on the floor, and become prone for five or seven minutes. Scarcely more than babies, the kindgarteners become weary before an entire morning has passed, so Miss Evelyn Daly, the instructor, devised this plan of giving her young charges a little rest. The children brought their rugs from home, and like the novelty of lying down for a brief siesta. Miss Daly is shown in the back of the picture.

Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Folson of Julesberg, Colo., were recent campus visitors. Dr. Folsom was graduated from Wesleyan college of liberal arts in 1921. Mrs. Folson was graduated in 1924. She was editor of the 1923 Coyote.

Mrs. Ocean Daley Carey of New York City, a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan school of expression, was a recent visitor. After her graduation, Mrs. Carey was director of dramatics at Peru Normal school for four years. Mrs. Carey is president of the Nebraska club in New York City. Her husband, who is a civil engineer, is now doing construction work in Bolivia, South America.

The championship class debates between the sophomore and freshman teams will be given in chapel Monday, November 26.

Thanksgiving vacation begins November 28 at 6 p. m. and ends December 3 at 8 a. m.

Dean Ralph B. Dennis of the Northwestern school of speech will speak in chapel February 4. In the evening he will read.

Ivan Farnsworth, '24, recently received his masters degree from the St. Louis medical school.

H. C. Cossack, dean of men, went to Grand Island November 18, where he spent the week in work at the Grand Island college. He spoke in the Methodist church Sunday and the school song, "The Yellow and the Brown."

Dr. Manter Will Talk On Marine Animals at Morrill Hall Sunday

An illustrated talk on "Some Marine Animals of the Atlantic Coast" will be given by Dr. H. W. Manter of the department of zoology at the regular Sunday meeting in Morrill hall at the University of Nebraska. The program begins at 4 o'clock.

This will be preceded by a children's program at 2:45 o'clock.

MORE STARTLING DISCLOSURES OF A WRONGED WOMAN.

The First Awakening of Love—Lilac Time and the Summer Boarder.

(NOTE BY EDITOR: In the First Chapter of her Intimate Disclosures, the writer described with daring realism the circumstances of her childhood. She kept back nothing, not even concealing the fact that her father had been born in Peterboro, Ontario, and that her mother had lived in Little Block Oklabraska In the present chapter she describes the first coming of love into her life. We print it just as written, without palliation or apology. Startling as it is in its realism, it at least represents a woman's soul.)

CHAPTER II

What Girls Don't Know.

Last week I was telling my readers in the most intimate language I could get hold of all about my girlhood.

I said that I was brought up ignorant, in the dense ignorance that enshrouds so many young girls today. Even with the resolution I have taken to conceal nothing from my readers, it is hard for me, without a blush of shame, to go into details of my ignorance.

But I will quote as a characteristic example the fact that till I was nine years old I could hardly spell properly. I mixed up words ending in ough with words ending in double f.

A Girl's Ignorance.

Figures also gave me great trouble. For a long time I used to think that 7 and 8 made 13. I was too timid and too reticent to take my difficulties to anybody, least of all to my parents. Sometimes I thought of going to the minister of our church and asking him what 7 and 8 made, and how to spell hemorrhage. But a false shame held me back, and I feared perhaps that even he might not know.

And sinnce I am confiding so fully in my reader I will make another confession, namely, that for many years I did not know the names of the branches of the Amazon, and always imagined that the Xingu came in on the top side. I concealed this as best I could from the people about me.

Of physiology and the human body and of the laws of health I knew absolutely nothing. I could not have told where the oesphagus was nor the prosencephalon, nor the duodenum nor the semicolon nor the major axis of the patella. Once while quite a child I caught a cold and was quite sick for three days without being aware of it.

The First Young Man.

My first love affair took place when I was just turned sixteen. I had hardly turned it when a young man came to stay at our house as a summer boarder. His name was Joe Granger, and he was training for aministers. This ought to have warned me, but I was young and without guidance. In any case, he seemed to me little more than a boy, which was perhaps the case, as he was only five feet, one inch high. But he was quite stout.

There was, however, one thing about Joe that my parents kept from me at the time and that I only learned later on accidentally. It was this; He paid us $2.00 a week for his board, but he was supposed to help father pitch hay and make himself handy around the place.

From Lane to Pasture.

Well for the first two or three weeks that Joe Granger was at our house, I hardly spoke a word to him. But one evening just as I was starting down the lane to the pasture to fetch up the two cows there was Joe standing beside the door of the barn.

It was lilac time and I had on a print dress with a bunch of lilacs at my throat and a branch of apple blossoms in my hair and a bunch of wild convolvulus and chickweed in my waistbelt.

"Where are you going?" Joe asked. "Down to the pasture," I answered, "to fetch up the cows." "All right," he said, "I'll go too." I was feeling in a kind of reckless mood, as if I didnt care what happened to me. "Come on!" I said.

It was a hundred yards or perhaps more down the lane, but all the way Joe said nothing except "Say, look at that oriole. That's pretty early for orioles, isnt's it?" So I know that he was keeping himself pretty well in hand.

Love's Awakening.

When we got to the pasture, the two cows were there standing under the shade trees.

"You chase up the black one," Joe said, "and I'll start up the other."

I was feeling in a sort of desperate mood, as if I didnt care. "All right," I said.

We got the two cows started up the lane, and Joe and I walked along behind them.

"They're easy cows to drive," Joe said. I don't know just how much he meant by it but I answered just recklessly, "They sure are." "Some cows," Joe said, "are much better milkers than others." I didn't even stop to think. "Is that so?' was all I could find to say. "Yes," Joe went on, "when I was on a farm near Cobourg, Ontario, I used to milk six cows a day." I don't know just what he would have said next, but just Joe said nothing except "Say, look at that oriole!" So I knew he was keeping himself pretty well in hand.

then we came to the corner of the barn and there was Father.

Joe is a preacher now and has children of his own, but looking back on it seems strange. I often wondered how many cows he milked after he left Cobourg.

Temptation.

My next love adventure was a few months later; in fact, that same Autumn. I was walking along the road to the village and the rural mail delivery man stopped his cart. "Like a ride, sis?" he asked. "Kind of hot walking, ain't it?"

Just for a minute I hesitated. The driver was a quite elderly man and had four or five children, and it should have warned me. But a sort of spirit of daring had got hold of me for a minute I hesitated. Already he had made a place on the seat beside him. "Climb right in," he said.

Then all of a sudden I realized my danger. "Thanks," I blurted out, "I guess I'll walk." "All right," the man said, "please yourself. Get up, there!" and he touched up his horse and was gone.

I stood in the road for quite a time thinking of what I had escaped.

I never saw the man again, but years after I heard that he was still driving on the same mail route and that his eldest girl had just finished high school. A queer fact about the whole thing, however, is that the government has never promoted him and that he is still on the same route.

By this time, of course, I had begun to realize that men are all wolves and are not to be trusted.

A Father's Downfall.

There was a young man one day came to deliver a load of cord wood and after he had unloaded it, he asked me for a drink of water. Quite unsuspectingly, I fetched him a glass of water from the pitcher and was just going to give it to him when he said, "Do you ever go to the pictures?"

I threw the water in his face and rushed upstairs to my own room, where I threw myself on the bed, but it was a narrow escape.

Well, it was along about this time that our home got all broken up and Mother and I had to move away. It was all on account of Father, because Father began to use alcohol. Of course, where we lived the law didn't allow anyone to buy alcohol and people couldn't get it. But they could get it in indirect forms.

They say there's a lot of alcohol in barbers' perfumes and things like that. Well, Father found out that there is alcohol in axle grease and he began smearing his face with it evenings. He only put on a little at first, just enough to make him feel bright, but then he got to putting it on thicker and thicker and he'd sit there evenings with his face covered with it and the axle grease stupefying his mind. He found too that there is alcohol in linseed oil and he'd go out to the barn and soak himself in it.

It got so bad that Father was soaked most of the time, and he'd just stagger round the place soaked and plastered.

Braving City Perils.

So the end of it was that our home was broken up and Mother and I went to live in the city. I have promised to tell my readers all my sensations and feelings that a girl gets when she goes to live in a city that she has never had before.

I am in a way ashamed to speak of it, but the truth is that for nearly two months, perhaps, I didn't like going up and down in elevators.

And since I am telling everything, I may as well say straight out and be done with it that I dont think the pie in the city is as good as in the country.

We hadn't been very long in the city before I began to learn that the men are just as much wolves and hounds there as they are in the country.

A young girl, even though she weighs 175 pounds, as I did, has got to be on her guard all the time. It was just the same old story, and it began right away.

Urban Villains.

The first one was the house-agent who showed us over the apartments. He managed to sidle pretty close up to me and he sort of whispered, "This is a very desirable location." I just gave him one push in the chest that put him against the wall and I said "You just cut that right out."

Then here was the young feller that came to turn on the electric lights. He said: "If you wouldn't mind holding this candle for me, I'll adjust the meter. "Don't you get so darned smart," I answered.

I found it was just the same way when I went out to look for work in the stores. The first man I went to looked up at me from his desk and he said, "Just sit down, please, and tell me what you can do." "You just quit that right now," I answered and I was out of that place in five seconds.

However, I had not been very long in the city before life all changed and I met my first husband and got married. But I want to tell my readers just how it feels for a young, inexperienced girl to find herself married to a man—I think that will hold them down for a week pretty easily. So I'll stop here for the present.

carefully see the conditions today that he said would follow the adoption of the gold standard.

Now I see that Mr. Hoover wants to create a three billion dollar fund to be used in time of unemployment or over production. We ask for one as a laboring man denounce such a law. If the monetary system of this nation had been properly handled, there would be no over-production, and everyone could afford to live as he should in a land of plenty.

Let all true men and women who believe in the true democratic principles, study and be willing at all times to defend those principles by true facts. In place of quarreling over what is past let all true democratic voters dedicate themselves to those true principles of government that the Fathers founded to the end that true liberty shall not perish from the earth.

University Notes

Alumni callers at the college of engineering during the past week were: Everett B. Sawyer, E. E. '98, with the Railway and Industrial company, Denver, Colo.; Maurice A. Swan, C. E. '27, field representative of the Western Bridge and Construction company of Omaha, McCook, Neb.; Archie P. Fenner, E. E. '26, with the Westinghouse company, East Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Marjorie Shanafelt, curator of visual education, spoke to the third grade of Bryant school Wednesday afternoon on the subject of Indian pottery.

Prof. N. A. Bengston, chairman of the department of geography, has been invited to present a paper before the annual meeting of the American Meteorological society, in New York City during the Christmas holidays. His subject will be "The Climatic Record of the Honduras."

One of the feature addresses of the national annual meeting of the council of geography teachers in New York City, December 26-27, will be given by Dr. Julia M. Shipman, who taught here during the past summer session, and is scheduled to teach here again next summer. Dr. Shipman is now at the University of Tennessee. Her topic will be "Enriching the Geography Curriculum with Current Material."

The department of geography plans to offer a summer field course next August, spending fifteen days in the Rocky mountains, including visits to Yellowstone national park, and the Salt Lake for study of geographical conditions and formations. Prof. E. E. Lackey will have charge of the trip, which will be made by bus. The course is patterned after similar trips offered by the University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, Clark university, and Columbia university.

Prof. W. H. Adolph of the department of chemistry is the author of a book review in the November number of the Journal of Chemical Education.

At the Churches Sunday

ST. PAUL METHODIST

Dr. Walter Aitken will preach.

11:00 a. m. "America--Our Inheritance"
7:45 p. m. "Great Changes."

The Junior Choir, a new organization, under the direction of Mrs. Tullis will sing in the evening service.
The Quartet will also give numbers of superior merit.
The musical features in St. Paul Church are out of the ordinary.

No White House Wedding Bells

There isn't going to be a White House wedding before March 4—at least so says Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, who has refused to deny rumors of her engagement to John Coolidge, the president's son. Friends of young Coolidge insist he will not marry until he is able to support his wife on his own salary. Above, a new photo of the young couple together.

Golden Rule Sunday Will Be Observed in Lincoln December 2

The sixth anniversary of International Golden Rule Sunday this year falls on December 2 and extensive plans have already been made in Lincoln for its observance. The day has been proclaimed for several years by the president and by governors of the various states and by many churches for expressing in gifts the interest of the country in providing shelter, food and training for the Near East relief orphan children.

In this city plans for the observance were started at a Near East luncheon held at the chamber of commerce Thursday at which about 200 were present.

Dr. Benjamin F. Bailey, chairman, presided and spoke briefly of the obligation to the needy boys and girls. Mrs. E. L. Hinman, secretary, spoke of the fine spirit always manifested in Lincoln and the co-operation of the churches and citizens in general.

William J. Shallcross, regional director of Iowa and Nebraska, emphasized the part Nebraska had played in the helping to rehabilitate these eastern countries and stated that of the more than $105,100,000 contributed during the years that Near East relief has been operating, Nebraska had contributed approximately $1,000,000.

Dr. H. P. Fox described a boys' home which he saw at Beirut, Syria, last summer. He said the boys practically operate the home themselves, preparing the meals, baking the bread and nursing the sick.

Dr. Fox emphasized the cleanliness, sanitation and rigid economy that prevailed everywhere and the fine spirit, kindness, courtesy and appreciation which was reflected.

The following churches have already been organized for Golden Rule day:
